IN MEMORIAM

KERR — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away December 16, 1948.

"A dear bright eyes, a tender smile.
A loving heart that knew no guile.
Deep true in God that all was right,
Strong to make some other bright.
If sick or suffering one she knew
Unasked, unseen, a friend was true.
Her thoughts of self out of the other,
A blessed wife, a kind mother, dear sister."

Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Irene and grandchildren Rosemary and Harold. D16

KERR — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Emma Jane Kerr, who passed away December 16, 1948.

There's a face that is haunting us ever,
There's a voice we're longing to hear,
There's a smile we'll remember forever,
Though we try to forget every year.

There's a sad but sweet remembrance.
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a token of affection, dear,
And a heartache, dear mother, for you.

Ever remembered by the family. D16

LANCASTER — In loving memory of a dear son, Norman, who departed this rest December 18, 1944.

Never to be forgotten by mother. D16

KERR — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. J. E. Kerr who died December 16, 1948.

God has many a beautiful flower
But He wanted one for His own.
So He sent His Angels in Heaven,
We will miss Mother's flower here.

The family. D16

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. A. E. Chaplin, Cedar Street, wishes to acknowledge the many acts of thoughtfulness shown during his illness by friends for cards, flowers and gifts received while a patient in the Belleville General Hospital and also for gifts received after arriving home. D16

Trenton Fishermen Concerned Over Fish Houses

Trenton—Ice fishermen of this town are concerned over the mild weather and presence of shallow ice in both the Bay of Quinte and the Trent River. At present there are a dozen fish houses sitting in a very precarious position at the mouth of the river and unless the weather turns colder within the next few days there is a danger of the shanties being lost through the ice. Fishermen fear that the fish houses will be breaking up with the ever-increasing current from a swelling river.

Some of the fishermen attempted to rescue their shanties the first part of the week but the effort when the surface under them threatened to give way.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 16—(CP) — All groups climbed slowly upwards as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials led the upturn with several individual issues holding the spotlight.

Volume for the first three hours was 550,000 shares.

Cockshutt Plow was the centre of attraction in Industrials, gaining 1 3-8 to 17 and touching a new high at 17 3-4 in heavy trading following news of an increased dividend rate. Union Gas continued brisk and higher for a gain of 5-8 at a new high at 16 1-4. Dominion Steel B reacted to dividend news for a gain of 7-8 at a new top at 18 7-8.

A few smaller issues were heavy traders in golds for moderate advances. Hollinger Bay was strong in Base Metals, adding 1 1-2 at 48 1-2 while Consolidated Smelters, ex-dividend $4.50, dipped $3.50 at $102.50.

Sharp Drop In Egg Prices Is Predicted

Cancellation of the Canadian egg contract by the United Kingdom becoming effective tonight has caused alarm among the producers and retailers and according to W. B. Bartlett at the local station, managers of grading stations in the neighboring countryside have closed their doors until they see how the market will level off.

Mr. Bartlett who appeared to be very disturbed warned that eggs might go much lower before supply and demand in the Canadian market become equalized. He expected the grade A large to be marked down to 30 cents a dozen by Saturday morning.

In recalling the Minister of Agriculture's recent statement announcing there would be no continuance of the egg contract in 1950 Mr. Bartlett looked for the producers to kill off all of their laying hens as the answer to their new problem.

The price of eggs in Belleville did not drop today since Mr. Bartlett's contract with the egg drying plant at Trenton does not run out until tonight. Quotations today: Grade "A" large retailed at 50 cents a dozen, mediums, 45 cents and "A" pullets, 36 cents From tonight on Mr. Bartlett said the Canadian market will have no support, revealing that 111 carloads of surplus eggs for the overseas market went to the drying plants last week.

Fail to Observe 'Stop' Signs, Nine Pay Fines

Local motorists just will not learn that "stop" signs at through street intersections mean that cars must be brought to a full stop before entering the through thoroughfare.

Just this was indicated in city police court today when no less than nine motorists paid five dollars each into the city coffers for their failure to observe "stop" signs in the city. All nine of the motorists settled out of court.

Two motors paid $3.50 when they ignored parking tickets placed on the cars resulting in police issuing summons for court appearance.

Several inebriates made court appearance, two of them being multiple offenders and will be guests of the county for Christmas (about). A second offender was sentenced to one month in jail in lieu of fine payment of $50 and costs, while a third offender was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

MOTHER GIVEN CUSTODY OF CHILD

Toronto, Dec. 16—(CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal, in three separate written judgments, Thursday awarded custody of an illegitimate child to a British immigrant mother who had given the child to foster parents by written consent.

F.W. Brennan Maker at Albert For 34 Years

After 34 years continuous service as cheesemaker at Albert cheese factory just north of Marysville, F. W. Brennan is still going strong.

During all these years as cheesemaker at Albert Mr. Brennan has had a good record as cheesemaker. In 1947 he achieved a 100 percent score and also had a good average score during the season just closed.

Back in 1914 the factory produced just ten cheese per day and in 1949 the make had increased to 34 cheese daily. The Albert factory employs two helpers besides Mr. Brennan. The factory president is Jerry Wing and the secretary treasurer W. J. Walsh.

CHILD TO BE BROUGHT UP BY WHITE GRANDPARENTS

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 16 (AP) — State Supreme Court Justice Alger A. Williams ruled Thursday that Mary E. Marshall, 5, a child of mixed Negro and white parentage, will be brought up by her white grandparents. Williams dismissed a writ of habeas corpus brought by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Marshall, who sought to regain custody of the child from Mrs. Marshall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Freitus.

Y's Men's Club Holds Family Christmas Party

With over 150 persons present the annual Y's Men's family party took place last night in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The room was beautifully decorated with trees, bells and ribbons, to which the colored lights and table settings added everything necessary for the festive occasion. Rare delicacies were provided for the meal which was interspersed with the gaiety of proud fathers whose behavior, although usual on the regular weekly gatherings of the club was a revelation, a surprise and a shock to hero-worshipping children. Some control was maintained by the series of fines meted out to obnoxious offenders.

Christmas caroling and moving pictures with few speeches featured the program. The president Gerald Hyde's song, "Peg O' My Heart", including his solo number was greatly enjoyed by everyone, including certain of those at the head table, although the president's Christmas red tie matched his face before the number was concluded.

Santa arrived to distribute gifts to all of the children, some of whom take leading roles in the affairs of the club.

Bud Trill and others of the committee received the praises of the club for their efforts in making the occasion a success.

Announcement was made that the Y's Men's Christmas trees are selling rapidly and from now on it is a case of first come, first served for the selection.

On next Thursday the Y's Men will gather to start on a tour of the city singing Christmas carols.

APPOINTS ATTENDANT ON PARKING LOT

As an aid to the Christmas shopper Chamber of Commerce has employed an attendant to assist at no charge the shoppers parking cars in the area on the west side of Front Street behind Woolworth's store. Entrances and exits to the attendent-staffed location are situated between the Metropolitan and Zellers and Kresge and Quick and Robertsons. The free parking service is being extended to the shoppers for one week starting on Monday.

TOYMAKERS OLD AND PRESENT

What opportunity modern science and industry take to develop their appeal through their products! Toys of all kinds have always attracted the young even in the days before modern machinery for the toymaker is one whose industry is almost as old as the human race. Among relics of ancient Romans and Greeks and their predecessors have been found fine works of art even in the form of playthings for the young in those long-ago times.

Today industry has its powerful imagination at work as a survey of the shops where toys for the boys and girls sit. Children's eyes shine as everything to please throug the eye and through the imagination of the youngest child.

And the toys are not playthings to be thrown away at the close of the day. They attract the attention and so help develop the mind, the observation and skill in the make-up of things.

And lest skill should disappear from the earth there are those toymakers who fashion their products in the time-honored way, by hand, with the skill of the old-time craftsmen. The attraction of these pieces of handicraft is as great as ever the old toymaker's products were.

Between the work of the modern machine in toys and of the old-style toymaker the children of this age will be well taken care of. There are plenty of toys in great variety which will lure the minds of the young and help to train them in the early steps of their education in the ways of this world.

FOR ROAD AND STREET SAFETY

The coming holiday season will be marked with heavy traffic whatever the weather conditions may be. This fact prompts the National Safety Council to draw attention of the motoring public to the urgent necessity of careful and cautious driving, which by reason of the movement of so many more people than usual on the roads and streets has become easily the most dangerous of the year.

A campaign is being waged to bring home to everyone who travels the roads the needs for extra care in the operation of motorcars. It is the most festive of seasons of the entire year and due to the variety of weather conditions which can prevail, the need for caution is doubly magnified. It is the time of all times when the mood of the people is merriest and a tragedy on such an occasion is the saddest possible event which can happen.

As modern traffic is something so great and is freighted with such possibilities of pleasure or injury and playing as it does so great a part in the lives of all the people, there is one watchword which should never be forgotten — Drive carefully and courteously. If everyone will do this the traffic toll will be greatly reduced.

It would be one of the happiest events of this modern age if motor traffic could be such that no one would suffer injury or possibly the loss of life.

Now on everyone rests the supreme duty to himself or herself on the highways in charge of cars that no one's safety will be endangered.

Extra care which might be expected of everyone in view of the endless throng of people who will be travelling by motors in the course of the next ten or twelve days deserves to be practised and will bring the greatest reward — safety.

The fact that more children are on the streets at this time will be another reason why the utmost caution must be used. It is trub that many of them are in charge of their mothers but there may be someone who will make an unpredictable move in the face of motor traffic and run grave danger of injury.

Let all remember that these are days when night falls quickly and when road conditions by reason of weather conditions may change very suddenly, meaning possibly the difference between life and death for someone through an accident unless everyone exercises care.

WHALE BEEF

Whale beef is in sight for some people. A Norwegian factory ship is to be a storage depot for whale oil and aboard this ship, the Kosmos V, they will have aboard a completely equipped factory for the processing of whale meat. News of Norway states that there will be twelve technicians and 25 assistants who will turn tons of fresh whale meat into half a million cans of meat balls while in Antarctica this winter. This will bring, it says, the use of whale meat to an extent never before possible.

The most painful part of our bodily pain is that which is bodiless or immaterial, namely our impatience and the delusion that it will last forever.—Richter.

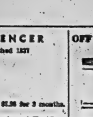
REFORMATION



Washed his hands and brushed his hair.
Saying: "Thank you," now, and "Please."
Sits correctly in his chair.
What achieves reforms like these?
Just one guess, and tell I could:
Now's the time for being good.

Bedtime! Up the stair he goes;
Utters no dissenting word.
On the floor no garment throws.
Has a miracle occurred?
Yes. The one that happens here
Only at this time of year.

Answers door bell and the phone.
"Get your glasses? I know where,"
Need assistance? Make it known.
He'll provide it then and there,
Reformation! @Will it last?
Yes, 'till Christmas Day has passed.

"What I can't understand," said a theatre manager, "is why nine actors out of ten look as if they bawl out the audience."

"You got sucker-sore," said an actor.

"You got what?" I asked.

"Sucker-sore," repeated the actor. Night after night you see him gawking at you as though you were a tattooed lady or a two-headed calf. Remember the case of the chicken?"

"No," I said.

"There wasn't much to it," said the actor. "The giant got off his platform one night and started beating up a guy in the crowd. No one special, you understand—just a guy. When they finally calmed the giant down, all he said was, 'I just got sucker-sore.'"

"You know there was a gal Jane Cowl in," said a press agent. "Well, in London she once held up a show until a noisy guyin a box stood up and apologized to the whole crowd."

"The best audience bawling out of all," said a theatre owner, "was the one that Henry Miller . . ."

"John Barrymore was a dilly at it," interrupted the actor. "Of course, you all know about the time when he was hissed for coughing too much, and he threw his fan into the audience and said, 'Share this among you, you scals!'"

"I was in Pittsburgh," said the manager, "that Miller once . . ."

"How Henry Miller threw a fit who was playing 'Hamlet,'" said the press agent, "and didn't like the way the lights were focused on his hands. The one who started playing catch with the gravedigger, using the skull for a ball."

"The manager tried again. 'Once, Henry Miller . . .'

"Richard Bennett topped them all in the tantrum department," said the actor. "One night, he plants the steam pipes back to knock, and he stepped down to the footlights and said, 'When the dinner finishes playing pinochle and takes care of the plumbing, the play will resume.' And he stood there and glowered until the racket stopped."

"When Henry Miller . . ." began the manager.

"This time," I said, "let him tell it."

"When Henry Miller opened in 'The Great Divide,' the first tryout was in Pittsburgh, and Henry got plenty sore when the critics panned the play and accused him of handling it up. In New York, however, the play was a success and Henry was delighted.

"When the show went on tour, the first stand booked in by the booking office was a repeat in Pittsburgh, but this time the critics reversed themselves and said both Miller and the play were swell.

"One night in the middle of his big love scene with Margaret Anglin, Henry, who was playing all customers were sneaking up the aisle and making for the exits.

"'Get back to your seats,' he yelled, 'The last time I played this overwrought drama I was insulted and I don't propose to let it happen again!'

"The people went back to their seats and the play went on, but a few minutes later customers got up and began to leave. This time Miller almost threw a fit.

"'Knaves and varlets,' he screamed, 'back to your seats!'

"Many left, flashing ribbons by the sleeve. 'Stop acting like a lackey, Henry,' she said. 'The theatre's on fire.'"

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

APPETITE FOR WHAT-NEXT

What an inspiring example is that one, who is so enthusiastic over what he has to do that he has no time, or effort to waste in looking back on what he has done before. In other words, that man or woman who only has an "appetite for What-next."

You can't move ideas and interests into the human mind too fast. There is plenty of room there, and if well organized, the demand for those ideas and interests will increasingly be in evidence. There will be no gap for boredom to creep in, and everything that is new and stimulating.

I have vivid memories of the late E. M. Statler, founder of the Statler string of hotels. He was a man of ideas—always looking ahead, and forever in search of the one who had ideas. Playing golf with him amused me, as well as others playing with us. He was never world drive and then would start off along the fairway, "Come, let's get going!" He had an insatiable appetite for What-next.

We measure neither time nor age when we are travelling ahead on an exciting poetic journey as one by Tennyson—his "Ulysses." The setting-sun line thrilled. I will quote but a single line. "Tis not too late to seek another world." Or New Ideas. For New Worlds. New Experiences. An appetite for What-next!

Anticipation and expectation are terms so commonly used by us before us guides us best. The shadows mark our passing, recording those that are all in an end. To have a happy, hopeful vision of the opening of a day is to begin it and full of readiness. Whatever happens to us then, we look forward each day to progress and to the next thing at hand.

In a strange country we are forever speculating upon what the next thing will be, or the next thing of interest. Even in the reading of an interesting book, we find ourselves wondering what will be said next, or how the story will end. Life will lose nothing of its delightful flavor if we keep our ever youthful appetite for What-next!

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

On the street yesterday I encountered a man, who about eight years ago, was a kid with cannon balls bursting around his ears in the skies, purple and white, and crimson and blue ribbons on his chest.

He was one of our most terrific fighter pilots. I had actually seen him on a Hun on his tail in the air. You don't often have that luck. But I was attached to the airfield he was stationed on; knew him and talked to him off and on when he came home again, time after time, week after week. Thus, one evening, when I heard the roar of his cannon going in the sky and saw the flash, I knew, without even looking, when, two minutes later, our fighter, with the wheels down, would come home to announce "I done it again," we had a mere personal acquaintance with him.

But before the war ended, he had collected a number of decorations, considerable rank, and the respect of everybody old and young.

He shifted his brief case over to shake hands.

"How on earth are you doing?" I said, "you pirate. "You kite."

"Wonderful! And what are you doing?"

"Manufacturers' agent," he announced importantly, "I have three employees, and . . . and!"

"Swell! And do you do any flying?"

A look of horror crossed his face.

"Flying!" he gasped. "You mean in flying machines? Up in those things?"

I wasn't at all sure he was kidding. You know those Air Force fighter pilots sometimes never draw a perfectly serious breath from the time they're born.

"Listen, Pop!" he said. "From the minute I get on the boat in England to come home, I haven't ever had more than one foot off the ground at any time. I would no more fly . . . !"

And this was the kid whose Spitfire fitted him the way our shoes fit you and me; and who, for four fabulous years, could hardly be kept on the ground.

AN OPPORTUNITY OFTEN MISSED

Parents miss a great opportunity when they do not take their children to church. Almost without exception children want to go to church and are thrilled by doing with adults something that seems to be highly significant. They love the music of the service. The solemnity of the liturgy even though it is not very complicated—fascinates them. It can be put down as an almost invariable rule that the overwhelming majority of children love to go to church and Sunday school.

You may say that a child gets nothing out of a sermon, but you can be sure that it gets in proportion to the age just as much out of the sermon as you do. Can you make an outline of a sermon an hour after it is delivered? Most people get something here and something there, but what they get should be such good stead through the week that church-going vindicates itself many times over as a profitable exercise.

The child will absorb information and inspiration in the same way you do—proportionate, of course, to its years. The time to begin to train a child to worship is while the child is young. The only structure should be that a child should not be taken to church until it knows how to behave in public assembly. Some children behave well at four, but practically all children do so after they have started to school.

Mackenzie's Column: Yugoslav Has No Intention of Returning Home

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The struggle of the voluntary exile in the United States of Ivan Mestrovic, world famous Yugoslav sculptor who has been playing diplomatic tit-for-tat with an audacious Marshal Tito, has ceased to be a mystery.

Mestrovic now is head of the department of sculpture at Syracuse University.

The Yugoslav dictator has been sending frequent emissaries to Mestrovic—the most recent within a few days—urging the sculptor to return home. Why? What does Tito want with an artist who is opposed to Communism?

In order to get the full significance of Tito's move you must know Mestrovic. This striking personality is the bearded protoype of the Yugoslav patriot who always has battled for liberty. Mestrovic was thrown into prison by Hitler's minions after the nazi invasion of Yugoslavia during the war.

In short, Mestrovic is one of Yugoslavia's great men whose name is honored in every home in the country. Tito is fulfilling a mighty Moscow for the life of his regime, and he needs the support of men like Mestrovic.

The sculptor puts it a little differently. He says that he would be glad to help effect a placing the stamp of approval on the Communist government and he thinks this is what Tito has in mind.

However, Mestrovic has no intention of going home until religious liberty in Yugoslavia is restored in fact as guaranteed in symbolized by the case of Archbishop Aojsic Stepanic, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, who in 1946 was convicted by a People's Court of sponsoring an organization of terrorists and was sentenced to 20 years in prison where he now is.

Stepanic and Mestrovic have been personal friends for years. So strong is the bond between these two that Mestrovic's campaign for the release of the Archbishop a requisite of compliance with Tito's pressing invitations to return home.

"Not everything that Tito and his Communists are doing in our country can be termed as bad," Mestrovic said in an interview. "In fact their achievements in the reconstruction of the devastated land in its rapid industrialization are truly remarkable. However, the freedom of conscience and the respect of human dignity, which the people claim, do not exist at present. My sympathies are with Tito even now when he has taken a stand against Moscow in defence of the independence of the country."

So the next move now is up to Tito—the release of Archbishop Stepanic.

X-RAY COST IS FOR OPINION, NOT FOR A PICTURE

Here and these as you amble about the town, you may see a sign reading "X-ray Clinic." The sign is obviously placed to catch the eye of the passer-by. Occasionally, a physician may add the word X-ray to those on his shingle Often, the sign adorns the premises of a "technician," who is not a physician.

When one sees a sign reading, "Dentist—Gas", the supposition is I presume, that the dentist is calling attention to a service he provides which possibly some other dentist does not have. It does not follow that because a dentist does not have gas he is not a dentist in that he doesn't have it in his office. Can there be any doubt that such a sign is a form of advertising, and a bid for business?

There are thousands of physicians who have X-ray equipment in their offices who do not announce the fact to the public on a sign. Some, in fact, refer many of these, use X-rays in their work in conjunction with their regular practice, and are interested in doing "X-ray work," as such, for their physician friends. When a physician adds "X-ray" to his shingle he offers a service not always available in other physicians' offices? Is he a specialist or just X-ray?

An ethical physician does not advertise, period.

Many X-rays laboratories, operated by physicians who specialize in Roentgenology and Electrology (X-ray work), display a sign on the front of their office as "Jones X-ray Laboratory." This announcement is obviously for the guidance of physicians, for the patient who has been referred to the laboratory by another physician. If a person walked in there and demanded X-rays, he would be told that he could get one only on the request of a physician. Suppose just as a matter of discussion, the Roentgenologist obliged the patient. The immediate fee he practice is limited to Roentgenology, but would treat the patient, so what earthly good would the examination be to the patient? If the patient took the pictures and even a report to another physician and was told by him that the work was unnecessary and incorrect, what then?

The discussion as to an X-ray examination is one which only a physician can decide. The so-called "X-ray" taken of some part of the body as a patient's whim, is invariably useless. An exception to this might exist in reference to dental X-rays, decided upon by a patient, himself, and the pictures used by a dentist.

Experience in Roentgenology requiring long, and arduous training. Even the physician who employs X-rays often and routinely in his daily practice never regards himself as a Roentgenologist, nor does he hold himself out to be such, although he may know a great deal about it. A technician is a lay person, trained to take X-ray pictures. There his limitations end. The interpretation of the picture or pictures is the reading "X-rays." The said is obviously placed to catch the eye of the passer-by. Canadian Defence Takes New Shape in Year of Peace

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP) — In many ways, 1949, was the most important peacetime year Canadian defence has known.

The defence budget jumped more than 50 per cent to $300,000,000—a record for a year of peace. The forces were wedded to the country's first military alliance in the Atlantic Pact. The air forces stepped out on the No. 1 service.

The regular forces, with past recruiting difficulties over, netted some 8,000 new men and moved towards a total standing strength of 50,000. They were some 3,000 to 4,000 men short at year's end.

Construction of barracks, homes and installations, such as hangars, cost some $100,000,000. Orders for new combat planes and naval craft and for repairs and modernization of those now in use probably exceeded that total.

The R.C.A.F. established its first regular fighter squadron and an Air Defence Group set up headquarters in Montreal to direct defence preparations. A radar early-warning system to protect vital approaches got under way.

Addition of Newfoundland to Confederation added a great defence bastion to the nation. Canada made no effort to disturb U.S. military rule at three bases on the island but pressed for modification of certain civilian privileges given under a 99-year lease.

Joint Defence Link

The forces united to establish a joint communications system that linked through relay centres not only all military bases in Canada but defence headquarters in such capitals as Washington and London.

The framework of ready defence was taking shape in the radar system, the communications network and reserve fighter squadrons, the continued training of elements of the army's airborne brigade, the navy's anti-submarine preparations.

But 1949 also had its frustrations and its moments of doubt. The government kept hammering at the U.S. for an arms-exchange bargain, without making any noticeable headway. It was hoped Canada could make and sell to the United States equipment usable by services of both countries as part of a projected overall arms unification program.

A three-man commission found a widespread feeling that the navy is stretched too far and too thin, that there is a broad lack of experience among its officers and an artificial distance between officers and men.

In the Commons, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., (PC-Nanaimo) made the first major assault on defence policy and advocated that $3 be spent on the R.C.A.F. for every dollar spent on the army.

Press reports on Exercise Eagle, a weekend air-land exercise along the Alaska Highway, were generally critical of equipment used. Army reserve units were generally well below strength and recruiting aimed at another 10,000 men to add to the 39,000 now in. Reserve units of the other forces were below strength, too, but officials said new recruits couldn't be absorbed any faster.

The navy's 18,000-ton aircraft carrier Magnificent went aground and was laid up for months in drydock. But that piece of bad news was counteracted by the feat of the destroyer Haida in rescuing 16 U.S. airmen off Bermuda in winter seas.

Unity Comes Slowly

And among these highs and lows many things proceeded quietly. The administrative headaches rooted in the drive to unify the defence department were slowly eased by young, able C. M. Drury, C. M. Drury new deputy minister.

The navy opened a recruit-training centre near Digby, N.S., exercised in anti-submarine warfare with U.S. and U.K. fleets, handed out $40,000,000 in orders for new ships. The army moved ahead with training in a network of schools, tested its first airborne battalion and found it good, kept building towards an airborne brigade.

The R.C.A.F. launched a marching squadron in Nova Scotia, flayed tens of thousands of square miles in the north, carried out regular transport flights flung thousands of miles of regular routes. U.S. Defence Secretary Louis Johnson came and went as the most important of numerous important visitors.

In the headlines temporarily were the Haida's rescue, the R.C.A.F.'s mercy flights and rescue of five air-crashed U.S. and British servicemen in a northern wilderness, the loss of 20 lives in the crash of an air force plane in Manitoba.

Sudbury, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Accidental death with no blame attached to anyone was the verdict returned by Dr. Gilles Desmarais, coroner at an inquest into the death last Nov. 9 of Robert James Webster, 43, of Sudbury. Webster was struck by a C. P. R. pusher engine at a level crossing.

Foxboro Farm Forum

The Foxboro Farm Forum met on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Joslin with an attendance of twenty. Mr. Everett Prindle discussion leader divided the members into three groups to discuss the topic "Is there a Farm Housing Problem?" It is agreed that the housing problem on the farm is not lack of space but lack of repairs and modern improvements.

A definite proportion of the farm income should be devoted to improving the home as it would make the farm a more pleasant place to live for all the family. This should help keep the young people on the farm and would certainly be a big help to the housewife.

Suggestions for remodelling farm homes included hydro, bathroom and running water, refrigeration, modern kitchen, a good heating system and outside repairs.

It was felt that the Forum could sponsor a farm home improvement campaign by obtaining booklets of home improvement plans and making them available to its members and buying materials collectively.

Mrs. Colin assisted by Garth and Getha served refreshments. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell on Jan. 9.

Mystery Blast Reduces Sarnia Home to Debris

Sarnia, Dec. 16 — (CP) — A mystery explosion Thursday at nearby Bluewater reduced a one-storey frame home to debris and sent one man to hospital with burns about the head and hands. His son said he was blown right through a crumbling wall and suffered only cuts.

The blast wrecked the home of Fred Iwasyck, 54, which he occupied alone with his son, Henry.

The father's burns are not considered serious. Doctors said that the heavy clothing he was wearing probably saved him from serious injury.

Henry said he had been ill in bed all day and that the explosion occurred just after his father returned from work at a district factory. The house was heated only by a coal and wood stove. It was out during the day and he did not know whether his father had lighted it.

For several days, Henry related there had been "a bad smell like gas" around the house, but neither he nor his father could explain it because the house is not piped for natural gas.

"I didn't hear any warning noise, but suddenly I seemed to be blown right out of the house. I had to scramble out of the way into the open air or part of the roof would have fallen on me."

Bluewater residents said, however, that the sound of the blast was heard half a mile away. Firemen found no evidence of a blaze among the ruins.

Parts of the frame walls were scattered as far as 100 feet and rear yards, and broken furniture was strewn all over the lot.

POOREST HANDLED

Kingston, Dec. 16 (CP)— Hay and pasture crops, the most important in Frontenac County, "are the poorest handled and grown with the least intelligence" said Dr. F. A. Stinson, head of the soils department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph in a speech Thursday to the annual meeting of the Frontenac Improvement Association.

Dr. Stinson said that 85 per cent of the 153,000 acres under cultivation in Frontenac are in hay and pasture. "The average farm carries about one animal unit to 3.4 acres," he said. "Elsewhere in Ontario the ratio is one head to one acre."

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONAL

In a recent write-up of Miss Joyce Hammond, "who passed from Norwood High School in 1948 with highest class honors of the form, and carried off $100 of Norwood's $1,000 scholarship", there crept a blot in the copy submitted, the $100 should have read $900.

Surrey Woman Made Kilts For Canucks

Ripley, Surrey, England—(CP)—Mrs. Esther Butler made 3,000 kilts for Canadian officers during the war years. She's still turning them out but now they go to the export trade.

Mrs. Butler, 53, makes six kilts a week and works in a trailer behind here. She's been making them for 37 years.

"I can safely say I am the only woman kilt-maker in England," she said. "But I don't know about Scotland."

60th Anniversary Of Wedding To be Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan F. Ward, Toronto, who will celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary on Sunday, Dec. 18, were for many years, residents of the neighboring village of Consecon, and town of Trenton, and well known in this city.

Mr. Ward, who is of Quaker extraction, was born near Kingston, Ont., in 1861. At the age of 24, he "went west" to California, and after five successful years returned to Canada where he met and married Roberta Porter, in the then thriving village of Consecon, in Prince Edward County.

After their marriage, they moved to New York City, where he joined his older brothers in the electrical business. At the end of the century they returned to Canada, farmed for a little, then he went to Chicago where he took up the study of chiropractics, later becoming one of the pioneer chiropractics. At the beginning of the First Great War, he set up his practice in Trenton, from which he retired last year.

Mrs. Ward's family is well known in Prince Edward County, her brother, the late E. Cas Porter, K.C., having been federal member of parliament for Hastings for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward had four children, Russell, of Spokane, Washington; Hubert, deceased; Irving of Sudbury, and Anita, (Mrs. Fred Shearer), with whom they share their home in Lansing. They have four grand children, and four great grand sons, the youngest of whom will share their "At Home" on Sunday next, when they will be at home to their friends and neighbors.

Ven. Archdeacon Arthur Smith Addresses Meeting

A pleasant Christmas meeting was held at Queen Alexandra School with a large attendance. The attendance prize for the most mothers present was won by Mr. Anderson's room and for the father's by Mr. Wallace's room.

Christmas carols were sung by Grade 8 in conjunction with the Nativity scene tableau which were staged as a background with Mr. Wallace's room taking part, with Miss Young directing the play, and Miss Hart, the music.

Miss McPherson's room also staged a very delightful Christmas play.

Two beautiful violin selections were also given by Stephen Schwab.

The guest speaker of the evening, the Venerable Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas church, was introduced by Mr. Jarvis, and appropriately expressed by Mr. Fraser Fulton.

Refreshments were served.

RAWDON

Mrs. Roy Thrasher Elected President Mt. Pleasant WMS

Rawdon—The Christmas meeting of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, Woman's Missionary Society, was held last Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. Gordon Linn, with sixteen members, six visitors and four children in attendance.

The service opened with quiet music played by Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik, and Rev. Mr. Vaclavik sang some Czech carols.

Mrs. John Holmes presided and gave the call to worship in the form of a Christmas story. A letter of thanks was read from "Overseas Missions Relief" for the bale they received.

Mrs. Arthur Phillips, who is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carmel, sent greetings.

The business meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Raymond McDonald, when the reports of year's work will be given, and officers installed for 1950.

The Temperance secretary, Mrs. Wilbert Jeffs, arranged the program, and two vocal duets were sung throughout the service.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher read the Bible lesson found in St. Matthew and Mrs. Will Potts gave the Christmas message. She closed her paper with a prayer for the missionaries at work in China.

The Temperance secretary sang "Dear Little Stranger."

Mrs. John Ray gathered the offering which was dedicated to the cause of Missions.

Christmas in Other Lands

Christmas customs of other lands was presented as follows:

"Why we have lighted candles in the windows"—by Mrs. Roy Thrasher; "Origin of Christmas Dinner", by Mrs. George Weaver; "Why we give gifts and call them Christmas Boxes?", by Mrs. Percy MacMullen; "Origin of Christmas Cards", by Mrs. Blake Sharp.

Mrs. Elwood Johnson was in charge of refreshments when opened $19.15 will be added to the treasury.

An impressive "Candlelighting Service", was held as outlined in "The Missionary Monthly" with four ladies lighting candles.

Mrs. Herbert Jeffs read a poem by Wilbur F. Jollett, "God's Light in the Window", Mrs. Frank Spencer, jr., read "Love Came Down at Christmas" by Christine G. Rossetti. Mrs. Arthur Weaver read a Polish carol and Mrs. Gordon Linn read the portion of "The Statement of Faith".

Election of Officers

President, Mrs. Roy Thrasher; honorary president, Mrs. Allan Bailey; 1st vice president, Mrs. Rose Hoard; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Ross Jeffs; 3rd vice president, Mrs. John Holmes; recording secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Will Potts; Mission Band teacher, Mrs. Herbert Smith; assistant, Mrs. John Mulheron; Baby Band leader, Mrs. Frank Spencer jr.; assistant, Mrs. Ross Jeffs; associate members' secretary, Mrs. Milford Wrightman; supply secretary, Mrs. Frank Jeffs; Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. Gordon Linn; literature, Missionary Monthly and World Friends' secretary, Mrs. Raymond McDonald; Temperance and Christian Citizenship secretary, Mrs. John Holmes; press secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; auditor 1949-50, Mrs. Frank Jeffs; auditor, 1950, Mrs. Elwood Johnson; pianist, Mrs. John Holmes; assistant, Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik.

The hostess served delicious homemade candy and was thanked for hospitality.

WEST HUNTINGDON

Neighbors, Friends Present Young Couple With Gifts

West Huntingdon— An extra large number of friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Haggerty, on Wednesday evening to honor the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Don Sills, (nee Jean Haggerty). The Rev. W. H. Walker was chairman, and the community singing was led by Mrs. Milton Shaw, and Miss Margaret Haggerty.

Misses Louis Cooke and Eleanor Wright played a piano duet.

Mrs. William Grant and Miss Beverly McIntyre, sang a duet, Thompson, rendered a duet.

Mrs. Milton Shaw read an address from the members of St. Andrew's Church, and Jean was presented with a lovely table cloth.

Mrs. Carl Bateman read the address from the community and Jean and Don were presented with a large assortment of useful gifts for which they both voiced their appreciation.

Mrs. Chester Sills and Mr. Arthur Bishop also gave short addresses.

WEST HUNTINGDON

Endeavors Class Entertained by Mr., Mrs. D. Cooke

West Huntingdon— Mr. and Mrs. Don Cooke entertained the members of the Endeavors' Class for their December meeting on Monday evening. Games in attendance listened with rapt attention to the instinctive Christmas address given by Mrs. Burton Morton of Wellman's. Mrs. Morton is a talented speaker and her address was much appreciated by the members. Mrs. Clifford Clancy also of Wellman's, accompanied Mrs. Morton and gave a brief address.

Mr. B. Hollinger, of Foxboro, was present and addressed the gathering regarding hospitalization.

Other interesting numbers on the program included a solo by Miss Marilyn Fielding, an address on "What Christmas Means", by Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Mr. Philip Carr.

The Rev. Morley Clarke, conducted election and installation of officers for 1950 and those honored were—president, Mr. Philip Carr; 1st vice president, Mrs. Mac Series; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Geo. Ashley; pianist, Mrs. W. J. Fitchett; assistant pianist, Mrs. Geo. Ashley.

Mr. Clayton Wright conducted the scripture reading and Mrs. John Moorcroft gave a fine report of the year's activities.

CGIT Conduct Evening Service

An impressive Christmas vesper service was conducted Sunday evening at St. Andrew's Church by the Canadian Girls in Training of Bridge Street, Dundas Street, Holloway Street and St. Andrew's Companions.

The choir consisting of seven girls from each of the churches under the direction of Mr. Templeton, led the processional.

Jean Doig, acting as leader, gave the call to worship and prayers. Scripture readings were given by Ruth Bailey, Fay Ferguson, Joanna Halsey and Shirley Bruce.

The address by Rev. Mr. Hornsby was followed by the candlelight service by Mary Rollins, Nan Young, Ann Sterling and Susan Carter lighting the candles.

The girls acting as ushers and receiving the offering were Margaret Jean Doig, Mrs. Wilma Lough and Barbara Wright.

Fashion Flashes

NO MATTER what color is featured, it is black that is the consistent best seller. A day-length evening dress is made with a bolero top Adaise with ungraduated black sequins with tiny sequins for the very narrow shoulder straps. The wide skirt is fashioned of multiple layers of black nylon tulle

NO SACRIFICE of youthful charm and appeal for high style is apparent in the new coat clothes developed for little girls. Gray flannel is used for a boxy jacket with all the new details of fit. The jacket is very smart with its deep collar and turned back cuffs of black velvet, and makes for an attractive suit for a little girl.

ON THE SLANT is the line taken by many an evening dress hem. Ankle-length for the front, floor-length for sides and back on a dress of deep sapphire blue nylon tulle pastorelle all over with tiny rhinestones. Strapless bodice has two narrow panels that widen out over the back. Beautiful, too, in brown with tiny coppery colored stones.

Diplomat's Family Has Second Summer

Canberra, Australia — (CP) — Mrs. L.R. LaFleche, wife of the new Canadian high commissioner to Australia, Maj.-Gen. LaFleche, will enjoy two summers this year.

With her husband, their daughter Desiree, 17, and son Jean, 15, Mrs. LaFleche arrived in Sidney on a brilliant sunlit day in October. They are now settling into their new home in Canberra and looking forward to the summer months "down under."

Maj.-Gen. and Mrs. LaFleche were at the Canadian embassy in Athens from 1945 until July of this year; when they returned to Canada for a short holiday.

Used to outdoor entertaining in Greece, Mrs. LaFleche hopes to take advantage of the warm climate to hold similar parties in Canberra.

Daughter, pretty, blonde and blue-eyed like her mother, will attend the National University in Canberra with her brother, Jean. Mrs. LaFleche knows their three eldest children will visit Australia during her husband's appointment here. Francois is studying law at McGill University, Montreal, Pierre is a law student at the Sorbonne, Paris, and Paul is at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ontario.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

You can beat any steak into submission no matter how tough. The meanest piece of meat can be made pliant by running it through a tenderizing machine which crushes and cuts the tough tissue into soft, but not necessarily fine mincing.

It isn't a new idea, 600 years ago Mongols carried their daily meat ration under their bony horses saddles. A single day's ride was usually enough to make the steak easy on the teeth. Steak tenders know that this kind of treatment isn't enough and that a piece of meat must not only be tender, but have body and flavor at the same time.

The cuts best, however, which are always pounded before it is put on the pan is veal. Usually your butcher will do that for you. Veal has a pleasing subtle flavor, but it is somewhat on the dry side, and can be tough and tasteless if not handled properly.

The cuts from veal because it will toughen if it's exposed to a strong direct flame. You should always dip it in flour or bread crumbs as a protective coating before frying it, or else cook it in moist heat as in stewing or braising.

VEAL STEAKS WITH SWEET PEPPERS—SERVES 4.

Order 4 veal steaks cut from the leg of veal and weighing about 4 to 6 ounces each. Ask the butcher to pound the meat as for cutlets. Sprinkle each piece generously with salt, pepper and paprika. Dip in flour.

Melt 2 tablespoons vegetable shortening in a heavy saucepan and brown steaks on both sides. Remove veal from pan.

Throw off excess fat from pan. Don't wash it out. Add 1 medium size onion chopped fine, 1 clove of garlic chopped fine and 1-2 cup green peppers cut into small dice. Simmer slowly until onion begins to turn yellow.

Add 1 1-2 cups of consomme or dark brown stock. Use canned consomme or water with bouillon cubes if fresh stock isn't available. Return meat to pan. Cover with tight lid and simmer over a very slow flame until meat is tender, about 1 1-2 hours depending on quality of veal.

Skim off excess fat. If a thicker gravy is desired, dissolve 1 tablespoon cornstarch in 2 tablespoons cold water and gradually add to simmering liquid. Add 1-2 cup canned pimientos and stir 1-2 inch dice. Add 1-4 cup dry sherry wine and salt and pepper to taste.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply—Ed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother-in-law Trouble Again

Once again we have the mother-in-law problem with us.

The trouble this time is between a young wife and her mother-in-law over the home left by which the former hopes to earn some extra money for herself and her family.

The girl, her husband and their children live on the first floor of a house owned by the husband's mother, the floor consisting of three rooms for which the girl says they pay a "very high rent." Although the husband has a good job, she says they have just enough money "to go from one pay day to the next." So she would like to do something to add to their income.

Her idea was that she and her husband should move from their cold flat apartment to give them an extra room, and then they could add to a child to board. The mother-in-law, however, has refused to allow this work to be done, and since there is not sufficient room in the apartment, as it stands, for any such project, the whole thing is falling through.

"I would like to try mother-in-law's intention to see that we have just enough, and then she try on and none left over to save," the girl writes, going on to remark on the fact that she and her husband have talked of going to live in her own home state if they had the money to get there. The girl is from the south and is obviously homesick. She is particularly bitter about the reason given by her mother-in-law for not failing in with the plan for making money, a reason she gave being that taking an extra child into the home would be too much work for the young wife.

"In the three years I have been here," the girl goes on to say, "my mother-in-law has never helped me out. One time the children and my husband were all sick in bed at once, and when I finally got them well, I found I owed a doctor bill, but not once did she come over.

"Please let me understand if she is in the right, because at present I feel very bitter about her."

Whatever the mother-in-law's reasons for her attitude may be, I think it is just as well that the plan for boarding the child was skipped in the bud, for I doubt if anything would ever have come of it anyway. If the mother-in-law had been willing, and the girl and her husband had gone to the expense of building the extra room, they would almost certainly have found something else to do in the way of getting a child to board if they had not received the room, and they would more likely be out of pocket in the end than in any manner.

What I advise the girl to do is to forget the whole thing and see if there might not be some other more practical way of earning a few extra dollars. Recently I wrote in this column about a book called "Careers for Miss Mortar Board" by Polly Webster, which lists so many interesting money jobs that I should certainly be able to find one that would be feasible for her. I suggest she get a copy of this book at her local book store and see if she can't find some useful ideas in it.

As for her relations with her mother-in-law, she will only be the better if she bows a graceful and carries a chip on her shoulder. She is far more likely to get her mother-in-law to help her out financially if she is pleasant and agreeable to her, however hard this may be to do.

The old, old saying that "Honey catches more flies than vinegar" still holds true.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

FOOT TROUBLES? WEAR CORRECT SHOES

It is a strange thing, it is beyond understanding. The average woman seeks professional attentions for her hair, her complexion, her fingernails. She will go to any expense and any amount of trouble to endeavor to remodel her figure if it lacks trim lines. But if her feet hurt and are taken as a curse for which there is little or no relief, she will bobble around on high heels. If she has corns, she digs at them with the manicure scissors, with no thought of getting an infection.

Seven women out of ten suffer from some kind of foot ill or blemish or deformity of which they could be relieved if they were to seek the services of a specialist and take the trouble to find comfortable, well-fitting shoes with flexible leather soles. Twinging toes can ruin the disposition of a saint. They are responsible for frowns and grouchers. To favor them, a woman will walk in a way against that her body is thrown out of balance and the fine lines of her figure depart.

Daily care is necessary. The feet should be bathed every day in the summertime, when you are going barefoot, and as often as possible in the winter, when you are wearing shoes. Every pedicure should be a second washing at night. They should be dried thoroughly and a foot powder applied.

Never wear the same shoes two days in succession. Put on fresh stockings every morning. Once you have the proper size of shoe and the proper last, your shoes long should be one inch longer than your longest toe. Short stockings, like short shoes, because ingrowing nails that can become extremely painful as the flesh at the side banks up and hardens. All-leather shoes and sandals with soles are best for pedal health and comfort.

Don't have a deaf ear to the suggestions of the shoe clerk. Chances are, if he is a well-informed, he can give you good advice. Because you have always worn a certain size is no reason why you should continue to wear it. The foot spreads somewhat as one grows older. Have your fitting in the late afternoon, instead of in the morning.

If you get your feet wet, bathe them, dry them and put on clean hosiery. Moisture between the toes leads to soft corns and invites ringworm. When you remove your shoes at night, wiggle your toes. Flex your feet close together on the floor, lift up on the heels and lower. Your body have muscles, too, and these muscles every now and then after their long confinement during the day.

GOOD MANNERS

To Give Her Boyfriend For Christmas

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please suggest some gifts I could give my boyfriend for Christmas? We've been going together for steadily since last February, and while he hasn't given me any very important gifts, he did give me a nice gift every birthday, has taken me out quite a good deal, and when we went to two formal dances (one as his invitation, and one at his) he sent me lovely corsages. I'd like to give him expensive gifts.

Anne B.

In choosing gifts for your boyfriend you'll show more wisdom and more taste, and have more fun too, if you think of them as things you bought and chose with consideration rather than putting the emphasis on "expensive". A smart girl, when she gives a gift to a boy, doesn't waste putting the most dollars! What are your boyfriend's tastes, his enthusiasms, his hobbies? Think of him when you see records (perhaps an album of records) of the kind of music he enjoys, classic or popular. Books? Now you can show your thoughtfulness by choosing one or two or several books you think he'll like, by quite a reduction to a magazine, or to a book club, thus making your gift arrive several times a year, instead of once. Has he a collector's hobby, whether it be stamps or coins? You can get him a Commemorative Stamp Album, and some several rare stamps, or one or two interesting old coins. They're like cameos engrowing nails that can become extremely painful as the flesh at the side banks up and hardens. All-leather shoes and sandals with soles are best for pedal health and comfort.

Seating Arrangement For Wives and Husbands

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am on the committee which is planning a large banquet to be given in February. There are to be several tables, each seating ten people (all men) at the speakers' table. My suggestion was that there are only a few men at this table, that their wives should sit at another table and that members of the committee think this would be discourteous. What is the correct procedure in this circumstance?

W. L.

The procedure must depend on the circumstance. That is, if there are only a few men guests of honor and there is space for more guests at the speakers' table the wives of the guests of honor are seated at tables nearest the speakers' table . . . and these tables usually have special floral centerpieces, and sometimes there is a reserved sign.

Write "Miss" Before Little Girl's Name on Envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to send individual Christmas cards to several little girls . . . nieces of mine, two goddaughters, several little daughters of friends of mine to whom I'm especially devoted. Some of these children are as young as three or four years old. How should I address the cards to them?

"Auntie Sue".

No matter how young the young lady may be, "Miss" before her name on the envelope; Miss Cynthia Blake. These little girls will be enchanted to receive "individual" Christmas cards, and they will be proud to see, or to be shown, that the cards are correctly addressed to them, with the "handle" before their name. Such amenities can't begin too soon in a child's life!

THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR

The Great Homecoming

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

After the angel's visit, Mary "went into the hill country with haste" to visit her cousin Elisabeth and tell her what had happened. (Luke 1:39)

The related Elisabeth, who said, "Blessed art thou among women . . . and whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?" (Luke 1:40, 42, 43)

Many remained about three months before returning home. At this time a son was born to Elisabeth and Zacharias. They named him John. He became known as John the Baptist.

Joseph was troubled when Mary told him what happened to her, but the angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, saying "Joseph . . . fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife." (Matthew 1:20)

Cookies for Christmas

A good supply of cookies on hand means charming hospitality with little effort at any time. This is doubly noticeable at the holiday season when friends are constantly dropping in to visit over a cup of tea.

A nicely packed box of homemade cookies is a welcome gift for many people, especially for those who live in one room and cook on a grill. Plain cookies, daily decorated or cut with fancy cutters, make pretty decorations for the tree. You may be sure they won't be kept over until next year.

With star, tree, reindeer and Santa cutters and a supply of cranberries, gum drops, peel and wee silver and colored candies, used with a bit of imagination, a surprising array of cookies may be turned out in an afternoon. Best of all it is fun for the cook and her willing helpers. The results may not be perfect but will satisfy the busy workers.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest making your best recipe for sugar cookies, rolling cookie, cutting them in fancy shapes and decorating them as fancy dictates.

These recipes are for quickly made colorful, fruity cookies to fill the cookie jar.

Gumdrop Bars

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted pastry flour.
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2-3 cup gumdrops, cut
2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Cut gumdrops in slices and mix with flour. Beat eggs until light, add brown sugar and flavoring. Stir in flour mixture, blending well. Spread in a greased 9" by 13" pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., for 20 minutes. Cool. Cut in bars. Yield: fifty four 1" by 2" bars.

Mincemeat Cookies

1-2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups mincemeat
3 1-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon allspice

Cream shortening, add sugar, gradually and cream well together. Add beaten eggs, beating until the mixture is light and fluffy. Add vanilla and mincemeat. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, soda, salt and allspice and add to creamed mixture, blending well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F., 15 to 20 minutes. Yield: about five dozen cookies.

Scottish Fancies

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup rolled oats
1 cup coconut

Beat eggs very light, add sugar, salt, vanilla and melted butter. Beat well, add rolled oats and coconut. Drop by teaspoonfuls well apart, on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot oven 375 degrees F., until lightly browned, about ten minutes. Yield: 3 dozen small, thin cookies.

MT. PLEASANT—RAWDON M.S.

Mount Pleasant Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band held their Christmas meeting at the church on Sunday last, with the leader, Mrs. John Mulheron in charge, and she read the Christmas lesson as recorded in St. Luke.

The meeting opened with a carol service. Misses Marilyn and Lois McConnell sang a duet "Away in a Manger"; Miss Ruth Linn rendered a vocal solo "Silent Night"; Miss Betty McConnell delighted with Christmas music on the piano and Mrs. John Hudgins gave a Christmas story.

The 1950 officer are:—

President — Doreen Bailey;
Vice President — Ray Starr;
Recording Secretary — Ruth Sharp.

Treasurer — Ruth Linn;
Pianist — Ina Scott; and of World Friend's subscriptions — Lola and Marilyn McConnell.

ST. PETER'S Y.W. CLUB

Madoc—Mrs. Jas. Watson was hostess to the Young Women's Club for their December meeting. Twenty-three members responded to the roll call.

Mrs. R. McCoy opened the devotional period with a short poem "O Golden Cycle of the Year". The singing of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" was followed by the Scripture reading of The Christmas Story in Luke 2 and prayer by Mrs. Healip. The hymn "Holy Night, Silent Night" was sung and "The Babe of Bethlehem" was read by Mrs. Geo. Hill.

The program in charge of Mrs. N. Whytock and Mrs. A. V. Geobel, opened with the singing of "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear". A reading, "Our Christmas Carols", was given by Miss L. Connor, Mrs. K. Nicol and Mrs. T. Hawthorne sang a duet "The Birthday of the King". Mrs. Carl McCoy read an article on Christmas Customs in other Lands. A reading, "Do Shoulds n't Have Dons It" was read by Mrs. R. Miller followed by a short reading Ukrelle Club Christmas Carols", by Mrs. G. Alvey. Mrs. R. McCoy sang "Holy Town".

Mrs. R. Lewis and Mrs. Geo. Alvey assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

PRINCE EDWARD-BELLEVILLE CLUB

On Wednesday the Prince Edward-Belleville Club held their regular meeting at Y.M.C.A. The president, Mrs. Lent, opened the meeting in the usual way with Mrs. Wannamaker reading the thought for the day.

The different reports were read and adopted with everyone being pleased with the treasurer's report on the bazaar held in November. Shut-in members were mentioned to be especially remembered in some way at Christmastime.

Mrs. Osborne in taking charge of the program read as her opening message "Four Things to do". Mrs. Houston, as guest soloist, delighted with a Christmas number with Mrs. Hubbs at the piano. Guest speakers were Major and Mrs. Graham of the Salvation Army, the latter taking the solo part in singing a duet "Songs of Christmas" as an interesting topic. Major Graham gave a reverend Christmas message which helped all present to realize more fully the real meaning of Christmas.

Carols were enjoyed at intervals with Mrs. Hubbs as pianist. The suggestion that a donation be given the Salvation Army met with unanimous approval. A "Bell" contest won by Mrs. Ward Fisher brought the delightful program to a close.

After the meeting closed the hostesses, Mesdames Cornish, Skegg, Belamy and Bedell assisted in serving delicious refreshments prepared and served by Mesdames Carnine, Jones, Jeffrey, Pierson and Schryver.

Mrs. Lent extended thanks to all who took part.

Opportunity Shop Spic and Span After Renovations

Spic and Span, and resplendent in its new spaciousness, since it had its "face lifted", the Opportunity shop, in the inner market has assumed a new look with its neat rows of fine, wrestling apparel attractive table lamps, costume jewellery, handcraft and "what-nots".

The Opportunity Shop is run under the auspices of the Hospital Auxiliary, with the following personnel; She is the convener and president; Mrs. A. J. K. Griffiths, as shop administrator; Mrs. J. Imlah as business administrator; Mrs. E. O. Keeler, as clothing convener, and Mrs. Gilbert Scott, as staff administrator.

For families feeling the pinch of the high cost of living, the shop is a "mecca" where many items of good, fine clothing, including men's overcoats, suits, women's dresses, children's coats and dresses, shoes, and accessories may be had with small outlay. Among the items are some nice warm fur coats at exceedingly low prices.

All the work of receiving and distributing is done through free labor by the husbands of the personnel.

The shop is open three days a week, Tuesdays from 2.30 A.M. to 11.30; Thursdays, the same, and Saturday all day. All goods are accepted either by donations, or on consignment, and goods on consignment are sold at a 25 per cent commission. All goods must be dry-cleaned before being accepted for sale, with the proceeds going to purchase needed equipment for patients, nurses, and to supply the indigent patients with gifts, candy and fruit on each tray on Christmas morning.

Besides this, there are gifts for charity, and the sponsoring of Sadie, alone is in the vicinity of 1940. In 1950 a play will be put on, entitled "Arsenic and Old Lace" starring Catharine Procter. Three electrically-heated food conveyers; an oxygen tent and a croupette has been purchased through the assistance of the Shop for the Hospital.

Once Stopped Runaway Horses Of Princess Louise

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP)—Henry Bristow, 86, who once stopped the runaway horses of Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne, then the governor-general. Two years later he was driving a sleigh when he saw a runaway team racing towards him. He leaped from his sleigh and stopped the runaway team.

Kootenay Farmers Hope Weird Ritual Prelude to Peace

Nelson, B.C., Dec. 16—(CP)—Eerie chanting and hymn-singing is expected to resound again in the nearby Doukhobor community of Krestova Sunday. To many district residents it will be a welcome sound.

Kootenay Valley farmers hope the weird ritual will prelude an era of peace in their communities, threatened for weeks by growing violence as the radical Sons of Freedom sect sharpened its protests against nation-made laws.

The sect is pledged to end its terrorism, Sunday's ceremony will open a meeting at which its members are expected to renounce formally the wave of bombings and arson which has expressed their resentment against legislation that they feel restrictive to their religious customs.

Refuse to Send Children to School

For 25 years the Sons of Freedom have refused to send their children to school or register births, carrying on in this fruit belt 350 miles east of Vancouver, the same fight that drove them out of Russia 50 years ago.

Now they want to end "all the burnings and expelling and generally all destructive actions"—which have included dynamiting of railroad tracks, firing of homes and bombings of the tomb of Peter (the Lordly) Verigin, the late leader of British Columbia's 7,000 Orthodox Doukhobors.

Inspector R. S. Nelson of the B.C. police, who heads special details of officers flown into Doukhobor territory to quell recent upstings, say their peace offer is "gratifying" but adds:

"They must prove what they pledge". The proof will be sought at Sunday's meeting.

Although skeptical, authorities hope the Freedomites are sincere in their pledge to end terrorism. Some believe it's a ruse to call off the current government crackdown. But all agree the meeting is worthwhile in case it does end the fire and dynamite raids which have caused $2,000,000 in property damage and taken toll of life in the Kootenays.

How Woman's Hats Got That Way

(The Sault Ste. Marie Star)

It may not accord with rthalls male opinions on the subject, but there is now an authoritative account of how women's hats got that way. The serious dissertation on the subject was delivered recently by the BBC. is the work of Dr. G. Willett-Cunningham, an expert on women's dress," at least historically.

According to this historian, once upon a time, and up to the 16th Century, women's hats were of prescribed forms, to indicate social position. Since then their chief aim has been—the interpretation is Dr. Cunningham's—to emphasize personality.

Warming to his subject, the historian tells us that "the subtle hat language of women" has demanded a vast range of materials, and in the last couple of centuries, "women have clapped on their heads the contents of the Botanical Gardens, together with much of the Zoo-flowers, vegetables, birds, birds' nests complete, with eggs, bees, scorpions, blue-bottles, dragon-flies, cockchafers, stuffed kittens, bits of rabbit, foxes and other beasts of prey." But in all this bewildering variety of headgear there have been two basic types; one echoing the message of the dress, the other adding a postscript to it.

In the middle of the 16th Century, the hair, hitherto almost totally concealed, escaped from captivity and, ever since, has co-operated with headgear. For at least 10 years the hair, and not the hat, was what mattered. Presently ladies began to wear towering caps indoors and flat hats outside. Hair, reinforced with all manner of pads and artificial tresses, mounted higher and higher until, instead of a cap, they decorated this hirsute mountain with such ornaments as toothcombs and horses of glass or a ship in full sail. Ladies were on their heads huge edifices of fruit and flowers and a small farmyard of animals. This mode of hairdressing reached such a pitch that when ladies' hair was pomaded, powdered and dressed, it was left for three months and could not be combed.

Towards the end of the 18th Century this top-heavy and unsanitary fashion declined, and hats began to oust hair from the first position. They became enormous and in the evening, ladies, anxious for height, wore tall feathers that served as signposts. All through the Napoleonic war hats were in the ascendant. The post-war years were extraordinarily romantic and brought back enormous hats trimmed with anything up to 120 feet of gaily coloured ribbon and a profusion of decoration.

Coal scuttle bonnets then appeared, and at dinner ladies of fashion wore velvet berets as large as teatrays, so that a gentleman seated between two of them complained that he caught only an occasional glimpse of his plate. These wayward and high-spirited modes gave place to the Victorian bonnet which gripped the nape of the neck so tightly that side movements of the head were checked; it also shielded the cheek so that the modest women had perforce to look straight ahead.

After the Crimean War, emancipation was in the air. During young ladies abandoned the bonnet and took to the faster hat which allowed them a broader view of the world. And then the fruit and vegetable vogue began again and the stuffed bird came into its own. Not only wings and tails, but whole birds were planted on hats, overburdening the wearers with a wealth of ornithological upholstery. Hats swept onward triumphantly until in the early Nineteen hundreds they became overwhelmingly big. Millinery was aggressive too, and pinned to the head by large hatpins which stuck out like skewers.

The First World War swept all this nonsense away and after it women emerged with short hair and the famous cloche hat. During the Second World War, they tied their hair in mediaeval hair-chiefs. Now hats are "in" again—still a trifle undecided as to what they will be.

FOUND ALIVE AND WELL

Longview, Wash., Dec. 16 — (AP)— Ruth Aberle, 16-year-old girl scout lost since Sunday, was found alive and in good condition Thursday.

She was brought here by ambulance from the rugged mountain country where she was found More than 500 men have been searching for her. She was taken to a hospital for observation.

She was found in a field near an old shed in which she had taken shelter.

WITNESSES FORCED TO LEAVE JOLIETTE

Winifred Parsons

Olive Lundell

A mob of angry men hustled Olive Lundell of Toronto and Winifred Parsons of Sarnia into a taxicab at Joliette, Que., and drove them 42 miles to Montreal. The girls, members of the Jehovah's Witness sect, were stopped by a group of men when they left a Bible study group in Joliette and then were taken through back streets to the outskirts of the town with a growing mob of shouting men warning them to stay out of town. Six men accompanied them in the cab and they stopped at police stations en route, trying to have the girls jailed. They were released in Montreal. — Central Press Canadian.

Ingrid Bergman And Rossellini Soon to Wed

Rome, Dec. 16 (AP)— Roberto Rossellini, Italian movie 'maker, said Thursday that within a week he and Ingrid Bergman expect to announce their marriage plans.

"We are overcoming the difficulties which have thus far delayed Ingrid's divorce," the director told a reporter. He did not disclose what the difficulties were, but indicated a legal way around had been found—possibly through a European divorce.

"It might be called," he said "an act of God."

Miss Bergman announced her intention last summer to seek a divorce from her surgeon-husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom of Los Angeles. There was an 11-year-old daughter, Pia.

Rossellini disclosed that the blonde Swedish actress is in virtual seclusion here, "terribly upset by the fires of rumor burning around us."

As for reports that she expects a baby in February, Rossellini said "Ingrid has decided to say nothing. As usual, means no trouble—that's our policy. And we've had our share of trouble, don't you think?

"These stories," he exclaimed, waving at hack, "How can anyone be so vicious?"

"It's all so delicate and involved, you understand, one cannot just comment on such things which may involve many others."

Prime Minister Heard at Boston

Boston, Dec. 16 (CP)— Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada said Thursday night he wants his 14 grandchildren to live in a world where they won't fear "men or their machines," and where airplanes bring "joy not bombs."

He addressed the golden jubilee dinner of the Societe Historique Franco-Americaine.

Canada, he said, is "an American country and an American country and American nation. We have the same characteristics, failing also perhaps, but the same qualities and aspirations, the same confidence and even impetuosity native to the new world."

After pointing out that the Canadian Parliament no longer needs to appeal to the privy council in London for needed constitutional changes, the Prime Minister said that represented "the last stage of our evolution towards absolute sovereignty."

Princess Margaret Attends Party

London, Dec. 16 (AP)— Princess Margaret attended a party for wounded veterans Thursday night and was told she "gave a little glamour to a drab world."

Sir Louis Greig, one of the sponsors of the party, told the Princess:

"The more we see of what you are trying to do, the more we love you. You do give a little glamour and gaiety to a drab world. Besides that, you add kindly consideration and great dignity to all you do."

The Princess, wearing a coat and hat of cherry red, cut a big Christmas cake and chatted with scores of the 350 men who were guests at the party.

"LUCIA" BRIDES IN SWEDEN

Dentist Given Two Years for False Pretences

Cardiff, Wales, Dec. 16 (CP)—Two-year prison sentence was imposed Thursday on Howard Lloyd Bevan, a former dentist accused of false pretences under the National Health Scheme. The 30-year-old Bevan's present occupation was given as farmer.

Testimony during the trial indicated that during the first six months of the scheme, beginning July 1, 1946, he received £10,874 ($33,709) for dental treatment given 939 patients.

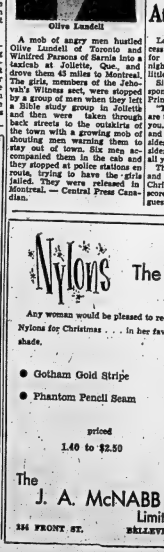
Bevan pleaded not guilty to 16 charges. Twelve of the charges alleged that he obtained and four that he made attempts to obtain payment under false pretences. He was convicted on nine charges of obtaining and acquitted of the 4 remainder.

The offences allegedly included misrepresentation of treatment in relation to her payment, unsatisfactory work and unnecessary work.

Said the judge: "This scheme is one by which citizens of the country have been benefited and any cheating by dentists as you have done is cheating your fellow subjects and increasing the cost of this scheme, expensive as it is."

Other action against Bevan by the Health Ministry and the Dentists' Association is pending.

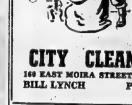
The amount involved in Bevan's overcharges was £100. At the time he was earning £ 30,000 a year.



Diamonds Taken When Car Stolen

Hamilton, Dec. 16' (CP)—Dalton L. Browne, salesman for a Montreal diamond firm, Thursday night reported to police the theft of his motorcar containing between $15,000" and $20,000 worth of diamonds.

Browne said the car was stolen from in front of a jewelry firm when he was doing business on King Street in downtown Hamilton. He could not estimate exactly how much the diamonds in the car were worth. "They might be $1 ,000 or $30,000," he said.



Browne was in the store from 7 p.m. to about 9:30 and when he re-erged the car has disappeared. He said that last Tuesday night his home here had been entered and some costume jewelry stolen but he was sure the theft of the car was a planned job.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

God and the Common People

By ROY L. SMITH

All the great fundamental principles of democracy are to be found in the Old Testament—(1) the supreme authority of the moral order which defines some things as being right and other things as being wrong, (2) the divine of all humanity and (3) the sanctity of the individual.

Wherever you find a democratic government in charge of the affairs of men you will discover that it has grown up under the protection and the inspiration of the Bible.

The Bible as a Book of Rights

Beginning with the oldest books of the Old Testament, and continuing on down to the last book of the New Testament we have been written, the Bible at all times declares the rights of plain men. The laws of Moses were freighted in favor of the poor and the defenseless. Property in every instance is required to take second place to persons.

Among some of the ancients, as among the Hebrews, were there to be found spokesmen who thundered out their judgments in favor of the plain people and against kings, nobles, and the rich. The great prophets of the Old Testament were, in every instance, stalwart defenders of the rights of the people.

Mary, the Mother of Jesus

Tradition has it that Mary, the mother of Jesus, was an orphan girl who had become responsible at an early age for the care and rearing of younger brothers and sisters. At any rate the songs which have been recorded in the first chapter of Luke indicate that she was a young woman who carried the burdens of the plain people heavy upon her heart.

The Watchful Shepherds

In the Gospel of Luke we read the beautiful story of the Bethlehem shepherds who were faithfully watching over the flocks by night.

The Sunday School Lesson for December 18: "The Universal God," Isaiah 9:6; Jeremiah 23:31; Luke 1.

At least one scholar has said that it was the sheep that were to be sacrificed in the Temple which were being herded on the Bethelehem hills, and that the shepherds who tended them were men chosen because of their piety and their faithfulness in maintaining their religious duties.

In any event it was to humble men that the great announcement came, that God had performed a holy work among men.

It was commended some decades ago by a great political leader that in almost every crisis of the world's history the heart of the plain people had been right, and that their humble minds had sensed the truth, even when their rulers and masters were confused.

Jesus Was a Miracle

There are those who have found difficulty in accepting the Christmas story of the Birth of Jesus because it is strongly flavored with the miraculous. But Jesus Himself was a Miracle.

There is nothing in His ancestry or His environment that will explain His birth. Search as you will in His schooling and you will find no adequate reason for Him having been the Man He was, or having taught the truths He did.

There is nothing in the character of the people from whom He sprang which is a sufficient explanation for the influence He has exercised over civilization.

Those who find it difficult to accept the story of a miraculous birth, or the stories of the miracles He worked, will find even greater difficulty in explaining the amazing reality of His Life among men. Jesus was Himself, a greater Miracle than any miracle He ever worked.

Every Human Being is Magnificent

There is something magnificent about every human being. The very nature of God in which He has been created makes Him capable of working miracles.

The capacity of the plain man to say "I am," "I think," "I believe," "I will," "I hope," and "I ought" sets him apart from every other creature in the universe, and establishes his kinship with God.

It was to plain people that the Great Revelation came, because even plain people are capable of understanding God, if the lessons are made plain to them.

NORTHPORT

Northport—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barker spent a few days attending a convention in Hamilton.

The W.A.S. of Northport and Solmesville met at the W.A. hall on Thursday last. Instead of the usual procedure it was a work meeting, each member bringing some cloth and yarn to make an afghan to put in the Missionary box. Later several boys and men came in and assisted with the financial part by purchasing lunch of sandwiches, cake and tea.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mallett, Misses Helena and Elaine were Sunday afternoon callers on Mr. and Mrs. A. Chaplin, Belleville.

Mrs. Donald Koschpaw entertained her Sunday School class on Saturday afternoon with 15 present. Games were played and some practising for the Christmas entertainment. Refreshments were served to the little guests. All enjoyed the afternoon and appreciated Mrs. Kotchepaw's hospitality.

Mrs. Walley Ruggles, Montreal, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barker.

Mr. David Walker, Deep River, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. G. Hough.

Mrs. Ray Simpson and Miss Mae Wentzell spent a few days this week in Kingston.

Capt. and Mrs. George Baldwin are moving here for the present. Capt. Baldwin has been transferred to the west and Mrs. Baldwin and Ronnie are remaining here for the winter.

A fire was seen on Big Island on Monday morning. Several went to help thinking it was Mr. Reenhold's cottage, fortunately it was a fire, shanty, and no other damage done.

RAWDON

Rawdon— Mr. and Mrs. Don Martin, Messrs. Douglas and Kenneth Martin, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunkley and children, Campbellford, spent Saturday evening with Mrs. Albert Dunkley.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stott and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Andrews attended the Christmas concert at the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville, on Friday evening last. Their son, Wilfred Stott, took the part of the Shepherd. The pageant was a beautiful presentation of the Christmas story.

Charivari

Over sixty friends in the Mount Pleasant Community and district from Toronto, Glen Miller and Campbellford, gathered at the home of Mrs. Albert Dunkley on Saturday evening and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dunsley who were married that afternoon in Belleville, a noisy charivari.

Later, all supped on chocolate bars, Christmas candies, and peanuts. The group dispersed about 10:30 p.m. wishing the newlyweds every happiness.

WALLBRIDGE CLUB GIRLS

On Tuesday evening the Wallbridge Club Girls held their first meeting of the Club Girl Stands on Guard, at the home of Mrs. Cecil Kingston.

Officers were elected as follows:

Mrs. Kingston outlined what standing on guard means, which is doing the best to keep oneself in the best of health; the pleasure of doing things, and the joy of companionship.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Kingston.

LOFTY BEAUTY

Mount Popocatepetl, one of Mexico's most beautiful mountains, reaches a height of 17,888 feet.

WITNESS DENIES

The court adjourned to enable taking of evidence from Flannery and Al Weaver, both of Toronto. Ont., at the next sitting.

Moved by Friendship

Gross testified that all his acti in connection with the dead girl, was moved by friendship and his desire to help her. He said he met the girl at a Toronto hotel on the afternoon of Nov. 20 and learned only that she had undergone an operation. He offered to drive her to her Acton home and at no time in the next five hours had the girl indicated she was in pain.

He said she seemed in good spirits until she "passed out" when they were north of Cookville. He then drove the girl to hospital.

He explained he had not remained at the hospital because he was "confused" and had an opened bottle of liquor in his car. He later surrendered to police.

Name Introduced

Weaver's name was introduced during Gross' testimony. Gross said he had discussed with the girl her going to Fergus as the man she alleged was responsible for her condition, and Gross said "it was somebody else, a Mr. Weaver, who was supposed to have tried to take advantage of her."

Crown Attorney A. G. Davis asked Gross: "Did she tell you she had received $300 from Weaver?"

"No, just that she had gone to his room and he had made her write a note saying that Flannery was not responsible for her condition."

Detective Alvin Sproule of the Toronto police testified that he had taken a statement from David Flannery in which Flannery said he had never had sexual relations with Miss Robertson; that she had demanded money from him because of her condition and that he had paid $300 for the statement obtained in the Toronto hotel by Weaver.

R. C. Fielden, provincial medico-legal expert who performed the autopsy, said the abortion attempt had been made less than three hours before girl's death.

MAGAZINE EDITOR

He emphasized that Mr. McLean was not being let out due to recent criticism in the Commons over the disclosure that Film Board employees were being screened for loyalty. He said this "had nothing to do with it."

Some Leakages

Defence Minister Claxton, replying to a question from an opposition member in the Commons Nov. 19, disclosed that filming of confidential military subjects had been assigned to private firms until the Film Board employees had been screened for loyalty.

Prime Minister St. Laurent added that all government employees having access to "classified" documents were being screened. There had been "leakages" from time to time, not in connection with external affairs but domestic affairs.

The prime minister said he regretted the "premature publicity" of the withholding of film work from N. F. B. because "I think it is unfortunate that there should be any impression—and there will be such an impression — that those who are in the board are under a cloud."

It was reported Thursday that Mr. Irwin will receive a "free hand" in Film Board matters on the understanding he will clear up the board "situation" in such a way that it would regain public confidence. Reports said he will receive a salary of $15,000 annually. Mr. McLean's salary has been $8,000 a year.

Native of Ayr

Native of Ayr, Ont., Mr. Irwin is a former associate editor of the old Toronto Globe and served for one year in the parliamentary press gallery with that newspaper. He joined Maclean's editorial staff in 1925 and eight years ago became its managing editor, graduating to editor about four years ago.

Mr. McLean, native of Ethelbert, Man., has served with the Film Board since it was set up in 1939 under John Grierson. When Mr. Grierson left the post a number of years after its start, Mr. McLean became acting commissioner and held the post for 18 months before his appointment as commissioner was confirmed.

Drive to Raise $200,000 for Arena Started

Kitchener, Dec. 16—(CP)— A subscription campaign for $200,000 will be launched by the Kitchener Memorial Auditorium committee, it was decided Thursday night.

In 1945 ratepayers approved a by-law authorizing $450,000 for the auditorium. Now it would cost $1,000,000 to build.

Mayor G. W. Washburn Thursday night told the auditorium committee he would not support an appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board for another $550,000 on debentures.

"Let's try and raise $200,000 voluntarily and we will know if the people are really behind us."

After that, Municipal Board authorization debentures should be

SYMPOSIUM OF CANADIAN SYMPHONIES TO BE HELD

Vancouver, Dec. 16 (CP)—The Vancouver Symphony Society announced Thursday night the first symposium on Canadian-written symphonies will be held here early in March. The society announced the departure of Jacques Singer, conductor of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, who will tou North America by air to find all such compositions. The goal is an album of Canadian written classics, some of them heretofore unrecorded.

Few stubbly faces could be seen as subways and buses unloaded their passengers at office opening time on this "dry Friday," a one day experiment to conserve the city's fast disappearing water supply.

Failure of the men not to follow a "no shave" admonition was not considered a test of the scheme, however. There were other suggestions to save water.

City residents were asked to forget bath tubs and showers for the day, do all family laundering at one time, wash dishes in one batch, and even to drink one glass less during the day.

If the saving is big enough, "dry Friday" will be a weekly holiday until the emergency ends.

But the saving can't be too large compared with the normal daily use of more than 1,000,000,000 gallons.

Drought, increased use of water and outgrown reservoir facilities have combined to cut the storage to one-third of the 253,000,000,000-gallon capacity.

If today's voluntary curbs are not a success, the city will have to take more drastic conservation measures, he warned.

Male members of Parent's Magazine Art Department announced today they have pledged not to shave for the duration of the shortage. "It's more important to have water for making babies' formulas and sterilizing their bottles," they said of their beards for babies' crusade.

The owner of an estate in suburban Westchester County offered the city the $4,000,000 gallons of water in his private lake.

By FRED (FUZZY) KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 16—(CP)—Today, for the first time in my memory, I came to work wearing —amost other than the day's growth of beard.

It's not that I got up too late to shave—I'm wearing New York's "badge of honor" on this dry Friday.

There was no raised eyebrow from the boss as I arrived this morning bristly around the jowls. The boss had no objection—he hadn't shaved either. (On him, it improves his appearance)

Take it from a slave of the razor:: New York's shaveless showerless Friday is a wonderful idea. Well, it's an idea!

My wife suffered a minor injury when I kissed her goodbye this a.m. and gave me a dirty look as she rubbed her bruised and scratched cheek.

"Now, now," I said. "This is a badge of honor. It says so in the papers. And if you knew how it pained me to omit my usual cold shower . . ."

"Hah!" she cut in. "You haven't had a cold shower since—"

In the subway I stared suspiciously at men's faces—a change from my morning routine of staring at women. Most New York males had let me down, they had shaved. Some of them no doubt used electric razors, but most I suspect just aren't patriotic.

It's now 10 a.m.

If anybody wants me, I'll be downstairs . . .

In the barber shop.

Fines are imposed on water wasters and violaters of restrictions.

KEY WITNESS

"Yuzwa jumped out of the truck and swore. He met three men, and the big fellow in the fawn coat (James Zahodnik) said 'wow, just a minute.' James and Yuzwa swung and went up the street and went towards Smith. Smith stepped back and I saw blood come down his face. Then the two men approached Loucks who was standing nearby with his hands at his side. Yuzwa came up in front and his hand went forward to Loucks who turned and staggered. He grabbed his mouth and swung to the right. I saw some blood. James Zahodnik was nearby. Yuzwa made a swipe at Smith.

Yuzwa and James went over to Oliver. I saw Oliver's head go back. Then the two went over to Sid Rixley. They asked him what he was doing. I heard Oliver cough. He was going up street throwing blood. Kearns was out behind the panel truck laughing. I saw three or four men drive away.

The four accused were arrested last Nov. 18 after Loucks was fatally stabbed on the main street of Lindsay, 20 miles west of Peterborough.

That Friday night was marked by a wave of violence throughout the central Ontario countryside. Five persons besides Loucks were attacked. Four men in a panel truck beat Mr. and Mrs. James Hogan at their roadside coffee stand north of Lakefield, and in the street fight in which Loucks died, knife wounds were also suffered by Floyd Smith, 25, Sid Rixley and Thornton Oliver.

Later on the early morning Provincial Police were pursuing a motortruck when it was halted by a roadblock outside of Peterborough as police fired warning shots. The truck's four occupants were arrested on charges of murder, wounding, assault and attempted robbery.

Accused are William Yuzwa, 22, Paul Zahodnik, 28, and James Zahodnik, 33, all of Hamilton; and John Zahodnik, 38, Toronto. The Zahodniks are brothers.

All Incidents Linked

Loucks had been minding his three children while his wife attended a church meeting, for some reason he left the house and came downtown. The children told Mrs. Loucks that he had left with some men in a truck.

Eye-witnesses said that Loucks, a former resident of Peterborough, stepped over to speak to some men in a truck parked outside a restaurant when the fight started. Loucks dragged himself 50 feet along the pavement and died of knife wounds. The three others who were slashed all claimed they were attacked without reason.

The four men who bystanders said did the stabbing piled in to the truck and roared off with police in pursuit.

Field Crops At Lowest Point Since 1946

Ottawa, Dec. 15 (CP)— Decreased production and lower prices have pushed the value of Canada's principal field crops to the lowest point since 1946.

Although considerably below the mark reached in the last two years, the estimated $427,000,000 value of the the 1939 field crops is the fifth highest in the country's history, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Canada's main crops—wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax —led the 16 per cent drop from last year's all time high of $1,198,000,000. The five crops alone accounted for $237,000,000 of the total $289,000,000 decline. The 1949 crop was also down $104,000,000 from the 1947 figure.

Value of the 1949 crops in Ontario was $340,990,000, compared with $378,269,000 in 1948.

Under the impetus of the lower production and a four cent decline in the average price, the value of wheat crops was down $54,000,000 to $356,000,000 from last year. The average 1949 wheat price was $1.54 a bushel compared with $1.58 a year ago.

OFFERS PLAN TO CUT SPENDING

With the U.S. spending $15,000,000 per day more than they are taking in by taxes, the words of ex-President Herbert Hoover are attracting more attention than formerly. At a Democratic National committee meeting of women in Washington he offered a program to save two billion dollars a year. Mrs. India Edwards, director of the committee, is questioning him here on the details of his plan. — Central Press Canadian.

Agrees to Settle Damage Caused To Standard

A truck load of Christmas trees which has encountered motor difficulties while passing through the city last evening damaged one of the new light standards on Bridge street east.

The truck, parked on the north side of the street near Checker Taxi, was being towed away from the curb when unknown to the driver the vehicle bumped the light standard and damaged the base, allowing the standard to tilt at an angle.

Driver of the truck, Beverley Skinner of King Kirkland, was later notified of the damage his truck had done and agreed to settle with the public utilities.

'Consummate Nerve' Of Kee Attracts Judge's Comment

Washington, Dec. 16, (AP)— The tangled case of Lee and Kee who met in jail Dec. 10 was straightened out in court Thursday.

It all started, officer Melvin testified when police called for Charlie Lee, who with Isaac Kee was locked up for intoxication.

Kee took the call, Peggans said, elected to forfeit $10, signed Lee's name to police records, took Lee's personal effects, totalling $47, and departed.

Then Lee woke up and police woke up to the fact that they had let the wrong man go. So the collateral Kee put up was credited to Lee's case.

Keeps Together Eight Orphaned Children of Sister

Catonsville, Dec. 16—(CP)— It's going to be a "big" Christmas for Edward and Doreen Kobialka, who live in this southern Maryland community.

Last year the Kobialkas had no children. This Christmas they'll have eight kiddies—all of them orphaned last year just before Christmas. The children's mother was Mrs. Kobialka's sister.

Ed Kobialka, 32, says he is not a rich man, but he has cared for the children ever since their parents died. "We didn't want to see them separated," said Mrs. Kobialka.

The couple has a 100-acre farm in this Lincoln county district. Although she has trouble making ends meet, Mrs. Kobialka says they are getting along "fairly well."

1950 Car Plates, Permits on Sale January Third

Toronto, Dec. 16—(CP)—Ontario motor vehicle plates and drivers' permits for 1950 will go on sale Jan. 3 throughout the province. Color of the plates will be the reverse of this year's —white numerals and letters on a black background.

Up to Dec. 1, the number of motor vehicles registered in the province was 937,577, an increase of 11 per cent on 1948. Drivers licensed totalled 1,267,194, roughly an eight per cent increase.

Charges Fail Against Herald And Editor

Montreal, Dec. 16 (CP)—Charges of intimidation and illegal dismissal against the Montreal Herald and Editor Robert Hanson were dismissed in court today when counsel for the complainant said he had no proof to offer.

The charges were brought two months ago Ed Bantey, former Herald reported and secretary of Local 100 of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) in Montreal. He was dismissed from the paper Sept. 24.

Bantey charged "illegal dismissal of an employee for union-membership" and "intimidation of an employee for the purpose of making him abstain from membership of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL)."

Local 100 of the Guild has not yet been certified by the Quebec Labor Board nor has application for certification been made. The local is not recognized by the Herald.

Heavy Claims Made On Unsatisfied Judgment Fund

Toronto, Dec. 16 (CP)—Heavy claims on the province's unsatisfied judgment fund are expected to force continuance of the 50-cent levy on licensed drivers in 1950, it was said at Queen's Park Thursday. The levy goes to the fund which pay court judgments against financially irresponsible or unlocated drivers involved in accidents with damage to claimants. Drivers were no figures given however on payments that have been made.

CONVICTED OF CRUELTY

Thessalon, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Harvey Grassett was fined $20 and costs Thursday when convicted of cruelty to a horse. Police testified Grassett drove the horse wildly over icy roads, rode it cavalierly bare-back style and in other ways treated the horse inhumanely.

Will Allow Use Of Stray Dogs In Medical Study

Baltimore, Dec. 16—(AP)—The Baltimore city council today voted 15 to 5 to allow medical schools and hospitals to obtain stray dogs, collected under a city contract, for medical research. The vote, in a past-midnight session, climaxed a heated controversy which was launched about two months ago when doctors and health officials asked the city for the right to use in research stray, unwanted dogs that otherwise would be put to death by the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

'SUSPECT' IS HELD

Hong Kong, Dec. 16 (AP)—An attempt to sabotage the civil air transport plane carrying Maj.-General Claire Chennault in Taipeh, Formosa, was broken up here today. Police said they were holding one "suspect." An 200 employees of C.A.T. surrounded three planes and demanded that Chennault give them six months' pay, chief pilot Robert Rousselot discovered several rats attempting to cut the cables to the hydraulic brakes.

Salary, Working Conditions of Nurses Better

(By The Canadian Press)

Salary and working conditions of registered nurses throughout Canada have generally improved since the close of the Second World War, but the question of working hours is a lively topic in some provinces.

The Nova Scotia Registered Nurses Association has just approved a wage increase for that province, but a Canadian Press survey today showed that wages generally are not an issue at present in the rest of Canada.

The Nova Scotia increase of $1 provides $6 for registered nurses working an eight-hour day for private duty, either in or outside hospitals. The current rate is $7 in Montreal, $6 in most of Quebec Province; $8 in Ontario, $7 in Manitoba, $7 in Alberta and $8 in British Columbia.

The Registered Nurses Association of Ontario said, that it is working toward higher wages, but other provincial associations are not asking increases at present.

Quebec has an eight-hour, six day limit on working hours in hospitals and for nurses associated with the Catholic Nurses Association. Ontario nurses work either eight or ten hours with no extra pay for overtime, and the hospital shift generally is eight hours.

There is an eight-hour shift in Alberta hospitals and the Calgary General Hospital has just introduced a 40-hour week. But Jean F. Clarke, president of the Alberta Registered Nurses Association, says "it doesn't seem timely to advocate a five-day week due to the present shortage of nurses."

Douk Women Really Run the Colony

(By ROY W. BROWN in the Vancouver Sun.)

Thirty-five years ago, William John Bowser, Attorney General of B.C., being smeared by antics of the Doukhobors, appointed a royal commission to go to the Nelson-Brilliant-Grand Forks area in the southeastern corner of the province to make a first-hand investigation and a report.

Chief Justice Gordon Wismer, Attorney General in the Coalition Cabinet, being annoyed by exactly the same problem, named a commission of three to make an investigation. The Federal Government has sent former Assistant Commissioner F. J. Mead, one of the senior officers fo the RCMP, to dig into the question.

During the 35-year interval, the Doukhobors have been examined by several other boards of inquiry. It is one problem that has been with us for nearly half a century in Western Canada. It is just about the same problem as it always was. So far, it defies solution.

Occasionally, for a few months at a time, the fires of Doukhobor rassilby dies down, or the old boys get temporarily tired of wrong-doing, or else the immediate incentive lapses; but it is only temporary. After an interval, the whole terrible business revives to blossom into a new violence a little worse than what has gone before.

Most baffling characteristic of the battle against the Douks is that you can never put your finger on the bad ones. It is true that from time to time members of the sect are convicted for treason — some even plead guilty to charges of assault or arson but almost invariably they will claim they were the agents of someone who stayed in the background and whom they seldom fix upon by name.

This habit of mind and of conduct was amply indicated on an occasion I visited Peter the Lordly," the original Yerigin, the leader who brought the first contingent of his people here from Russia.

As I have related Mr. Bowser had ineffectually investigated the Doukhobors by naming a special commissioner. This official established a few facts, but found no solution. Mr. Bowser phoned one day from Victoria (a few days before Christmas, 1915), and invited me to accompany him to the lair of the Yerigins. On a glistening Winter morning, we had a symbolic display of sail, bread and water on a table for the out-of-doors conference and at noon we went on to Brilliant for lunch with the leader himself.

Peter Lordly was then at the height of his career as the operating leader of the great Doukhobor farming co-operative. He was deep-chested, heavily bearded, a patriarchal old fellow who sat smugly complacent amid a houseful of his women.

Peter's wife was supposed to be living in Alberta; the ladies present at Brilliant were classified as nieces. Some elderly, all young, all physical, outdoor brawn typical of the Douks, one especially, Mallwart, a tremendous woman of 30 or so, handsome, even queenly, evidently the boss of the household establishment. Without a moment's hesitation she took on the task of trying to convert Mr. Bowser to the attractions of the Doukhobor faith. She posed as a simple, rural, rather brawn typical of the Douks, one especially, Mallwart, a tremendous woman of 30 or so, handsome, even queenly, evidently the boss of the household establishment. Without a moment's hesitation she took on the task of trying to convert Mr. Bowser to the attractions of the Doukhobor faith. She posed as a simple, rural, rather very religious person. She had grown up communism with the Almighty and, as such, was equipped to deal with the problem of life far better than any law officer of the Crown, including an attorney general.

She knew God's law, and the natural law, and all that, and told Mr. Bowser right away that she was so much more right than he, there was no use for any argument.

Well, there we sat at table, making a lunch of potato soup, cabbage and apples. Smart old Yerigin hardly ventured a comment in the conversation, which was dominated by Anastasia with Mr. Bowser and myself trying to get a word in edgeways.

Why did Douk children not go to school like other good Canadians? And why did the Doukhobors burn school buildings? Mr. Bowser should know how wrong was the teaching, said Anastasia. In the schools the children actually marched in at morning and noon classes. These marches were a part of military drill, she argued, and the drill was designed to prepare them for war, which was inherently all wrong and all Doukhobors were opposed.

When Mr. Bowser urged that, even so, this did not entitle anyone to set fire to a school, Anastasia just shrugged her shoulders. What could you expect, she wanted to know. It was the Doukhobor way of expressing displeasure with the ordinary processes of attending school. She did not condone the crime of incendiarism; not she, but she bluntly insisted that the way to avoid having the schools burned where the pupils were taught to march in and out in an orderly way. She could not help it if some misguided enthusiast burned a school. In fact, she would not interfere.

Old Peter sat by and certainly did not say her argument, I have no doubt the gal had rehearsed it with him beforehand. The old boy just sat open-mouthed, as if it was one new philosophy he was hearing for the first time.

After lunch, when he accompanied us to our car, Peter's explanation was something like this:

"Those damn women — you can't tell what they'll say to you sometimes." But he didn't interfere. Not he! Leading back from one long distance, I can only conclude that Peter knew his own.

The problem today is essentially the same as in 1915, and not much nearer solution. I am willing to believe it has undergone minor changes. Today, a greater proportion of the Doukhobors are Canadian people who are not criminals. The school-burning propensity is now more clearly identified with the fanatics of Grand Forks. Blowing up railway tracks is a revival of the old idea which wiped out old Peter himself and some other passengers of a CPR train in an unexplained explosion aboard a railway coach. The dynamite all Peter left unexplated finally killed him off.

When they're really rilled, the Douks stop at nothing. Some of their fair sex, especially, have been guilty of unmentionable outrages. When it comes to devising fiendish indignities, these people possess an unmorality all their own. When the Douks get tough, they leave all their amateur classmates at home.

I am not so sure but that today's Song of Freedom in the higher ruling of the sect should not be called the Daughters of Freedom. To cope with them'yre quires a new technique. But what?

Princesses Take Important Share in British Life

By NORMAN CHRISENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Princess Elizabeth, herself a wife and mother, gave British women a lead in 1949 when she said that divorce and failing marriage standards were shaking the foundations of the British family.

"Men's consciences are uneasy," she said in a public speech. "Much that seemed built on rock has shifted as if the foundations were sand. But beneath that sand is one solid layer which nothing has been able to break."

It was the most outspoken address Elizabeth has made since she entered public affairs and was generally applauded as a departure from the usual pleasantries uttered by members of the royal Family. But there were a few dissenters, like the British Marriage Law Committee—aiming at easier divorce laws—which said she had spoken "out of turn."

In private life Elizabeth settled down as a housewife in her own right— the mistress of stately Clarence House on London's Mall, where she and the Duke of Edinburgh have entertained gracefully in recent months. When the Duke went back to sea she became entitled to a marriage allowance of 12s 6d ($1.94) a day. Whether she accepts it or not has not been disclosed.

Though only 19, Princess Margaret has earned herself a larger place in public affairs. She sides taking the lead in women's affairs. She represented the King at home and abroad, visiting factories, the House of Commons, law courts, juvenile courts and other public institutions.

Side by side with the bubbling gaiety criticized by some people, she has the vast majority. Margaret has developed a young dignity and bright competence that have impressed statesmen and public alike.

This was particularly evident during her Italian vacation last spring when she called on the Pope—the first member of the British Royal Family to do so for many years past.

Margaret saw the grandeur that still is Rome. She tramped the chariot-rutted cobbles of Pompeii and floated in a gondola down the Grand Canli in Venice. She had a grand time, but she never forgot she was representing Britain in the highest diplomatic sense.

Throughout the year gossips have linked her romantically with several different men, but current opinion in royal circles is that Margaret will not marry for several years—certainly not before she is 21.

Alongside the princesses, the Queen and Queen Mary have gained an even firmer hold on the affections of the British people. Queen Mary as a patron of the arts is so indefatigable as ever in her 82nd year. The Queen's gracious smile is never missing from the public scene.

FARM LAND'S WORTH

The average value of occupied farm land in Canada was estimated at $35 an acre in 1947.

Bees Fancy Dance Tells Sweet Story

London, (CP)— How workers have spread the story in the hive of a new and rich source of pollen is the subject of a study by Professor Karl von Frisch of Munich University.

As early as 1923 Professor von Frisch determined that the worker transmits the information by a dance on the vertical surface of the honeycomb, the vigor of the dance indicating the richness of the discovery.

From later research, the professor concluded that the dance also gives distance and direction of the supply.

In the dance, the worker runs in a circle on the comb, first in one direction and then in another, in a figure-eight pattern. The two loops are separated by a straight run, during which the worker wags its abdomen from side to side.

The number of figure-of-eights completed in a minute tell the relative distance of the find from the hive, the professor says. More figures, with small loops and longer straight runs tell of a distant supply. When the loops are almost superimposed, a short distance is indicated.

The direction of the straight run between the loops tells the other worker bees where to go. comb, the supply is located toward the sun; if the movement is straight down, it is away from the sun. This direction refers to the position of the sun at the time of the discovery.

Vigor of the abdomen-wagging indicates the accessibility of the feeding place and the amount of energy needed to reach the spot.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

As they turned into another street, it piercing cry of terror arrested them. In a moment her arm had broken loose a big car careened driverless down the street. Quick as a flash and with almost superhuman strength Jim picked Ann up and sought a place of safety. But the streets were jammed with frightened, shrieking people and a moment later the crowd bore back on them and Ann was brushed from his arms. The car swung away again. Like the waves of the sea the multitude receded and Jim leaped toward Ann's side. He caught her as her blue eyes closed when she swayed towards the ground.

"Darling, you're not hurt, are you?" Shaking and pale, he gazed at her.

The white lids rose slowly from Ann's blue eyes. Then once again they closed. Pulling a flask from his pocket, Jim poured a drop of brandy between the pale lips. "Come little one open your eyes."

A moment later Ann smiled wanly as she met the troubled gaze of her escort. "I had just mended!" she whispered.

"I'm all right, really," insisted Ann as she drank her coffee. "Don't say a thing to Aunt Margaret about our adventure."

"Are you quite sure, dearest?" Jim's eyes showed his solicitude.

"Why yes," laughed Ann. "I wasn't hurt. I was just scared, and when I got caught in the crowd I slipped off. I never did such a foolish thing before," she added lightly, remembering the strange sensation as she recovered from her faint.

"I'm afraid Miss Whiting will never trust you with me again," Jim's voice still held a touch of anxiety in it.

"Aunt Margaret will never know. Besides it wasn't your fault." Ann's eyes were sparkling. She knew Jim loved her, and yet, like a cold wind the shadow had hung over her, seemed to drive happiness from her. Love had come to her at last, yet she must renounce it.

Ann remembered with a faint smile a little romance that had flickered into her life during her youth, but before the scorn of her sisters it died as the young man, hurt at her cool treatment, left his departure. After that everything went wrong with her family Romance gone for ever, she had nothing to look forward to but a raise in salary. Now as Ann looked across the table and met the gaze of Jim Riddell's adoring eyes she wondered if she were really the same girl whose existance had been so uninteresting.

"What are you thinking of?" questioned Jim as he put his big brown hand over Ann's.

"Oh, all sorts of things," Ann replied, unable to keep the look of happiness from her eyes.

"Tell me some of them."

A little flush rose to Ann's cheeks. She had never told Jim any of the intimate details of her life. "Oh, I don't believe they'd interest you. I've lived such a quiet life."

"Sometimes they would. Don't you know that I love you, Mary?"

"You mustn't," whispered Ann as she sought to withdraw her hand from his grasp.

"Why not?" as Jim tighted his grasp on her hand he wondered if after all she cared for Harry Harper. "Is there some one else?" he asked jealously.

The tense look passed from Jim's eyes. "Don't you love me a little?"

Ann met his gaze. "Of course you do, even if you won't say it," declared Jim as he raised her hand to his lips.

The Oriental Cafe was almost deserted but the sound of palm trees rustling would always be remembered by Ann and Jim, as she answered softly, She dropped her eyes. She dare not let Jim see how much she cared.

Quietly they talked for another half hour. Then Jim said, "I suppose we'll have to get back to the hotel. I'd like to find some little souvenir for you. Come," he added as he took her arm.

"Oh, you're not too good to me" Ann exclaimed, Then as they left the restaurant she held out her hand impulsively on his arm. "Look at those Indians."

"Maybe they have something you'd like. Let's see," and Jim steered Ann towards the group.

"Here's a beauty," said Ann as she picked up a lovely bit of pottery.

"Do you like it?" Jim asked as he glanced at some others.

"Yes, I think it's the prettiest of the lot."

"Then we'll have it, and now for the hotel," said Jim as he handed the jar again to her.

"It's darling of you to give it to me," remarked Ann as she studied the graceful shape of the little vase while they hurried along.

"Here you are at last," announced Mrs. Tracy a few minutes later. "We thought you were never coming." Her roving eyes sought for information, but Jim Riddell calmly announced "Miss Lambert is interested in Indian pottery and couldn't miss an opportunity of looking at their work. I hope we haven't kept the party waiting too long."

Meanwhile as the "Round the world" cruise proceeded, Gerald Lambert, freed from the restraint of his sister's presence, was leading a decidedly gay life. From time to time Terry Kelly heard rumors about him and more than once suggested his slowing up. But Gerald was indignant and insisted on going with the bunch that Terry assured him would prove his ruin. It had come at last and this afternoon while Terry stood with wrinkled brows watching a great liner come up the river, his thoughts were far from the object he had in view.

Once more he turned to his desk and lighting his old brier pipe he puffed steadily for a few minutes. Then he reached for his telephone. After a brief call he rose hurriedly from his desk. As he passed through the outer office he said to his secretary, "I won't be back this afternoon. If anything special comes up, call my house."

"Very well," she answered with bored air that revealed her veiled contempt for the carelessness of his unexplained departure.

"Gee, your boss takes it easy" remarked the file clerk when she had seen the door close on Terry Kelly's office. "Suppose he's off home to amuse his little bride. That was a queer sort of marriage wasn't it?" The file clerk was always interested in affairs of the heart.

"I should say so. Acts like a madman around the office then dashes out and never comes back for three days. Then he calmly announces he was married," and his secretary talked as though he had committed some moral offence.

"Wonder why he kept it so quiet?" continued the file clerk. "She's pretty keen in here yet."

"Nope he keeps her out in Jersey all the time. Guess she don't know much about him."

"Then why did she marry him? Terry Kelly's secretary shrugged her shoulders. "Why did he marry her?" she queried. "I reckon she must be an heiress or something and he decided he'd better grab her before some other guy cut him out."

"Oh, is that the idea? Gee, I always thought he was above marrying for money."

"Sure you did, raving about his good looks and his chivalry, but you should work with him for a bit. He's a driver all right, and never seems to think of it. Umph I wish any woman joy who'd marry such a man. Take it from me, most men figure how much they'll get with the girl."

"Oh, I don't believe it," responded the file clerk who hated to admit her romantic notions punctured. "Maybe it's so in foreign countries, but here I love paid, "it counts."

"Ha, ha, hear her talk," and once more the girl turned to her machine.

Chafing at the slow moving train which was bearing him to Montreal Terry looked for some papers in his brief case. He hated the thought of being bearer of bad news to his wife, but doubtless she would have to know the truth sooner or later for it was certain, despite his powerful connections, that news of the affair in which Gerald Lambert was mixed up would creep into the papers.

Mary and he had lived in perfect happiness since the day he had so unexpectedly returned from the city with a bride. At first Terry's mother thought they were joking, for of course she knew they were engaged, but when at last she realized that they were married she welcomed Mary as though she were indeed her own daughter. Her only regret was that Mary had not had a proper wedding with all the frills and fuss that might naturally have been hers. When she learned however the reason for this rather hasty affair, she determined that Mary should have no fears about her brother discovering her. So long as she was content to remain in the charmed little New Jersey town there was small chance that Gerald would find her.

At last the train came to a jerky stop and gathering his papers together Terry stepped to the platform. At the foot of the stairs Mary was waiting for him in the smart little car he had given her.

"Oh Terry, what luck to have you home so early. Let's go for a ride. I've brought some fruit and sandwiches," and Mary greeted his affectionately.

"All right, little one. Shall I drive?" Then was a shadow in Terry's eyes.

"Yes, and then I can talk to you," and Mary slid from her place at the wheel. But Terry's monosyllabic answers arrested her. Turning towards him she said, "What the matter, honey? Don't you love me any more?" Mary's voice was wistful.

Terry slowed down and slipping his arm around her declared fiercely, "of course I love you. I love you more than ever." His eyes sought hers.

"Then what's the matter?"

Parking the car at a favorite spot he said, "Let's get out and I'll tell you."

"What?" asked Mary and her voice was trembling after Terry told her his news "will Gerald have to go home?"

As Mary Kelly knelt on the flower bordered path and weeded the following morning her heart was almost breaking. Gerald was in trouble and she was powerless to help him. Terry had not told her everything. Of that she was sure. Maybe things were even worse than she knew. Tears dripped from lashes and splashed unheeded upon the gallardias. She was thinking of her mother and her promise to her. But Gerald had assured her when she said goodbye to him that he would get along all right, if only he had not insisted that she go she might have been able to save him from folly.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It just goes to show yuh, ehmm, that the old bromide that the game is not over until the final whistle tootes, the goose is hung high, or that you're a free man until the legal light tells you that the mimms has done won her petit, still holds good. Take Pricetaone last night in Memorial Arena. There, in case you weren't there, four hockey team frolicked on the ice, and the result was all.

NIL, that is, because, and we're speaking of the Belleville District Hockey League, the standing of the teams is exactly where the dam thing was last Thursday night. It seems a bit of a shame from the loser's point of view, a grand thing from the winner's point, that such a thing should happen. But happen it did.

Last Tuesday, the Rampaging, Rejuvenated Rockets Juniors, playing an inspired game, nudged the veteran CNE Diesels in a tight but hectic tussle, by a 4-3 score. Trenton RCAF Flyers, battling sicenly in the first chukker, foiled like a Model T which has agreed with a freight train on a crossing. They were then about as powerful a force. They took home to the respective mosses, a regretful but factual report that, egad, they had been, after a baffling first period, grounded, and day-outed (brother, that's a word), by the Northern Electric 10-2.

But last night, it was a different story. The cowbells, tooters, horns and other noise-making gadgets of the Northern Electrics' supporters, clanged, allegro (Am I right, Mr. Xenakis?) and any baliz agreed its end. They were still strident but not defiant in their clamor as their pets went down to defeat before a determined and inspired Trenton Flyers squad.

By the same token, the Rockets, who rampared to a 4-3 victory over the CNE Diesels played firecracker hockey, and in a more or less listless game were dunked by a 6-3 score, at the hands of a Vern Geyer-sparked gang of trainmen.

Last night's exhibition showed a startling reversal of form. The lassez of last Tuesday and the winners of Thursday. It was different hockey all the way around and a large crowd felt testify to that. The verdict goes to the Trenton Flyers. They were the best team of the four on the ice last night, and perhaps the coaches of the other three squads had better enlist "Nice" McLeod to get a hint on what he does to bring a team out of the throes of disorganization, to an inspired squad that would not say "uncle" to the much favored Northern Electric squad.

So the die is cast. Next Tuesday night (not Saturday, Fie, that theatre date still stands), the warring factions will once more clash, but brother, this time it will be for keeps. One cynical ignoramus, and he wasn't from Trenton, voiced with the breath of the cup that cheers, that "I know beyd 'his' that for the 'to. These games 'his' are in the bag." So much for that. The teams, all four of them have gotten good and bad games out of their respective systems. Last night's hockey was definitely not semi-final stuff, with the exception, as we said before of the performance of the Trenton Flyers. So, as mentioned yesterdays, next Tuesday's joust will be one for your arshives.

The chips will be down. Everything is at stake. The cowbells, sirens and other hell-sounding apparatuses that the fans bring down will be in force. And don't be surprised if you see a Diesel engine and an Electric organ wheeled into the amphitheatre to add to the general cacophony . . . God forbid.

But on Monday night our Rockets wheel into junior OHA action. They entertain the Peterborough Oddfellows juniors in the opening game of the Junior "B" group schedule. These Petes, 'tis said, are a pesky pile of prodding pachiels and the clash should be well worth the while of fandom. More about that tomorrow, and Monday.

And new to Canasaqua with Senior "B's". Muirhill, star forward has fractured an ankle bone, Keith MacDonald is bailing the fix. But the fingers are crossed and we are going to see personally what happens down there. We intend to keep an eye on Tommy (Tai-Bay) Schreiber who played a star game last night with Diesels.

Elmer Lach Leads Canadiens To 4-1 Victory Over Toronto And Puts Team in Second Spot

By JIM BASKERVILLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

If it's punch alone that keeping Canadiens in the thick of the National Hockey League fight—as some experts claim—then you don't have to look farther than Elmer Lach to see where the Montrealers are getting the old college spirit.

The keep-punching centre racked up two goals and an assist last night to lead Canadiens to a 4-1 conquest over Toronto Maple Leafs. He now has eight goals and 13 assists—not bad for a guy who decided hockey wasn't his meat after spending most of last season in a hospital bed with a painful broken jaw.

The victory lifted the Flying Frenchmen out of a tie with the Leafs and put them all alone in second place. The experts may be right in saying the only reason for their elevation is shout five players—Durnan, (Richard, Lach, Reardon and Fleg— and that the team would collapse without almost any one of them.

Lach might not get the leading lines awarded Big Bill and the Rocket, but the five-foot-ten-inch native of Nokomis, Sask., is the ginger man of the team. It's partly his never-give-up spirit that probably prompted coach Dick Irvin to label him the best-two-way centre he's ever seen—and the Irvin career goes somewhere back to the Middle Ages.

Forced To Retire

But the injuries still are plaguing the 31-year-old star. He was forced to retire from the game late in the second period last night with a cut left foot. It was an addition to an unenviable assortment of plain and fancy fractures amassed during his 10-year N.H.L. career.

Lach suffered his most serious injury two season ago—a fractured skull in a game with the Leafs at the Montreal Forum. Earlier that season he suffered a fractured cheek bone and several seasons before had a smashed elbow, which threatened his playing days.

A record crowd of 15,028 fans saw Lach get his first goal in the first period and add the other in the second. They also watched Durnan shut out, rained when Toronto's Fleming Mackell broke loose after a long pass from Ray Timgren and beat him cleanly with a minute left to play.

Richard counted his 22nd goal of the season and the other went to Bobby Fillion—his first of the season. The Montrealers outshot Leafs 30 to 19.

After a quiet night tonight, all six teams move into action this weekend. Saturday it's Detroit at Montreal; Chicago Black Hawks at Toronto and New York Rangers at Boston Bruins. Sunday, Canadiens play at Boston, Toronto clashes with New York and Detroit meets Chicago.

College Football Shows Increase In Attendance

New York, Dec. 16 (AP) — Despite a marked decline in the attendance figures of other major sports, United States college football crowds showed a surprising 5 per cent increase this year over the bumper turnout of 1948.

An Associated Press survey of 82 major U.S. schools disclosed that only in the east and far west did college football follow the down-trend of other sports.

The 82 institutions this year played 644 games, drawing a total of 12,588,157 customers. Last year, the same schools in 643 home games attracted 12,005,-625 fans.

Michigan was the national leader. The Wolverines, who tied with Ohio State for the big ten crown, lured a total of 563,500 fans for six games, an astounding average of 93,917 for their enlarged stadium.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Dec. 16 —(AP)— Biggest surprises (to this dept.) heard around the recent major league baseball meetings: Cleveland was willing to "talk" trades for Bob Feller but couldn't get any offers big enough to carry the discussion to the serious stage. And the Red Sox, who did no dealing, placed Junior Stephens in the same category.

Detroit Lions plan to put up a real battle to retain their rights to Leon Hart Notre Dame's all-America end, on the grounds that he was supplied as a "bonus" choice and not in any regular draft . . . One of coach J. T. Owen's star freshman boxers at Louisiana State University is Joe Zale of Gary, Ind., a nephew of former middleweight champ Tony Zale.

Choose Your Weapon

After dealing Willard Marshall and other assorted players to the Giants, Leo Durocher put in a big plug for rookie Don Mueller as an excellent fielder who would replace Marshall in the Giants outfield . . . that led a New Jersey scribe to recall a letter which manager Bruno Betzel received from Mueller first joined Jersey City: . . . It came from Don's father, an old-time ball player, and it said: "When you see him with a bat, you'll love him. But when you see him with a glove on his hand, you'll want to hit him with the bat."

Sharp-eyed Maurice Richard banged home another goal last night for his 22nd tally of the National Hockey League season and pulled into a second place split with Sid Abel, Detroit, and Doug Bentley, Chicago, for individual scoring honors. The NHL trio each have 28 points, four behind Detroit's Ted Lindsay, who has collected the most penalties to date—59 minutes Gordie Howe of Detroit holds down third spot with 23 points, one up on John Peirson, Boston, and Chicago's Bill Mosienko.

In a reversal of form on all fronts, the Belleville District Hockey League series is getting to right back where it started. For last night in Memorial Arena the CNR Diesels and Trenton Flyers, their backs to the wall, came through with victories that tied up the series with Northern Electric and Rockets Juniors and forced the third and deciding doubleheader which will be played on Tuesday night.

Diesels took the measure of the Rockets by a 6-0 score while the Flyers, full value for their money hauled the vaunted Northern Electrics into camp by a 5-2 count. And both victories were well deserved.

CNR Diesels 6, Rockets Juniors 0

It was a different Rockets team that fullily tried to cop the series in two straight. In fact Diesels although they won a 6-0 victory were not much better as far as the type of hockey was concerned.

Both teams resorted to the shinny type and there was little concerted play throughout the game. It was a hit-and-run type with both teams seemingly failing to get clicking though the Diesels had an edge in this department.

The game was marred in the third period when Jud Semark and Leo Goyer came to blows with both being cut and bleeding and drawing match misconduct penalties.

Vern Geyer Outstanding

Rockets could not get their passing plays clicking and for that matter neither, at times, could the Diesels. Big Vern Geyer was the definite hero of the piece scoring four of his team's six goals and playing an outstanding game in all phases.

The first period was productive of slipshod hockey and the only score came when Leo Goyer fired home Wardhaugh's pass at the five-minute mark. It was listless stuff with both sides slapping the puck and indulging in crap-shooter huddle hockey.

Diesels took over in the second period and fired home three goals to put the game on ice. Bastedo got the first one and Vern Goyer counted.

His first and second on passes from Woodman and Day.

The game picked up somewhat in the third heat, but Diesels fired home two more goals, Leo Goyer popping home his third and fourth on individual efforts. Rockets, a bit desperate found some of their stride and battled doggedly but were outlucked on several occasions. But they were not the team that took the measure of the Diesels last week, and thereby hangs the tale of defeat.

Northern Electric 2.

Cowbells, horns and all kinds of noise making gadgets failed to inspire the Northern Electric to efforts that could betoo those of the Trenton Flyer team. The air laddies won the series 5-4 and by a margin just that much better, that is, if you include the sensational play of Mr. Keyes, conducted in center cage. He came through with a grand effort and no amount of credit goes to him for the Flyer victory.

But he didn't do it alone. Up front was a gang inspired by the threat of elimination that checked the Electrics in to the net and on their offensive raced in when the opportunity arose and scored themselves some goals.

The large crowd stood up, at least the Flyer supporters when Gagnon, fired home the first goal for Flyers in 1.35 of the first period. It was a fast and furious struggle with both goalies standing out from the rest. Then Doc Barrett soloed down centre ice. He was bowled over the Flyer goal. Flat on his back he swiped at the puck and the light came on.

Flyers Grab Lead

Flyers grabbed the lead early in the second period when Miller took Auld's pass to slide the rubber. Northern, in a four-man attack swept down the ice and Goudie' Auld shot was fumbled by Keyes. The puck dropped and rolled into the net. Then Flyers took over and Gordie Auld fired two goals in less than two minutes to put the game on ice.

The third period saw the more or less desperate efforts of Northern with the score 4-2 against them, nullified by the hard-checking of Flyers. Nothing poured in to the attack and gave Keyes many anxious moments. They were outlucked at times but the flying Flyers were victory-bent and they were not to be denied.

O'Meara put Flyers another goal to the good at the six minute mark and there the scoring ended.

Gordie Auld 'paced the winners' attack with two goals and an assist. Gagnon, Miller and O'Meara got the rest. Barrett nd Cousins were the Northern stars.

The teams:

Flyers: Keyes, goal; defence, Lawlor, Hughes; centre, Gobell; wings, Jackson, Gagnon; Subs, Ault, Miller, Zelaski, G Neave, Sargent, Pendergast, Cunningham, Robertson, Park.

Jean Richard Loses By T.K.O.

A cauliflower ear Thursday night cost Canadian featherweight champ, Jean Richard, 138 Montreal, a TKO loss to Jimmie Sullivan, 128, 1-2, Boston, Richard's ear, closed by a series of hard rights, swelled so badly that referee McDowell stopped the bout in the seventh of 10 rounds at Portland, Me. Richard went to a hospital for treatment.

Chairman Floyd Stevens of the Michigan Boxing Commission said today that the commission will not approve any further exhibition bouts involving matches in Michigan as a result of the slow action in Joe Louis' double-header here Wednesday night. He referred to Louis' five-round exhibition bouts with Rocco Tolos of Detroit and Johnny Flynn of Rochester, N.Y. Those scraps gave approximately 8,000 fans a minimum of action and resulted in a lot of booing and an early exodus for many of the spectators.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 16 — (CP)—One of the more neglected year-round sports on the North American continent is carried out by the Intercollegiate Faculty Armchair Athletic Union and features the awe-inspiring spectacle of collegiate professors wrestling with their conscience.

The results, while invariably fascinating, are unpredictable when university heads ponder the question of how they want to run a sports program in their ivy-covered institutions.

In Chicago, President Robert M. Hutchins decided several years ago that high-powered athletics tended to blow out the lamps of learning. Hutchins pulled the University of Chicago out of big-time sports and made his decision stick.

Few United States colleges follow his lead. They rather green-backs from well-heeled alumni and pack football fields and basketball arenas with crack athletes and cheering sections to match them.

Canadian universities generally adopt a middle-of-the-road policy. President N. A. M. MacKenzie of the University of British Columbia is the latest to approve of athletic scholarships provided the athletes keep up their scholastic standing and someone puts up the money.

Man with a Problem

But Milt (Toronto Star) Dunnell recently peered over the shoulder of a man who looked at the situation in a different light. President Sidney E. Smith of the University of Toronto doesn't have to look far for financial support if he wants to lift the blues out of the Intercollegiate Football Union outfit.

But Milt peeked at an advance copy of Dr. Smith's annual report and spotted this staggering quote:

"Hope is expressed that the University of Toronto or any of its members will never yield to the temptation to build winning teams by subsidizing, directly or indirectly, students whose principal purpose in attending the institution is to get on the first team."

Despite "some disquieting features" in the report, Dunnell felt (Dr. Smith must have heard the howls from Bobby McGill's alumni lured away some of the more literate members of the backfield corps) that it was pointedly that universities are among the few remaining places where people play a game for the game's sake.

Blueprint for Victory

When the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association suggested a ban on shooting the puck into the corner in order to force the key back to the standards at the start of 1920s, Bill Hewitt (Montreal Gazette) Rife thinks it was just as well that they decided to drop the idea.

Looking sadly at Oshawa's junior Generals, who have flirted with last place all season, Bob decided they could say goodby to the opposing team's defending zone if they weren't allowed to shoot the puck in and skate after it.

Bob says the Oshawa puck-carrier would need three men to run interference for him. They'd sign aside while he tossed the blueline, then he'd hasb to wait for his blockers to get there before carrying on toward the enemy's goal.

It sounds like football, Bob admits, but he feels present-day hockey has got to the point where you can hardly tell the difference.

Jackie Robinson Leading Batter National Loop

(By the Canadian Press)

As had been strongly suspected, Jackie Robinson of the champion Brooklyn Dodgers led the National League in batting for the 1949 season with an average of .342, scoring out his closest rival, Stan Musial of St. Louis, by four percentage points. Official averages released Thursday show that the great Negro second-baseman, recently voted the most valuable player in the circuit, also led all league rivals in stolen bases, with 37, and tied Marty Marion of St. Louis for the most sacrifices, 17.

The Canadian Amateur Ski Association Thursday night announced nagnes of 27 entries who will represent Canada at the 1950 world ski championships at Lake Placid, N.Y., mid-Aspen, Colo. Eleven men and six women were picked at the Alpine, Downhill and Slalom event in February as well as 10 entries for jumping and 10 for cross-country at Lake Placid in January.

The list did not include names of several racers who last month were invited to compete in the C.A.S.A., but who were unable to make the trip. These included Montreal's Rae Sutherland, member of the Canadian Olympic team in 1948.

Bill Johnson and Lauri Rukki of North Bay will are the possibilities for the cross-country team.

Eighteen English thoroughbreds valued at $100,000 left Britain Thursday night for the United States. The horses are consigned to Americans who bought them last week at December sections at Newmarket.

Nymie Caplin, 48, who managed five world ring champions before he went to prison on a grand-larceny charge, died Thursday night in a New York Hospital after a year's illness. He was a leading fight manager in the golden era of sports, handling many of the great boxers of the time. One-time champions under his wing were middleweights Ben Foord and Vince Foster, light-weights Al Singer and Lew Jenkins and bantamweight Lou Salica.

New York Giants Thursday took a step toward bolstering their mediocre relief pitching department with the announcement of the purchase of Cecil (Cy) Hughson from Boston Red Sox. The purchase price was undisclosed but it was believed to be in excess of the $10,000 waiver figure.

Phil Rizzuto, brilliant little shortstop of the world champion New York Yankees, Thursday was named "player of the year" for 1949 by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association. Rizzuto will be presented the Sid Mercer plaque at the chapter's annual dinner Jan. 23.

Health Minister Martin said Thursday in an interview that the government has no wish "to dominate sports, take them over, even remotely control them or interfere with them in anyway." He was commenting on statements Wednesday by Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, that sport sports be kept out of the hands of taxing authorities. Mr. Campbell referred to a resolution passed last year at a conference of Canadian sports governing bodies that federal funds be provided to assist sports.

Halleyburv is the only spot in Ontario where curling conditions even get into the "fair" class this weekend. The Ontario department of travel and publicity in the first of its weekly ski reports, said that packed snow made conditions fair at the Northern Ontario spot both on tow hills and in the back hill.

At Midland conditions are poor. There is no skiing yet at other reporting points: Barrie, Cobourg Flesherton, Fort William, Port Arthur, Huntsville and Orangeville.

At the minor league meeting two weeks ago.

Hours of sparring between Weiss and Manager Chary Stengel and Griffith and his pilot, Bucky Harris, have taken place and the final result appears to be:

Robinson and another Senator, either outfielder Eddie Stewart or a pitcher other than the Senators' ace, Ras Scarborough, would go to the Bombers for first baseman Dick Kryhoski, second baseman Gene George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss, pitcher Don Johnson, and a fourth player, presumably Duane Pillette, another pitcher, or an outfielder.

If Griffith doesn't receive settlement along the Yanks, there appeared to be a strong possibility that he might send Robinson to either Chicago or Detroit.

SIX KILLED IN PLANE

c Roswell, N. M., Dec. 16 (AP)— A B-29 hit a windmill and tumbled to the ground in the New Mexico hills, killing six of the 16 crew members aboard.

Three crew members were severely injured. Five others walked away from the wreckage with cuts and bruises.

The United States Air Force bomber was coming in for a landing. It sheared off the windmill which stood near one of the runways.

Clark Griffith Ready to Talk Trade With Giants

Discussion on the four-for-two player swap which would send first baseman Eddie Robinson to the Yankees was halted temporarily Thursday because of a misunderstanding.

While Griffith spent the day in his office at the Stadium waiting for New York general manager George Weiss to telephone him, Weiss spent the day in his office waiting for "the old fox" to call him.

However, when the matter was straightened out Thursday night Griffith said: "I suppose I must have gotten the wires crossed. I'll give him a ring tomorrow."

The deal died last between the American League's 1949 pennant winners and last-place club is essentially the same one that opened trade talks in Baltimore

Expert bridge players know their expert opponents. To cross each other up, they could do the opposite. Expecting this, not dealing so may cross them up. Or take this a step further.

We have been talking about the deal you see here:

South opened with a bid of one spade. West sized with a double for takeout. Knowing west to be a notorious bluffer with bids, north decided on a jump response of two no-trump.

Right here south should have rebid spades and later hearts, if necessary. This way they would have reached a slam of some kind. A grand slam was a spread against any opening lead.

But south assumed that north was manoeuvring. To help with the tactics, south decided to bid incorrectly. He made the deceiving bid of three no-trump to see what would happen.

It happened. And to his regret. West passed, glad to get out with his life. North passed, unsuspecting that south had such a hand as you see there. Thus did they stop at a mere game.

Instead of two no-trump, north should have redoubled. If used as it should be, a redouble becomes a powerful weapon against bidders who double. It is employed for a dual purpose.

Not only does the redouble show strength enough to guarantee a game; it traps an opponent who has doubled with a weak hand. So, in double, north would have given south more information.

But the players in this deal missed timewise as experts. As such, they acted like experts are sometimes in the habit of doing. They tried to outbluff each other. Often a bad fault of theirs.

In trying to outthink opponents, even experts often outthink themselves. From this comes the frequent complaint: "Whenever my partner stops to think I know we are sunk."

FATHER OF 7 SENTENCED

Kirkland Lake, Dec. 16. (CP)—Eddy LaMarche, 32-year-old father of seven children, was sentenced Thursday to two years in penitentiary for attempting to burn down the township hall and jail Dec. 2.

LaMarche admitted before Magistrate Siegfried Atkinson he hit the fire, but said he was not aware of his action because he was under the influence of liquor. Police said he tried to burn his way out of jail after being charged with assault.

The malady strikes nearly every Hollywood performed at some time in his career. It sets in when he begins to find jobs scarce in top pictures, producers then think he is suitable only for B pictures.

Crawford had it bad. But suddenly he pulled out of it and scored big in "All the King's Men". Next he gets the coveted role in "Born Yesterday." He is a cinch to be nominated for an academy award and may walk off with the big prize. He takes these events lightly:

Second Fiddle

For 12 years, Brod has been in pictures—good, bad and mostly indifferent. After three years in the army, he returned to his Universal contract and was greeted coolly.

His first post-war job was playing second fiddle to Marie Monten. Then he played about third cello in an Yvonne DeCarlo epic. "It cost $2,000,000 and grossed about $35," he recalled. The studio there underwent a merger and upheaval.

"The new bosses swept the place clean," said Crawford. "They were so busy firing executives, they didn't have time to tell me I was being dropped."

A La Long

He tried free-lancing and found jobs now and then," often enough to keep the wolf away." Finally, he landed "King's Men" and has been in high gear ever since.

I asked the actor if he patterned his performance after Huey Long, the thinly disguised prototype of his screen part.

"I saw some of his newsreels," Crawford answered, "but I didn't try to imitate him. We all believed the story was about Long, naturally."

He doesn't know how the picture will be received in Long's Home State. "But," he smiled, "I think I'll stay away from Louisiana for a couple of years."

Sport Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — The fight in Belfast's Ulster Hall was over in 10 seconds. Not a blow was struck.

Peter Robinson, 20-year-old local boy, had just touched gloves with Tommy Daly of Wigan, Lancashire, when he suddenly said: "Stop back — I can't see."

As a puzzled Daly's hand was raised, Robinson was led back to his dressing room. He did not remember a sight for 20 minutes. Doctors who examined Robinson said the loss of sight came from "optic nerve trouble," possibly suffered in a previous bout.

A Canadian doctor practicing in London advanced the theory that it might have been a case of "hysterical blindness."

It was possible, he said, that Robinson might have a "sensitive nature" and that "as he went forward something he saw might have caused the blindness." Pending the way I met many similar cases. A sudden flash and a sudden subject to hysteria would go blind temporarily."

H. P. Crabtree, former county cricketer and rugger player, now senior organizer of physical education for Essex county council, is teaching schoolboys to play cricket through films.

Helping him are Trevor Bailey, England fast bowler, and such well known cricket old-timers as Herbert Strudwick, Frank Chester and D. R. Wilcox.

Like many other students of the game, Crabtree believes England has plenty of good young cricket material but English batting is often of poor quality. Says he: "If we'd had these films 10 years ago, we could have won the 1948 Tests with the Australians."

First task is to train instructors to use the films. Then the boys will be taught individually and in classes all over the country.

Len Hutton, Yorkshire and England batsman, has made three films illustrating various strokes; Peter Smith (spin), Ray Smith (medium) and Bailey (fast) appear in a bowling film.

Hutton's three films illustrate forward in defence and attack, back play and the cut, hook and glide. Each reel shows him in action in a county match and then each stroke is analyzed in slow motion.

A feature of Crabtree's films is what he calls "loops" — a shot of one stroke repeated up to 500 times so that a class can concentrate without interruption while an instructor explains footwork.

AT THE McCARTHY — You can't escape without this, insists George Macready as George Raft longingly eyes his own pistol in Columbia's "Johnny Allegro" at the McCarthy Theatre today and Saturday. Nina Foch is the not-so-innocent bystander.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and ma said, The Bentleys are coming for dinner tomorrow, William, have you any suggestion?

It's too late to put them off gracefully now, so I suggest we make the best of it, pop said, and ma said, Now William, you know very well I'm thinking of the menu. The Bentleys are used to the very best, she said.

The highest art of entertaining is to give people a change, pop said, and ma said, Well now that's a good idea, if we only knew what tipe of dishes they're accustomed to.

They're used to the very best, that's the main thing, pop said. The logical thing to do is give them a liberal sample of the worst, with a few high lites such as mash potatoes with lumps and skin and sour coffee, and of course everything served rather cold, especially the soup, he said, and ma said, Really, William, I mean really, is there any reason why you cant give me a constructive answ when I ask you a sensible question?

Yes gods, if I suggested roast veal, peas with cream sauce, and ice cream, pop said, and ma said, I'd do nothing of the kind, and as a matter of fact, your suggestions aren't bad at all.

They sound good to me, pop said, and ma said, I'm going to consider them very seriously, I assure you.

The result being when Mr. and Mrs. Bersley came tonite we had roast lam, spinalich without any kind of sauce, and chockolit layer cake.

IT'S A BARGAIN OF SORTS

This wonderful man can hardly believe his eyes as he looks at the "bargain" offering of free whiskey in New York City. The only gimmick in the offer, made by a night club, is that the customer purchase a glass of precious water at 35 cents. — Central Press Canadian.

FOUR MEN AND A JEEP

These four modern musketeers in search of adventure left London, Eng., in a $500 jeep to play their way through the 23,000 miles to southern Australia. Instead of swords they will rely on a set of drums, a ukelele, harmonica and a concertina to gain their passage in strange countries. The four men — all ex-officers — are Major Dennis Wright, 31; Captain John Davey, 31; Captain Peter Blake, 30, and Captain John Cocks, 30. Each has travellers' cheques for £100, but to buy fuel they will do odd jobs en route, and give entertainments. They expect to get as far as Burma in their jeep, and then change to horses to cross the roadless part of Siam on the way to Singapore. They are prepared for emergencies — their kit includes a short-wave radio and a rifle. — Central Press Canadian.

CORRECTLY GUESSES TIME OF LAST FREIGHTER'S PASSAGE

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 16 (CP) —Some lucky person Thursday won $1,500 for buying a ticket showing that the last freighter to pass through the locks here for the season would do so at 9:3 minutes, 33 seconds after 10 a.m., Thursday. The contest is run by Sault Kiwanis Club, which has a program for the needy in Algoma district.

ARMED "MUTT AND JEFF" PAIR SOUGHT BY POLICE

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP)—Police today are searching for a pair of armed "Mutt-and-Jeff" thugs who frightened a score of restaurant patrons here Thursday night and then attempted to steal an automobile. Police said the pair—one described as six feet two and the other five feet four res off when the owner of the car, Arthur Woods, shouted for help.

West German Parliament In Uproar

By DONALD DOANE

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 15 (AP) For the second time in three weeks a session of the West German Parliament broke up in an uproar today over charges that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government is a puppet of the Western Allies.

Tumult broke out on the floor when Communist leader Max Reimann bitterly accused Adenauer of fostering a German rearmament plan "backed by German and American Imperialism."

At this, members leaped to their feet, shouting angry objections. The Parliament's president, Dr. Erich Koehler, recessed the session, but Reimann continued shouting over the uproar for several minutes before he walked out of the chamber.

Socialist leader Kurt Schumacker also disrupted a parliament session Nov. 22 when he called 'Adenauer "Chancellor of the Allies" during criticism of the Chancellor's decision to end West Germany's boycott of the International Ruhr authority.

Before Reimann's outburst, Adenauer denied in the Chamber that he had ever proposed creation of a new German army.

Reimann, top West German Communist, once served two months in jail for a speech in which he predicted German vengeance against German politicians who collaborated with the Western Allies.

He was freed by British authorities before his three-month term expired so that he could take part in last summer's parliamentary election campaign.

Stirling Family Receives Royal Greetings

Autographed Cards From Queen Mary Received by Rev. A.E. Baker and Family

Typical of traditional English countryside scenery, a Royal Christmas card from Queen Mary to Rev. A. E. Baker of St. Paul's Church in Stirling is reproduced above. Mr. and Mrs. Baker and their two children each year receive personal Christmas cards from Queen Mary and have done so since 1936. This year the other three cards received by the family carried floral designs.

To receive personally autographed Christmas cards from a member of the Royal Family is a distinct honor and undoubtedly but very few are received by persons in Canada.

In 1936 Rev. A. E. Baker, with Mrs. Baker and their then two small children, Earle and Shirley, journeyed to France with the Vimy Pilgrimage. They stopped over in London for a month where Mr. Baker supplied the pulpit of the Putney Presbyterian Church.

Had Private Audience

To their delight while resident in London they received an invitation to a private audience with Queen Mary at Sandringham House. The Bakers spent thirty minutes with the Queen and her Lady-in-Waiting conversing about Vimy, their visit to Buckingham Palace, London and Canada. Each year since that time Her Majesty has sent her personally autographed Christmas cards to each member of the Baker family.

After a pastorate of fourteen years at the Davenport Road Church in Toronto, Mr. Baker, a veteran of World War I underwent plastic surgery, requiring retirement for nearly two years. On the eve of his pluralism he accepted the invitation to the St. Paul's-Carmel charge and moved with Mrs. Baker to the parsonage in Stirling early in November. The two children are now advanced medical students at the Toronto University. Choral Service

A choral service will be held at St. Paul's, Stirling, on Christmas night, Sunday, December 25th. The Queen's greeting card may be seen by worshippers so desiring at the close of this service.

MANY OBSTACLES TO CONSTRUCTION OF ROAD CLEARED

General Agreement on Trans-Canada Highway

Ottawa, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Most of the technical obstacles to construction of a 5,000-mile hard-surfaced highway across Canada have been cleared away.

With the exception of a controversy over whether the federal government will bear half the cost of the land on which the trans-Canada highway is to be built, there was general agreement at the two-day conference provincial conference which ended here Friday.

The highways ministers of all provinces except Quebec and Manitoba attended the discussions of standards and specifications for the proposed $300,000,000 highway—half the cost of which is to be borne by the federal government. Manitoba and Quebec were represented by deputy ministers.

At the conclusion of the conference, reconstruction Minister Winters said:

"The federal government's position is that the conference does not constitute cort of construction."

Thus the government will not include right-of-way costs in its offer to pay half the cost of the highway to the limit of $150,000,000.

Mr. Winters added that the conference concluded with a "clear understanding" of the government position.

Uses Pedalcopter To Ride in Air

Lakehurst, N.J., Dec. 17—(AP) How'd you like to take a bicycle ride in the air?

A Woodbridge, N. J., lawyer did it Friday.

He flew through the air with the greatest of ease inside the big hangar of the United States naval air station here on a foot-operated bicycle-type device from a 5,000-cubic-foot helium bag.

Charles K. Paul, the inventor, and the man who took the ride, called the device which he calls a pedalcopter, is "the safest flying machine invented."

The navy, in the person of Capt. G. C. Whiteley, said it has no opinion pro or con as to the present or potential value of this device.

Paul pedalled away, swooping around the hangar at an altitude of 100 feet and made an easy landing.

He made the machine out of bicycle parts at a cost of about $400.

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—The body of a man who police said jumped over the Sunnyside railway bridge in Toronto's west end Friday was identified as that of Sylvester Belobrajditch, 35.

Dog Catches Mail Carries it to Owner

London, Ont., Dec. 17.—(CP)—On city postman Ted Edwards mail route there's a dog, a smart dog.

The dog has a trick of sitting inside the door at mail time and catching the mail in his mouth then he carries it to his owner.

But the other day postman Edwards decided the dog wasn't so smart. The dog made his usual grab and carelessly took the end of the postman's finger.

First Contingent of Canadian Army Arrived in Britain Ten Years Ago

London, Dec. 17 — (CP)—Ten years ago today the First Contingent of Canada's Overseas Army arrived in Britain to give aid to the Motherland in her hour of need.

The historic occasion was recalled throughout the country today but particularly in Glasgow, Gourock and Greenock where singing Canadian soldiers disembarked a decade ago.

No large-scale celebrations or official functions were planned but through the country informal reunions were held by former Canadian servicemen who have taken up residence in Britain since the war.

In Glasgow a solemn, impressive ceremony was observed in George Square. Chief Magistrate H. Brown, deputising for Victor Warren, the city's Lord Provost, placed a wreath at the base of the cenotaph in honor of the memory of the Dominion's forces which failed to return. A second wreath was laid specially in honor of the Dominion's Scottish regiments.

Attending the ceremony were William A. Alston, President of the Canadian Club of Glasgow which sponsored the commemorative ceremony, Sir Patrick Dollan, who as Wartime Lord Provost officially welcomed the Canadians to Scotland Dec. 17, 1939, and officials of the city's Overseas Club.

"Nothing can dim our most cherished memories of those fine lads and lassies who with high courage crossed the Atlantic and whom we were privileged to have in our homes," Alston said.

"Those are happy memories but we have and ones too as so many gallant Canadians gave their lives; lives so full of promise that we in the Britain, Canada and Empire they knew might live free and unfettered."

On that day 10 years ago only a few officials and a small group

Kenneth Smith, Trenton, Killed In Car Accident

Thrown out onto the highway when he lost control of his car on the outskirts of Trenton, Kenneth Smith, 26, Trenton taxi driver, suffered fatal injuries late Friday night and died three hours later in Belleville General Hospital. He lived at 97 Nicholas Street in Trenton.

Smith suffered a fractured skull and other head injuries. He is thought to have been struck by the rolling car as he was thrown out.

With two passengers in his vehicle, Smith was driving east out of Trenton when near the Dutch Mill Inn his car went out of control as the wheels struck the shoulder. The car rolled over, throwing the driver out and was found overturned in the ditch 110 feet further east.

The other passengers were Miss Geraldine Young, 17, of Trenton, who was admitted to hospital with concussion and injuries, and Fred Davis, 23, also of Trenton. Davis was uninjured.

Provincial Police at Belleville investigated and said it had not been learned if charges would be an inquest. Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade of Trenton was called.

MACKENZIE KING SPENDS BIRTHDAY QUIETLY AT HOME

Ottawa, Dec. 17 (CP)—Remembered by high and low and blessed with a returning vigor, William Lyon Mackenzie King turned 75 today and looked ahead to a year that will start his looking back.

The former Prime Minister with his dog, Pat, and Charles Hunter House, his city residence, opening and replying to messages of well wishes from all parts of the world before the event. By Friday night great people and humble people of the United Kingdom, United States, France, Italy, Scandinavia, Holland and even Canada had showered him with their birthday wishes.

Behind him is his first full year of retirement after more than two decades as Prime Minister.

He was, he told a reporter before a great fire in his library, a year of rest and reading, refreshment and recovery from the "frightful fatigue" that ruled his days before he left office.

It brought a return of vigor that makes him feel much younger than he did a year ago

But it wasn't a year that brought a rest on the writing of his memoirs. That lies in the year ahead.

'Living Death' Carved by Fate For Hold-up Men

Felix Hernandez, 31 was shot in the groin after a holdup of a taxi-cab driver in September, 1945.

Friday, Judge Carmine J. Marasco left temporary quarters in a hospital prison ward where both men are paralyzed from the wounds they got and will be confined to wheel chairs for life.

The judge told them:

"I am convinced that no matter what severe my sentence might be it could not compare to the punishment you have already yours. You are facing a living death. My sentence is that you have served here less one day."

MELVILLE MOORE DIES

Toronto, Dec. 17 — (CP)—R. Melville Moore, 54, assistant manager of catering services at the Woodbine race track here and also at Fort Erie, died suddenly at his home Thursday. In his youth he played with Peterborough hockey team which won the O. H. A. intermediate championship in 1906, and he had also been with Toronto Argonauts and the Toronto Cricket club. Burial will be at Peterborough.

TAX DELINQUENTS ALONG BORDER FORCED TO PAY

Bond, Cars and Cash Seized to Pay Taxes

Welland, Dec. 17 — (CP) — It may be "routine" to Federal Income Tax authorities at Ottawa, but a lot of Canadians along the Niagara border today are scanned with apprehension the word that there's a new drive to collect back income tax from delinquents who work in the United States.

Sheriff V. L. Davidson of Welland County announced Friday that he had been instructed to seize motorcars and even houses owned by tax delinquents, and that three sheriff's deputies had arrived in Niagara Falls to spark the campaign. Port Colborne and Welland are among other municipalities affected.

One bank account and bonds totalling $3,500 were seized by sheriff's deputies here Friday. Sheriff Davidson said that about $200,000 is owing in Welland county on income tax dating back to 1941, with the average delinquent accounting for between $500 and $2,500. A printer who works in New York state said his car had been seized.

A spokesman in the National Revenue Department in Ottawa said Friday night that steps to recover overdue income tax are constantly being taken throughout Canada and he knew of no special drive in the Niagara border area. The Ottawa official surmised that the Welland sheriff had received a larger number of writs to execute than is normal. In any event, the Welland sheriff is doing something about it.

Work in United States

In Niagara Falls and other border communities, many persons work across the United States border and therefore their wages, paid at United States points, cannot be garnisheed as is done in the case of Canadian tax delinquents who are paid in Canada. Canadian wages and pittance paid in the United States have to pay United States income tax at the source, but are still liable for Canadian income tax when they maintain residence in Canada.

What Sheriff Davidson said was that he had been instructed by Ottawa to seize motorcars and other things of value. Only eight days, said them and use the proceeds to liquidate back taxes. If no delinquent has no car, his house or land may be seized, the sheriff added.

Hugh Asher, president of the Niagara Border Canadian Association, had no comment on the matter. But border economics have banded together in this association to fight against the federal government's attempt to collect income taxes.

PICKS UP DISTRESS CALL

Baltimore, Dec. 17 — (AP)—Ministers of the SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST church today it had picked up a distress call from the Spanish ship Mar Caribe and was standing by to aid it.

The radio station said the ship located itself at latitude 35.20 north and longitude 48.37 west. That would be around the Azores all religions.

Unemployment in Canada Serious But Not Alarming

Number Working Highest In History of Dominion

Ottawa, Dec. 17. (CP)—Unemployment in Canada this Winter has reached the highest level since the war. So has employment.

Federal Labor department officials say the unemployment problem is "serious" but "not alarming".

No accurate estimate is available of the number of people in the country who want jobs but can't find them. Around 208,000 job-seekers are registered with the National Employment Service. Some of them probably have jobs but are seeking H.E.S. help to change them.

The most serious cases, federal officials say, are the seasonal workers in agriculture and logging whose traditional pattern of seasonal work has been disrupted by a loss of foreign markets.

There will be a higher unemployment in the Industrial areas of Central Canada, largely due to foreign-trade difficulties.

The Bureau of statistics estimates that late in August there were around 98,000 unemployed, 31,000 more than at the same time last year. That. figure probably is higher now. Many people then working on farms have been unable to find winter jobs.

In October, there were nearly 77,100 claims for unemployment insurance, nearly twice as many as there in October and Quebec. That was nearly double the number in October, 1948.

Some Not Covered

But many people—in lumbering, fishing and farming—aren't covered by unemployment insurance. For that reason, some of them are the most serious cases.

Economists say, however, that the number of people working—an estimated 5,150,000 at Aug. 20—is the highest in Canada's history for that time of year. Late August is a peak period of employment in Canada.

Most of those were working full-time—4,449,000 were working 35 hours a week or more. Economists also say, however, that there's liable to be a gradual increase in unemployment for some time yet unless foreign-currency problems change and more foreign trade exports to increase.

Quebec had nearly 28,000 claims in October for unemployment insurance benefits, the largest of any province. In October, 1948, there were only 14,000.

Ontario was next with 22,475 compared with 12,000. British Columbia third with 11,593 compared with 7,000.

Prairie provinces there were 4,206 claims filed compared with 3,000 in Maritime Provinces there were 3,090.

Christmas Shopper Practical Buyer But in no Hurry to Get Job Done

(By The Canadian Press)

The 1949 edition of the Christmas shopper is a practical buyer but she's in no hurry to get the job done.

While most dealers report business is good—not as brisk as per with 1948 — the word in the market is that shoppers are going to a sluggish start. Shoppers indicated they have less money now than they had at this time last years.

Even buying trend has swung from luxury articles to practical items such as wearing apparel and household furnishings. The buyer looks for both quality and durability at low cost.

From well-stocked counters and shelves of stores across the country, the 1949 shopper has a wide assortment of wares to choose from, increased by imports from Britain, France, Czechoslovakia and Japan. Among the few shortages reported are refrigerators, radios — pop-up toasters and so on.

British goods, down in price following devaluation of the pound, have been selling well, in spite of sterling area purchases also have sold well.

In Montreal, storekeepers reported an increase in Christmas buying "on time," the shopper held a "stag night," on which only men were allowed inside its doors to buy.

In Toronto, one department store set up an exclusive department for men where they can do their Christmas shopping "with comfort and assurance."

WILLIAM YUZWA TO STAND TRIAL ON MURDER COUNT

Similar Charge Dismissed Against Three in Slaying in Lindsay

Lindsay, Dec. 17 (CP)— William Yuzwa, 32, of Hamilton will stand trial at the next assizes in February on a charge of murder in the knife slaying of 36-year-old Jack Loucks on the street here Nov. 5.

At the preliminary hearing Friday Magistrate E. A. Gee dismissed similar charges against Yuzwa's three hunting companions, Paul Zaboditki, 33, of Hamilton, and their brother John Zaboditki, 28, and George Zaboditki, 33, of Hamilton and their brother, John Zaboditki, 38, of Toronto.

But the capital charge was withdrawn from the Zaboditki brothers all three were held to appear in Peterborough Court today on charges of assault in connection with the beating of Mr. and Mrs. James Hogan, proprietors of a coffee stand at Lakefield.

The assault on the Hogans and the rape the crowd recalled a police chase of a truck which was stopped by a road blockade

BRIGADE ANSWERS THREE CALLS FRIDAY

The local fire department was on the hustle during Friday, answering three calls and meeting each with equal promptness and success.

Bags reaching fire in a combustion chamber at the Bakelite plant in Thurlow township just outside the eastern limits provided the first fire which was quickly extinguished with slight damage.

Sawdust igniting from sparks believed to have fallen from the big boiler pipe on the steam power room at the Houston Lumber Company brought the big red engine and crew to the scene within minutes after the alarm was sounded. Slight damage was reported here.

TURKEY DRAW HELD AT WALLBRIDGE

Friday evening the L.O.L. No 2356, Wallbridge, enjoyed euchre and dancing followed by a turkey draw, at which the following were winners: Mr. Merrick Chidley, of Eldorado, held winning ticket No. 377, and drew the 26 pound turkey; Elsie Humphrey, Yeoman Street, with ticket No. 371, the 24 pound turkey; Mr. Loren Blakely, the 21 pound turkey with ticket No. 294, and Miss Louise Woods, of Wallbridge, with No. 885 drew the 17 pound turkey.

BELLEVILLE CLUB MEMBERS ENJOY PARTY

The Belleville Club's annual Christmas party met with success last night as nearly 100 members enjoyed the conviviality of this occasion. One of the highlights of the night was the turkey draw competitions and many were successful and received their poultry prizes. The lucky winners were: John Buchan, Steve Flintoff, Arthur Bateman, John Hynes, Wilfred Laporte, W. H. Morton, W. C. Mikel, C. L. Jewell, George Lanning and T. Y. Wills.

FARMER KICKED BY A HORSE

Marmora- Mr. Carl Heath suffered a painful accident on Tuesday evening when he was kicked by a horse. Hospital Deficit Will Cost Taxpayers an Additional 3.33 Mills, Chairman Tells Board

Operational deficit at the Belleville General Hospital for 1949 plus the estimated hospital deficit for next year will cost Belleville taxpayers an additional 3.33 mills in 1950.

This was told to members of the hospital board of governors by Chairman of the board, Mayor D. L. Storey at their regular meeting Friday noon held in the hospital board room.

Operational deficit at the hospital for the current year was estimated at $20,000 and the expected shortage for next year was $30,000 which must be made up in the 1950 tax rate, it was stated.

Discussion was comparatively brief during the meeting as board members representing the county of Hastings, Warden D. Ross Carey, and county treasurer Ross Bailey, stated the county had never received actual hospital cost figures for indigent patients and they followed to the hospital rate of $3.00 per day for hospital ward cases. Actual cost figures for hospital claim of $6.83 being the actual cost per indigent patient day.

Left as Public Service

Board officials countered with the statement that the daily rate for ward beds had been left at $5 as a public service as it was felt many ward patients would be unable to pay more.

Earlier in the year the hospital board had asked the county for an additional $8,000 grant for 1949, claiming this was the amount which the hospital had lost on county indigent patients last year. The county declined to grant the additional $8,000, pointing to the fact the county had been granted $8,000 for 1948. Later the hospital put into effect a surcharge of $2 per day for indigent patients in order to offset part of the operational deficit.

Mayor Storey stated that although hospital figures had been given indigent patient costs to be $6.83 per day, accountants of the Ontario Hospital Association had set the figure at $7.14 per day for the year 1950.

The hospital board chairman said he wished nothing more than to effect an agreement with the county and felt the only solution was in the county taking over part of the hospital debentures and splitting the operational cost with the city.

Must Proceed Slowly

Warden McCarey felt that the county must proceed slowly in the matter of increased hospital grants, stating if such were granted other hospitals with which the county did business would ask for the same grant. If such were the case then not only the county but all municipalities in order to offset part of the operational deficit would have no voice in the operation of any of the hospitals in the district.

He said that county council had passed a resolution supporting increased government grants for indigent patients.

Grant Impossible

He said it would be impossible for his council to give a $10,000 grant to the hospital for 1949, as had been requested by the city.

County treasurer, Ross Bailey wanted to know if it was possible for the county to have actual indigent patient cost figures from the hospital. Hospital Administrator Walter Wakefield said this had not been asked of the auditor.

Mayor Storey said he had been disappointed that county council had had no opportunity of sitting in the city council to discuss all aspects of joint county and city administration costs before the hospital surcharge was put into effect.

He suggested that there were other departments in joint administration between the county and city in which the county paid more than its share. He said the county was not objecting to paying its way.

He went on to say a county council committee had been appointed to meet a committee from the city to work out joint costs but unfortunately some of the city committee had not presented themselves at the meeting.

"We took what was offered and there was no ballyhoo in the press. We laid low and tried to keep peace and unity but now we find the county board blamed for not wanting to pay its share."

Will Provide Information

Alderman Lattimer admitted there was uncertainty in some quarters as to whether the city or the county was paying more than its share of justice administration costs, but argued that the problems in which the city and county differed must be attacked one by one.

To clear up any misunderstanding as to actual cost figures for indigent patients, board members voted to provide the county with indigent patients cost for each day.

Warden McCarey pointed out that non-resident patients at the hospital paid the $5 a day charge had many visitors who spent money in the city. "It is that business worth anything to Belleville merchants?" he asked.

"Belleville merchants appreciate county business," replied P. C. McGuire, "and I think the county representatives have fallen to appreciate the rising hospital costs."

Figures Always Available

He said that county council had had been mis-informed as to the actual hospital costs and went on to point out that the actual figures regarding indigent costs were available to county council board members the same as to any other member.

There was a feeling that the hospital board should be better billed against the county as a whole and not against the respective patients.

Comparative cost figures for 1948, the last year for which totals in Ontario were indicated on hospital costs, which showed the average cost per patient per day for all patients to be $6.83 at the Belleville hospital, as compared with $6.43 for Brockville; $6.63 for Kingston; $8.73 for Oshawa; $9.36 for Peterborough Civic Hospital; $9.88 for St. Catharines and $10.00 for Wellesley Hospital.

Patients admitted to the Belleville hospital in 1948 totalled 6,454 with 2,474 coming from the city.

Could Eliminate Deficits

The hospital board financial committee headed by Col. T. Y. Wills reported that either a special ten hospital deficits could be eliminated at Belleville General Hospital if accounts of indigent patients were paid in full.

Acting on the recommendation from the finance committee the board moved that a special committee of Dr. Jack Marshall and Harold D. Bateman to recommend to the next meeting of the board the appointment of a solicitor to act for the hospital.

There was some discussion as to why the present city solicitor could not act in this capacity, but it was pointed out the duties of the city solicitor are already confined at the time of his appointment and the hospital would be extra work.

Doctor Asks Question

"Why do we need a solicitor?" asked Dr. G. H. Stobie, "the board never has one before."

The reply was that a solicitor was needed to give advice with respect to collection of bills, if such advice had been available in the past many of the hospital's present difficulties would have been avoided.

The board members also agreed that for the satisfactory operation of the hospital a physician should be made to make available to the hospital during the year 1950 at least 75 per cent or the anticipated operated deficit for 1950.

As this was the last meeting at which he would be present as chairman, Mayor Storey expressed his appreciation to Hospital Administrator Wakefield and also voiced his thanks to other members of the board for their co-operation.

Percy C. McGuire voiced the appreciation of the members of the board of governors to Mayor Storey. "You went into the city and the board of governors during the time when the city took over administration of the hospital" stated Mr. McGuire.

All members of the board of governors were present at the meeting. Attending were Chairman Mayor D. L. Storey, Bruce Lattimer, Col. T. Y. Wills, Alderman S. A. McCrey, county treasurer Ross Bailey, Dr. G. H. Stobie, C. B. Morgan, J. H. Legate, Frank Domenico, Dr. R. W. Bennett, C. C. McGuire, Dr. Jack Marshall and Harold D. Bateman.

Obituary

MRS. MARY S. THOMSON
(Marmora)

Marmora, Dec. 17 (Special)— The death occurred in Belleville General Hospital early on Wednesday morning of Mrs. Mary Susan Thomson after a lingering illness. For many years she was one of Marmora's best known and highly esteemed citizens, always active in church and community work. Her kindly and cheerful disposition endeared her to all.

Mrs. Thomson was a daughter of the late George Riddell and and his wife Ann Cowper. She was born in Woodford near Owen Sound, 70 years ago. In October 1904 she was married to Dr. David Thomson, who predeceased her several years ago. For about seven years she resided at Lion's Head in the Bruce Peninsula and in 1911 moved to Marmora where she since resided. For a number of years Mrs. Thomson was organist of the Marmora Presbyterian Church. After the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations united, she accepted the position of organist of the United Church and for many years also rendered valued and faithful service as choir leader. For a number of years she was a member of the session of St. Andrew's United Church. For many years she was an active member of St. Andrew's Ladies' Association and other church organizations. She was president of the Glen Club for the past few years.

For a long period Mrs. Thomson was a valued member of Marmora Public Library and was a valued member of Marmora Women's Institute. For many years she remembered in the community. Her exemplary life, her character and service for others was outstanding. She was admired for her courage, fortitude in time of trouble and she took a keen interest in all Canadian and world affairs.

Mrs. Thomson is survived by one son Gordon, at home; Mrs. Ross City, and a son James of Marmora; one sister Mrs. Gilda Parr deceased her several years ago. She is also survived by one brother, Alexander Riddell of Owen Sound and two sisters, Mrs. Neeves of Owen Sound and Mrs. Harry Rogers of Plumas, Man.

The funeral was held here on Friday and interment took place at Hillcrest Cemetery, Woodbridge.

CHARLES N. LOWRY
(Woodrow)

Picton—Former postmaster at Woodrow and mail courier for 27 years, Charles Nicholas Lowry died at his home at Woodrow. He had been confined to bed for two months. Mr. Lowry was born and always resided in the same house, never going away in the same room where he died.

He was the son of Robert Lowry and his wife, Janette Williams. He was a bee-keeper for many years, having a large colony of hives. He carried on also as carpenter work with the late Frank Wright. He was 79 years of age.

Mr. Lowry was a good neighbor and friend, and possessed a pleasing and friendly personality.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Clifford Alcott (Alice) of Melville, and Mrs. Thelma Church in Middleton, Mass., seven grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

The pall-bearers were held at the funeral home of G. M. Hicks and floral tribute was contributed by Rev. P. B. Reid. Pall bearers were Sherman Warden, Ray Young, Lee Eames, James Sayers, S. P. Dodds and Lorne Sykes. Entombment in Cherry Valley vault.

LATE MISS MELISSA WILLIAMS

The funeral of Miss Melissa Williams, late resident at 145 Albert Street, was held from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, on Friday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rural Dean the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church, assisted by the curate of the parish, the Rev. Edward Mann.

Interment took place at Albury cemetery and the committal prayers were said by Rural Dean Sparling. Th bearers were W. T. Page, John Bush, Orbey Alves, Ivor Alves, William Lynch and J. H. Dickson.

Mayor Thanked For Co-operation By Commission

Members of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission met round up their business for the year Friday afternoon when they held their regular meeting of 1949. All members of the commission, including Chairman Mayor D. Storey and Mayor D. L. Storey and Frank Followell attended.

Authorization was given for the purchase of chlorination equipment for the filtration plant, and extension at a cost of $6,237, this amount being included in the original cost estimate for the filtration plant addition.

The commission manager, O. H. Scott, was authorized to make arrangements for the purchase of fill to place in the unused excavations on the former gas plant property at Bridge Street. The excavations are where the large gas tanks were formerly situated.

As it was his last meeting as a member of the commission, Mayor D. L. Storey voiced an appreciation to the commission for its co-operation with him and with the city during his two-year term of office.

Moved Vote of Thanks

Commissioner Frank Followell moved a vote of thanks to Mayor Storey for his co-operation with the commission, and pointed out that the work of the utilities commission was important to the city.

"You have done an excellent job as mayor of this city, just how excellent can be seen by the present industrial picture," stated Mr. Followell. "We look forward to your continued interest in civic affairs."

The motion was seconded by Chairman Wotten who paid

Ancestor of Belleville Resident Developed McIntosh Red Apple Near Iroquois in 1783

The next time that local apple lovers bite their teeth into a luscious McIntosh Red apple it might be interesting for them to be reminded that it was a United Empire Loyalist who propagated the particular variety and that one of his descendants is a resident of Belleville.

According to the history of the McIntosh apple as taken from the McIntosh family Bible, this particular variety of apple was originated back in 1783, when one John Allen McIntosh moved to Canada with the United Empire Loyalists. This was almost 100 years before the confederation of Canada.

Settled in Dundas County

The Mr. McIntosh with whom we are concerned, homesteaded in what is now Dundas county and near the place now known as Dundela, near Iroquois, Ont. Four families were in the party and the first move was to break a clearing and use the logs to build a shelter. The family Bible was apparently carefully read, such events as births and deaths were faithfully recorded.

It was in this family Bible that notations were made concerning the origin of the McIntosh apple. Following are the notations:

"Planted the apple trees around the clearing," then an entry later "One nearest the house big red apples joined to the roots of other small apple trees, tied and planted these in rows out back."

Origin of Name

From the tree with the "big red apples" Mr. McIntosh apparently took cuttings and grafted the cuttings on the section of roots of the other trees which he dug up and planted in nursery rows. In his journeyings to Montreal (Hochelaga) he would take bundles of these young grafts. The settlers came to call the apples the McIntosh Red apple.

As well as being interested in apples and developing new varieties, the McIntosh family found time to give service to their King. It is recorded that a son of John McIntosh, named Allen, organized and led the early settlers into "Long Musket Companies" and fought the Americans in the war of 1812-1814.

They routed an American landing at Chrysler's farm in 1813 with the help of British regulars and Indians. The settlers thought Americans had about 6,000 regulars with a monument standing a few miles west of Cornwall as tribute to the early settler's ability to unite and fight back.

Many Hardships Recorded

Still in his twenties Allen McIntosh returned from Chrysler's and from Chateauguay, married, enlarged the apple nursery and raised a family. The many hardships revealed in the family Bible are almost unbelievable but still the red apple grafts were sent out. The coming of railways carried the apple both east and west.

Edward McIntosh, son of Allen, married and went west in 1860 to Muskoka. John McIntosh Red to British Columbia. From there and from the Annapolis Valley it was introduced to the United States.

And thus it is that McIntosh Red apple has grown into an international name of great repute. The value of this apple in world markets is in hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

The origin of the McIntosh apple is briefly described by the National Geographic Society with the United Empire Loyalists who came to Canada back in 1783. And the grafting or "joining" of the McIntosh apple for propagation is the first time grafting of any kind is known to have been attempted.

The Belleville descendant of this originator of the McIntosh apple, Clarence Henry McIntosh, was born at Dundela, Ont., on the site of the first McIntosh Red Apple tree and nursery.

Series of Articles Will Feature Trip to Ireland With Particular Attention to Hastings Place Names

National strife, or in this ever-changing world, the trend of members of the British Commonwealth to drift away from the Mother Country, as some people would have it, will never destroy the intangible ties that exist among "the family" as long as names of towns, villages and other communities are identical.

This bond is strong in Hastings County, United away in Ireland's Emerald Isle are such places as Limerick, Cashel, Mayo, Carlow, Dungiarvan, Wicklow and Weymouth. In Hastings County such names as Hamilton, for several of its northern townships bear the same names.

From Irish pioneers of a century ago, brought with them not only their rich brogue, ambition to build new homes out of the Canadian wilderness, but also a touch of the old land, they named their settlements after the Irish communities from whence they came.

Many familiar Names

While the rich virginal beauty of these parts of Ireland are not comparable to the starker, more rugged type of natural splendor, that is seen in Hastings County, they are bound together by similar nomenclature.

Too little, perhaps is known by residents of the county of the natural beauty, the people, their habits and customs, of these communities, and villages in Ireland.

Little, too, is generally known of the families whose names are perpetuated in the county name and those of some of its townships. From the great Hastings family with its branches at Rawdon, Huntingdon and Hungerford and last but not least, Moira which is situated on the road between Armagh, and Belfast, came the names now proudly borne by this county and the townships mentioned.

Mrs. Lavonia Stockelbach, Verona, New Jersey, a native of Hastings county, who visited Ireland during a trip overseas, is writing a series of articles on these beauty spots of Ireland and has offered them to this newspaper.

The Ontario Intelligencer now is privileged to publish the articles, and others written later on Dromore, telling that the descriptive information will be of keen interest to residents not only of the county mentioned but the county and district as a whole.

Displayed Paintings

Mrs. Stockelbach sailed for Britain in April of this year where she displayed an exhibition of her work in Walker Galleries, London, in June. Prior to the exhibition the artist lectured where she gathered material for her articles

Having never visit to Ireland Mrs. Stockelbach visited Dendrar the home of her late husband, where she remained month or so. She will write on the habits, manners, beliefs and customs of the people, and also do articles on Dublin cookery.

These articles will appear in the Ontario Intelligencer as a regular Saturday feature beginning Saturday December 24, under the title "Hastings to Erin."

The authoress, who at one time contributed a full illustrated page for the Sunday edition of the Detroit Tribune, is not only a writer of repute, but a brilliant artist as well.

Born in Belleville

She was born in Belleville . . . but let Mrs. Stockelbach tell the story of herself in the following brief biography:

"First and foremost there was the good luck to have been born in Belleville, to go to school there and to have the County of Hastings and men and people of me. True, I had to go to New York to be told by the head of the department concerned with minerals of American Museum of Natural History that Hastings is the most interesting spot in North America. And he is an authority. The dream of the history, biographies, and place-names of Hastings."

"The education in Belleville in the last quarter of the last century was thorough. It fitted one to earn a living and it fitted one to live, to live and be at home-for the new things — in any part of the world or in any class of society and to do the work led one.

"On Sundays the preachers looked after our religion and the little bits of dogma thought necessary, as we were not too hampered by prejudice and bigotry, while the uncles lived their religion without much talk.

"They were, for the children, the glorious days of the Great Secrets. Nothing was impossible.

Edited Special Page

"After two years of teaching, search in Ottawa the inevitable happened" and the difficulty of finding days had to be met, so in the midst of the usual work I was given a page that was found to fill a Sunday page of the Detroit Tribune with articles on the page, using for illustrations, photographs and line-drawings.

"Before my page was at an end, Mary Hunter, had for years been teacher Jay Belleville, a rare little lady, whose pupils included Sam Hughes, Geo. Young, Gilbert Parker and Tom Cullen. She had developed a system of teaching Canada-studied for the Ontario Art course and that was continued after she left to be married. Her methods and occasional criticisms were of incalculable benefit to me but in those days there were few outlets for one with artistic talent.

"From drawing and pen-and-ink work I began a type of line-drawing, using line and water colors similar to the Chinese Ink sticks. Then added to the colors instead of sepia, and on wood, almost miniature size.

"The editor always liked me that we should be known as "Our Own Artist." Something had to be done about it. I did. In 1933 I had completed about nine or our birds and exhibited them in London at Walker's Galleries, Bond Street. On being asked to paint English birds I declined to paint the 65 birds mentioned by Shakespeare in his works. That had never been done and after that work they were completed but Hitler's war prevented their being taken to London. They were exhibited in New York at the Museum of Natural History and had a gratifying reception.

Used Different Technique

"Then it became my absorbing passion to have more and more people look at mobs and more birds, so, noticing many birds on postage stamps it seemed fitting to paint the creatures, at least fifty of them, that appeared in real life. These were done in a different technique and on large papers. Invalided soldiers in hospitals liked them and they were shown at the Centenary Philatelic Exhibition, Grand Central Palace, New York, and Shakespeare and the Stamp birds were exhibited in June '49 in London at Walker Galleries.

"For a holiday, the happy times came of visiting in Ireland those places whose names are recorded for all time in our township. One could not have been taught by our Dr. Wright without being very conscious of words and names."

To the readers of the Ontario Intelligencer, Mrs. Stockelbach writes, "Your interest in Hastings or has kindly given me the pleasure of sharing my experiences with your reading areas of the long winter evenings and the hope that they might deepen your appreciation and appreciation of the county of Hastings."

Mrs. Stockelbach's description of the reception of her art by the critics as being "quite startling" is perhaps a trifle on the modest side.

Favorable Press Criticism

Edward Alden Jewell, writing in the New York Times, said after viewing the artist's exhibition of "Birds of Shakespeare" in the Whitney Gallery of Bird Art, Museum of Natural History, New York: "The work, exquisitely wrought, justifies the artist's hope that, prompted by this painted inventory, some might be led out to the woods, shores and fields for a better awareness of the originals. The birds are beautified with the most expert and loving care, no detail slighted, no color blotched, no texture left unmanaged. It is a beautifully achieved series, with subtlety of treatment and delicate fineness of modulation".

The art critic of the Montclair Times, New York, said, "The paintings in Mrs. Stockelbach are breathtakingly beautiful composition. Done in water color along the lines of the Chinese method, they are decorative as well as painstakingly educational. Style and colors are executed with fidelity. They have an effect of great charm and delicacy."

WINTER WINDOW GARDENS

Garden Culture Series
Harold C. Beckett

To the left is illustrated the charming effect obtainable with a window garden. This picture was taken last spring in the office of the author of this series. It was made St. Valentine's Day and shows an effective arrangement of spring flowers. At the base are Boston ferns mixed with cut daffodils. In the window ledge are tulips, yellow daffodils and garlicnes. The second tier of display shows violets and potted hyacinths, and the top half of the window is bright with sweet peas and calceolarias. The window itself hangs self-branching ivy and the lovely green foliage of the Wandering Jew. The Philodendron is a most interesting plant for window garden. After a few weeks it makes vigorous growth. Cuttings may be taken which should root well in water in which a small amount of powdered fertilizer can be added at intervals.

Florist supply Jasmine grape, Ivy and Philodendrons already potted in a well balanced soil mixture. During the period of healthy growth they are benefited by additional feeding. A weak solution of prepared cow manure is excellent about every three weeks. Fish powder or plant tablets may be purchased and used according to directions. It is best to water the plants when the soil approaches a dusty condition, by letting the pots stand for a few minutes in a pail of cold water.

It is well to guard against drafts by closing the Venetian blinds on chilly winter nights. To achieve continuous bloom it is best to use an easterly or southern exposure for the flowers. If the window lacks sun there are numerous plants which provide a perennial green. These consist of, Boston and Fandand (screw pine) holly, Rattan, Whitmans and asparagus ferns. Wax begonias if kept pruned and are not watered too much, will bloom for the entire winter season.

It's wise to wash the foliage of the plants occasionally with a fine spray. This helps to compensate for the unusually dry atmospheric conditions under which house plants grow. As the winter advances and up until the outside garden is making growth, it is possible to have a succession of bloom. By Easter there is more sunshine and at this time Calla lilies, cyclamen, anthurium, kalanchoes, and potted bulbs can be assembled to make a lovely display.

CHINESE ISLAND AS HEADQUARTERS

Formosa is to become a fortress island where nationalist China is collecting her forces to stand the advance and ultimately defeat the hordes of communism that have swept over the mainland of this vast country with its untold millions of inhabitants. "The plight of the nationalists appears most serious.

Can Chiang Kai-shek build his power to that towering strength that will not only safeguard the last island of the nationalists but will mean that drive forward in due course which will overcome the Red armies?

The strengthening of the defences of the island recall's Britain's mighty defence built up in the early part of the Second World War against the Hitlerite forces which had swept forward as far as the English Channel and could go no farther.

But Formosa though large is much smaller. Yet she is farther from the mainland than the British Isles are from the Continent. Formosa is 100 miles from the mainland. Her population is 8,000,000 almost all Chinese. Defence of the island will prove an interesting process for the world to watch with attention as the fate of China impends.

WHEN WATER RUNS LOW

Many people must be thinking seriously about what would happen in a serious water shortage through some cause or other. This train of thought has been started by the condition in which New York City finds itself.

Water has been one of the great "musts." It is life. It is an essential of life and to the good fortune of this earth it is the most plentiful of all the resources at the need of man. It is like the very air we breathe, so much is it a part of ourselves.

How serious it has become at some periods of history is only too well known from the experience of cities and towns under bombardment in the two Great Wars. But it did not wait for modern days to have the proof that water is one of the greatest essentials. Ancient history is full of records of an enemy's cutting off of water supply or even of poisoning the water sources.

Fortunately in the economy of nature and in the gift of Providence water is plentiful except in areas like the deserts which are deserts just because they have no water supply. Areas that once blossomed in prehistoric times like Sp ce now have become deserts because in the course of nature the water supply has dwindled and courses of rivers have changed. There are great parts of the Middle East, once the scene of mighty empires, which have become mere deserts of sand. Man's efforts could not prevent the fall of civilization, too, when water supply dried up or dwindled and even man had to disappear except in small numbers.

Even in countries supplied plentifully with water, there may come times of drought when water has to be drawn from the reservoirs or rivers to supply stock and even for drinking even in parts of the country normally with a good rainfall and with large reservoirs of water in lakes and streams to count on.

New York City is facing a monster problem and must have the co-operation of every consumer to avoid the slightest waste and to reduce the consumption. The authorities are going forward with every step necessary to conserve water for the sake of all.

A single leaking faucet, it is pointed out, should be reported and fixed immediately and not. The fines are to be the "official warnings do not give the average citizen the sense of forboding, that is, in our opinion, justified by the statistics," though the warnings have been well-documented and frequent. How serious the situation may become in the future in the metropolis is indicated in these words, "the people should be told step by step, what the department plans to do if the crisis enlarges into what we hope will never come, catastrophe."

The interest in the situation has been emphasized by the fact that Britain's growing concern in the appeal made to the people, to be a day of no bathing and no shaving, which would appear to the great majority real hardships.

That familiar natural phenomenon, rain, is looked for with prayer and hope but the people are warned that there must be rigid self-discipline as the backlog of need and demand is so great.

The Times makes a plea to the citizens, on the choice whether to safeguard in every possible way the supply or "will we go on pretty much as usual, foolishly trusting to luck?" The problem is to save every drop.

Being reproached for giving to an unworthy person, Aristotle said, "I did not give it to the man but to humanity."

Capital Closeups:

Prime Minister to be Chairman of Dominion-Provincial Parley

By MEL SUFFIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP)—A favorite topic of speculation on Parliament Hill these days is the question of whether a January Dominion-Provincial Conference on constitutional matters will succeed.

Its purpose is to find a formula for future amendment of the constitution on matters which aren't wholly within federal jurisdiction.

While few observers will venture a straight fiuness-or-failure guess on the outcome, most agree there should be some lively and highly controversial discussions.

Quebec and Alberta are two provinces which indicated they didn't expect to be over the moon sure approved at the last session of parliament which gave the Federal Government the right to amend the constitution on federal matters, except such as are listed to see the measure put over until after the Dominion - provincial conference and the Labor Day week Jan. 10.

The bill should have be olher differences and the success of the conference might well depend on whether delegates are permitted to roam over the whole constitutional field or are more or less restricted to the particular matter for which the conference is called.

Public Sittings

Present plans are to have the Dominion - provincial meeting open to the public. They'll be held in the Commons chamber Prime Minister St. Laurent will be chairman of the conference and probably will include 85 or 90 delegates.

Justice Minister Garson will be a member of the federal delegation which will include several other members of the cabinet. Provincial delegations will vary in size. Ontario and Quebec will probably have the largest delegations.

In some cases the provinces will be represented by the premier and one or more cabinet colleagues. In other cases it will probably be the premier accompanied by a group of advisers.

The question of how long the conference should last is one that depends to a great extent on how things go. A stalemate might cut it short, while progress could run four days.

Agreement on some method of amending the constitution might mean extra meetings at which various delegations would first detailed plans arising out of the general discussions.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

UNTHINK IT!

Neglect things and interest in them dies. Even love dies from neglect. There are times, however, when neglect does a good thing. Habit that should be neglected, thereby getting its death warrant.

People are often complain, saying that they cannot break a habit. The most practical and sure way to break a habit is to UNTHINK it. Take the case of putting something else that is wholesome in its place that the habit. Habit is largely unconscious. Said Shakespeare: "There is nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so." Master your thinking and you master your habit.

Said Ernest Fox: "The mere restating in thought of any difficulty endows it with new life." The more you tell you feel yourself that you can't do a thing, that moment you feed failure. It is necessary to think positively and constructively if you would overcome this is the first step to take in the killing of a destructive habit.

Take the commonest of all habits, that of worrying, or that one of fear. Allowing them in your thoughts keeps them alive, and so their destructive work goes on. Unthinking is lowering your capacity for constructive thinking and chilling your opportunity for happiness that should be yours in full measure. Fear, of course, is the worst and be could we but die daily and be reborn with the dawn of the morning sun! And this is not impossible if we unthink our past sins, regrets, or blackmailing. Unthink your worries and your fears and you will find yourself in a new atmosphere — a new human being in a new world.

Self is the greatest thing to keep getting bigger and bigger the more you think of it. Some familiar is that phrase: "the more I think of the meddler I get." Unthink all unkindness or other thoughts, and all unhappy reactions will go, and you will begin to mount the happy hills! It isn't always easy, but it is always wise and profitable, and God is always handy to give you a hand.

Labor Government in Role Of Santa for British Yule

London, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Santa Claus is thriving despite devaluation, and Britons will enjoy a better, brighter Christmas this year with more food, more drink and more candy. Clothes, too, will be plentiful for those who can afford them.

Many things will cost more—bread has already gone up a half-penny—but supplies generally are better than 12 months ago.

For one thing, everyone is getting nine extra cups of tea a month as the ration was increased Dec. 4 from two ounces to 2 1/2 ounces a week.

Other increases announced by Food Minister John Strachey in the House of Commons were:

Bacon: Ration raised to four ounces a week. The new ration will be maintained for some time, but may not be increased before 1950.

Candy: An extra six ounces in the four-week period beginning Dec. 4, making the total ration 22 ounces for the month.

Cooking fat: An extra four ounces during the Christmas period.

Cakes and sweet biscuits: Bakers have received a special allocation of ingredients.

Poultry: Supplies better than last year and appreciably more than other pre-war years.

Christmas puddings with price control off, will be slightly better than during the Christmas contest. Large supplies are arriving from Australia and the Republic of Ireland.

Mincemeat: Candied peel and crystallized fruit slightly better.

Fruit: More apples and oranges and plenty of tangerines and other fruit.

For The Wassail-Bowl

Nuts: Plenty available including walnuts, chestnuts, almonds and Brazils.

Meat: Considerable stock. Rationing will be continued.

Fish: Supplies will be adequate.

Poultry: Supplies will be

Use of Noun as Adjective 'Accepted' Says Professor

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 17—(CP)—Progressive Conservative member of parliament barely wiped out a host of corporation directors last week. Only the timely intervention of a professor of English preserved their existence.

Donald Fleming, member for Toronto Eglinton, insisted in the Commons that the corporation directors were grammatical errors to be expunged. In effect, he demanded that they rewrite themselves into directors of corporations.

Specifically, Mr. Fleming was deploring the use of nouns as adjectives in such phrases as "corporation director" "taxation year", and "passenger and goods transport."

Known as a parliamentary expert on grammar, he withered this usage during a blast at the government for what he considered faulty English in the phrasing of its legislation.

Looking over a bill embodying income-tax changes, Mr. Fleming objected to its draftsmanship on discovering the presence of adjective nouns "in violation of the rules of good English grammar."

Finance Minister Abbott, complaining mildly that Mr. Fleming should have spotted the alleged offences when the bill was first introduced in April, promised to have them deleted.

Had the effects of Mr. Fleming's attack been confined to mere corporation directors and draftsmen of government bills, their doom might have been sealed. But his pronouncement was even more sweeping.

It would have meant that annihilation of all investment dealers, union organizers, party whips, hockey players, opposition leaders, radio executives—and newspaper men.

Taken Case to Court

Fighting for his own survival, a Canadian Press reporter took his case to a higher court—the department of English at the University of Toronto.

He first tried the faculty of University College, where Mr. Fleming, a lawyer, perfected his mastery of the English language 34 years ago. One of Mr. Fleming's former teachers, unwilling to tarnish the reputation of a prize pupil, declined to be quoted.

But Professor J. D. Robins of the English Department at Victoria College was less reticent. He declared that the use of the noun as adjective is "thoroughly accepted."

Mr. Robbins, whose "incomplete anglers" has been ranked among Canada's 100 best literary works, dismissed Mr. Fleming's stand on the adjectival noun as "thoroughly pedantic."

"Mr. Fleming is observing faithfully the rules he learned in Grades 8 and 9 of public school," he said.

Carried to extremes, the construction might be objectionable, but in general, it was good English, Specifically, there was nothing wrong with taxation years, corporation directors or passenger and goods transport.

Mr. Robins added that the rule prohibiting adjective nouns never did hold very well, and the language is full of them.

Perusal of Hansard proved his point. In a single debate, the Hansard reporter recorded Mr. Fleming using adjectival nouns on five separate occasions. An example:

"I do not like the parliament concerning bad grammar in statute form."

PICTON

Warden Host To 200 Guests At Banquet

Picton—Warden A. E. Bowerman was host to 200 guests at the annual warden's banquet held in Parish Hall, Wednesday night. A turkey dinner was served.

L. Netherby, K.C., acted as toast master. In proposing the toast to the warden, C. Walmsley, K.C. referred to the wide public service given by Reeve Bowerman, his generous help for others, and his aggressiveness.

Warden Bowerman thanked council members and officials for fine co-operation during the year. With such great natural resources, he did not feel that Canada need fear a depression. Such will only happen if we talk and think that way, and do nothing about it, he warned. Various speakers attacked the tendency to centralize the powers of government. There is no better form of government, none closer to the people and representing their wishes, he said.

Taking part in the toasts to municipal government and local boards were: J. D. Baxter, M.P.P., Mayor W. Henley, R. E. Bourne, L. Hall, Stephens, Parish reeves and deputy reeves. Entertainment was provided by Tom Wood's orchestra, Mrs. R. Powers and Miss D. Storms.

Charge Man Killed Girl Who Refused To Pledge Love

New York, Dec. 17—(AP)—At midnight, a bullet struck down 26-year-old Carmen Sicbe, because she refused to pledge her love to the man who police say killed her.

The man, handsome, 21-year-old Israel Justiniano, was quoted by detectives Friday night as saying he had given the pretty Carmen 20 minutes to make up her mind, while he sat beside her with a gun in his hand.

It was either promise herself to him, or die, according to police who said Justiniano gave this account.

As the minutes ticked away, Carmen knelt before him in his furnished room Monday night in the Bronx, and begged:

"Please let me go."

The clock said 20 minutes until 12.

"You have until midnight to come to a decision as to whether you're going to stay with me or not," Justiniano told her. "If not, I'm going to kill you."

Carmen shook her head. She kissed his sleeve, and began to pray. She prayed. At midnight, he shot her through the head.

When police arrested Justiniano after seeking him since Tuesday they said he had a lipstick smear on his first sleeve.

"Yeah?" he said. "That was Carmen's kiss."

MACKENZIE KING

There were two reasons for it. One was the difficulty of readjustment, of shifting the basis of his life from a job that demanded all the mental energies to one that left him entirely to himself.

Material Must be Sorted

The other was the "amazing" quantity of material he found he had collected in 30 years in public life. That has had to be sorted out, analyzed and put in place for the job ahead.

Mr. King indicated two factors that will govern his work. One is that he will give part but not all his time to his memoirs. He has found too much enjoyment out of sitting in front of the fire, reading and corresponding or talking with his friends to go back to a full-time devotion to the recording of the past.

The second factor is his avowed intention to deal with the things and events in which he feels the public will have the most interest, to treat only the things the country would think most important." He wants to put his own interpretation on them, to "tell why certain things were done and others were not done."

He has no final objective about the size of the memoirs he assumes he will write.

Mr. King said he thought Canada had great ahead in this century's first half as had no other country and this was "no idle augury" for the second.

No other country had greater opportunity for happiness, a fact that was coming home to Canadians and to the world.

Hu Tsung-Nan and his 40,000 man army to face alone the blows of the two Red armies. Revolts at his back in Sikang Province and in Yunnan to the south had him in a tight corner.

The Hong Kong Standard said Hu's forces already had been sliced into three segments, presumably by the army of the one-eyed Red Gen. Liu Po-Cheng. Liu's troops are pounding toward Chengtu and southward toward Yunnan.

Hu's largest forces are centred around Chengtu. It was believed he would try to pull them westward into Sikang province. There they would fall pack the private army of turncoat Gen Liu Wen-Hui, Sikang warlord

A private dispatch from Chengtu indicated Hu might have to move base to make it. The report said Gen. Peng's Red divisions were moving swiftly on Chengtu along the main road that winds out of Shensi province north of Szechwan.

It was precised that Peng soon would joi nforces with Gen. Liu's army now approaching Chengtu from the east. They then would attempt to deliver a knockout blow to Hu's armies.

WILLIAM YUZWA

just outside Peterborough early Nov. 19, when the Zalucki brothers and Yuzwa were arrested.

Knife Found in Truck

Loucks, father of three children, suffered fatal neck wounds during a battle on Lindsay's main street when three bystanders were also injured. A blood-stained knife with a broken handle was found in the truck occupied by accused when it was stopped at Peterborough, and testimony Friday was that the injury to Loucks could have been inflicted by a broken knife.

Witnesses told of seeing Yuzwa fight with Loucks outside a restaurant on the night of Nov. 16. Wesley Aldred of Lindsay said he saw Yuzwa talking to Yuzwa seated in the truck. Aldred said Loucks was accompanied by a man named Joe Kearns who challenged Yuzwa to "come out and fight like a man."

Two Approach Man

Yuzwa, the witness said, got out of the truck and was joined by James Sahodnik. The two approached a man identified as Floyd Smith.

"Sid stepped back and I saw blood come down his face," said Aldred. "Then the two men approached Loucks. Yuzwa came up in front and his hand went forward to Loucks who turned and staggered. He grabbed his mouth, I saw some blood."

MANY OBSTACLES

Representatives of several provinces suggested later, however, that the matter isn't closed yet.

They contended that the right-of-way is a legitimate item in the cost of the highway and felt the federal government was hedging on its agreement.

Next step in the project is agreement by the provinces on the route. The federal government's only interest is that the highway follow the shortest practical route from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island.

After the route is settled, the federal and provincial governments will have to sign agreements clearing the way for actual construction to start some time in 1950.

Details outlined

The details settled at the conference include:

1. The right-of-way—width of land on which the highway is to be built—would be a minimum of 100 feet except in such places as the mountains.

2. The Prairie Provinces have agreed that the right-of-way will be 300 feet through their territory. This is to facilitate drainage and eliminate the need for hauling dirt from special pits.

3. Width of new pavement will be from 22 to 24 feet except in special cases such as Newfoundland where a road this wide might not be required.

4. Minimum width of old pavement incorporated into the road would be 20 feet. The federal government has agreed to pay half the cost of old road which becomes part of the highway.

5. Cost of clearing the land for the highway will be about 50-50 by the federal and provincial governments.

6. Minimum shoulder for the highway will be five feet on each side.

7. Thickness of the pavement will be at least three inches of asphalt or concrete.

New Revolt Opens Gates for Reds In West China

By WAYNE RICHARDSON

Hong Kong, Dec. 17 (AP)— A new revolt today was reported to have opened wide the gates for a Red Army now sweeping into the mountain lands of Western China's proposed base for Nationalist guerrilla warfare.

Private reports said Szechwan Province militia went over to the Reds in the borderlands north of Chengtu, last of a series of refugee capitals abandoned by the Nationalist government.

The militia had been stationed there to check the troops of Red Gen. Peng Teh-Huai. Now they had joined Peng in a drive on Chengtu.

Festive Cookies, Candies Have Special Appeal

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (CP) — If mother would avoid bending over a hot stove all day Christmas, she had best get her baking done early.

Many of those festive cookies, cakes and candy can be prepared well ahead of time, thus giving mother the chance to relax and enjoy the holiday visits of friends and relatives.

Home economists of the consumer section, deparment of agriculture, say that home-made candy has a "special appeal" at Christmas. When it has perfect smoothness that literally melts in your mouth and a flavor that is slightly different from anything one can buy, then the maker may be justly proud.

Honey-Almond Balls

Ingredients: four ounces (four squares) unsweetened chocolate, one-half cup liquid honey; one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon; one-fifth teaspoon salt; one-half cup finely chopped blanched almonds.

Melt chocolate over hot water, add honey, cinnamon and salt. Beat well, add almonds. Chill until firm enough to handle. Form into small balls about one inch in diameter. Roll balls in icing sugar. Yield: 30 balls.

Popcorn Balls

Ingredients: one cup honey; one cup sugar; one-half cup water; one teaspoon salt; one teaspoon vanilla extract.

Combine sugar, honey, water and salt in saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring until mixture begins to boil. Cook to firm ball stage (250 degrees Fahrenheit). Remove from heat. Add vanilla and stir just enough to blend well. Pour slowly over three quarts popped corn in large bowl. Grease the hands lightly or rinse them in cold water and press corn into balls.

Wrap in waxed paper. Yield: eight medium popcorn balls.

Ice-Box Cookies

Ice-box cookies are ideal holiday fare because the dough can be prepared days ahead of time, and the cookies baked as needed.

Ingredients: one cup brown sugar; one cup white sugar; one cup butter (or margarine); one cup lard; three eggs, well beaten; one teaspoon vanilla; one cup pastry flour sifted, and add to this 1-4 teaspoon salt; one teaspoon cinnamon; one teaspoon soda; one teaspoon baking powder; one cup chopped nuts; one cup raisins; four more cups flour.

Cream shortening and sugar; add beaten eggs. Sift one cup flour, add other dry ingredients including nuts and raisins, and add to first mixture together with flavoring. Mix thoroughly, then work in the four additional cups of flour. Form in rolls, wrap in waxed paper, and let stand in ice-box 24 hours. Slice and bake at needed, in oven at 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

In conversation with a group of medical doctors and surgeons at a supper party, the subject came up of whether people really fear death much as is commonly believed.

"People aren't afraid to die," commented one doctor. "What they actually fear, is the suffering and pain which might precede death." Experience with patients generally supports this theory, the doctors say.

Trouble with a lot of us is, that we put off medical attention for fear of the usually imaginary pain of immediate medical treatment. We worry and stew and fuss, and don't get to a doctor until our trouble is well advanced. This is glaringly true of people who suspect they have some form of cancer.

You may be able to put off having your shoes half-soled, because if worst comes to worst, you can in the end get a brand new pair. But you cannot get a brand new body, if you let this one go to tatters.

Cancer is a disease which proper medical treatment can usually snuff out in its early development. Even in the later stages, the patient can be given relief from suffering and a chance to live longer by the use of X-ray and radium treatment.

Synchrotrons and cyclotrons . . . . these terms keep bobbing up in the papers. Maybe you're all about anyway? It seems big things are going on in scientific research with the aid of complicated and expensive machinery. Scientists explain that the field of research has become so broad that teams of scientists, each working in a special part of the field with complex equipment, are needed to uncover the secrets of matter . . . . So it's all a case of "Dear dear, what can the matter be?"

People on which this scientific program depends, are recruited from universities. Scientists working in universities and industrial labs have designed and produced some of the machinery necessary for the experiments . . . . . These machines are called synchrotrons, cyclotrons, betatrons and the like.

So today, by means of these powerful, highly specialized machines now being turned out, the scientists are venturing into the unknown. What are they doing? They say they are trying to learn the basic structure of matter. To all of us, the results of such experiments can possibly bring longer life if used for wrong purposes, can possibly destroy life itself.

At the various Canadian universities, atom-powered electric energy machines are being installed for experimental purposes. These complex instruments will enable Canadian scientists to play a greater part in the field of nuclear study.

In an interview with John Drinkwater NANA overseas correspondent, Rachele Mussolini, wife of the former Italian chief, brings out one of the truths of all time when she says: "I have learned that only from the little people does one receive sympathy, just as only those who have suffered really understand suffering." How true that is. Just let misfortune strike you and you know at once who your friends are.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Oysters will be oysters whether they are red, yellow, black or green, whether they grow on trees or on the bottom of the ocean.

The red, yellow and black specimens were reported several thousand years ago by Pliny in his travels through the Mediterranean. Oysters that grow on trees are found in the Carribean and in Lower California, where the bivalves, attached to the lower part of tree trunks, are exposed during low tide.

The one constant note in oysters everywhere is their gentle, tangy, persistent flavor. Though they are as mild as cream, their taste is never lost in combination with other foods. Oysters in bread stuffing, in sauces and soups or in Hors d'Oeuvres keep their deliciousness intact.

In the following recipe oysters are prepared as part of a warm biscuit roll, served as a main course. The dough is filled and rolled up as a jelly roll, baked and then sliced. Out of respect to the oysters, use a light touch when rolling the dough so that it will be tender and flaky. Since oysters throw off water during cooking, they should be drained thoroughly before being used. For best flavor, use oysters freshly opened.

Baked Oyster Roll. Serves 4-6

Order 24 large or 36 medium size freshly opened oysters. Pick over oysters carefully to remove any pieces of shell. Cut oysters into quarters or sixths. Drain thoroughly by placing on colander or on a clean towels or absorbent paper.

In a mixing bowl, season oysters with 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon celery salt, 1-4 teaspoon worcestershire sauce, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and 2 tablespoons grated onion. Add 1-4 can of undiluted mushroom soup and mix well. Add 1-4 cup fine white bread crumbs.

Make a biscuit dough using your favorite mix or the following recipe: Combine 2 cups of previously sifted all-purpose flour with 3 teaspoons double acting baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Cut in 1-4 cup shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add 3-4 cup of milk or enough to make a dough that can be handled easily and that does not stick to hands. Turn out on floured board, knead slightly and then roll into a rectangular shape. Spread oyster mixture on dough. Roll up from long side, jelly roll fashion. Close ends to keep filling from oozing out. Place on a greased cookie sheet.

Bake in a hot oven 425 degrees until brown and done in centre, 25-30 minutes. Baking time will depend on thickness of roll.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply—Ed.

Lattimer's Entertain Staff to Turkey Dinner

Lattimer's Town Room was filled with hilarity and laughter last evening on the occasion of the Christmas dinner party enjoyed by the entire staff and their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lattimer welcomed the guests on arrival, after which they all sat down to enjoy a full course turkey dinner.

Coffee, cigars, nuts and candies were enjoyed while the Master of Ceremonies, Mr. George Stirling, introduced Mr. Bill Dauskin and Mr. Bud Cavanagh, who entertained in their own original style. Their splendid performances were much appreciated by all present. While waiting the arrival of Santa Claus himself, carols were sung accompanied by Mrs. George Stirling at the piano.

Santa was given a rousing welcome, and much merriment accompanied the distribution of gifts to all the staff.

At the conclusion of a happy evening, Mrs. MacKay, on behalf of the staff, thanked Mr. Lattimer for his kindness in providing such a splendid Christmas dinner and for making the entertainment that followed. She made fitting mention of the co-operation, goodwill and loyalty that exists at all times between the staff and management, to which remarks Mr. Lattimer expressed appreciation.

Entrance Exams Discontinued, Plans for Promoting Grade Eight Pupils to be Announced

High school entrance examinations will be discontinued at once with a new plan for promoting Grade VIII pupils in June, 1950 to be announced at a later date, members of the Belleville Board of Education were told Friday evening at their last meeting of the year.

L. A. Kells, local public school inspector told the members that he had received a memorandum from the minister of education to the above effect. The memorandum also included changes in school reader books and announcement that changes in the curriculum had been made to provide for four divisions with the revision of primary division to be in the hands of teachers before June, 1950.

In the Intermediate and Secondary divisions there is a proposed increased emphasis on conservation and map reading and throughout these is indicated the intention of removing obsolete topics.

New in Use

The school inspector said that the Gage Basic Reading Series recommended by the Minister of education is now in use in Belleville public schools through Grade 6, eg in the junior division and that the extension through Grade 6 can take place at a very moderate expense.

Belleville principals and teachers had already taken steps to prepare themselves for any action that the board of education may decide upon regarding the reorganization of the primary division for September, 1950. A central committee is already in action and has a list of recommendations and a tentative program ready for the staff.

Harold Seldon, chairman of the sites and accommodation committee was authorized to meet with city council with respect to a small parcel of property in the MacDonald Gardens area which would provide a rear entrance to the proposed new school in that area.

Refer Payment of Bill

The board referred payment of a bill for something over $600, the cost of installing a storm sewer on Ridley Ave., to take away roof water from the new Prince Charles School. The matter will be taken up with the city public works department.

All new students at the Belleville collegiate and others over 12 years of age will be given the opportunity of taking T.B. tests, while those registering positive in the last check will be rechecked.

In discussion of the curriculum changes as announced by the Minister of Education it was pointed out that elimination of the high school entrance examination was not as radical as it might sound. From 85 to 90 per cent of the high school entrance pupils are at the present time being promoted and it was suggested there would undoubtedly be controls of some kind to regulate promotions.

More Taking Course

Increased interest in agricultural science was seen at the collegiate, according to principal C. E. Currie with increased number of pupils taking the course as a science.

The board of education went on record as being in favor of the recreational commission which is proposed to be set up in the city. Public interest in the proposal is currently being sought by the Chamber of Commerce.

In response to a request from the Belleville General Hospital, science will be introduced as a subject in the evening classes for the convenience of student nurses.

Teacher Resigns

The resignation of Mrs. E. Arnot from the staff of the Collegiate was accepted and Miss D. Davidson, Fort William, was appointed to the temporary staff for a term of from January to August next year. The position will then be advertised.

The local public works department will be requested to remove snow from the Collegiate parking area during the winter months. It was also decided that the board of education would budget in 1950 to provide for the repair of the collegiate campus.

Following a request of the collegiate students' council to make the East Belleville playground available immediately as a recreational field for the secondary school, the board expressed itself as being in favor of the request but recommended deferring action regarding the provision of another athletic field until more complete information was available regarding a municipal recreational commission and the formation of a Bay of Quinte School area.

Paint Basement Floors

Approval of the board members was given for the continuation of the program of painting basement floors in the public schools. It was also decided that the board members would visit each school early in the new year to determine what repairs may be necessary. Required funds could then be budgeted for in the estimates.

Board member George Wishart objected to the recommendation that the Ontario Education report that lower qualifications be allowed for teachers in order to increase the numbers going into the teaching profession. He felt this step would be a mistake and action would tend to debase the teaching profession. He felt more teachers should be given permission to teach on the permit system.

Take Group Picture

In commemoration of a year in which the local board of education had a woman chairman, the board decided to have a group picture taken to hang in the board room.

Miss Josephine Tickell in her final appearance as board chairman expressed her appreciation to members of the board for the opportunity of acting as the board chairman. "It had been a splendid experience," she said, stating she never would have accepted the honor unless she had been certain of the co-operation of the other board members. She felt that she had had co-operation.

In reply past chairman George Wishart complimented Miss Tickell for her interest in the board work during the past year. "Your year as chairman has been a tough year in that a new school was built and plans made for a second school in the east end of the city," he said.

All members of the board were present at the meeting, including Chairman Miss Tickell, Frank Cushing, Enos David, Arthur Burke; Col. E. A. Geen, Dr. R. W. Tennent, Harold Seldon, Stuart Robb, George Wishart and A. C. Campbell.

Prior to the adjournment of the meeting board members and visitors were entertained and refreshments provided by Board Member A. C. Campbell.

Boys Construct Press Table For Board Room

Indicative of the quality of creative work which can be accomplished by junior members of public school handicraft classes, boys of the handicraft class at Queen Alexandra school have constructed a press table for use in the Board of Education room at that school.

The table is well built and sturdily constructed with a masonite top and serves well the purpose for which it was intended.

Members of the board at Friday evening's meeting expressed their appreciation to the students of the handicraft class and to their instructor for the fine piece of work which they accomplished.

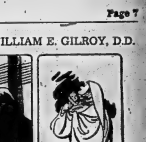
THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR



Mary, the Mother

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

"And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger." (Luke 2:7.)

Mary had rejoiced in praise when told that she should bear the Christ-child. (Luke 1:46, 55.) "My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour . . ."

She was yet to hear the sad prophecy by Simeon: "Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also." (Luke 2:35.) The mother of Christ was at mother of sorrow as well as rejoicing.

But "Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart." (Luke 2:19.)

Arnold Mitchell Named President Milk Producers

Speakers for the meeting included Colin Rogers, Kingston, and Kenneth Hall, Toronto, both directors for the provincial milk producers' association. They spoke on the need of the British market for Canadian dairy products, and suggested that efforts be made to retain this market. They urged the formation of the whole milk producer to assist in bringing this about.

Government officials in charge of export marketing for dairy products were urged to do everything possible to retain the British market for Canadian farm products.

Submit Differences To Conciliation Bd.

Trenton, Dec. 17 — (Special) — Management and union agreed to submit their differences to conciliation board at Trenton yesterday ending a week-old strike involving 120 employees and the Downs-Coulter textile plant locked in a dispute over wage and contract differences.

According to the spokesman for the United Textile Union (A.F.L.) the employees were locked out after a series of work stoppages. Managing director J. E. Uttley, speaking for the Downs-Coulter Company, said the union was asking an all-round general wage boost and a 40-hour week, instead of the present 47½-hour week.

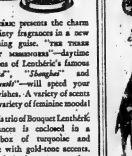
of newspapermen knew that the closely-guarded transports moving up the river Clyde carried the 1st Canadian Division led by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton. Crowds assembled on shore thought they were men of the British Expeditionary force returning home for Christmas leave.

But they were not long left in doubt as the lighters bringing the troops ashore approached the landing stages. With resounding "Whoopees" and "Yahoos" and roars on roar of "Canada" troops, in full war-kit, they made their identity unmistakable.

Surprised onlookers greeted them with fervent demonstrations of welcome. But rigid security was imposed and the world remained unaware of the landing until long after the Canadians were already established or on the way to allotted billets.



On the pier at Greenock, Anthony Eden, then Secretary for the Dominions, extended the country's welcome. A message was read from the King.

"That was a historic day in Scotland," Sir Patrick said today. "It welded another link in the centuries-old chain of blood and effection which binds the Dominions and the British peoples. Men of the Canadian forces are remembered throughout Scotland—you canna forget yer sin foie."

BODY FOUND UNDER ICE

Port Colborne, Dec. 17 (CP)— The body of George Morrison, 42 a veteran of the merchant marine was found Thursday night under two inches of ice in an old cement quarry a mile from here. Police found the body, with the head battered in, after Frank Mahagan, 41, of Port Colborne, walked into the police station and told of a fight with Morrison after a drinking bout in a shack at the quarry Wednesday.

Police held Mahagan for investigation.

Gales Delay British Shipping

London, Dec. 17 — (Reuters)— Gales over Britain early today delayed shipping and caused damage. There were heavy snowfalls in northern Scotland.

The 20,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada was weatherbound in dock at Liverpool and unable to come around to the landing stage to embark passengers for Canada.

She will now sail direct from the dock — with only one day to spare if she is to get her passengers to Canada in time for Christmas.

$100,000 Loss By Fire in Plant In Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 17 — (CP) — A two-alarm fire today gutted a three-storey factory manufacturing fluorescent lighting equipment in east-central Montreal.

There was no one injured in the spectacular blaze which broke out about 4:30 a.m.

Unofficial estimates placed the damage at more than $100,000. The building was backed by wood an brick tenements but firemen prevented the blaze from spreading. It was not immediately known how the fire broke out.

At 6:45 a.m., firemen were still pouring tons of water on the stubborn blaze.

Some 25 families were driven from their nearby homes by billowing smoke.

Predicts Price Of Eggs Will Drop 12 Cents Dozen

Ottawa, Dec. 17 — (CP) — A government trade official Friday predicted that the price of eggs—Grade "A" large — will drop 12 cents a dozen within a week and sell for 36 cents a dozen wholesale.

The sharp drop in price, he said, is a direct result of the fact that the United Kingdom has not given Canada an egg contract for 1950.

Prices across the country began dropping Friday as the government gave producers notice that the government now is nearing the end of its egg-buying program to fill the 1949 Anglo-Canadian egg contract.

Eggs dropped 15 cents a dozen in Edmonton, three cents in Toronto and Peterborough, Ont.

Last week Grade "A" large eggs were selling on the wholesale market for about 48 cents a dozen. Next week they likely will be selling for 36 cents — approximately the same as the price in the United States, the expert said.

REJECT WAGE CONTRACT

Toronto, Dec. 17 — (CP) Union (A.F.L.) announced Friday night that employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission have rejected the commission's wage and contract offer in a union-conducted referendum.

The union said the vote was 4,095 to 172 against the T.T.C. offer — 21 cents-an-hour wage boost to include the present 12-cents-an-hour cost-of-living bonus. The union is seeking an increase of 25 cents an hour including the cost-of-living bonus. The general base rate figures for $1.20 an hour offered by the commission and $1.30 sought by the men.

Grim Disasters Take Many Canadian Lives During Year

The Noronic fire which tortured a gay, pool-season cruise on the Great Lakes into a funeral pyre for 119 persons, was Canada's worst disaster in 1949. It also was one of the Dominion's worst in the last century.

There were two other accidents in 1949 which, because of the number of persons killed, entered the disaster class. Both were airplane crashes, one in Quebec, the other in Manitoba. Their combined death tail was 43.

The Noronic holocaust plunged several United States cities into mourning for virtually all the dead were Americans, mostly from Cleveland and Detroit. At home, it spurred a movement for greater preparation to meet similar emergencies, inspiring the Canadian Red Cross Society to sponsor a 10-day disaster institute in Toronto early in December.

It was in Toronto harbor Sept. 17 that the 16-year-old Noronic burned. Despite all the recourses of the city's fire-fighting facilities flames consumed the 5,000-ton Canada Steamship Lines cruiser as though she were a mere match-box.

First reported at 2:36 a.m. EDT, the fire had been located in a C-deck linen closet. It drove passengers, some with their hair and clothing afire into companionways. Some were drowned among the many who escaped by jumping overboard. Many burned in their bunks.

And the charred stumps of human flesh removed later from the gutted hull posed an identification problem which has not yet been totally cleared. In early December—more than two months after the fire—three bodies still remained unidentified and unclaimed.

Some 900,000 words went into the record of evidence during a 17-day federal commission of inquiry under Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada.

And another 99,000 words went into the commissioner's report, released Nov. 21. It blamed the C.S.L. and the ship's master for not having followed the basic rules for fire precaution.

For drama and sheer sensationalism, the bomb-blasting from the skies over the St. Lawrence River of a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-33 carrying 23 persons almost overshadowed the Noronic disaster.

Although the crash happened Sept. 9, the stranger-than-fiction web of intrigue allegedly woven by a thin-faced Quebec jeweller came out piecemeal only two weeks later. Twenty three persons killed in the crash.

J. Aldred Guay, 32, now awaiting trial for murder of his wife, Rita, was named by police as the author of the fantastic homemade-bomb plot. The bomb, delivered by a woman friend of Guay just before the plane took off from Quebec, exploded 40 miles northeast of there.

Seven polio-wracked Eskimos were among the 20 persons killed in the crash of an R.C.A.F. amphibious plane aboard in Northern Manitoba's bushlands Aug. 21. The accident happened on a 600-mile flight from the Hudson's Bay port of Churchill to Winnipeg.

The remaining 13 dead included an R.C.A.F. crew of seven Jack Aveson, a Canadian Press reporter, and Constance Beattie, 15-year-old physiotherapist from Brockville, Ont.

MARMORA

C.W.L.

Marmora—The December meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. C. Cook, occupied the chair. The meeting opened as usual with the director, the Rev. J. A. O'Neill leading the prayers. Prayers were also offered for the late Mrs. Suffie O'Brien, who passed away since the last meeting, and one minute's silence was observed in her memory.

Following the roll call, and reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the correspondence was dealt with. It was decided to send a donation of $2.00 to the Sacred Heart program. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Carl Heath, and Social Welfare reports were given by Mrs. Charles Crawford, and Mrs. K. Donaldson.

Mrs. G. Forestell, and Miss Mary Brady, reported 12 visits had been made to the sick and shut-ins. Mrs. Bernard Hughes and Mrs. Jos. O'Neill volunteered for the month of January for visiting. The president thanked the members for their splendid response in the sale of the tickets on the comforter, and quilt in aid of the bazaar, and special thanks were tendered to Miss Mary Hughes, Mrs. A. Sheridan and Mrs. D. Gaffney, for their splendid efforts in making the bazaar a success.

It was decided to donate $10.00 for a worthy cause in the village. A discussion took place and it was decided the League would have an item objective the raising of funds to pay for new equipment, dishes, etc., for the League Hall. The president requested the members to resume the card parties in the Town Hall during the new year. The Christmas tree and social evening for the children of school on Friday evening was then discussed.

The Rev. Father O'Neill then addressed the meeting and thanked all the members for their co-operation and assistance towards the bazaar. He spoke of the ban on crime comics, and urged the mothers to supervise the reading of their children. He said it was the duty of the parents to place the right kind of literature in their hands. He also recommended the holding of study clubs for the winter months, and the president asked the group conveners to start the discussion clubs.

Mrs. A. Sheridan gave a reading entitled "A Christmas Legend" and Miss Mary Hughes gave a reading "Rebellious Christmas".

A duet was then sung by Mrs. W. Shannon and Mrs. H. Brady "The Cradle Song" and "Serenade of the Bells", with Miss Rita Deegan at the piano.

The meeting then adjourned and refreshments were served by the ladies of Group 3.

The next meeting will be held on the second Tuesday in January with Group No. 6 providing the refreshments.

Canadians Seem to be Gobbling More Oysters

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Dec. 17—(CP)—Whether they fry 'em, bake 'em or slide 'em down whole, Canadians seem to be gobbling more oysters.

Maritime oyster-fishermen, taking advantage of keen demand and scientific-breeding methods, are looking forward to a record season as they total up this year's yield.

Oysters, although a small money-earner when compared with such mass-market deep-sea varieties as cod, provide a ready source of income from the luxury markets.

In October, for instance, Nova Scotia oysters were worth $17,000. The catch of cod, most popular deep-sea fish, was valued at $344,000. But the margin is small and the latter heavy in handling and cod whereas the opposite is true for the oysterman.

New Brunswick is the biggest producer of the shellfish delicacy. Last year's 7,108,700-pound catch exceeded the previous year's total by 2,161,000 pounds and brought close to $350,000.

Prince Edward Island, whose Malpeque oysters are synonomous with top quality, is second. This year Island fishermen planned to ship nearly 10,000,000 high-grade oysters in barrels.

The price for a barrel varies with the quality. The fancy grade brings $20, choice $15, standard $11 and sub-standards $2.50.

Nova Scotia is the smallest producer. In 1946, the last year for which figures are available, oysters brought about $35,000 for fishermen in the province. This year the harvest is expected to be greater.

At Ellerhouse on the Prince Edward Island the Fisheries Research Board maintains the only planned oyster-fishing area in North America. The harvest this season from these beds was the result of five years' careful "farming". These beds produce a high-grade product from the natural beds.

In New Brunswick oyster fishing is concentrated mainly along the north shore. Here, as in the other two provinces, fishermen use a 300-year-old Indian method of harvesting from the sea bottom.

Incidentally, it is a misconception that oysters are poisonous during May, June, July and August, the months without the "R". Actually, they are lean and not tasty during this period when they are preparing to spawn or are spawning, later they fatten and are at their best in October and November.

THOMASBURG

Dr. S.R. Beatty And First Degree Team Confer Degrees

Thomasburg—On Friday evening, Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc, Independent Order of Oddfellows, accompanied his first degree team to visit Thomasburg I.O.O.F. Lodge, conferring the first degree on a number of candidates from the Thomasburg and Tweed Lodges.

Also present were, the District Deputy Grand Master, William Woods, and the District Deputy Grand recording secretary, James Jeffery of Tweed, who installed Brother Willard McTaggart into the office of recording secretary for Thomasburg Lodge to fill the vacancy which was caused by the sudden death of the late Brother John Smith.

At the conclusion a social hour was spent together.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

EATEN AT CHRISTMAS

In England it is customary to sit down to Christmas goose dinner, while on this continent Turkey is the thing. At one time the Wild Turkey, sole native American representative of the Pheasant family, inhabited the whole of eastern North America as far north as Maine and Southern Ontario. But because this bird thrived only in out of the way, wooded and swampy localities, it was gradually pushed south as civilization progressed. Now it can be found merely in a few sections of the southern States, and is rapidly becoming as extinct as the Passenger Pigeon.

We still have a Wild Turkey being discovered in Canada. Birds seen along Lake Erie are, however, half-breeds, or, to be more exact, mostly domestic with a trace of wild stock in them. They reported-from any place west of Southern Ontario are not due Turkeys at all, but belong to the cranes.

An adult male Wild Turkey is 4 feet long, the copper-bronze plumage being iridescent, head and neck unfeathered, with a small and purplish skin. On first sight, it appears to be dressed in shining armour, on account of the fact that each broad feather, margined in black has a square end. The bill is a yellowish-white tinged with red, though the scales are outlined with yellowish-white. An adult female is but 3 feet in length, her head and neck are pink or pale reddish, and her plumage lacks any metallic gloss.

Each gobbler may have as many as three wives. Mother Turkey, hides her nest on the ground in thick weeds or tangled shrubs. This precaution is taken because not only predatory animals, but even her own husband may destroy the eggs, which usually number 8 to 12 although sometimes there may be as many as 18. When the children are not progressing favourably their mother often seems to sense the fact, and will apply the cure. Leading them to an old ant hill, she teaches them how to take a dust bath to free themselves of vermin.

After the breeding season Wild Turkeys flock, sometimes using their sturdy legs, at other times taking to the air, as they travel about feeding on seeds, grasshoppers, insects and berries.

Diesel-Electrics Score 6-3 Win Over Gananoque Legion To Get Back in Senior B Race

By Geo. H. Carver
(Sports Editor)

Gananoque, Ont.—Belleville's Diesel-Electrics roared back into top spot in the Senior "B" hockey picture here last night when they defeated the Gananoque Legion team by a 6-3 score. The loss puts the Gan. crew firmly in the cellar.

Maybe that victory provides the answer to What's Wrong with the Belleville team. Perhaps the answer is a small rink and a natural ice, in any event,the small ice surface of the rink here did not have much effect on the performances of the Belleville crew which was smarting under the sting of two straight defeats in a row.

They adapted themselves to the compact ice surface and immediately took over what was the job at hand. They rammed home a pair in the first period, shoved in another after eleven minutes of the second period had elapsed and drove home the two more in the third before a desperate home team heaved two in the cords.

The Barrett-Wardaugh-Cousins line a potent stinking force of the Diesel-Electrics surged all over the homesters in an effort to get their plays clicking. But it was up to the canny crafty veteran Timmy Williams, Belleville sharpshooter, to start the scoring ball rolling, when he took Vern Goyer's pass midway through the first period. Flashing to the attack the Belleville line again swept through with Williams scoring his second goal in ten seconds, Goyer and Moher getting in on the play.

Fast and Clean

The play was fast and clean, with our Chappies rapidly adapting themselves to the sticky quality of natural ice. The Gan. crew led by Steele and Jackson were literally flying but were met by the stubborn checking of Williamson and Schreiber on the Belleville defence.

Don Barrett, minus his pals McDonald and Johnny Semark, raced through to extend the margin to 3-0, going into the second period. And then Gananoque struck back. Compeau, fed by Steele, who was one of the best players on the ice, rammed home the rubber to make the count 3-1. With seven minutes to go, Joe Nolan tobbed Semark's pass into the net, to make the score 4-1.

Timmy apparently adusting himself to conditions, lashed out a face-off, chased it to the goalmouth and before the netminder could say the traditional "uncle" the biscuit was in.

Jackie Wardhaugh, stymied by the natural ice, perhaps was a wee bit off the beam, but the speedy youngsters swept down ice three abreast to dunk the biscuit.

Midway through the third period, Gananoque lashed out with a heavy consistent attack. They peppered Le Fort from all angles and the gyrating Frenchie deserves comment. However Anderson ripped through the Belleville defence in the last minute of the game to score from Jackson, and, with ten seconds to go the same player again ripped the biscuit into the twine.

Williams the Sparkplug

Timmy Williams was the sparkplug of the Belleville offensive last night. True, perhaps he may have been worrying about things but he took time out to score three goals, two of them coming within ten seconds, and no assist. Barrett and Nolan were the other marksmen.

Anderson looked good from a goal-tending point of view, but Steele, and Jackson were definitely outstanding.

The teams:

Diesels-Electrics: Goal, Le Fort, defence,Schrieder, Williamson; centre, V. Goyer; wings, Williams, Day; subs, Woodman, Moher, Barrett, Wardhaugh Bastedo, J. Semark, Nolan.

Gananoque: Goal, MacDonald; defence, N. McCarney, V. Keyes; centre, R. Anderson; wings Steele, W. Jackson; subs, H. McCarney, Compeau, Tindall, Brown, Hamilton, LeClair, Fair, Harper

Soccer Enjoys Popularity in Spain This Year

By HENRY BUCKLEY

Madrid, Dec. 17 — (Reuters)—"El Futbol" or soccer to you—is enjoying unprecedented popularity in Spain this season.

About 1,000,000 Spaniards go to soccer league matches every Sunday and many hundreds of thousands more match local games outside the big leagues.

But the sidden and intense attention now being paid to the game, has not helped to improve the standard of play. Rather the contrary.

The great masses of new spectators know little about soccer technique. They have the simple, but persistent, idea that their home team should win. They like it to win fairly, if possible, but they want it to win anyway.

The result is an almost monotonous repetition each Sunday of home teams winning or drawing and the substitution of rough and tumble tactics for good play.

When one of the Sunday afternoon match, fans take with them their Mediterranean temperament — and referees and visiting teams are not left in doubt as to the extent of that temperament.

One well-known Castilian team, ably seconded by its public, only lost one match at home last year. A brilliant and well-staged rush by part of the crowds towards the pitch was usually sufficient to cool the ardor of the visiting forwards if they were tempted to shoot a goal when the final score was at stake.

Some scandals in the big cities are today comparable with those in other parts of the world. Madrid's new Chamartin Stadium can hold 100,000 comfortably and is usually full to capacity when the home team, Royal Madrid, has an interesting match on.

Pay is good as far as the professional clubs are concerned. A well-known player in a good first-division team will make 10,000 pesetas ($1,200) a year—"off the record." The National Federation rule is that no first division player shall have a monthly salary of more than 1,- 000 pesetas ($80) which is considerably less than a Madrid bus-driver earns.

1949 Review of Fishing, Hunting

A lot of things have happened during 1949, some of them good and some of them bad. Let's take a look at the high spots.

First—hats off to Cal Johnson. For many years his name has been high on the list of the nation's outdoor writers. His works have ever stood for sportsmanship and sound conservation.

What could be more fitting than to have Lady Luck smile on him this summer when he landed the world's record musky. This monster was taken on light casting tackle from LaCoeur Orellies, Wisconsin, on July 24th.

The big musky weighed 67 1-2 pounds and measured one-quarter inch over five feet. Incidentally, this fish added a little over three pounds to the record then existing. Congratulations, Cal!

More good news comes to us in the form of a two-dollar Duck Stamp. It took much argument and effort to get this bill by the legislators, but it is now a law and it provides much needed funds for the proper management of our wild fowl.

Many Stamps Sold

Of course there is no way of knowing how the advance in price will effect the sale of the new Duck Stamp. The 1948-49 issue set a new record at 2,127,528.

Here's hoping that the 1949-50 issue will beat up its own record. Goodness knows that the Fish and Wildlife Service can put the increased revenue to good use.

Offsetting this victory somewhat is the President's veto of the Dingell-Johnson Bill. This bill, as you no doubt know, is designed to do for fishing what the Pittman-Robertson Act has done for shooting.

President Truman's veto of this bill nullifies a tremendous amount of effort on the part of our hard working conservationists. His reason? Let me quote, in part, from his own explanation.

"It is believed," he says "that the 'ear marking' of Federal tax revenues, as provided by the bill, constitutes undesirable tax and fiscal policy."

Meanwhile the budget of many millions in support of the activities of the U.S. Army Engineer Corps stand approved. This makes dismal reading.

Bill Not Dead Yet

However, the advocates of the Dingell-Johnson Bill tell us that the measure is far from dead. Latest news from Washington indicates a strong likelihood that the bill will be passed by the legislature over the President's veto. Here's hoping.

In the world of fishing, "spinning" tackle seems to be making tremendous strides. To some of us, this is a regrettable situation.

A spinning outfit enables a dub angler to cast a spinning lure, such as a spoon, phantom minnow or live bait, at distances great enough to enable said dub to take trout from wide waters—something he could not do with more orthodox fly-rod or casting rod tackle. In short, it places a premium on ignorance.

Fortunately there is a growing public resentment against this sort of endless and tasteless slaughter of the angling clubs with which most of the towns and some of the state-controlled streams have barred spinning rigs from their waters.

While some excellent anglers and sportsmen do use spinning tackle, its main appeal seems to be to the meat fishermen, the get-your-limit boys. My suggestion is that they discredit mechanical methods and learn how to fish if they wish to get the most fun out of fishing.

Bait Casting Favorite

One of the outdoor magazines conducted a wide poll that turned up some interesting figures. Bait casting tops the list with 87 per cent; fly fishing comes next with 60 per cent (a healthy sign) and still-fising limps along in third place with 37 per cent.

Bass fishing is the most popular—53 per cent. Panfish is next with 66 per cent and trout fishing come third with 52 per cent.

The over-all tendency is toward artificial lures, away from live bait, with a pronounced leaning toward lighter tackle.

Our State, one of our most beautiful national monuments, is still being sniped at by private interests. Part of the underlying plan, of course, is to establish the way toward the erection of summer homes and camps on the shores of Jackson Lake.

The abolishment of the present status of this unspoiled area would accomplish nothing destructive. It would merely leave the way clear for private exploitation of one of the nation's beauty spots.

The forces arrayed against the conservationists in the fight are strong. They include grazing, oil and lumbering interests who have strong political affiliations.

So far the conservationists have been victorious. We hope that they can continue to be. We have too few unspoiled areas now, without cutting down the list.

Mexico Exonerated

For a while there was a great to-do about the "Mexican duck slaughter." Investigations have shown, however, that fewer ducks are killed annually in Mexico, legally or illegally, than fall to our guns on the first day of the season in the United States.

The newly-formed Northwest Wildlife Council has loaded its guns and settled down to finish fight to defeat the proposed Columbia River Authority. The proposal would place the wildlife and the resources of water, range and forests upon which they depend entirely, in the hands of a three-man political bureau. Their scope would take in seven Northwest states.

It seems to us that it would be far wiser to equip our present agencies with adequate funds rather than to establish new authorities with absolute powers. The management of wildlife and natural resources is a job for trained men, not for political appointees.

On the brighter side, Wisconsin is attempting introduction of two new species of game birds—the Capercaillie and the Black Cock.

These two large European grouse would, if established, do for our woodland shooting what the ringneck pheasant has done for our open-field shooting.

Demand Too Great

Several of our native species, notably the prairie chicken and the ruffed grouse, are having difficulty in holding their own against the advance of civilization. Also, gun pressure is so increasingly heavy that the demand on our game supply overbalances the supply itself. New species, which would utilize cover that is now sparsely populated would certainly make for improved conditions in the field. We wish Wisconsin luck.

Again the reminder that the Solomac Tables will point the way to the best in sport each day of the year, we wish you, one and all, a Merry Christmas; and for 1950, tight lines and good shooting.

WOULD-BE CHRISTMAS TREE THIEVES BEST ABLE TO BUY THEM

Edmonton, Dec. 17 (CP) — Parks department patrolman guarding the city's Christmas trees reported Friday that most would-be tree thieves have turned out to be citizens who could best afford to buy them. "It's enough to rock one's faith in the Christmas spirit," said one patrolman.

Gordon Figures On Regular Work With the Braves

By The Canadian Press

Slugging Sid Gordon, a native New Yorker, is not unhappy about the trades which sent him from the Giants to Boston Braves."

A chance for regular work in left field with the Braves overshadows the shift out of the congenial surroundings of his home town, figures Gordon.

The 31-year-old clouter has shuttled back and forth from the outfield to third base in his nine years with the Giants. Despite the fact that he had to fight for a regular berth each spring, Gordon's extra-base blows made him a highly-paid athlete.

Sid is believed to have received close to $25,000 for last year's work. He hit .284 in 141 games, belted 26 homers and drove in 90 runs.

Gordon got along with manager Billy Burnett and owner Horace Stoneham and leaves the polo grounds with pleasant memories. But he expects to do better in Boston with regular status.

The civic parks department of Toronto will be asked to prepare estimates on the cost of installing artificial ice rinks in the big automotive building at the Canadian National Exhibition here.

Mayor Hiram McCallum, director Elwood Hughes of the C. N. E. and Conn Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Friday inspected the building in Exhibition Park and figured four rinks could be installed. It would ease the pressure on existing artificial ice arenas in Toronto.

At Ann Arbor, Mich., a tight Toronto defence lasted in the final five minutes Friday night and enabled University of Michigan to chalk up a 9-1 hockey victory. The real game was played in the final period when both teams came alive in a rough scoring display that resulted in nine penalties and all the scoring.

The University of Buffalo scored an easy 89-38 basketball victory over the University of Toronto at Buffalo Friday night, with the second team going most of the way. Toronto was held to one field goal and three free throws during the first half as Buffalo rolled to a 25-4 lead. Jack Chalmers paced the winners with 16 points. Johnny Brathwaite had nine for Toronto.

Julius Schroeder, manager of the Berkeley Iceland, home ice of Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, said at Oakland Friday the Oaks are being disbanded. Schroeder said Eddie Shore, owner of the Oaks, confirms that the club will fol in a telephone conversation from Vancouver. The disbanding will take place after tonight's game at h ome, Schroeder said.

At Havana, Cary Middlecoff, United States open golf champion from Ormond Beach, Fla., led 29 U.S. pro Friday in the $10,000 Havana pro-amateur invitational tournament, but the tenor of Melvin (Chick) Harbert, Detroit, and Havana amateur Pedro Menocal led in the best ball scores with 112. Middlecoff shot a five under par 67 to raise his total individual score in 36 holes to 133.

Net profits of the 1948 olympics held in London will total about £15,000 ($46,500). Lord Burghley, chairman of the British Olympic Organizing Committee, said the money will be used to equip and send a British team to the 1952 olympic games at Helsinki.

Senators Won't Throw in Hurler In Yankee Deal

Washington, Dec. 17 —(AP)— A Yankee demand that Washington Senators throw in promising rookie pitcher Dick Welk Friday stalled the long negotiations with the New York club over a proposed player swap.

Washington president Clark Griffith said that he and Yankee general manager George Weiss conferred at length over the telephone but accomplished nothing.

"We just couldn't get together Friday," he said, "but we'll continue to talk but I wouldn't be too surprised if the deal fell through."

Welk, it was learned, is insisting that Welk be coupled with Senator first baseman Eddie Robinson in the three-for-two deal which would bring to the Senators Dick Kryhoski, Scuffy Slirnweiss and two New York hurlers — Don Johnson and Duane Pillette.

Griffith is resolute in his determination to keep Welk. He has repeatedly stated that Welk is neither for sale or on the trading block.

Young Prospect Holds Decision Over Beau Jack

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)— Tuzo Portugues, a crude young prospect from Costa Rica, holds a split decision win over Beau Jack today but the International Boxing Club is more concerned with the impressive showing of New York's Paddy Young and Ernie Durando of Bayonne, N.J., in preliminary knockout victories.

Paddy applied the kayo powder in 1:34 of the sixth round with a left-right-left flurry that chilled the New Englander. Young weighed 155 1-4 to 152 for Dimartino.

Durando, New Jersey's version of Rocky Graziano scored his 18th knockout victory at 28 pro fights by stopping Jimmy Sanders of Pittsburgh in 1:44 of the second. Sanders went down twice for counts of five, Durando weighed 153 1-4 Sanders 150 1-4.

Portugues outlasted Jack, a shell of the former lightweight champion, to take a split verdict in the main 10 before a crowd of 7,281 who paid $20,382. Condition told the story for 31-year-old Portugues over the 28-year-old former shoe shineboy from Augusta, Ga.

Mair, McCormack Pace Marlboros To 7-1 Triumph

(By The Canadian Press)

Johnny McCormack and Scotty Mair, rookie centre duo, holds a scoring department of the Senior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association, each potted two goals and a pair of assists last night to pace Toronto Marlboros to a 7-1 triumph over third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

In another senior game last night, Hamilton Tigers were pushed deeper into the cellar by absorbing a 4-4 shellacking at the hands of Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen. In two junior contests, Owen Sound Bluewings moved alone into fourth place by gaining a single point in the 3-3 tie with Galt Black Hawks and St. Michael's College Majors bowed to the Stratford Kroehler 6-3.

At Toronto, the Dukes took a 3-1 lead in the first period, rap it to 4-1 in the middle session and clinched it with two more in the final frame. Owen Sound's single tally came in the two minute spell off the side of Howie Beaudry.

Jack Shewchuck rapped in the first tally of the night in the Waterloo arena, scoring after only 24 seconds of the first period had elapsed to give the home club Dutchmen a 1-0 lead.

Mickey Roth increased the Twin-City lead to 2-0 with the only score of the middle period blasting home Billy Flick's pass at 11:54.

Johnny Blute and Billy Flick made it 4-0 in the finale before Hamilton's Max Taylor broke the goose egg with less than five minutes remaining in the contest.

Galt Black Hawks coloured the hot Biltmores 2-1 in the opening frame of their game. Bronco Horvath and Ken Green pulling the trigger for the visiting and Dr. Bellringer supplying the tally for the homesters.

Teams Split Tallies

The teams split tallies in the second stanza as Jack Green punching in the third Galt goal and Steve Brklacich doing the honors for the Biltmores.

Guelph put the teams on even terms with seven minutes remaining in the game, Ron Plant sinking their third counter to send the contest into overtime. The clubs played a scoreless 10-minutes of overtime play for the resultant split in points.

Stratford and St. Michael's played the first period on even terms, each club clicking for a single. Doug Williams pulled the trigger for the homesters, Red Ingoldsby supplying the answer for the collegians.

Stratford pulled ahead in the middle frame, outscoring the Irish 2-1. Jim Fernfuse was the star of the piece, rapping in both tallies. Leo Laine was the only collegian to flash the red light behind Boss Hurley, in the nets for Stratford.

The Kroehlers continued the rampage in the final frame, counting three times and holding the Toronto crew to a single. Aurey Dunnette, Doug French and Bibber O'Hearn were the marksmen for the host club while Willy Marshall collected the third St. Michael's score.

Five games are carded for today. In the only senior encounter Marlboros play a return engagement at Owen Sound and on the junior slate, Stratford play at St Michael's, Windsor take on Marlboros, Barrie travel to Orillia and Guelph tackle the Black Hawks at Galt.

Okay, we'll tell you. It was Dave Koslo of New York Giants, and supporting the statements are the league's official averages announced today.

Koslo, a lefthander, posted the lowest earned-run average of any pitcher in the league who worked 10 or more complete games. His figure of 2.50 for each nine-inning stint gave him a clear advantage over his closest rival, Howie Pollet of St. Louis Cardinals, with 2.77.

Never mind that in games won and lost (11-14) the Giant's fourth paw ranked no higher than No. 21 among his league contemporaries.

In percentage of games won and lost Elwin (Preacher) Roe of Brooklyn was on top with a final mark of 15-6 for .714. Pollet again stood second with 20-9 .690.

Looking at it from still another viewpoint, Warren Spahn, Boston's classy southpaw, won the most games 221, But he dropped 14. Spahn also completed the most games, 29, pitched 315 more innings and led the league in strikeouts.

Newcombe, Brooklyn's big negro righthander who won the "rookie of the year" award, placed third in winning percentage with his 17-8 and was seventh in effectiveness with an E.R., of 3.17. He also tied with three others, including Pollet for pitching the most shutouts, five.

Ken Heintzelman, Phillie veteran, enjoyed the longest winning streak, nine games, and Bob the most consecutive defeats, also nine.

Johnny Sain, who helped pitch Boston Braves to the '48 pennant, suffered the most disastrous reversal of form, allowing the most runs and the most earned runs 128 and 102 respectively, finishing with a won and lost of 10-17.

The St. Louis staff led in effectiveness with an earned run mark of 3.44 a game, followed by Brooklyn 3.80 and New York 3.82.

Crowded Holiday Schedule Gets Rolling in NHL

A second glance at that 70-game National Hockey League schedule might bring a few gulps from both players and coaches.

The injury bugaboo is a big factor in the extended campaign. All six teams, replete with injuries, move into high gear for a six-game schedule this weekend, but a lot of them will be limping. They've just passed the one-third mark of the schedule, which had ten extra games tacked on this season.

Montreal Canadiens have taken the brunt of those injuries but they're still good enough to hold down second place, eight points behind the leading Detroit Red Wings.

It may show this weekend when they clash with the Wings and Boston Bruins. They'll be without the services of Elmer Lach, a key man when the Montrealers beat Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday. Lach suffered a cut foot in the game. Also out will be Glen Harmon and Hal Laycoe.

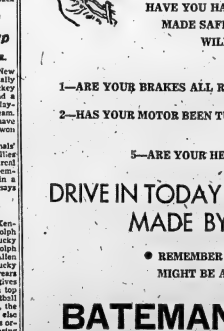
Sports Roundup



By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 17. (AP)—New York Rangers, who traditionally play a Christmas night hockey game, have a reputation (and a record) for knocking the visiting Saints to the visiting team. In 17 holiday games they have lost only once and have won eight by shutouts.

Eddie Kazak, the Cardinals' third baseman, picks the Phillies as the National League's real tough team next year. "I second like we never would win a game from them last season," says Eddie.

Despite opinions to the contrary, bridge players are human. As such they are subject to errors. A common fault among them is the interpretation of what constitutes a biddable suit.

There is one thing every bridge player should know in advance. Each of the four players is entitled to one fourth of the contents of a pack. He may get less or more. But he is entitled to a fourth.

This is something he should know before he sits down at the table; before he picks up any hand; before he even thinks of what kind of cards he has; before he even looks at his hand.

The bidding words are used for telling partner of holdings in excess of one fourth. Thus, the mention of a suit is an admission of holding more than one fourth in that suit.

What is one fourth of a suit? A suit contains 13 cards. Among them are four face cards. This means that each player is entitled to three of the cards, one of which is a face; a pass and two others.

The mention (bid) of a suit, therefore, admits having more than three cards in it; that is four (or more). It also admits having more than one face; that is, two (or more).

So, the basic need for the first bid in any suit is four cards, with two faces. With these basic needs it should be mentioned. It is then technically known as a biddable suit.

Each face is considered equal to two small cards for making a suit biddable. Thus, five cards has need for only one face; no face is needed with six cards; to be biddable.

♠ A Q 7 4
♥ K 10 4 3
♦ None
♣ A 7 5 3 2

The spade and club suits are biddable; enough faces for their length. The heart suit is not. It lacks a face. You lose face if you bid a suit that is not biddable.

AT THE BELLE — Bruce Bennett and Geraldine Brooks are two of the leading stars in the "Younger Brother" now playing at the Belle Theatre. Other stars include Wayne Morris, Janis Paige and Robt. Hutton.

AT THE CAPITOL — Madeleine Carroll co-stars with Brian Aherne and Louis Hayward in "My Own True Love," Leo Mc-Carey's drama of an Edward Small production, opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre. Also the same program, "International Lady," starring George Brent, Ilona Massey and Basil Rathbone.

In Manhattan:

'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes' Taking Broadway by Storm

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York Dec. 17 (CP)— A tall, middy-built blonde actress is the latest toast of Broadway. She is saucer-eyed Carol Channing, who tops six feet.

As unfolded at the Ziegfeld theatre, it proves a highly diverting release of the saga of Lorelei Lee of Little Rock, Ark., whose adventures brought author Anita Loos the spotlight of fame in the 1920s. Subsequently her best-selling novel was made into a straight play.

Now Miss Loos and Joseph Fields have collaborated to turn out the story in musical form with lively music by Jules Styne and some entertaining lyrics by Leo Robin. Such expert hands as director John C. Wilson and dance arranger Agnes de Mille contributed to the production and the results afford a happy, if nostalgic whiff of the 1920s decade that followed the First World War.

One of Miss Channings main assets in the musical is her ability to look dumb. Another is her voice, at times throaty, at times piping. And she minces across the stage in a manner so grotesque that it is laughable in itself.

Canadian Dancers

The Volkoff Canadian Ballet, a Toronto group, will be seen in New York tonight in a production of a ballet called "Red Ear of Corn," first produced at the Canadian ballet festival. Appearing on the same program will be the Ruth Sorel dance group of Montreal. Both are performing at the Choreographers' Workshop in their first appearance in the United States.

Milestones

Fay Kanin's play "Goodbye, My Fancy," in which Madeline Carroll and Ann Harding respectively starred, bowed out Saturday after 446 performances. Closing the same night was the double bill of Terence Rattigan plays, "The Browning Version" and "A Harlequinade," with Maurice Evans and Edna Best.

OPENS NEW HOSPITAL

Brampton, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario, opening a new $335,000 addition to the Brampton General Hospital Friday, said that since the Ontario government in 1947 began contributing so much per bed towards new hospital construction, it has approved grants totalling $10,652,000 for this purpose.

The government, in addition, has provided maintenance grants, amounting this year to $6,500,000 compared with $967,155 in 1943, which was Mr. Frost's first year as provincial treasurer.

Labor Minister Says Dock Strike Communist Plan

Valuable Exports Lost That Never Can be Made up

London, Dec. 17 (CP)—A "cold and deliberate" Communist plan cooked up months ahead of time caused last Spring's serious British dock strikes, Labor Minister George Isaacs said Friday.

In a long report on the strikes, Isaacs said the British disputes began after collapse of a similar strike in Canada. He said the British action was planned in Canada even before the Canadian deep-sea dispute began.

(The strike of the Canadian Seamen's Union originally began March 31 after Canadian east-coast ship owners signed contracts with the rival seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.).—The C.S.U. was affiliated before the strike with the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, but was expelled by that parent body during the strike.

(The Canadian walkout came to an official end in mid-October, although it had lost much of its effectiveness in preceding weeks.

By then most Canadian shipowners had signed with the S.I.U.)

Isaacs said the British strikes cost 400,000 man days of labor, laid up much British shipping for weeks, brought on a proclamation of a national emergency and use of troops to unload ships.

Because of the strike "valuable exports were lost that can never be made up and the setback to our economic recovery program was severe," He added:

"A review of the circumstances in which these strikes started and spread makes it clear that preparations for the strikes began as early as the latter part of last year, although the first strike did not take place until May of this year.

"Evidence shows that there was throughout a cold and deliberate plan and that the unofficial leaders were completely indifferent to the loss and suffering that might result.

"They had one aim and one aim only—to restore the fortunes of the Communist-dominated Canadian Seamen's Union."

ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP) — Iris Bryan, winner of $500 in the Irish Sweepstakes, will never see the "happiest Christmas of her life. The 33-year-old woman was found Thursday night, accidentally drowned in her bathtub.

Friends said the girl had planned special gifts for employees at the department store where she worked.

HEAVY SNOW PREDICTED

Hamilton, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Motorists are in for a tough time when the winter season really sets in, says Mrs. Betty Eby, 65-year-old resident of the Six Nations Indian Reserve Mrs. Eby, whose friends claim she has an uncanny way of forecasting the weather, recently said the 1948-50 winter would be featured by heavy snowstorms. She bases her predictions, among other things, on the fact hickory nut harvest was extremely good this year.

Handful of Peers See Ceremony Curbing Powers

London, Dec. 15 (Reuters) — Only a handful of peers attended the House of Lords Friday to watch a ceremony by which a parliament act, curbing the upper chamber's powers, became law.

As a Royal Commission gave the Royal assent to the act, Lord Salisbury, leader of the opposition, who had put up a bitter but unavailing fight against it, sat alone on the front opposition bench, hands in pockets and eyes on the floor.

The parliament act reduces from two years to one the powers of the House of Lords to hold up legislation passed by Commons. In the future, at the end of a year, such legislation may be passed into law without the sanction of the House of Lords.

MASKED GUNMEN LIE IN WAIT FOR COUPLE OF $15

Orillia, Dec. 17 (CP) — Two masked gunmen lying in wait for the return of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Martelle at their farm home three miles north of here, robbed the couple of $15, Police said one of the bandits ripped the telephone off the wall and ransacked the house while the other covered the couple with a revolver.

Claims Santa Idea 'Bad Psychology, Worse Theology'

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)— Is the jolly old man with the beard and the little round belly stealing the Christmas show from the Babe in the manger?

The Catholic Review says yes. And the Review — official publication of the Roman Catholic Archdioceses of Washington and Baltimore — thinks it's about time Santa Claus was booted off the stage.

"Our Santa has become a rival of the Holy Child, often enough to the complete exclusion of the latter from any place in the minds of children who learn about the reindeer but have never heard of the ox and the ass," says an editorial published Friday in the Review's Christmas issue. The editorial was captioned "Unholy fraud."

It adds that "the whole Santa idea is bad psychology and bad pedagogy," "worse than worse theology."

The editorial was written by the Review's editor-in-chief, Rev. John Sinnott Martin.

It describes Santa as "a foolish fiction." It urges "those who keep the Christ in Christmas, or at least are willing to give him back the place he deserves on His birthday" to leave Santa to those who have nothing better.

"Santa the Saint has been lost in Santa the sugar daddy," it adds. "Children are to be good or they won't get paid with presents — the spoiling of thoroughly un-Christian morality."

The Review sees a danger to respect for parental authority in the idea when junior first is told that the man with the bag is only daddy dressed up.

Plane With 17 Persons Aboard Reported Overdue

The plane left here at 5.30 A.M. for Merida by way of Veracruz, where it should have arrived at 6.30 A.M.

It was reported near Nautla, 80 miles north of Veracruz on the Gulf coast, at 6.05 A.M.

Says Government Should Compensate For Inconvenience

Quebec, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Friday the Quebec government feels federal authorities should "compensate financially" parties that have suffered inconvenience and damages" due to federal rent control decisions.

The Quebec premier expressed the view when he issued a newspaper item a copy of a telegram in reply to one from Finance Minister Abbott Thursday. Premier Duplessis, reading his message to Mr. Abbott, noted the following excerpt:

"In the present circumstances we believe it the duty of the federal authorities to make up and compensate the injured parties financially for inconveniences and damages federal decisions and contraditions have imposed on them."

START DEEP-CUT WORK ON SUBWAY

Toronto, Dec. 17 — (CP)—Another stage in construction of the Yonge Street subway, the deepest line opened Thursday when power shovels working 17 feet below Yonge Street started on deep-cut work. Steam-shovels and laborers earlier had excavated working room for the big cutters, while the street was torn up.

TH THURLOW

4th Thurlow — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills, Bird, Ida, were Sunday guests at the Cooley and Trevethon home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Martin attended the annual Convention of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association on Tuesday and Wednesday in the Royal Connaught Hotel, Hamilton. They also spent Thursday and Friday visiting relatives in Mount Hope, and Toronto.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

Unfortunately Gerald and she had never been great pals. His tastes were very different from hers. She liked to stay home with her mother and bury herself with the various little duties that presented themselves. Gerald spent as little time as possible at home, and when he was there, there always seemed to be an air of restlessness in the home. He didn't care much for reading except the sporting papers. Her friends had little appeal for him and he had a deep-rooted hatred against Terry.

But now that Gerald was in trouble Mary felt a new interest in this brother of hers. He was all she had and she must stand by him. She had been so sure that he was doing well. He had told her he had gotten a raise, and now—Mary's cheeks flamed crimson with the shame of it all —he had been stealing money right along to play the races.

As Mary's thought flew back to childhood days she wondered when they had first grown apart. Then she remembered how even as small children their ideals had been different. Gerald had loved to play tricks on her friends. At first his mother had laughed lightly at his fun, but later she realized her mistakes and tried to give him better ideas, knowing well a different code would be demanded when he grew up.

Gathering the weeds into her basket Mary pulled off her gloves and sat down on a rustic bench. Her cheeks blanched as she thought of her aunt and what this disgrace might mean. Terry had laughed when she had suggested that Gerald might cable her for funds. Whatever would Aunt Ida do in such emergency. Then she remembered he had told her that some of Gerald's friends had gone bail for him for, with a certain set of wealthy young men about town, Gerald was very popular.

"Get down, Sandy, get down," exclaimed a gentle voice while the scampering paws of a collie scratched along the gravel path.

Mary looked up. Terry's mother was coming towards her. One more a dusky flame rose on Mary's cheeks. To think that her brother's doings might cast their blighting shadow on this sweet woman who had been a real mother to her. Tears rose to her eyes as she realized what this might mean, not only to his mother but even to Terry.

"Oh, Mary dear, I've been looking for you everywhere," she said as she seated herself beside her.

Mary was wiping the tears from her eyes. "Now Mary, my child, you mustn't cry. You'll spoil your pretty eyes."

"Oh, but it's so awful," she sobbed. "Such a disgrace to you and everyone." Once more tears fell fast. .

Putting her arm about her, Mrs. Kelly whispered softly, "we must make the best of it. Perhaps after all your brother has something to say that will change the complexion of things. Anyway, Mary, remember it's none of your doing and you're not responsible."

"But the disgrace and when it gets into the papers. Oh, why didn't I go with aunt Margaret, then you'd have been saved from this."

"Now, Mary, we're not going to think of things like that. You know Terry would never have been happy without you. Of course I'm sorry for your brother. It's too bad he's been such a foolish boy. But you must not let it worry you. I suppose he's glad to think that you are away now."

Meanwhile in New York, Terry had been unsparing in his efforts on Gerald's behalf. As five o'clock approached he walked towards that window in his office which faced the river. Mary had taken the news about her brother better than he hoped. Of course he had not revealed the worst features of the case, but now as he considered the events of the day he realized that, despite all he could do—and he had not spared himself in interviewing fellow politicians—he realized the outlook for Gerald Lambert was decidedly dark. As he closed his desk for the night and put some papers in its drawers he acknowledged that the law would have to take its course.

"The trip seems to be agreeing with your niece," remarked Harry Harper one afternoon as he chatted with Miss Whiting.

"You think she looks better," said there was an eager note in her voice.

"Yes, indeed. She seemed rather fragile at first, although she assured me she's really never had a day's sickness. Well, I'm a great advocate of a sea voyage. You see there's simply no demand on board ship for nerve. Keep your energy, unless you happen to be one of those old fiends who play all night and day," continued Harry Harper," as his eyes involuntarily turned towards the magnificent pearls which Miss Whiting wore.

"I think this is doing us all good and then it's rather nice to have little breaks now and ashore in these strange lands. I understand you have travelled a great deal."

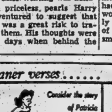
"I have done quite a bit in recent years. I'm headed for South Africa now. Of course I might have taken a more direct route but I wanted to revisit some of the spots I used to know so well and the opportunity to break your voyage at any point on this cruise appealed to me. Are you going to have a look at the 'Durk Continent!' That's a misnomer now for it's completely changed since it earned that name."

"We're going to Cairo and a few nearby points."

"Oh, but when you're over on this side of the world, why don't you spend a week or so in South Africa? I'm sure I'd be delighted to have you visit my ranch in the Transvaal. There are diamond mines not so far away, but perhaps you're not so interested in these schnillating jewels?"

"I can't say that I am, Pearls are my favorite, but if we should decide to go farther afield in Africa perhaps I might find that even diamonds have some romance about them." Miss Whiting's fingers were toying with her pearls.

"Oh, there's romance about them all right," said Harry Harper. "It may not be just the same as the legends that one hears about pearls, but it's there also even if mining diamonds is a regular business proposition like most other things nowadays. However if you come to South Africa I can assure you I'll be glad to have you visit at the ranch, and I know I can make arrangements for you to learn a bit more about the ways in which these precious jewels are mined."



Intrigued by the careless way in which Miss Whiting was handling her priceless pearls Harry Harper ventured to suggest that surely it was a great risk to travel with them. His thoughts were on other days when behind the barred doors of his office he had learned of the risks that men and women will run for the possession of these baubles.

"Oh people are always warning me to be careful, but I've never had a thing stolen. Besides who would want these? They are really too well-known to be disposed of readily," and Miss Whiting smiled.

Russia Building 3 Rocket-Firing Battleships Report

Expect Fleet of 750 To 1,000 Subs by 1951

By JOHN F. RODERICK

London, Dec. 19. (AP)—While Britain and the United States are scrapping or mothballing many of their warships, Russia is reported to be building up her naval strength with rocket-firing battleships and long-range submarines.

Jane's fighting ships, the authoritative naval publication, said the Russians are believed building three ultra-modern, and rockets. Two others were said to be in the blueprint stage, possibly in the shipyard stocks.

Russia already is known to possess two battleships.

The Soviet Union also envisages, as part of its five-year naval building program, a fleet of from 750 to 1,000 long-range submarines by 1951, Jane's said Work Day and Night

Shipyards throughout the U.S.S.R. and in the Soviet zone of Germany were reported working day and night in three shifts turning out smaller war vessels such as motor-torpedo boats and mine sweepers. Jane's, regarded as the last word on the world's navies, emphasized that its information on Russia was presented "with all due reserve."

The new figured were included in Jane's 1949-50 edition which appeared today.

Jane's said it did not believe the Reds had either guns, gun turrets or the technicians to achieve their goal of 1,000 subs by the end of 1951.

Submarine construction, it said, had been given special priority. A large number of new submarines of the German type—with high submerged speed and long ranges—were scheduled for delivery during 1949-50.

Now Have 360 Subs

Jane's estimated that Russia now has some 360 submarines of all classes, most of them modified German ones.

The three new battleships were said to be the Sovietski Soyuz, the Sovietskaia Belorussia and the Strana Sovietov.

Jane's said there were varying reports of the Sovietski Soyuz. One said that the ship, whose hull was laid down in 1939 at Leningrad, was so badly damaged during the war that construction had to be held up and it still was not completed. A shortage of material in Russia was said to preclude its early completion.

FRIENDS UNABLE TO SHED LIGHT ON CABBIE'S DEATH

Police Do Not Dismiss Theory Vendetta Linked With Killing

Welland, Dec. 19 (CP)— Police investigating the bludgeon-killing of cab driver Sam Delibasich were told today that, for the last few years, the cabbie had lived in constant fear of being slain.

The 47-year-old operator of a one-car taxi business used to rave about other cabbies being stacked and killed by passengers and he often remarked to friends that he dreaded meeting with a similar fate, Delibasich, part owner of the Anglo-American hotel in Fort Erie, was reputed to carry large bankrolls in his pockets.

When Delibasich, former resident of Timmins and Kirkland Lake, was found slain Saturday forenoon, the wallet he usually carried was missing. In his pockets police found a little more than $11 in silver, mostly in denominations of 25 and 50 cents.

An autopsy performed by Dr Lorne Whitaker of St. Catharines provincial pathologist, showed death due to a fractured skull, with the fracture running right across the back of the head at the skull base. The man's left ear had been split open. Knuckles of both hands were skinned and cut, perhaps indicating that the powerfully built Delibasich fought until his attackers beat him to the ground.

While not entirely dismissing a theory that a vendetta carried to Canada from the man's native Yugoslavia was linked with the killing, police said they looked upon the idea as "far-fetched."

Brother Beaten to Death

Friends of the slain man recalled that Delibasich's brother was beaten to death by a gang in Yugoslavia in 1945 and expressed the belief that the men who have come to Canada from Yugoslavia since the end of the (Second World) War might have been responsible. These friends also claimed that many local residents of Yugoslavian origin have been terrified by newly-arrived immigrants but police in the district said they had no reports of such incidents.

Another theory is that Delibasich, whose battered and bruised body was found in a field near here Saturday by rabbit hunters, was slain by persons bent on robbing him, possibly passengers he had cab. He was said to have been in the habit of carrying

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Snow also—although mostly—and mild weather continues over Southern Ontario colder air from the Hudson Bay region is expected to move southward. It is not expected to reach the Lower Lake regions but rather will move eastward into Quebec.

A disturbance over the Rockies is moving eastward causing an extensive snow, area over the prairies. The snow will spread to Northwestern Ontario tonight and over central and northern sections of the province on Tuesday. Some freezing rain or rain is likely in Central Ontario Tuesday afternoon.

BELL TELEPHONE DENIED RATE RAISE TILL MARCH

Applied for 10 P.C. Temporary Increase

Ottawa, Dec. 19 — (CP) — The board of transport commissioners ruled today that it will not consider an application for temporary increases in telephone rates in Ontario and Quebec before next March.

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada had applied for a 10-per-cent temporary increase in long-distance phone rates, pending hearings by the board on its application for increases averaging 30 per cent for most types of service.

The application for a temporary boost was opposed by several municipalities.

After a brief recess, the board ruled it would not hear the temporary application at once. It declared it will hear the main application next March and at that time will consider granting a temporary increase if it appears that the hearing on the main application will be protracted.

Shipping Centres, Montreal, St. Catharines, Quebec, Hamilton and London all protested today against the company being allowed to proceed with the temporary application.

Coal Barrow Money

For Toronto, F. A. A. Campbell declared that city did not feel Bell was in such a weak position that it could not get money by other means than a rate increase.

The city of Toronto had been considering raising money from the banks this year, and the phone company could do the same.

Also, Mr. Campbell said, the commission should have come to the board long before it did if it needed money. He felt the subscribers should not be put in the position of paying increased rates until the case has had been heard.

Claude Choquette, representing Montreal, declared it was "arbitrary and unjust" for Bell to ask for temporary increases without first submitting a complete case.

The company, he said, "could have obtained "many millions" of dollars by just refrequging its phone classifications as it had authority to do. It had shown no consideration for the 40 per cent or disobedience of a 1927 order of the board in this respect."

Can't Afford To Wait

John B. Cartwright, counsel for the company, said the application for interim relief had been made necessary by the company's financial position was such that it could not afford to wait. A shortage of material in Russia was said to preclude its early completion.

Brightly Lit Christmas Tree Will Bring Yuletide Cheer to Army Signal Post

Ottawa, Dec. 19. (CP)— Ogoto the Eskimo didn't understand why the four white men offered him a pack of cigarets and as much tea as he could drink for bringing them a green Spruce tree.

But he went for it, carefully stripping off all the bark and branches before delivering it. He didn't understand, either, when they laughed and told him to get another one, and not to strip it.

Ogoto will find out what it's all about in another six days when he sees the tree, sparkling with decorated, and a guest at Christmas dinner at the lonely Canadian Army Signals Station at Rendezvous Island on the north-west of Churchill, Man.

Letters and army headquarters indicate Christmas at other stations of the army's communications network in the Northwest Territories probably won't be as lonely. Rendezvous Lake is the newest of the chain—and the most isolated. It was built last summer after, equipment and material was freighted in by tractor-train and during the winter from Churchill.

At Mayo, Yukon Territory, for example, residents of the tiny community will help the signalmen celebrate 30 miles to the north of Whitehorse and the Alaska Highway.

Station Chak, the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals Station at Aklavik, N.W.T., near the mouth of the Mackenzie River, will broadcast Christmas carols and messages by trappers, traders and Eskimos to the lonely areas of the Mackenzie delta.

But Ennadai Lake probably will be the most unusual Christmas of the group.

Ogoto and about nine other Eskimos in the district are going to brate with the corporal and the three other signalmen at the station—Charles Sweeney of Quebec, England, Jim Pitre of Bathurst, N.B., and Bob Cotton, of Nipawin, Sask.

Wrote Cpl. Joe Macalaue of Glace Bay, N.S., "Well, may perhaps, at this time, be forgiven a nostalgic look for a glimpse of the places and people we love. but still, in full measure, we share with each other, and our humble guests, many priceless gifts, not the least among these being peace, good fellowship and earned good will."

Which in letter and life, the very essence of Christmas."

Four Youths Grab $1,000 In Burford Bank Hold-up

Burford, Dec. 19 (CP) — Four armed youths held up the Bank of Toronto here today and escaped with about $1,000 in cash.

Burford, a Brant county village of about 700 population, is 10 miles west of Brantford. Police set up road blocks throughout the county in an attempt to cut off the gunmen's escape.

Police said the men enter had held up Baldon's hardware store here after travelling from Brantford in a stolen taxi.

The thugs forced the cab to Brantford, forced its driver, Johnnie Gardiner, 30 to drive them toward Burford.

$20, tied him to a tree and fled in his cab.

Police said the thugs helped themselves to firearms in the hardware store, and forced Fred Baldon, Jr., to load the guns. They also took his watch.

The four men were said to have planned the robbery in a washroom of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway station in Brantford early today.

Robert A. MacGillay, ticket clerk, said he had seen four men drinking in the washroom, and heard one of them say that they left: "Well, let's get our

Britain, Canada and U.S. All Working Together on Arms Standardization

Ottawa, Dec. 19—(CP)—Canada, the United States and Britain today formally made public the broad outlines of their three-way plan to standardize military secrets—that they have been working together on standardization of arms and training since 1947.

Informed quarters here said the announcement indicates no new or immediate developments in the long, gradual process of standardization. Any statements about it in the past have related only to joint efforts by two countries—Canada and the U.S., Canada and the U.K. and U.K. and U.S.—but never to all three together.

The announcement confirmed that all three have been working together.

The announcement, made simultaneously in Ottawa, London and Washington, said: "Recent arrangements will insure that in time of necessity there will be no material or technical obstacles to full cooperation among the armed forces concerned and the greatest possible economy in the use of combined resources and effort."

Exchange Observers

The three countries had been exchanging observers "in connection with examination and the development and testing of material of common interest" in studies which "aim at the gradual development of common designs and standards in arms, equipment and training methods".

The standardization was tied in with the Atlantic Pact developments The progress by the three nations will "keep pace with the fulfillment of wider arrangements under the pact for mutual assistance and supply board.

The board was aimed at promoting standardization of types of parts and end products of military equipment used by the three countries. Similar arrangements were already in effect between the Commonwealth powers—the U.K., France, Belgium, Holland, and Luxembourg—and the three non members of the Atlantic Pact.

Canada has been an energetic and persistent worker for standardization since the end of the war. Officials here say British but getting closer to the U.S. all the time. They have been working behind-the-scenes for closer collaboration between their two armies.

Process to Take Years

Standardization still is seen in Ottawa as a process that will take years. But there has been progress.

Battle descriptions and communications, for instance, have been standardized to the point where the forces of all three countries can work together at least roughly with little trouble. Canada's tri-service wireless network, the latest link in communications is in instantaneous contact with both London and Washington.

There has been "considerable progress" too, in selecting those items the forces would accept jointly for their own individual needs. The trouble there is that all three have large stocks of existing equipment—such as rifles —and they are unwilling to jettison them because of the cost.

Canada has announced, for example, that she would like to adopt the .300-calibre rifle instead of the .303 but it will take years to make the transition—unless war hurries it.

Gerald Milne, 47, Found Dead Under Railway Bridge

Believed to have been dead for more than 48 hours before discovered, the body of 47-year-old Gerald Milne, 81 St. Albert St., was found under the Canadian National Railways bridge over the Moira River off College St., at noon on Saturday.

Milne, who was last seen shortly before midnight last Wednesday, is believed to have slipped as he was crossing the railroad bridge and fell 30 feet to the stone abutment below. He suffered a fractured skull and broken leg and is believed to have died instantly.

Fifteen-year-old Frank Murray, Jones Street, found the body Saturday noon as he took a shortcut under the bridge.

Mr. Milne, who had been out on parole for the past five months had visited with his brother Peter Milne, 76 Dufferin Road, on Wednesday evening and had left for home shortly after eleven o'clock. That was the last he was seen alive.

Worried About Husband

Mrs. Milne said she had worried when her husband when he failed to return home Wednesday night but her fears had been allayed later when it was suggested he may have gone out with the city in an attempt to find work. She said he had done this before. Mrs. Milne said her husband had started to walk across the railroad bridge when he saw the lights of a train approaching, but of doing so he fell through the bridge to the rocks below.

A preliminary inquest was held Saturday afternoon, the case then being adjourned until December 28th at the city police court. Dr. Lorne Bonter and Dr. J. Russell Scott with S. Gordon Robertson, crown attorney, attorney acting for the crown.

The late William Gerald Milne was born in Belleville and spent his 48th year, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Milne. All his life was passed here.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbellford, where funeral announcement is made in this edition.

WESTON'S FIRST

$50,000 HOTEL

Weston, Dec. 19 (CP)—Weston's first $50,000 hotel, the result of many, projects undertaken by this town's 8,000 citizens, was officially opened Saturday on what once had been Weston's old plank road, renovated at a cost of $800,000. Other projects of the citizens were erection of a town hall, a hockey and skating rink and the granting of a large sum for a new hospital to be erected here.

FIVE CHILDREN IN SAME FAMILY BURNED TO DEATH

Emmett, Mich., Couple Escape With Others

Emmett, Mich., Dec. 19 (AP)— Five children in the same family trapped in their upstairs bedroom burned to death today when a flash fire seared through a two-storey frame farmhouse near Emmett.

The parents, Clarence Bethway and his wife, Irene, about 40, escaped with five of their 11 children and Mr. Bethway's 80-year-old mother through downstairs windows.

Their 11th child, Delia, 12, escaped the tragedy because she was spending the night with her maternal grandparents.

Three brothers and two sisters lost their lives.

Dead are Freddie Bethway, 3; Beverly Ann, 4; David 5; Billy 7, and Thomas, 11.

Two other children, Joe 8, and Mary Ann, 9, were taken to hospital with serious burns.

The 11th child, Delia, 12, escaped the tragedy because she was spending the night with her maternal grandparents.

Mackinnon, a 63-year-old semi cripple, died in hospital after police found him lying severely injured in an alley in south-end Sydney.

Police said he had been injured in an understood mishap involving a car which did not remain at the spot.

Later police said they had seized a car which was identified as that of Mayor MacLean.

They had taken MacLean to hospital for treatment of a cut on his left hand and police guard remained at his bedside throughout the night and morning.

Died in Hospital

Mr. MacKinnon, a 62-year-old semi-cripple who walked with a crutch, died in hospital after police found him lying severely injured in an alley in Sydney's south-end.

At that time police said he had been injured in an understood mishap involving a car which did not remain at the scene.

Later, police seized a car which they identified as that of MacLean. They said there were signs of a scuffle inside the car and bloodstains on the front seat.

MacLean was taken to hospital for treatment of a gash on his left hand and a police guard was posted at his bedside.

The charge was laid after Crown Prosecutor Donald Finlayson consulted with the Attorney-General's department at Halifax by telephone.

Two youngsters, who were near the scene when Mackinnon was killed in the twin-engined bomber which crashed in California during the week-end. And two residents of residents returning home for the Christmas holidays died when their light plane crashed, also in California.

In addition, 26 persons escaped injury Sunday when a Trans Canada Airlines plane through a boundary fence at Chicago municipal airport and was badly damaged. The pilot said the cabin brakes failed.

Ten Youths Get 20-Year Terms In Rape Attempt

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 19 — (AP) —Ten youths, convicted of the mass rape or attempted rape of a mentally-ill housewife, were sentenced Saturday to maximum terms of 20 years in the state reformatory. Nine defendants, most of whom are in their early 20's were convicted of the rape of Mrs. Marie Charlton in an all-night party last May. Mrs. Charlton died several months later of pneumonia. The 10th was found guilty of attempted rape.

Group of Syrian Officers Imprison Their Commander

Damascus, Syria, Dec. 19 (AP) — A group of Syrian Army officers today imprisoned their Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Sami Hennawi, who led last August's military coup and executed President Husni Zaim.

An army communique charged Hennawi had conspired against the present government of Premier Hashim al-Atassi, with unidentified foreign powers. A military spokesman said the action against Hennawi was not a new coup — "only a fully constitutional army politics but a "purely disciplinary measure within the army."

(In Cairo well-informed Arab sources reported, however, confirmation, that supporters of the Free Will Marshal Zaim had launched a new coup aimed at the civilian government which Hennawi installed immediately after Zaim's overthrow.

(These sources interpreted the charge of conspiracy as a reference to Hennawi's reported support of a plan for a greater Syria to be created from a merger of Iraq, Syria and perhaps Hashemite Jordan.)

Registrar of Voters Found Severely Injured in Alley

Police Seize Car Believed To be That of Mayor MacLean

By DON MacKENZIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 19 (CP)—A charge of murder was laid today against Mayor Dan Jack MacLean, following the death Sunday night of Joseph MacKinnon, city registrar of voters.

Magistrate Verdinon Read denied the charge sheet by police chief R. J. MacDonald, MacLean, taken to hospital Sunday night, did not appear in court but that it was considered likely he would hear the charge formally later today and then be remanded.

MacKinnon, a 63-year-old semi cripple, died in hospital after police found him lying severely injured in an alley in south-end Sydney.

Police said he had been injured in an understood mishap involving a car which did not remain at the spot.

Later police said they had seized a car which was identified as that of Mayor MacLean.

They had taken MacLean to hospital for treatment of a cut on his left hand and a police guard remained at his bedside throughout the night and morning.

Died in Hospital

Mr. MacKinnon, a 62-year-old semi-cripple who walked with a crutch, died in hospital after police found him lying severely injured in an alley in Sydney's south-end.

At that time police said he had been injured in an understood mishap involving a car which did not remain at the scene.

Later, police seized a car which they identified as that of MacLean. They said there were signs of a scuffle inside the car and bloodstains on the front seat.

MacLean was taken to hospital for treatment of a gash on his left hand and a police guard was posted at his bedside.

The charge was laid after Crown Prosecutor Donald Finlayson consulted with the Attorney-General's department at Halifax by telephone.

Two youngsters, who were near the scene when Mackinnon was killed in the twin-engined bomber which crashed in California during the week-end. And two residents of residents returning home for the Christmas holidays died when their light plane crashed, also in California.

In addition, 26 persons escaped injury Sunday when a Trans Canada Airlines plane through a boundary fence at Chicago municipal airport and was badly damaged. The pilot said the cabin brakes failed.

Tries to Find Missile Allegedly Used In Slaying

Port Colborne, Dec. 19 — (CP) —Diver Lambert Kelly of Port Colborne was at work today at an old cement quarry in an attempt to locate the chunk of concrete allegedly used in the slaying of George Morrison in shack near the quarry Wednesday night.

Police were also searching for Morrison's effects which, it is thought, are in a sack at the bottom of the quarry.

VON MANSTEIN GIVEN 18 YEARS FOR ATROCITIES

Acts Committed by German Troops Against Poles and Russians

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 19—(AP)—A British military court today sentenced former Field Marshal Erich Von Manstein to 18 years imprisonment for atrocities committed by German troops committed by German troops during the war.

Manstein, last of Hitler's generals to be tried by the victorious allies, declined to plead tge mercy.

He was found guilty on nine specific charges and was acquitted on eight other counts. All grew out of alleged atrocities by German troops under his command during the Nazi invasion of Poland and Russia.

The president of the court said the sentence would date from today. Manstein has been in custody awaiting his trial. The sentence is subject to confirmation by higher authority.

The decision to try the German Field Marshal after such a lengthy imprisonment had aroused much controversy in Britain.

Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime prime minister, was among the prominent people who subscribed to a fund to provide British counsel to defend him.

Three other German war leaders were also to have been tried by Britain. But Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch died in captivity, and army doctors ruled that Field Marshal Gerd Von Rundstedt and Col. Gen. Adolf Heusinger were unfit to stand trial. They were released.

Tomorrow Manstein will be taken to the prison at Werl, near Hamm, where he will join two other former German command-

YOUNGSTER ENJOYS HOMP ON FLAT ROOF OF STORE

The three-year-old tot was having a whale of a time as he careered along the flat roof of a Front Street store on Sunday afternoon. But he had his enjoyment rather rudely interrupted when officers of the law broke in from his carefree romping and firmment took him home to his parents. It appears that the boy's family living upstairs in a Front Street apartment had opened the back window to get a little fresh air and then taken an afternoon nap.

But three-year-old junior was not for sleeping and, promptly crawled out through the open window and onto the roof of the store where he was fortunately seen from the next street.

Parents of the adventuresome lad were still sleeping when the firemen brought him home.

'TEACHERS' FEDERATION MEMBERS ENJOY CHRISTMAS PARTY

Christmas entertainment fare was enjoyed at the Belleville Town Room by 29 members of the Belleville Women Teachers' Federation at their Yuletide meeting.Miss Alice Hessman, federation president was in the chair. Guests present were the Misses Lounsbury and Campbell, who taught school previously in the city.

Business matters followed various reports and roll call and enjoyable entertainment was furnished by Margaret Hillis and Clara Wilson of Queen Mary School. An amusing feature of the meeting was the reading of a night letter from Santa Claus requiring each member to perform in some way before fellow teachers prior to receiving a small gift.

OWNERS DISPOSE OF YOUNG PUPS

He was just a little five-weeks old puppy still unable to fend for himself, but his owners apparently lenses wanted to get rid of him. So it was abandoned on Pinnacle Street on Sunday and he was found on a nearby verandah.

Shivering and hungry the little fellow was taken to the local police station where he was picked up by city dog catcher Thomas Thorne.

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGE LAID AFTER MINOR ACCIDENT

Charged with careless driving and also with leaving the scene of an accident, Fred Boyd, Thomas, was arrested last evening in Cobourg and brought back to Belleville, by provincial police.

Earlier in the evening police stated that a car driven by Boyd had crashed into the rear of another vehicle which had stopped at Marysville to allow a train to pass. Then, it is stated, Boyd had left the scene of the accident. The license number of his car was taken by provincial police and Boyd was stopped at Cobourg.

No injuries were reported as result of the accident.

LARRY AMO NAMED PRESIDENT C.N.R. VETERANS' ASSOC.

AMBULANCE CADETS PRESENT PLAYLETS

Inmates of the Hastings County Home enjoyed a play called "The Birth of Jesus" staged by members of the St. John Ambulance cadets last Friday evening.

Small gifts were given the inmates and following the play the cast was treated to candy by Mrs. Kenneth Thompson, matron of the institution. The play was under the supervision of Mrs. Lillian Ashley, Mrs. Charles Tice and Mrs. Reid, and was much enjoyed by the audience.

A.F. of L. Members Of Corbin Lock Enjoy Dancing at Tobe's

A.F. of L. members of Corbin Lock Company spent a most pleasant evening last Friday, sponsored by the local 428 at Tobe's County Gardens.

During the evening, square and old fashioned dancing was enjoyed by the large crowd present. The music was furnished by Bill Arnold, which added much to the evening's enjoyment.

Spot dancing was a feature of the evening's program. A door prize was also awarded.

The committee of Wally Leavitt, Bernard Whalen, Leo Caul, are to be congratulated on a most successful dance.

Four Locust Trees On Pinnacle St. Being Cut Down

Having outserved their usefulness and with the ravages of Old Man Winter beginning to take effect, four large locust trees on the west side of Pinnacle Street, just north of Dundas are in the course of being taken down by members of the local public works department.

As is the custom when large trees are cut in confined areas, the trees are being taken down a limb at a time until nothing but the lopped off trunk remains. Then the trunk of the tree is fallen into the empty street.

The four locust trees on Pinnacle Street which have acted as shade trees for well over half a century were stated to have become dangerous with their limbs falling to the street with every windstorm.

POLICE BLOTTER

Loss of money by customers in the form of Christmas shopping is getting frequent with two such reports reaching police headquarters.

A Trenton woman shopping in a local dime to a dollar store had her purse containing approximately $25 while Saturday afternoon the market a man pulled his hand out of his pocket and brought with it $21 in bills.

This time, more partially fortunate, however, as while he was looking for his money a woman stepped up to him and asked him what he was looking for. When he replied that his big money order he handed him $1, stating she had seen a young girl disappear in the crowd with a ten dollar bill in his hand.

A Sidney township motorist in the city to stock up on a bit of Christmas cheer reported a quart of beer was stolen from his car while it was parked on Front Street.

Truck and Farm Supply, south Church Street, reported a side door had been broken open but that nothing was missing as the intruder failed to gain entrance into the adjoining office. Another break-in was reported by Herb Mason, owner of a trailer south of the C.P.R. tracks but nothing was stated to be taken.

A Dufferin Street man complained of hurting his leg and tearing his trousers when he fell into a hole on Emily Street. Public works department officials were notified of the hole in the street.

Big Christmas Party Held at Northern Electric

Loaded to the hilt with all kinds of goodies for the kiddies Santa Claus in his full colorful regalia emerged from a big fireplace at the Northern Electric's Club's annual Christmas party at the Sidney Street plant on Saturday.

In a setting befitting the holiday season and with a huge Yule tree weighted down with candles and presents Santa came as a big surprise to the many children of the employees who attended. Members of the club's executive dressed in clown costumes greeted the little visitors and assisted Santa with the distribution of gifts. Approximately 500 children and parents were on hand for the celebration.

Fine Entertainment

The entertainment consisted of Christmas carols by the Northern Electric choral club, feats of magic by Len Fraser, ventriloquist acts by Frank Hockaray and his dummy "Willie', dances by Mr. Maxwell and her juvenile dancers, songs by Art Miller and accordeon solos by Norm. Lanthier. R. Beasley and Dean Whalen entertained at the Hammond organ.

In addition the children were shown a film depicting Canadian wild life. The production was a release by the Department of Lands and Forests and C. Dill, a department representative, directed the showing.

Radios As Prizes

Two Northern Electric "Midge" radio sets donated by the management were won by Mrs. C. Sills and Mr. J. Bunner. The lucky numbers were taken by Mrs. A. B. Hunt.

Mr. F. Grandame acted as master of ceremonies and the entire program was under the direction of G. Lanthier, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Northern Electric Club.

Miss R. J. Moher of the Northern Electric medical department, was on hand to handle any emergency.

119 Blind Persons Are Registered In Hastings Co.

At a recent meeting held at the collegiate of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind, Mr. Douglas Bews presided and an interesting report was brought in by the field secretary, Mr. Preston Timmins. There are at present 119 registrations in the county, with 43 in Belleville and 21 in Trenton. There have been seven new registrations since April first. Among the services that have been provided for the sightless were the purchase of white canes for severely, a deck of moon cards and a checker board for another person; providing batteries for radio set; a grant for one bard of hearing person to have an examination in Toronto; expenses paid for pensioner to go to camp; a Braille watch for one person; and two gospels in moon type for an inmate of the county home.

Many requests come to the board and are dealt with on their merit. A request for the removal of a diseased eye was made; assistance was asked by a mother of the Indian reservation in Deseronto who does not qualify for the old age pension; and many requests for coal and assistance in buying fuel were made.

Talking Book Machine

The Soroptimists have provided a talking book machine which has been placed in the Cooper Home for the use of blind persons there.

In Bancroft it was found that many children suffered eye defects but the Institute for the Blind are not justified in visiting there since there must be a 20-30th loss of sight before they can

IN MEMORIAM

FRY — In loving memory of Stephen Percy Fry, who passed away December 19th, 1948.
His little face has gone away,
His little form we see no more,
He's residing with the angels,
In that distant shore.
But though he is far, far away,
He is not forgotten.
And when the Judgment Day comes round,
We'll see him, by God's will.
Sadly missed by mother, father, sister and brother. D19

FRY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Stephen Percy Fry, who passed away December 19th, 1948, aged 18 months.
Lovingly remembered by father, Leonard, born July 4th, 1926, died December 19th, 1948.
What tender hands have gripped our sigh
For those we love be ginger high
Submissive we would still resign
Thy will be done.
Always remembered by mother, father, sisters and brothers. D19 make recommendations, so provision is being made to have each sight of the cases brought to Belleville for examination.

Reports of the canvass for the blind showed that sight saving in most localities had increased with an increase of $130 for the tag day in Belleville.

Mr. Everett Fairman, secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to the Kinette club who had provided talking books for the use of the blind.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Western oil stocks held against a slight downward trend that appeared as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Activity was moderately active with most changes held to small amounts.

Volume for the first three hours was 565,000 shares.

Pacific Petroleum led the upward trend in western oils, gaining 10 cents at a new top at $4.30. Calgary and Edmonton was forced down 10 cents by profit-taking.

Industrials were under pressure following Saturday's strong advances. Winnipeg Electric was an outstanding feature, gaining a full point at 37 in brisk dealings. Steel of Canada backed down slightly and liquors and refining oils were lower.

Golds opened higher but also gave way as senior producers dipped fractions. Chemical research continued in strong demand and Giant Yellowknife firmed in juniors.

Labrador added 30 cents at $4.85 while Sherritt Gordon dipped 12 cents at $2.21 in brisk base metal dealings.

PRODUCE MARKET

Creamery prints, first grade, 62-63.

The Toronto egg market was unsettled this morning with buying limited to spot offerings and only moderate supplies were received. Country shipper's quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 54-56; grade A medium, 50-52; grade A pullet, 38-39; grade B, 29-30; grade C, 26-28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 60-62; A medium, 56-60; A pullet 35-37; grade B 35-38; grade C, 34.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 19. —(CP) — Slaughter hog prices are not yet established this week.

Other markets unreported.

Postal Workers Struggling Thru Mass of Parcels

Residents who left their Christmas mailing to this late date found it difficult to reach the stamp and weighing wickets this morning and some were compelled to stand in line at long stretches before finally complying with the necessary postal regulations.

...e tired impatient residents making up the long line in the local Post Office crowded the front part of the building and at times it was difficult to get in or get out through either of the two entrances.

In the back of the building postal workers were finding conditions even more cluttered up although they appeared to be laboring away on schedule amid a seemingly almost endless pile of letters and parcels.

Youngsters Try Out for Bantam Hockey League

The four teams which will comprise the Bantam Hockey League of Belleville began taking shape following a strenuous practice session involving 100 or more youngsters at the Memorial arena here on Saturday.

Some of the squads iced numbered 25 players, but each team will be limited to a group of 15 performers—to be outfitted with brand new uniforms designating the outfit they belong to. When the team heads including Clare Williamson, Jim Cowley, Don Hogan and Don Barrett get their noggins together this week, team rosters for the coming schedule will be selected by the "buying and trading" system practised by the National Hockey League.

Hot Ashes Set Fire to Truck

Some householders in the city believe in putting their ashes out hot, and if you don't believe it just ask Mrs. Bridges, local garbage collector.

Saturday the garbage collection truck was being used to collect garbage and ashes in the Foster Ward district and the drivers were working on St. Paul Street they suddenly discovered that the truck had caught fire.

Firemen responded to the alarm and extinguished the fire on the truck. No damage to the truck was reported.

Firemen were also called to Williams Ladies' Wear store on Front Street for a gas investigation, and also to the home of F. H. Hamilton on Moira Street where it was reported fire had caught in the floor under the fireplace. No damage to the floor was reported.

N.C.O.'s Honor Lieut. A. Duffy At Testimonial Banquet Held Sunday at Bridge St. Armouries

Tangible appreciation of 20 years service in the army, ten of them as regimental sergeant major was shown Lieutenant Angus Duffy, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at a testimonial given him on Sunday by the non-commissioned officers of the regiment.

Lieut. Duffy, who was given his commission at the regimental ceremonial parade held in the Bridge Street Armouries last Wednesday, was presented with a handsome chrome plaque mounted on gleaming wood at the dinner held in a lecture room of the Armouries at one o'clock.

The plaque presented by Regimental Sergeant Major J. Stanley Down, who succeeded Duffy, was engraved with the following inscription, below the regimental crest, "1st Canadian Battalion, R.S.M. Angus Duffy, who From 1939 to December 1949 served with patience and dignity as regimental sergeant major of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. A token of esteem from the N.C.O.'s."

Over 100 Present

Over 100 non-commissioned officers were present at the dinner which was held under the chairmanship of R.S.M. Down. Also present were Lieut. Col. Max Perrett, commanding officer, Major Bill Graydon, second in command, Captain Len Hyslop, assistant, Captain George Hepburn quartermaster, Major Clint Broad, Major Cam Walbridge and other guests.

Another presentation was that of a sergeant-major's cane made of ebony and silver, made by Major Cam Walbridge to be used by the regimental sergeant majors of the unit. The cane formerly belonged to the late C. M. Walbridge and was presented to him when he was a lieutenant in the 49th Hastings Rifles. The cane was formally presented to R.S.M. Down, and soon he will be inscribed on a gold ferrule, which will be put on the cane. It will be the permanent property of the regiment.

Expresses Appreciation

In a brief address of appreciation of the craft of his non-commissioned officers, Lieut. Duffy said there had been no greater honor for him than to be the C.O. of the regiment. But he believed that R.S.M's should be changed from time to time so that promotion can continue and ambition created, for ambition keeps any unit alive. He reviewed his life as RSM of the unit in humorous and serious vein. "In every man," he said "was an idealism and if that is appealed to, he will do terrific things. The regiment never lacked spirit and this spirit should be kept alive and handed down." He asked the non-c's to teach the men how to develop this spirit so that if ever comes they will be able to protect their country from an invader.

It was a great honor to be an officer in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Lieut. Duffy said, "I am deeply grateful for everything."

In presenting the RSM's cane to RSM Down, Major Walbridge remarked that the "Hasty Peet" always had a reputation of getting out and doing a job. This paid off when the last war occurred. "The history of the unit goes back years," he said, "and it has never been found wanting." "Years ago," he said, "his father was an officer in the regiment and twenty-five years later his son was the same. He was proud to be associated with such a unit," Major Walbridge concluded.

Tribute to NCO's

Lieut.-Col. Perrit expressed his appreciation to all the non's for the work they have done for the unit in the past years. He believed the peacetime effort of the non-commissioned officers is just as important as that of wartime. The result of the year's training, he said was reflected in the smart efficient job done last Wednesday at the ceremonial parade. "It was a tribute to your efficiency."

When he learned that Lieut. Duffy was considering leaving the regiment, he felt the unit would be left in the lurch. "It's like losing an arm." It was with relief that he learned the ex-RSM was remaining with the unit. He felt that in RSM Down, he had a man who would fill the job suitably, one who had an impressive war record.

Brief Addresses

Brief addresses were given by Captain McConnell, padre of the regiment and Captain Bill Graydon. The toast to the regiment was proposed by Sergeant Gavin Scott. The chicken dinner was served by the ladies of the Army Navy, Air Force Veterans Ladies Auxiliary under president Mrs. W. McKenna. Assisting her were Mesdames Jack Clark, vice president, Mrs. Charles Bauy, Mrs. Arthur Galbraith, Mrs. Charles Lundberg, Mrs. Alice Hilton, Mrs. Dave Asselline, Mrs. Jim McKenna, Mrs. Joe Samuels, Mrs. Seldon Smith, Mrs. Art Hobbs, Mrs. Mike Ryan, Mrs. Robert Fisher and Mrs. Ed. Howard. A vote of appreciation to the Ladies for their efforts was moved and seconded.

Fire Destroys Net Storehouse Near Northport

The storage filled with gill nets burned to the ground before a band of volunteer firefighters reached the scene from Northport seven miles around the bay.

Howard Mallett a storekeeper at Northport first noticed the blaze from his store and fearing that the extensive Bloxhold tourist camp was going up in flames quickly gathered together a group of volunteers who proceeded to Quinte Point in a truck.

It is estimated that the loss will run into several thousand dollars as the storage and nets were totally wiped out. There is nobody living in the vicinity of the place and the firefighters found no evidence of any recent visitors.

72 ROUNDED UP

Windsor, Dec. 19 — (CP) — In a series of police raids Sunday night, the chief deputy chief W. E. Neals called " a concentrated drive on liquor suspected of selling bawdy houses," police arrested 72 persons.

Eight separate premises were raided; owners of three charged with keeping bawdy houses; 66 two, with keeping liquor for sale.

More than half the persons arrested were from the United States, police said. About 20 were kept in custody overnight. Others now are free on bail.

Lloyd's CLEANERS and DYERS

87 Herchimer St. BELLEVILLE

We Apologize!

This Christmas for the third consecutive year, we undertook to once again supply our many friends of this city and district with Christmas Trees. Our supply of 2512 trees arrived on Saturday, December 10th, and were immediately offered for sale at a flat price of $1.00 each, from the 1st just east of Radio Station CJBQ. It is with regret that just 15 days later we find it necessary to withdraw these trees for sale to the public. We have sold approximately 100 trees and have turned away probably four times that many of our friends (the public) because the balance of our trees are unsaleable at $1.00.

Bearing in mind that we have reason to be grateful to the citizens of this district for their generous response to all of our annual community projects in the past, we felt we had a moral responsibility to give you value for your money. Being unable to do this with the trees we have left on our lot, we have decided to withdraw them from sale, and reimburse all readers of this advertisement to go to our lot and take, with our best wishes, a tree for their home for Christmas. We will be glad, of course, to absorb a severe financial loss, but we prefer that to a bad name with you, our friends, the citizens of Belleville and district.

Summing up, we cannot accept at any time your money, without giving value for it, and with the close of trees we have left, we cannot ask $1.00 for a tree. In the preservation of our good name, the trees are yours for the taking. If you prefer to pay a nominal sum, the undersigned will accept it and apply it against our loss, but this is unnecessary.

If you already have your tree, we invite you to join with us on Wednesday, December 21th., on the Coleman Flats after supper, when we will have a monster bonfire to dispose of the trees that are left.

Once again we apologize to you and say that we were acting in good faith in this endeavor.

WEEK BEFORE CHRISTMAS

This week bids fair to become the most active pre-Christmas week in years for an entire week is to pass before Christmas Day. Up to the present the approach of Christmas has been with the expected heavy buying and preparations for the annual festival. For the young this is the-time which brings Santa Claus with his romantic reindeer and large Christmas sack which contains all the gifts to be left on Christmas Eve for the boys and girls in all parts of the wide wide world.

For this year's festival the toymakers and those who raise the flocks of turkeys, geese and ducks, which go to make the festival of Christmas the most memorable in all the year have been so busy that there need be no fear of shortages.

Those who prepare the decorations have been busy and the vendors of Christmas trees have been plying a busy trade to add the perfect touch to the setting of the festivities now at hand.

As for Santa Claus he has proven as ever his appeal to the boys and girls never lessens. Year after year the rising generating are thoroughly prepared for the coming of the little fat man who shakes like a bowlful of jelly. Though only those fortunate boys and girls who live in the Arctic or sub-Arctic really know what reindeer are like, those in warmer climes know as well as if they had been sent to a school of preparation for belief in Santa Claus and his method of delivery of his pack full of gifts for the good boys and girls who have been within the old limit. the boys and girls, except a superwise one, have their confidence undiminished in the benefactor of childhood who wears white whiskers and a red jacket. His load of playthings grows with the years and becomes modern too, for nothing escapes the modernizing touch of those who work in Santa's great factory making toys for the young.

IN UPPER BRACKET OF YEARS

Anniversaries of leaders has drawn attention of the press to the fact that the 85 major industrial nations of the world stage are in the upper bracket of years. Outstanding among them is of course Mr. Winston Churchill, who at the age of 75 years is one of the truly great figures of the age. Men who have come to lead their fellowmen are generally in the mid-sixties, sixty-five years being an average figure for men of such prominence.

A list has been prepared by the Overseas Press Club of New York listing the men who are "running the world" as belonging to the age of sixty-five. To name some of them shown the age of men who are in the mind of those who prepared the list, they are President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, J. R. Oppenheimer, who is an outstanding scientist in study of atomic energy, Paul Hoffman and General MacArthur, in the United States; Churchill, 75 and Attlee, 65 in Britain. Among others are Pope Pius, Paul Henri-Spaak, General Franco of Spain, Dr. Chaim Weizman of Israel, China's Communist leader, Mao Tse-tung, Field Marshal Smuts, a figure of the greatest importance, and also Stalin and Molotov in Russia.

Bernard Baruch adds to the list of elderly leaders, Bernard Shaw, now 93 years of age and still writing for the theatre.

TREES FOR CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Speaking of Christmas trees and pilfering especially from private woodlots, the weekly report of Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for the Quinte District points out that pilfering is not very popular especially with the owners of woodlots and plantations. In some places the theft of trees is considerable. Zone Forester W. E. Edwards, that in some cases, near the main centres, owners have been advised against planting trees suitable for the Christmas market. The report expresses the hope that co-operation from the public will increase and trees be purchased either on the market or cut with the permission of the owner.

The weekly report says "from the conservation point of view, large scale Christmas tree plantations seem to offer the best possibilities. Although many of these farmers' have been established in other parts of the Province, no large scale plantations of this type have been started in the Quinte zone up to the present."

Pleasure is a necessary reciprocal; no one feels it who does not at the same time give it. To be pleased, one must please. What pleases you in others, will in general please them in you. — Chesterfield.

JUST FOLES

BEING GOOD

Laugh at him, you grown-ups wise,
Chuckle at him, turned polite;
Say that school understands
His attempts to do the right,
But with Christmas drawing near
Let's confess it now that we Make the effort once a year
To be good as we can be.

Just a trick of children small,
Artful little girls and boys,
Hoping Santa Claus will call
With his gifts of glittering toys!

No! We frown-ups use it too,
Letting all around us see
By the gracious things we do
Just how friendly we can be.

Are we shamming when we say
"Merry Christmas, one and all!"
Overlook and smile away
Every irritation small?
Or, with Christmas drawing on,
As the children, are not we
'Tri the day had come and gone,
Being good as we can be!

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1929

An interesting event took place at the Metropolitan Store here when the staff of the store presented the genial manager, Mr. Williams, with a handsome, high class wrist watch. The assistant manager, Mr. Rayner, received a pen and pencil set of high quality.

A severe sleet storm prevailed in this city and vicinity last night and today. While all roads are more or less blocked, the roads running north and south are the worst. All stages are very late and are not arrive today.

McKeen's business shop and Rollins-barber shop in Stirling were destroyed by fire early this morning.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1919

The members of the Canadian War Contingent Association in this city recently presented a silver cup, suitably inscribed, a sum of money in gold to Miss M. B. Falkiner, the President of the Association. The presentation took place at Hotel Quinte.

Mr. W. B. Northrup, K. C., Clerk of the House of Commons, and formerly of this city, is spending a few days in town.

Mayor Platt informs us that he will not be a candidate for re-election to the Mayor's chair at the coming elections.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1909

The Rev. Prof. Dozsee of Albert College, conducted the services in Western Methodist Church, Napanee, yesterday.

Mr. George Sine, who contests the stage line between Belleville and Frankford, has his barn by fire, also the stage coach early yesterday morning. Mr. Sine was working about the barn at an early hour and when descending from the loft he fell and the lighted lantern, which he was carrying exploded and caused the fire.

Mr. Fred Ford of Peacock, Sask., is visiting relatives here. He is engaged in ranching in the west.

The Rev. J. Allan Petrie, B. A., B. D. of this city, will have shortly for Greenwood where he has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian church. The many friends will wish him great success in his new field of labor.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 19th., 1899

The work of placing machinery at the rolling mills has progressed rapidly and it is expected that the mills will commence operations shortly. Mechanics are at present engaged in erecting the large built, two of which are completed and fire was started in them for the first time today.

The manager of the opera house would confer a favor on the patrons if he would take steps to keep the noise in the gallery and back benches. Many theatre goers are very outspoken in respect to the matter.

Mr. W. G. Wilson, barrister, Napanee, was in town today.

Strength for the Day

I was talking to a man recently and endeavoring to the shocking realization that I was speaking on a conversation with a dead man. That fellow had died, intellectually and spiritually years before. The undertaker had been knocking at his door for the past generation, and although he kept the door locked against him, the whole neighborhood was aware that a first-class funeral was in order. Everyone knew that here was a person who had died before his death, poor fellow.

Some people live in the dead past. There is a particularly obnoxious variety who live only in reminiscence and that distinguished ancestry. To them, family is one to face with equanimity.

everything. They never amount to much themselves but they go through life high-falutin every body else because they had ancestors who did great deeds in their day. Many a board of trustees has one or more corpses on its roll, and it is because partly these ghostly figures can exercise a deadening influence. The dead hand of the past lies on many a church. There are a few bank presidents and heads of corporations could have been put on the shelf years ago by organizations years ago, to the tremendous benefit.

Be careful that you don't die before your death. To be an arrested cripple in the living world is too horrifying a calamity for anyone to suffer. Then, family is one situation; and that is to oblige all motor vehicle operators to drive at slow speed during slushy weather. It is wholly and entirely up to the motorist if the law-abiding Some Canadian municipalities have, in addition, a law against making pedestrian-splashing a punishable offence. All this pedestrian has to do is catch the offender's license number and sign up a couple of witnesses.

What ought to be done is to have police and Highway Patrol out, like storm signals and all traffic reduced to half speed.

But the tragi-comic fact of the matter is that the citizen who is most furious at being clouted as he walks the street is, five minutes later, in his own car, clouting his fellow citizens without the slightest sense of shame or compunction. The weakness lies in the character of the present-day man.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

MIND OVER MATTRESS

Last night at a spaghetti salon, I got to talking with a reformed bootlegger who is currently the bitter Big of a big whiskey company.

"What do you hear from the mob?" I asked. "Anything that would fill up three sheets of copy paper?"

The former Man of Extinction thought a minute. "There's one story I don't remember seeing in print," he said. "It's about an old man named Nonowitz who ran a candy store on the East Side around the time Dutch Schultz was buying his first delivery trucks.

One night as the storekeeper was about to close up, a hoodlum stepped into the shop and pressed a gun against the old man's middle. "Hide me somewhere," he said.

The old man knew better than to argue with a revolver. "Who's chasing you?" he asked, as he opened the trap door which led to the cellar.

"Some fellas from Jersey."

Then they got to the basement. Nonowitz pointed to a couple of old mattresses near the coal bin. "Get under," he said, "and I'll make a sandwich."

With that the storekeeper had rolled man and mattresses into a bundle and tied it up with the rope he used for parcels.

As he started back up to the store, a bullet whizzed past his head, came down the stairs. "Whatcha doin' in the cellar?" he asked one.

"Rankin' the furnace," said the old man.

The gents from Jersey, poked around in the coal bin, then examined the coal bin and then came to the rolled-up mattresses. "What's in there?" they asked.

"Some fellas from Jersey."

"You know, you're not very movies," said the other. "Let's try the rear."

The mobsters went upstairs and Nonowitz heard the door bang. Then he went back down and untied the mattresses.

"Well," said the storekeeper, "I hear in a couple weeks some guy from the West Side is opening a candy store on the next block."

"He ain't gonna open," said the hoodlum. "Keep talkin'."

"The man who sells me my chocolate sprays, all of a sudden he wants a fifteen per cent mark-up."

"I'll discuss it with him. Chances are you'll get a reduction. One more wish to go—this time frake it good."

"That's all I can think of," said Nonowitz, "excepting maybe you'd like to tell me how it felt when you was in the mattress."

The gangster's lips tightened. "You're makin' fun of me, Pop," he said. "I'll tell you how it wanted to pep ya off nice and proper, but since you got want it this way, maybe I better try somethin' else."

Ten minutes later, as per phone instructions from the hoodlum, a truck drove up and Nonowitz was pushed into the back seat The car headed north and kept going until it parked near a wooded bridge somewhere in Westchester. The driver and man with chains from the luggage compartment. They fastened one end of the iron on the old man's middle, and then lashed his legs to his chest with the other end. Then they pushed him over the railing.

"Throw him over when I count three," said the hoodlum.

"One —"

"Two —"

The old man braced himself and wondered what would mind the store the next day.

Suddenly the gangster grinned. He walked over and began to undo the chains.

"Hey, what got your answer, Pop," he said, "That's how I felt when I was in the mattress."

Mackenzie's Column:

China is Hungry And Ill-Equipped To Meet Winter

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The winter months which now have most of China in their icy grip are likely to be a period determining whether the Chinese Communists can consolidate their sweeping military victory over the Nationalist regime.

The problem has ceased to primarily a military one, though Chiang Kai-Shek is preparing to continue guerrilla warfare throughout the length and breadth of the country. It has become chiefly an administrative —with emphasis decidedly on the economic.

Communist leader Mao Tze-Tung now is faced with the monumental task of feeding the millions of life for approximately one fifth of the world's population. These millions are scattered over a land which is one-third greater than continental United States and a vast area that has been impoverished by the years of war.

Many parts of China are hungry and ill-equipped to meet the rigors of winter. The Yangtze River, like the rest of humanity, is frozen solid in places when hunger overtakes them.

The Chinese Communists realize that their first task is to restore the Red new China news agency Hsinhua has just broadcast a plea that the Communists are in serious economic and financial difficulties.

Fred Hampson, veteran AP correspondent in China, reports:

"Inflation is rampant again. Price controls have broken down. Discontent is widespread in both cities and countryside. Unemployment is rising dangerously-high levels. Taxes are high and getting higher. There are reports of food riots in cities and in some districts. There still is enough food to go around.

Hampson says that 60 to 90 per cent of the Chinese he has talked with are opposed to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Kuomintang regime rather than to the Communists.

What is the significance of that? Well, it should say it fits in with our idea that the masses think with their bellies. When times are hard.

The Chinese masses aren't politically conscious, but they are economically conscious. They gauge a government by what life gives them in the way of necessities under that regime, and by the amount of taxation saddled onto them.

Political designations don't mean much. You can't eat 'em or build a fire with 'em to stave off the cold.

Ralph Allen New Editor Of Maclean's

Toronto, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Appointment of Ralph Allen, nationally known newspaper man, as editor of Maclean's magazine was announced last night.

Mr. Allen succeeds W. Arthur Irwin, who resigned last week to become commissioner of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. The magazine's managing editor until 18 months ago, he had any criticism to make, he did it kindly and in a constructive manner. He implied he was not to do that now.

I have a few friends that I make a point to see frequently because of the way they inspire me. I like them because of the way they live and we compare notes. I see another because of his sound judgment and common sense, and we talk about affairs in general and then I have more interest in it is a delight to be because of their buoyant spirit.

It is revealing to study the managers and the coaches of baseball clubs and football teams. Often it is the coach who inspires his team to work in Prince Albert, Sask., where his family moved when he was 10 years old. The Toronto Globe and Mail as reporter for the Globe and Mail.

After service as press relations officer with the R.C.A.F. from 1942 to 1944, he served as war correspondent for the Amalgamated Daily Star. He went to Maclean's in 1946.

Sea Gulls Love To Hitchhike On Ice Cakes

Government weather observer W. W. Hay reported today he made this discovery while watching the Detroit River with his binoculars. He checks the river daily for icebergs.

The birds greet the ice cakes from Lake St. Clair. They ride them down the river all the way to the Ambassador Bridge, then fly back up the river and find another cake to ride. They do it all day.

DON'T STROLL — MARCH!

At first thought it seems incongruous, but it is notable that flabby folks generally dislike exercise—such as running or perhaps at first just slowly toiling up ten flights of stairs rather than riding up in the lift. Folk who are fairly fit or in good physical condition seem to enjoy taking exercise—such as walking to and from work or business rather than riding back and forth.

A vigorous young person or an older person who is in good condition finds a stroll or a listless walk, perhaps accompanied by an elderly or feeble person, more tiring than a brisk walk, physically tiring, I mean, regardless of the question of pleasant companionship or lack of it.

Occupations that involve long standing or afford little opportunity to move about, may because but certainly predispose to the development of varicose veins. Occupations that involve considerable walking (not strolling or listless ambulation) predispose or prevent the development of varicose veins.

Even a job that requires prolonged standing or prolonged sitting need not involve the circulation in this way if the worker takes advantage of every momentary opportunity to roll a few somersaults on the floor, back and rake the legs straight up and do some imaginary upside down bicycle riding.

Now don't tell me you can't do such ridiculous things while you are at work. You mean you are too inept, too bone-headed, too lazy, too ashamed to effect your health ten years hence will not be one of the most important factors in your longevity.

Either long standing or lack-adaisical walking favors stagnation of blood in the veins of the legs and thighs and lower part of the trunk, and as a result of prolonged under constant pressure of the column of blood they contain are likely to weaken and dilate (stretch there, and that is varicosity.)

On the other hand, a walk be brisk enough or if one can get down and roll a somersault or do some upside down bicycle riding in vigorous fashion for a few minutes from hour to hour, keeps the muscular contraction, plus the inverted posture, will counteract degree of vision.

HE WHO INSPIRES

In my early life I worked for a number of "bosses," but the best one, and one from whom I learned the most, was the one who inspired in me most. He was a man of few words and if he had any criticism to make, he did it kindly and in a constructive manner. He implied he was not to do that now to me.

"A GOOD PLACE TO DEAL"

W.E. Bateman Re-elected President Cheese Producers; Angles of Industry Discussed

Head of the Hastings County Cheese Producers' Association for the past two years, W. E. Bateman, R.R. 1, Tweed, was re-elected president of the association at their annual meeting held Saturday at Stirling.

Indicative of the interest which farmers are taking in present outlook of the cheese industry, the meeting was the best attended of any held by the association as well over 250 farmers turned out to listen to speakers who took an optimistic note regarding the future of the industry.

At least 20 cents per pound for cheese next year will be the demands of farmers, it was indicated by the feeling of the meeting. At least this price was stated to be the farmer's right in the face of increased production and government promises of continued markets made during the last war.

Would Support Price

W. O. Coon, executive member of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board, and past president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, was optimistic of at least a price of 30 cents. He felt that Agriculture Minister James Gardiner would support a 30 cent price.

Mr. Coon spoke of negotiations at the recent Dominion-Provincial conference with respect to markets and also referred to the need of extension of social services to include the farmer

"At the present time the farmer does not come under the social service program, yet he is helping to pay for it in increased costs of manufactured products," stated Mr. Coon. He said with social services on the increase taxes cannot be kept down and asked where the farmer came in.

May Be Supported Price

Again referring to the price of farm products, especially cheese, Mr. Coon suggested that a supported price may be the answer but asked if it was reasonable that farmers had to fight for prices every year.

He touched on the farm labor picture and viewed with alarm the steady drain of farm youth to the city. "The only alternative," he said, "was continuation in the use of displaced persons — those with workers in many cases taking over eventually the operation of the farms."

Mr. Coon also spoke briefly of the New York milk shed which he said had originally been patterned after the British milk pool. In New York as result of pooling milk, much milk was not going into bottles, but the producer received the same price.

The same was true in England where two large milk pools took care of all the milk. All producers were required to come into the pool with the exception of those who bottled and sold their own milk.

Not True Facts

He said that in recent weeks the press had done much to undermine faith in the future of the cheese industry in Canada, but he pointed out that the press reports did not in all cases present the true facts.

The meeting went on record as being unanimously in favor of a one cent per pound butter fat being deducted from the milk cheques next June to assist in paying for an advertising and public relations campaign to sell dairy products to the domestic market. Chas. N. Heath said decisions of the annual meeting of the dairy industry for the one month were expected to total half a million dollars.

Ready to Support Board

The meeting also showed approval for the marketing board to build their proposed cheese curing and storage warehouse in Hastings county, and went on record as being ready to support its operation.

Mr. Coon pointed out that it was not intended that the producers would own the warehouse financially but to warehouse their cheese there. If the cheese were stored any length of time producers would be paid. Details of the operational policy would be revealed later, it was stated.

Frank S. Follwell, M.P. for Hastings East, felt that Agriculture Minister Gardiner would pull out a "fairly good deal" for the cheese producers. "The minister," he said, "was always thinking in terms of the producers."

Turning to social security he felt that some kind of a contributory old age pension plan was the over-all answer to the demand for social security. In this way no special groups would receive all the benefits and farmers would also participate.

Assured of Money

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., for Hastings East, pointed to the $450,000 which the Ontario government had made available to the cheese industry this year and assured more money would be provided if permanent benefits could be shown for the industry He said there was room for vast improvement in the marketing of cheese and was certain that the domestic market for cheese could be so improved through the proper sales procedure so as to make Canada virtually independent of the British export market.

"I can see a market for at least 100 million pounds of cheese in Canada in 1951, providing the right sales procedure is adopted."

Right Packaging Needed

Only the right method of marketing and the right packaging of cheese was necessary, he said.

Mr. Robson said he was more interested in the price of cheese was going to be next year than in any other dairy products program. "Social services are all right but the farmer would be the last to benefit," he said.

Press reports were indicating a surplus of cheese and other dairy products and a corresponding drop in prices but Mr. Robson said he was "all fed up."

"Principles have gone by the board," he said, "and the farmers want is not just a fair deal, but 30 cents a pound for their cheese —or no cheese."

"Here, here," applauded the packed meeting as cheers showed ed approval of Mr. Robson's words

Promised Markets

Mr. Robson went on to say that during the war the government had promised farmers postwar markets, but were now preparing farmers to accept 27 cents per pound for cheese. "Farmers have got to get enough over the cost of production to assure their own social service. Farmers are not in unemployment insurance."

Mr. Robson said he was a firm advocate of consumption of home products and by way of illustration told a story of a Canadian farmer feeding his town good apples while his wife purchased oranges and grapefruit for the breakfast table.

Warden R. A. McCarey also spoke on the value of publicity. He said that producers had done a good job in producing cheese but had fallen down in marketing. He expressed the hope that the greatest segregated purchasing power in the Dominion. If the farmer starved ill times, then there would be difficult times ahead for all.

Will Need Support

Chas. N. Heath told the meeting that the proposed cheese curing and storage warehouse would need the support of producers. It would not be good business," he said, "to build the warehouse at Belleville and have it a "white elephant" when possibly better support could have been obtained elsewhere."

Cheese instructors George Pollard and John Wilkinson, also spoke briefly. Mr. Pollard urged greater producer attendance at the annual cheese show at Belleville and at the cheesemakers convention, while Mr. Wilkinson expressed his appreciation to the cheese producers' association for sponsorship of the factory beautification contest which he said had made a vast difference in the appearance of many factories.

During the discussion period Mr. Philip Carr, who still held something could not still be done about margarine, and asked why the Ontario government had not done more to keep out margarine when that had been accomplished in Quebec.

Still Fighting Bill

In reply Mr. Coon said the margarine bill was still being fought and the matter was now before the Supreme Court. The Ontario government had done all it could do, he said.

Mr. Coon was critical of the many newspapers who supported the margarine bill because they saw a lot of advertising in margarine," but declared it was not right that cheap oils should be imported into the country to compete directly with the dairy industry.

Directors of the county associations are as follows: Sidney, Sam Nicolson; Thurlow, Cecil Ketcheson; Tyendinaga, Earl Whiteman; Rawdon, J. Morrison; Huntingdon, Peter Hannah; Hungerford, Harry Coulter; Marmora, John Bell; Madoc, Alan Ketcheson, and Elzevir, James Moore, Hennigan Rush, Hungerford, was appointed to the agricultural committee.

The pupils of Centenary school are busy practising for their Christmas concert on December 21st.

The executive of the Centenary-Aikens Home and School Association held a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. Jones on Monday evening.

Bonn's Ultra-Modern Service Station Will be Opened Tuesday

Originally a retail outlet for kerosene and the site of the first gasoline service station in the city, an ultra-modern service station will be officially opened at the corner of Dundas and Front Street on Tuesday afternoon.

Tomorrow the new British American service station operated by Jack Bonn will be open for public inspection.

The history of service, station operation on the above site dates back well over a quarter of a century, the new building just completed replacing the original service station which was constructed back in 1923. The station was then operated by Lloyd and Evans and was taken over by Mr. Bonn during the war.

It is a fact, try from the crank operated gasoline pumps which were in vogue nearly thirty years ago to the smart and shiny gasoline vending machines which today measure gasoline in tenths of gallons or in quantities of even money. And facilities for the service station proper have also advanced with the times.

Complete Servicing Offered

Gone are the days when the sale of coal oil was one of the most important items of business of a service station. Today Bonn's service station offers complete servicing, from greasing and washing to general repairs for all types of cars. In addition Bonn's act as the official servicing outlet for Austin cars, for which Mr. Bonn has the Belleville and district agency.

Ultra-smart in appearance the new British American station decidedly enhances the appearance of the corner, featuring a show window for display of auto accessories. The service department has accommodation for three cars, including two hoists and a wash rack.

British American gasoline and oils, Fisk tires, and Auto-Lite batteries are sold, along with Austin parts and a wide range of auto accessories.

24-Hour Service

Offering full 24-hour service, Bonn's service station can accommodate the motorists' needs any time of the day or night, giving a general repair service as well as tire service and battery rental and full greasing service by modern Alemite equipment. The staff includes ten employees. There is ample customer parking space on the property.

Tuesday is "open house" at Bonn's when the public is invited to inspect the new building which replaces what was the first service station in the city. Each visitor will receive a ticket on a draw for an Austin pedal car for Junior.

REGISTRAR

Twelve-year-old Margaret MacAskill told police a similar story. She said she saw the car "zooming at the body a second time." Police quoted her as stating:

"I heard screams 'stop Jack, stop Jack'."

Then she said the car smashed through a fence and struck a telephone pole as it drove away.

Bits of MacKinnon's clothing and a blood-spattered hat and crutch were found in the alley. MacKinnon's head had a severe cut and his chest was crushed.

Re-elected for Two Years

MacKinnon's last big job was the Dec. 6 civic election when MacLean was re-elected mayor for his fifth two-year term.

Following the election the Sydney Post-Standard reported that MacKinnon had received scores of protests from groups of citizens claiming they had been disfranchised and that possibly one group would ask that the election be declared invalid.

There has been no further action in this regard. But unconfirmed reports said the election would be contested in court this week.

Deputy Mayor Tony Gallagher called an emergency meeting of city council to discuss the matter but no statement was available immediately.

A police detail remained outside Mayor MacLean's hospital room as Sydney's Crown prosecutor checked with the attorney general's department at Halifax for advice on the case.

Withholds Comment

(In Halifax Attorney-General Malcolm Patterson said he would withhold comment at this time because the investigation was continuing.)

City police said today that a partly-filled bottle of brandy was found in the glove compartment of Mr. MacLean's car.

A native of Big Pond, about 40 miles from here, Mr. MacKinnon was one of the first telephone operators in Sydney. He later worked as a bookkeeper, a magistrate and then entered the tax collector's office at city hall.

Mr. MacLean, a native of nearby Gabarus, was an alderman for eight years before being elected mayor. He is about 65.

He once operated a livery stable here and for several years was employed by the federal government's department of coal bonuses. He lived in Toronto for a time.

PROBE OF STEEL INCREASE

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)— A Congressional investigation of the steel price increase put into effect by the United States Steel Corporation will start next month, Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyo.) said yesterday. The Wyoming lawmaker heads the economics committee of the Senate and the House of Representatives which will conduct the inquiry.

'Bicycle Thief' Italian Film Best of 1949

Choice of the film, "The Bicycle Thief," was announced Sunday by the board's committee on Exceptional Films. The movie's director, Vittorio De Sica, was named the year's best director.

Also listed among the year's best films were "The Quiet One," "Intruder in the Dust," "The Heiress," "Devil in the Flesh," "Quartet," "Germ ny Year Zero," "Home of the Brave," "Letter to Three Wives," and "Fallen Idol."

The Committee cited Ralph Richardson's acting in "The Heiress" and "Fallen Idol" as the best in 1949.

Saddler's Wells Ballet Beauties Thanked by Cripps for Earning Many Good United States Dollars

London, Dec. 19 — (AP) — Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, welcomed home the triumphant Sadler's Wells Ballet Beauties Friday night and thanked them for all the pretty pirouettes they had turned into good United States dollars.

Sir Stafford spoke at a party held for them at the Covent Garden Opera House after their return from a successful tour in the United States and Canada.

"Some people might imagine our American cousins are only interested in the almighty dollar," he remarked. "I know they can be most discriminating and enthusiastic about other matters, too."

But Sir Stafford was not backful about the estimated $75,000 the troupe earned in the U. S.

"What has also pleased me as a ballet lover is that the ballet should have turned out to have, amongst all its other excellent qualities, that of a first — class dollar earner," he said.

David Webster, general administrator of the Covent Garden Trust which runs the ballet, said the company might make another tour to North America next year.

Golden Wedding Featured by Many Gifts

On the evening of Dec. 6, approximately 85 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Nicolson, Wellington, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Miller on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Miller, Coon and Mrs. F. Heagle received the guests at the door.

Mrs. Seward was lovely in a navy blue dress, attractively set off with yellow roses.

The house was colorfully decorated with streamers and flowers in abundant evidence everywhere. The table was attractive with a lace table cloth, a three-tier wedding cake and silver candelabra.

Mr. A. Duncan was master of ceremonies, and ably began the evening with an address to the bride and groom. He gave an account of how he himself procured their courtship and honeymoon and expressed on behalf of all present, their best wishes for them, and wished them many more years of happiness and contentment.

Mr. Duncan then called on Mr. Thomas Coon, grandson of the couple, who portrayed his happy childhood by "Grandma's and Grandpa's", and in token of these fine remembrances and for deep affection, and love by all five grandchildren, and the couple's daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Coon, he presented to their behalf, to Mr. and Mrs. Milton Seward an electric blanket, beautifully wrapped in gold, and this time Mr. Duncan called on several speakers among whom were Mr. R. Coon, Mr. W. Turner, Mr. S. M. Micolson, Mr. J. Chisholm, Mr. Will Seward, Mr. F. Heagle and Mr. C. Elliott. The Rev. W. Neelands of the United Church, brought a spiritual outlook on the evening's events.

Mr. J. Chisholm on behalf of the community, presented the happy couple with a chime mantel clock. He also expressed his sincere thanks for their work in the community, and for their great generosity which had done much for the life of the community.

Mr. Milton Seward and Mr. and Mrs. Carr, cousins of the bride, presented the groom with a gold watch chain and the bride with a gold necklace.

Mr. Seward, the chairs, and a hassock were presented by the brothers and sisters, and nieces and nephews of the bride and a dessert set was given by Mr. and Mrs. Will Seward, cousins of the groom.

Mr. Seward thanked all for their many kind words and beautiful gifts stating that he was truly grateful from the very bottom of his heart.

Sing-songs were interspersed throughout the evening's proceedings which gave much enjoyment to all, and to end a lovely evening, refreshments were served by the Loyal Orange Benevolent Association. Mrs. S. R. Nicolson, Mrs. Kay and Mrs. E. Badgley poured tea. A toast to the bride and groom was given by Mr. Clem Ketcheson.

There were four generations present in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Seward, their daughter, Mrs. S. R. Coon, a grandson; Mr. T. M. Coon, and a great granddaughter, little Miss Cathrine Coon.

Also honored at the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ketcheson, sister of the bride, and her husband, who were celebrating their 30th anniversary on the same date. They were presented with flowers from their daughter, Mrs. Frank Heagle. Two other couples were also present who were celebrating golden wedding anniversaries in December, in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Ketcheson, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tucker.

Out-of-town guests included those from Trenton, Frankford, Brighton, Stirling, Campbellford, Belleville, Wallbridge, Morgantown, Wooler and Rossmore.

Club Activities

UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S CLUB

The December meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district was held Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. A. C. Locke. A Christmas program and party was in charge of Miss Mary Doyle, assisted by Miss Jean Brownhill, Miss Christine Leavitt, Miss Muriel Hibbard and Miss Betty Wright.

Carols were sung, accompanied by Mrs. Douglass Burr at the piano and led by Mrs. Dorland Houston.

Miss Ruth Silvester was the winner in a guessing game contest and charades were enjoyed.

Miss Muriel Hibbard read the "Legend of the Black Madonna" most effectively.

Dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge and by the hostess.

Split long finger buns, spread one side with mustard, the other with butter or margarine. Place thin strip of cheese inside bun, wrap strip of bacon around each one and fasten with toothpicks. Grill or bake slowly until cheese melts and bacon is cooked.

Mrs. H. Quinsey and her staff of officers completed a year of service on Wednesday evening last, and Mrs. F. J. Sawyer, past president, installed the officers for 1950 at the home of Mrs. H. B. of R.T. officers installed:

Past president, Mrs. H. Quinsey; president, Miss Isabel Taverner; vice president, Mrs. Wm. Smith; chaplain, Mrs. Jack Rose; conductress, Mrs. Clayton Gilroy; warden, Mrs. James Kitchen; secretary, Mrs. Charles Coleman; treasurer, Mrs. Sara Morgan; outer guard, Mrs. Robt. Hogg; inner guard, Mrs. Len Addy; legislative representative, Mrs. R. J. Savage; delegate, Mrs. B. Berry; alternate delegate, Mrs. H. Quinsey; auditor, Mrs. J. White.

Mrs. J. White ably assisted at the piano, and rendered appropriate music which helped to make the installation an impressive ceremony.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. H. Quinsey and her fellow officers by Mrs. F. J. Savage for the success of the past year. The outgoing president has been given the past president's pin from the lodge. The secretary also received a locket from the officers and members in appreciation of her wonderful work done in the past year. Mrs. Quinsey graciously thanked the officers and members for their gift; for the splendid co-operation and attendance in the past year and wished the officer for 1950 every success.

Women's Activities

REDNERSVILLE W.A.

The Redneresville W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Henderson on Wednesday afternoon with 24 members present. The meeting opened by singing Christmas carols, Mrs. Henderson led in prayer which followed by the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Ross Robbin.

Mrs. Fred Hornbeck read another paragraph from the study book, "Canada and the East" last meeting were read by the secretary. Reports of all committees was heard from. The W.A. presented the mission band with ten 10c memberships and paid their share on the furniture for the parsonage.

The meeting was turned over to Mr. Henderson for the election of officers. The W.A. decided to send the members a box of chocolates and cards to the elderly ladies cards. The officers were to meet at Mrs. John Hall's on Thursday evening to make out the programs for the coming year. Roll call was answered with the exchange of Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Charles Dempsey, who is moving to her new home, was presented with a lovely teacup from the W.A. Proceeds of the day were $14.39.

Officers as follows—honorary president, Mrs. Roy Wannamaker; co-presidents, Mrs. Allin Hall and Mrs. Ralph Stafford; vice president, Mrs. Chas. Dempsey; secretary, Mrs. Thos. Tompsett; assistant secretary, Mrs. Harold Ward; pianist, Mrs. Earl MacKay; assistant pianist, Mrs. Ross Robbin; social president, Mrs. Harry Adams; correspondent secretary, Mrs. Dickey; secretary-treasurer Mrs. Harry Adams; press reporter, Mrs. Leon Ward; visiting committee buying committee and auditors were all returned from last year.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Reed.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The December meeting of the Ivanhoe W.M.S. was held on Thursday evening in Beulah United Church.

The worship service was conducted by the President, Mrs. George Wood. A Christmas poem was read and a number of Christmas carols were sung. The roll call was answered by verse of Scripture containing the letter "J". This showed an attendance of 17 members and two visitors present. Minutes of the last meeting were read.

Mrs. Clifford Milt, the new president for the coming year, spoke a few words on behalf of the members, thanking Mrs. G. Wood for her wonderful work as president of the society for the last three years, and Mrs. Wood for the continued support of all members to help her in her new duties.

During the business period it was decided to send Christmas cards to all the sick, and shut-in members. A letter was read by the Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. S. Twiddy, giving the suggestions for the new year, and the missionary for prayer, Miss Beasie French, of Nova Scotia.

The program was conducted by Mrs. Hugh Malcolm. A worship centre, consisting of a cross and the open Bible, and lighted candles, surrounded with cedar boughs, formed an impressive group for the Christian service.

Ten members took part, each lighting a candle passing it to the next, showing how a missionary is the Gospel of Jesus Christ, is being taken to other countries. Members taking part were, Mrs. K. Bray, Mrs. Clifford Milt, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. A. Wood, Miss Doris Twiddy, Mrs. J. Cooney; Mrs. H. Lovelocke, Mrs. E. Reeson, Mrs. D. Reid, Mrs. M. MacMillan.

SCOTTS W.M.S.-W.A.

On Thursday last fifteen ladies met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Lott for W.M.S. and W.A. meeting. Mrs. Morley Sine called the meeting to order and presented the story of the first half of Chapter three of the study book "Entering With the Years". The theme was the "Christian Education" with its three agencies the home, the school, the church.

An incident was related pertaining to the life of a boy in Western Ontario and of how he struggled to find work and means of bringing about his life's ambition—that of entering the ministry. Finally he became a missionary to China and when evacuated in 1936-37 was given a job in Canada to serve and assist in the work of the United Church in evangelizing the world.

Christ Church A.Y.P.A. Holds Christmas Supper

Christ Church A. Y. P. A. celebrated this festive season with a supper and entertainment Wednesday evening, when 36 members enjoyed a delicious meal prepared by Haig Keller, assisted by Audrey Stewart's group.

After supper, the Rev. J. Grant Sparling conducted a short worship service in the chapel. Following this service the members sang Christmas carols, while the wash group washed the dishes.

An impromptu variety evening concluded the evening's entertainment. Minstrel songs were sung by Winnie Keller, Jean Greene, Bill Vallance, Ed Waterhouse and Doug. Tufford. Ed. Richards entertained the members with several selections on the piano, and accompanied Jim Reade, who played his harmonica for the group. During the rest of the evening the members danced and played bridge.

DESSERT PANCAKES.

The man who left a hundred dollar tip for a stack of buckwheat cakes preferred to remain anonymous.

The waitress, Mrs. Lucille Wiedingstraat of St. Paul, Minn., only knows that the customer ate his flip flaps, said "You should always be happy" and then departed leaving her a one hundred dollar bill.

There aren't many pancake eaters who can afford to express their satisfaction in such demonstrations. And there aren't many other dishes that can give the same exciting pleasure as warm light griddle cakes, resting under streams of golden maple syrup and yellow creamery butter.

In families of European descent it is often common to serve pancakes as a dessert course at the end of dinner or supper. French pancakes, known as crepes suzette, are often made without the usual accompanying eggs, merely rolled up with jelly or jam and served warm with powdered sugar. In Sweden, small round pancakes are served every Thursday night as a national dessert.

The objections to serving pancakes at the end of a meal are two: if you make them beforehand, they are cold when ready to be eaten or, if you make them after the main course has been served, there is a long intermissable wait before they are ready. Both objections can be overcome if you make small pancakes about 3 inches in diameter and if your batter recipe is for pancakes of a light, cakey texture. Such pancakes can be made before dinner and then be reheated for 5 minutes in a hot oven without making them tough or crusty.

Cream 1-4 cup butter or vegetable shortening until smooth. Gradually add 1-4 cup sugar, beating until smooth.

Separate the whites and yolks of 2 eggs. Beat yolks slightly and combine with 1 cup milk. Add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Sift together 1 cups previously sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

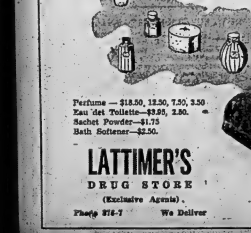
Sift together 2 cups previously sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1-2 teaspoon salt.

To the shortening mixture, add the milk and the dry ingredients alternately until a smooth batter is formed.

Beat 1-3 cup heavy cream until thick and fold into mixture. Beat the 2 egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Drop batter by heaping tablespoons onto a hot, lightly greased griddle. Brown on both sides.

When ready to serve, arrange cakes on a small shallow baking dish or pie plate. Place in a hot oven 425 degrees F. for 5 minutes. Serve with bar de duc (whole currant jelly) or any other preserved jelly or jam. Dust with powdered sugar just before serving.

MENU—Gumbo creole soup, broiled spring chicken on toast, Brussel sprouts with chestnuts, scalloped potatoes, dessert pancakes with bar le duc, coffee.



Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply. —Ed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Boy Friend Broke a Promise

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 and have been going with a boy 17 for four months.

About two weeks ago, this boy and I had a secret which we promised not to tell anyone, not even our best friends. A week later I found out that he had told his boy friend, and I got very mad to think that he had broken his promise. So I called him up and told him how I felt, and that I didn't want to have anything more to do with him. Now when we see each other we talk, as if we never went with each other before.

I still like this boy very much and want him back. How would I go about it?

S. R.

Dear S. R.:

It seems to me you put yourself right on the spot when you told this boy you didn't want anything more to do with him. If he took you up on it, you certainly can't blame him.

I don't think there would be anything you can do to mend matters now, aside from swallowing your own words and telling him that you are sorry you were so hasty and would like to be friends with him again. If he's willing to start all over, then you had better think before you speak, next time you disagree about something.

Of course I can't see why you are so anxious to hold on to a boy who breaks his word so easily, but that's your own affair. If you do become good friends again, however, you'd better be prepared not to trust him with any more secrets.

Thinks Her Mother is too Strict

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and my mother is very strict and won't let me have dates. When I go out with girls and friend says I should go with him. But I haven't received an invitation, and I'm sure I'd feel embarrassed to be at the reception, not having been invited. Mother says I should ask him to ask his cousin to invite me, and if I'm not invited, I should not go. (I have never met the bride or her family.) Please tell me what is right.

Olive M.

You and your mother are right . . . if your boy friend wants to have you go to the wedding with him, it is proper for him to ask his cousin either to send you an invitation or to write you a note or telephone you.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"And on Earth, Good Will".

In these rushed and rushing days before Christmas, when you are shopping or travelling or otherwise busy in public places, think those wonderful words of Christmas. Particularly powerful, particularly appropriate at this blessed season are all words of GOOD WILL . . . of cheer . . . of encouragement . . . of consideration for others . . . of kindness, of kindness, of kindness.

Husband and wife not sealed next to each other at dinner party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married last June, have just moved into our new house, and would like to begin to give small dinners (we figure we can have six guests, making eight at table) inviting first those who were so very kind and polite hospitable to us before we were married. My husband knows more about social form than I do . . . and he says that in making up plans we should not seat husband and wife next to each other. Right, Mrs. Beeckman?

A. G.

Right, Mrs. G.!

Telephone-answering etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I answer the telephone at home and the person calling asks to speak to a member of the family, should I ask what is calling? (This is to answer a discussion we had at table last evening!)

Marie

If there isn't any reason to find out who is calling, you needn't ask for the name, just saying, "Please hold the wire a moment. I'll call her (or him)." If you have been told to inquire, say, "May I ask who is calling, please?" And if there is a reason for asking (for example, if the member of your family is out or doesn't wish to be disturbed), the idea is to ask the question politely . . . that is, without seeming inquisitive. For example, "I'm sorry, Peggy is out. This is her sister. May I tell her who called, please?" Or, "Mother said she would be back shortly. Would you like to have her call you?"

Engagement present from Fiance to Fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've just become engaged. It isn't announced yet, and I have n't received my ring, but will next month. Is it correct for a girl to give her fiance an engagement present?

Flora

Yes, entirely correct . . . and often done. Sometimes the girl waits and gives her bridegroom a wedding present.

Ask for wedding invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

May my friend's cousin is being married soon . . . a wonderful, large, formal wedding in the Cathedral here and a reception afterward at a hotel. I'd adore to go to this wedding, and my boy come home late, she fumes.

I make my own money. What would you suggest?

D. H.

Dear D. H.:

Even though you do make your own money, I don't think it gives a 17-year-old girl the right to stay out too late whether she is with girls or with boys. And are you quite sure you haven't been staying out late with boys and telling your mother you were out with girls? You have to be fair with your mother, you know, if you want her to be fair with you.

Suppose you write me a little more in detail about this whole thing, so that I can understand better which of you is really at fault.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Is the best feller far afield and has he asked for your photograph to wear next to his heart? Wants to see if his Sweetie-pie is just as pretty as when he left home. Then you may be interested in learning about some good-looks rules that apply to photography.

More than one girl has put on the war paint, tested in a state of pleasant excitement in the studio, to be politely told to wash her face. Some photographers prefer to do the make-up job themselves, or have an attendant do it. There are little tricks necessary if results are to be the best obtainable.

Use powder lightly and omit rouge. Remember the shadow; if you lay it on according to your daily practice your face may appear gaunt and unnatural. Apply the lipstick deftly, forming a clear-cut outline; select a shade close to the natural coloring of the lips. Just before posing, moisten the lips so they will look soft. A touch of mascara on the eye lashes is a good idea. If you use the crayon on your eyebrows, do not form a straight line; do little short strokes the way the shafts emerge from the flesh.

A touch of blue shadow on the eyelids will make the eyes appear larger, more expressive, though the Young Thing probably already has enough. Some photographers apply a light film of brown grease paint to the eyelids.

Don't have your hair fingerwaved the same day. Attend to that matter the day before, so the set look will have disappeared and your locks will be soft and fancy free. Stick to your usual arrangement; don't experiment with a new haircut.

It is a mistake to wear a hat, no matter how chic and becoming it may be. Hats date one. Anyhow, it is you, not your millinery, in which the boy-friend is interested. He may treasure that picture of you in a hat some time hence, you won't want to hear him say "Look at the crazy lid she had on."

Wear the kind of clothes in which you are at ease. No all-dressed up look; that is fatal. A plain, simple frock is best, will give accent to your portrait. Jewelry, ornaments and furs do not add to the ensemble.

Infist upon a comfortable pose. If you feel rigid, the body under strain, you'll get a photograph that is a graven image of yourself.

Most important of all; get a good night's sleep before the big day. Have the appointment in the morning when you feel fresh and rested.

Fashion Flashes

TRIM AND slim lines mark a lovely fur coat, a Chesterfield of midnight blue Persian lamb, detailed with little navy blue velvet collar and piping on the turn-back cuffs.

NOTICE how the little fur touch is gaining in importance, making a change for a suit from the ubiquitous scarf fill-in. Navy blue dyed white fox is used for a neat little circlet that fastens at the side with a matching silk taffeta bow. Nice, too, draped on the muff-fashion.

SELF TRIM marks many of the newest and smartest of hats featured in the exclusive showings. A silvery white velour is used for a deep cap with quarter moon segments curled like small horns lightly stitched and gutwards at one side, side back and side of centre in front.

Wife Preservers

When buying a figured material the home dressmaker should see to it that the light is so used that there are no prints or stripes in the design which might not show when the fabric was flat on the counter.

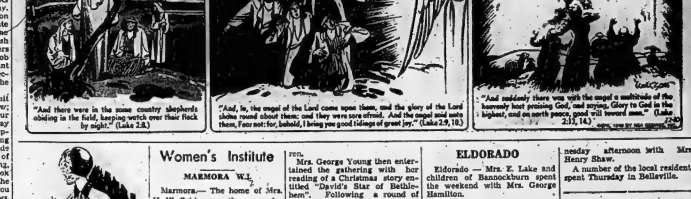
THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR

The Great Homecoming

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.



"There went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed." (Luke 2:1,3) Everyone was ordered to return to his home city to register.

"Joseph went up from Galilee unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem . . . to be taxed with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child." (Luke 2:4, 5)

While they arrived at Bethlehem the place was crowded with homecomers and there was no room for them in the inn. But the innkeeper put them up in the stable.

And it was here that Christ was born. "And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel." (Matthew 2:6.)

Souls in Rejoicing: The Shepherds

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night." (Luke 2:8.)

"And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy." (Luke 2:9, 10.)

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." (Luke 2:13, 14.)

Women's Institute

MARMORA W.I.

Marmora.— The home of Mrs. H. W. Sabine was the venue for the Christmas meeting of Marmora Women's Institute, held on Wednesday evening, with a large attendance of members under the presidency of Mrs. Eugene Brady.

A minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. M. Thomson, beloved member of the branch of many years standing.

Following the roll call, Mrs. W. G. Chrysler read the treasurer's report indicating finances in the General Fund to be sound and giving also a statement of the Town Hall renovation fund as operated by the Branch.

The secretary read a letter from the secretary of the Motor W.I. expressing the hope that the latter would be able to sponsor a presentation of the Kitchen Band early in the New Year.

A circular letter from Dorothy E. Fletcher, Provincial president, provided the gathering with some inspiring thoughts. An appeal for financial aid was received from the Sick Children's Hospital to be later given practical consideration.

A letter was received from the Public Relations officer of Shoe Manufacturer's Association offering four subjects that might be given individually at meetings or on one occasion, relative to foot health. An endeavour will be made to secure the material for the January meeting. In discussion on the matter, it was decided to invite the gentlemen for this meeting. The final letter to be read accompanied the Ontario Nutrition Bulletin.

The Branch next voted a grant of $50 to Marmora Public Library Board.

The report of the Sick Committee was given by Mrs. F. S. Sweet.

Program

An appropriate reading based on the monthly motto "Mure blessed to give than to receive", was given by Miss Grace Warrener.

Mrs. George Young then entertained the gathering with her reading of a Christmas story entitled "David's Star of Bethlehem". Following a round of Christmas carols, Mrs. P. Gray and Mrs. L. R. Rundle rendered the duet. "All my heart this night rejoices", and for the encore "Softly the Night is Blessing". The exchange of Christmas gifts as the last number on the program left its own charm to the occasion.

After the meeting closed the serving of refreshments by the committee in charge took place.

Mrs. F. Van Vlack returned to her home in Deseronto on Tuesday after being a guest for several weeks of her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Harrison and family, Cressy.

Mr. Don Demille, Agnes Street, has accepted a position with Prince Edward Motors.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Cary left on Thursday by motor to spend a few days in Buffalo, N.Y., and other points in the U.S. They expect to return home on Sunday.

ELDORADO

Eldorado — Mrs. E. Lake and children of Bannockburn spent the weekend with Mrs. George Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack McCann and boys were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shaw and family were supper hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaw, on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack McKenzie, of Madoc, also Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCoy, were dinner hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chambers, on Wednesday.

Mrs. C.D. McCann spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Henry Shaw.

A number of the local residents spent Thursday in Belleville.

TRENTON

Three Accidents Caused by Rain, Slippery Roads

Trenton (Special) — Local police reported another quiet weekend, investigating three car accidents along with their routine work. Rain and slippery pavement appeared to give the motorist trouble, but on the whole traffic was quite orderly in spite of the Christmas shopping rush.

There were the expected jumps in the downtown area, however traffic constables had the situation well in hand most of the day along front street, which has been a big headache in former years.

A car driven by Robert Graham, R. R. 4 and Gordon McGraw of Joseph Street collided at the corner of Dundas Street W., and Division Street causing slight damage to both vehicles.

Mrs. Alice Ives, 77, suffered head injuries, abrasions and bruises, the result of a motor mishap at the Henry Street and Dufferin Avenue intersection. The auto in which she was riding was operated by Gerald St. Hilaire of McLellan Avenue and Mrs. Mary St. Hilaire and Margaret St. Hilaire were riding with her at the time of the smash. The other vehicle was in charge of Sherman Terrill of Front Street. It was raining and the sky was overcast when the collision occured, the investigation revealed.

A car operated by James F. Day of King Street struck a vehicle driven by Frank Barry of Shuter Street when the latter pulled out from the curb in front of the Hydro Electric building into the path of the former machine. Slight damage resulted here.

Bitten By Dog

Six year old Peggy Frantz of 83 Byron Street was bitten by a large collie while playing outside the College Street Public School.

According to the police the dog's teeth tore behind the nail of the little girl's third finger of her left hand and she was attended by the school nurse and then taken home. The police are looking for the dog.

POSTPONEMENT INDICATED

Quebec, Dec. 19 —(CP)—Postponement was indicated Friday of the murder trial of J. Albert Guay, 32-year-old Quebec jeweller, arising from a September plane crash that killed 23 persons.

Missing Since Dec. 9th

Delibasich had been missing from his roominghouse here since Dec. 9. The single table he had operated since coming here from Timmins eight years ago was found abandoned on a Toronto street late Saturday.

Delibasich's disappearance was reported to city police Tuesday by George Arkoff, a shoemaker whose shop is close to the slain man's taxi stand. Since Delibasich was known to be in the habit of making visits to Timmins lasting several days, little concern was felt over his absence.

Investigation into the taxi operator's private life produced a description of a man with no intimate friends but with a reputation for generosity, who habitually carried $250-$300 in banknotes but never "flashed" his wealth.

The shoemaker said of Delibasich, who was unmarried and apparently had no relatives in Canada:

"I think he was pretty well fixed. He used to sit in his cab and spend a whole morning clipping coupons off victory bonds."

ers-in-chief, Field Marshals Albert Kesselring and Nikolaus Von Falkenhorst, who are serving war crime sentences there.

Manstein's face had remained impassive while the sentence was pronounced. His composure had been shaken only once earlier, when the court announced the charges on which he had been convicted.

Then his face blanched and he looked quickly up to the public gallery where his wife was sitting. He regained his poise, however, and quickly assumed a poker face.

He was the 238th German to be tried by British Military Courts for war crimes. The British have announced Manstein's trial ends war crimes prosecutions.

Among the charges Manstein was found guilty of was that of "disregarding his duty" to secure public order and to respect family honor, in connection with which large numbers of Jews and other Soviet citizens were shot, hanged, gassed and drowned by special SS troops in the area of his command.

He also was found guilty of failure to "secure humane treatment of Soviet prisoners of war, in consequence of which many of them died or were shot."

St. John's Mission Guild Given Delightful Party

Shannonville—On Thursday, St. John's Mission Guild, Shannonville, pastoral charge, was given a delightful party at the home of one of the oldest members, Mrs. John Bailey, Bridge Street East, Belleville.

After the opening devotional exercises which were taken by the minister, The Rev. E. M. Caldwell, the hostess led the group in a number of interesting games. Those receiving prizes were Mrs. George Corby, and Mrs. E. M. Caldwell.

Present at this delightful function were Rev. E. M. and Mrs. Caldwell, Miss Jessie Redner, Miss Bessie Hewitt, Mrs. Margaret Rose, Mrs. Hazel Grills, Mrs. Ivy Parm, Mrs. George Corby, Mrs. F. Sheppard, Mrs. Russell Babcock, Mrs. Donald Leeming, Mrs. Wm. Redner, Mrs. Clifford LaRue and Mrs. Harold Putman.

A buffet luncheon was daintily served by the hostess, bringing a pleasant gathering to a close.

SHANNONVILLE

Officers Elected at Annual Meeting of St. John's Mission

Excellent reports of the past year's work were received from the various officers of the several societies. All reported fair balances on hand.

Mrs. Cecil McFee gave the report of the Sunday School. Mr. William Leeming, the A.Y.P.A. report, Mrs. William Means, the Ladies' Guild report. The Women's Auxiliary report. The Woven by Mrs. Russell Babcock.

The financial report of the wardens was encouraging, showing all debts paid and small balance on hand.

At this meeting it was unanimously voted to call the new church to be built in 1950 in Parkwood Heights, St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill. Keen interest was shown in the plans for St. Margaret's, into which St. John's Mission will merge this coming year.

Officers elected for 1950 were as follows:—

Rector's Warden — Mr. William Leeming; Peoples' Warden — Mr. William Collyer; Delegate to Synod — Mr. John Exley; Organist — Miss Jennie Redner.

MARMORA

Marmora — Jimmie Cuddy entertained a number of his young friends at a birthday party on Thursday evening.

Mr. Bernard Hughes has accepted a position with Trenton Motors Limited of Belleville, one of the largest automobile dealers, and garage operators in Central Ontario.

Mr. George Madgett, formerly station agent at Southampton C. N. R. station, has been appointed station agent at Marmora Station, and he and Mrs. Madgett have taken up residence here.

SEARCH AREA FOR PLANE

Flin Flon, Man., Dec. 19 (CP) —Four aircraft Sunday searched the Lac La Ronge area 160 miles northwest of here for two brothers, overdue in their light monoplane.

George and Hawly Thompson, mining prometers, left Thursday noon to look at some mining claims near an unnamed lake. They were expected back Saturday.

A private plane piloted by Jimmy Symes of Flin Flon accompanied them on their flight, but turned back with magneto trouble. Symes, who flew over the lake Friday, reported the camp where they intended to stop over was deserted.

INSURANCE RATES INCREASE

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Rates for collision insurance on private automobiles are to be increased as much as 25 per cent in some categories on Jan. 1, the Canadian Underwriters' Association and the Independent Automobile and Casualty Insurance conference announced jointly Saturday.

Collision insurance will cost private drivers from 10.4 to 32 per cent more, the average increase being 14.7 per cent, the announcement said.

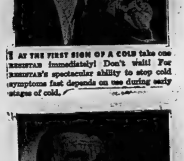
Now available without prescription! The spectacular new cold-fighting antihistamine formula you've heard about and read about!



RESISTAB
BRISTOL-MYERS' CLINICAL-PROVEN ANTIHISTAMINE

*HOW RESISTAB CAN CHECK COLD MISERY IN ONE DAY!

KILLS COLD MISERY IN ONE DAY!*

1 AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A COLD take one RESISTAB immediately! Don't wait! For RESISTAB's spectacular ability to stop cold symptoms fast depends on use during early stages of cold.

2 BEFORE EACH MEAL —and at bedtime— take another RESISTAB. Taken this way, RESISTAB strengthens your body's natural defenses against colds.

3 IN THE FIRST 24 HOURS RESISTAB may completely stop your cold! For in clinical tests, those who used RESISTAB at once got completely rid of their colds in an average of one day!

Handy "Pocket Tin" — 12 tablets
Carry an extra package as extra protection against colds.

RESISTAB is the identical cold-fighting formula that proved so successful in large-scale clinical tests!

You've probably read about, heard about the remarkable antihistamine tests! For antihistamines are now big news for everyone who suffers from colds.

But one all-important fact you may not know is this:

The identical formula used in important clinical tests was the RESISTAB formula. Yes, the RESISTAB formula.

Even when treatment was started on the second day, RESISTAB was found to stop cold symptoms within one to three days of treatment!

But frankly, to get the greatest benefits from RESISTAB, you must start taking it at once. After your cold has progressed as much as 48 hours, RESISTAB may give you some relief, but at this late stage neither it nor any other antihistamine can completely stop your cold.

So have RESISTAB handy at all times—at home, at work, in your pocket or purse. Start taking it the minute you feel a cold coming on—or have been exposed to someone else's cold! That's when RESISTAB can best help you to resist a cold!

RESISTAB is absolutely safe when used as recommended—even for children. Your druggist can sell it to you without prescription. See him—ask for clinical-proven RESISTAB TODAY!

"Bristol-Myers is a name I trust." says Mrs. Jane Abray of Toronto, Ontario.

"When I buy drug products for my family I buy the brands I know I can trust. And I've known and used Bristol-Myers' fine products for years. That's why I'm buying Bristol-Myers' new RESISTAB to guard my family against colds."

Tonight's the night when the Rockets Juniors hit the trail in quest of their group title. They face the sturdy Peterborough Triple-Links in the opening game of their grouping and start off what should be one of the most exciting Junior races seen here in many a moon. The kids will be at full strength and as the Peterborough kids are rated quite some pumkins up around their home town, it should be a nifty tilt. Coach Cowley will likely start his ace line centred by Captain Don Hogan, while the reliable Twing will be between the pipes. Let's go down and give the kids a hand, swing?

There's nothing wrong with the Diesel Electrics that a little real won't cure, if their performance against Canadoque last Friday night is a criterion. The team flattered all over the small ice surface, of the Gananoque rink with its natural ice and never at any time were they threatened with defeat. Jackie Wardhaugh and Don Barrett who like the larger ice surface were stymied by the close quarters and could not get going. But on the night's play the Dee-Kee's should have won by many more goals.

Tofsorrow night the fast - stepping Trenton Flyers who nalled the Northern Electric kiddies to the mast in the second game of the District League semi-finals, again clash with the glazier lads in the third and deciding game of the series to see who will meet either Rockets Juniors or CNR Diesels for the Ontario Intelligencer Trophy. Flyers roared back into winning ways last Thursday night when they banged the Northerns a decisive trimming while the Rockets also came into their own, defeating the Diesels in the first game. Diesels and Rockets clash Thursday night at Memorial Arena in a single tilt to decide their issue.

Kingston Nylons, weakened by the absence of Ken Murphy and Walter Gerwe, failed to play during the all Dominion Senior O. H. A. Senior B game and had to forfeit to Gananoque Rockets. Rockets were awarded the game by default. Nylons now should go to Springfield Indians.

The Indians knocked over Providences Reds twice during the weekend while the Blazers won their single encounter to move into one point ahead of the slipping Reds. Springfield is also only a single point behind the Blazers while New Haven Ramblers are three points off the pace.

The Reds went down 4-2 at Springfield Saturday and followed up a 6-4 decision Sunday. Buffalo blanked the lowly Hershey Bears 4-0 Sunday while the Ramblers lost their only weekend game against St. Louis Flyers 5-2.

Meanwhile in the League's Western section, Little Gil Mayer had quite a weekend in the Pittsburgh nets as he chalked up two shutouts while the Hornets handed St. Louis a 5-0 drubbing Saturday and then played to a scoreless tie with Cincinnati Mohawks Sunday.

The second leading Cleveland Barons split a pair of weekend encounters swamping Hershey 7-1 Saturday but dropping a 3-2 decision to Indianapolis Capitals Sunday. They now lead the runner-up St. Louis squad by 11 points.

There are no games scheduled tonight.

Big Seven

Ted Lindsay, scoring ace of Detroit Red Wings, holds top spot among National Hockey League scorers for the fifth straight week — but other N.H.L. sharpshooters are hot on his trail.

The Detroit leftwinger tallied one goal in two weekend games to stay on top with a 33-point total, but Chicago's Doug Bentley moved ahead to within two points of the leadership.

Crowding both Lindsay and Bentley is Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, the league's top goalgetter, who scored two assists during the weekend to hold down third place with 30 points. Sid Abel of Detroit slid from a second-place tie last week down to fourth place, two points behind Richard.

Buffalo Bisons Find Themselves Alone in First

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons find themselves alone in first place in the American Hockey League's Eastern Division today as a large share of the credit for the Bisons' current high standing should go to Springfield Indians.

The Indians knocked over Providences Reds twice during the weekend while the Bisons won their single encounter to move one point ahead of the slipping Reds. Springfield is also only a single point behind the Bisons while New Haven Ramblers are three points off the pace.

The Reds went down 4-2 at Springfield Saturday and followed up a 6-4 decision Sunday. Buffalo blanked the lowly Hershey Bears 4-0 Sunday while the Ramblers lost their only weekend game against St. Louis Flyers 5-2.

N.H.L. Teams Keep Pace With Each Other During Weekend, all Gain Even Split

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Every team in the National Hockey League won one and lost one during the weekend, and the big Christmas jamboree resumes Wednesday with standing unchanged.

Noteworthy in the six games was the narrow victory by Montreal Canadiens over the leading Detroit Red Wings, and the walloping that Chicago Black Hawks handed Toronto Maple Leafs on Saturday night.

The Hawks beat Toronto 7-1 Saturday, making the Stanley Cup champions look like secondraters. Canadiens edged the Wings 4-3 and New York Rangers beat Boston Bruins 3-1 on brilliant goaltending by Chuck Rayner.

On Sunday the Hawks lapped more like their old selves, with burly Turk Broda recording his fifth shutout of the season as Leafs defeated Rangers at New York by 2-0. The Bruins beat Canadiens 4-3 and Detroit recovered their stride to defeat the Hawks 5-2 at Chicago.

The loss at Montreal Saturday night was only the second that the Wings have suffered outside Detroit this season. Howie Rollet's goal midway through the final period was the winner. Olbrior Gendron and Scorers were Leo Gravelle, Billy Reay, and Kep Mosdell, while Ted Lindsay, Lee Fogolin and Jerry Couture scored for Wings. Maurice Richard, leading goal-getter, missed his injured centreman Elmer Lach but contributed two assists.

Had 35 Shots

At Boston Saturday the Bruins had 25 shots at the goal compared to the Rangers' 11, but only rookie Phil Maloney could beat goalie Rayner, firing a rebound from veteran Woody Dumart. Meantime Rangers piled up three goals by Tony Leswick, Nick Mickoski and Edgar Laprade.

Ben Guidolin spored two of the Chicago goals at Toronto Saturday, the others being divided between Jim Conacher, Red Hamill, Gus Bodnar, Metro Prystai and Bert Olmstead. Harry Watson was the lone Toronto scorer.

After that dismal showing the Leafs were a different team against the Rangers last night, Broda had 31 saves, 17 of them in the last period, for his shutout. Ray Timgren, his injured left hand in a cast, scored the first goal on a picture play after getting the puck inside the blue line, and Joe Klukay got the other in the last minute of play when Rangers had pulled Rayner and sent six men up in a blistering attack on Broda.

Canadiens' only goal was the first one of the game at Boston, by Kenny Reardon in the first period. Woody Dumart tied it up and Stan Bettio's first major league goal was the winner, with captain Milt Schmidt adding another for good measure.

At Chicago the Wings appeared to have come out of their mild slump, having dropped four out of six starts before they edged the Hawks last night. Jimmy Peters, Jim McFadden, Red Kelly, Leo Reise and Gordie Howe all scored for Detroit while Jim Conacher, Bill Mosienko and Bill Gadsby did the honors for Chicago.

Oshawa Generals Show More Drive With New Players

(By The Canadian Press)

It may take time to prove who got the best of the king-size player swap between Oshawa Generals and Barrie Flyers—but right now the Generals like the taste of the first test.

They put sweaters on five former Barrie players Saturday and then defeated the Flyers 5-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" game at Oshawa. The victory ended a monotonous Oshawa losing streak.

In three other Junior "A" games during the weekend, both Toronto St. Michael's Majors and the high-flying Toronto Marlboros were held to tie. Stratford Kroehlers held the Majors 2-2 while Toronto Spitfires deadlocked the Marlies 4-4. In the other game, Guelph Biltmores downed Galt Black Hawks 6-3.

An emergency meeting of the O.H.A. executive Saturday ruled that nine games won by Windsor while using ineligible players must be replayed. The 18 points will be decided by extra-point games between Windsor and the losing clubs. The players in question are Glen Hall, Erwin Grosse, Eddie Zoss and Bob Turner.

At Oshawa, five players from Barrie made an appearance for the Generals and Eddie Crouch was in goal and Earl Ingall, Ric Caron, Dario Nicoli and Bob Golden were defence partners. Doug Towers, Gord Warner and Reg Campbell were in the Barrie lineup.

First Meeting

It was the first meeting of the two clubs since the wholesale trade last week—one day before D - Dec. 15 deadline.

The Generals clicked for the only score of the opening frame. Bill Berwick potting the goal. Lionel Barker's Jesse Ally tied it in the second.

Oshawa had their big guns booming in the last stanza, counting four times while holding the visitors to a single. Denny Power, Ben Chaoman, Enso Zanatta and Moe Odard were the General marksmen while Doug Towers potted one for Barrie.

Stratford carried most of the play against St. Michael's but couldn't get the puck really past Lorne Howes in the Collegiate's net. Dinny Flanagan gave the Kroehlers a 1-0 first-period lead but Red Ingoldsby evened it up in the middle session.

Classy Irish centre star, William Marshall, got St. Michael's into the lead in the final frame. Pinky Lewis's charges came flying right back and two minutes later Roy Leckie had rapped in the deadlocking marker.

Windsor and Marlboros split tallies in the first period of their game. George Armstrong doing the honors for the league leaders and Glen Skov tying it for Windfor.

Eddie Stankiewicz accounted for the only score of the second period, giving Windsor a 2-1 lead and Skov opened the third frame with his second goal to put the Spitfires later up.

Three in Row

The Toronto crew rapped in three in a row to take the lead. George Armstrong, Danny Lewicki and Jack McKenzie pulling the trigger. Armstrong's goal was his second. Windsor fought back Tigers and a little more than a minute later Earl Reibel deadlocked the contest with the games final counter.

Guelph went all alone into fourth-place with their win over Galt. The clubs split scores in the opening stanza, Ken Green scoring in a single for Galt and Frank Bathgate doing the same for Guelph.

Bathgate pumped in another Andy's pass to open fes- tivities in the middle session. Galt came flying back with a pair to go ahead, Bronco Horvath scoring the winner through both times. Don Oberholtzer pushed Guelph back up the ladder with the second period's final counter.

The Biltmores blew the lid off in the final, counting a trio while good defensive work held the Black Hawks to a goose egg. Don Bellringer and the Bathgate brothers were the scorers.

One game is carded for the senior "A" circuit Tuesday night, Marlboros travelling to Hamilton. In the only junior contest, Marlboros play at Galt.

Spitfires Lose Nine Games by O.H.A. Decision

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP) —The Ontario Hockey Association Saturday ruled as "no contest" nine games won by the second-place Windsor Spitfires of the O.H.A. Junior 'A' League while using more than two imports.

The 18 points Spitfires gained in the games will be decided in eight multi-point scheduled games with the teams they defeated. Seven of these will be four-point games, and the eighth will be a six-point game. Normally, two points are awarded for a win.

The decision was reached at an emergency meeting of the O.H.A. executive at which the Windsor Club was asked to show cause why it should not be penalized for using two illegal imports.

Spitfires were accused of using four branch-ir-branch imports—players coming from a league outside the O.H.A. for 10 games, of which they won nine. Regulations permit only two such imports.

Players involved are Glen Hall, Erwin Grosse, Leslie Jons and Bob Turner. The O.H.A. said Hall and Grosse had signed Junior A contracts, Jons and Turner Junior B forms.

Later, however, Spitfires, operators of both teams, moved the Juniors to A club and used them in the 10 games.

No team protested the action but O.H.A. president J. J. (Tiny) McFayden investigated the case as soon as he learned of it, he said.

In the event of a tie at the end of the season, points scored in the "no contest" games will be used to determine standing, the Association decided. Ties are settled by adding the total goals scored for and against a team together, and dividing goals scored for into the total.

Lloyd Pollock, Spitfires' manager, told the executive he "acted in good faith using the players." He said he interpreted the rules to mean he could use any two imports from another league, but that he could use as many players belonging to his own organization as he wished.

Spitfires will play a six-point game with Galt Jan. 21, and four-point games with Galt Jan. 11, Barrie Feb. 15, Stratford Jan. 25, Marlboros Jan 4, Guelph Jan. 28 and Feb. 1, and Toronto St. Michael's Feb. 20.

Psychologist Being Hired By the Browns

St. Louis, Dec. 19. — (AP) The owners of St. Louis Browns, willing to try anything to improve the club's position, have come up with a psychologist.

He is Dr. David F. Tracy of New York, author, lecturer and specialist in metaphysics.

Dr. Tracy, a former athlete himself, convinced president Bill Dewitt that he can do things toward building the players' confidence and boosting their morale. He has been hired for four weeks at the $250 spring baseball training season.

The psychologist will have a free hand at the Burbank, Calif., training base in his efforts to instill confidence in the players. He will also concentrate on teaching the hole to relax and overcomes tension.

"After I teach the players how to relax," Dr. Tracy told Dewitt, "they will automatically play better by the league level. With my treatments, the club should finish and may even climb to fourth."

The club finished seventh in the American League season.

"Dr. Tracy explained to us," Dewitt said, "that under the stress of a hard-fought game a player tenses up. Errors result—psychologically, sliding and bunting should be the mental stumbling bock, gets at the bottom of this trouble and enables to combat these tensions the minute they develop."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Dec. 19. (AP) — The baseball rule-makers, who tried so hard last week to find a way to curb "trick-ball" players at second base, found one dissenter in 80-year-old Jack Doyle... Jack, the oldest active scout in the business, was known as "Trading Jack" when he played ball because of his base-running ability . . . "You can't pass a rule about that," he protested during the lobby. "It's a part of the game to try to break up those double plays. Even if a fellow is out, he can't hold up once he has committed himself to a slide. He'd hurt himself that way . . . it's just baseball. You have baseball and that's what the players and fans like." . . . Doyle listened patiently while umpire Bill Summers explained the rules committee's idea was to stop unnecessary sliding or running into a fielder who was nowhere near the base . . . "Well, I'm not sure I call that interference," Jack conceded. "But I think young fellows like rough, aggressive games."

Major League Doorman

Lynn Patrick, New York Rangers coach, took his 3 year old son, Craig, to see a hockey game the other night, it was his first, and the boy enjoyed his family after a close and exciting game, he asked the youngster if he had seen daddy at the garden . . . "yes, daddy," replied Craig, "You open and close the gate."

Napoleon Shoulda Known

The National Basketball Association has just issued a "directive" to officials telling them how to get to Waterloo, Iowa . . . it says, roughly, to take a train to Tama, la...go to "a nearby feed store" and ask for Mr. Scandeo, a farmer who'll gladly drive them 40 miles to Waterloo for six bucks ($10 for two) and a free ticket to the game . .

Montreal, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Anybody who has followed these last few National Hockey League seasons closely need hardly ask who is usually the nimble fellow walking Montreal's streets these days with the aid of crutches.

Of course! It's Elmer Lach.

And this latest in his long series of injuries—now its' a deep skate cut on the foot—has Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson to dig up a new name for the "Nice Kenvile kid." He calls him "Latch the Luckless."

Then Fargie recals some of the hard going that has dogged brittle but courageous Elmer and which, left him so despondent at last season's end that he decided to quit hockey. Fargie mused his mind but he hasn't dodged the injury line by any means.

Ferguson recalls that Lach had an arm almost torn from the socket at the start of one season but came back to lead the league in scoring, and became an expert golfer as well. I guess in which you need a lot of power in your left arm.

Last year he had his cheek crushed in by a butt-end, and had to wear a sort of cage over it for weeks. Prior to that there was a skull fracture which they thought would be dangerous for him to play again. But he came back to play.

Last season he had his jaw shattered, was laid up in hospital for weeks, existing on soup and other fluids.

He came back to play but the jaw got injured again and the teeth had to be removed. He wanted to play in the Stanley cup semi-finals against Detroit Red Wings last season but was unable to because of his injuries.

Fargie and Lach have had finding himself again when he met with last Thursday's mishap.

Sammy Snead Captures Vardon Trophy for '49

(By The Canadian Press)

Sammy Snead, the sweet-swinger from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Saturday at Pinehurst officially was crowned golf's top money-winner and captor of the coveted Vardon trophy in 1949.

The Professional Golfers' Association, which recently proclaimed Snead "golfer of the year," calculated that Sammy amassed $31,593 as he won six tournaments and finished second or third in seven others.

The double grab of money-winning and Vardon laurels was a repeat of Snead's performance in 1938 when he collected $19,- 534 (quite a lofty sum in those pre-inflation days) and won Vardon honors by a substantial margin.

Snead is the second golfer to win the Vardon trophy twice or more. Ben Hogan, sidelined his year because of injury, won it four times, in 1940-41-46.

Four Canadian swimming records were set Saturday night at Vancouver in a meet entered by members of the British Empire swimming team. Leo Portlance of Ocean Falls, B.C., swam the men's half-mile freestyle in 10:03.8 to set the old mark of 10:53.4, made in 1934 by Frank Turner of Vancouver.

Key McNamee of Vancouver won the 200-yard junior women's freestyle in 2:19.8 to beat a 1937 mark of 2:20.2 made by Mary Pawsley of Vancouver. Miss McNamee also went the 220-yard free-style distance in 2:35.1, first, and the mark of 2:36.4 hung up in 1935 by Toronto's Irene Pirrie.

Dorothy Cook, not a B. E. member, established a new time of 3:27.9 for the junior 440-yard freestyle. The old mark was 3:38.6.

New York Yankees Saturday inked first-baseman Dick Kryhoski to Detroit Tigers for outfielder Dick Wakefield. It was a straight player transaction with no cash involved, said Red Patterson, Yankee public relations director.

At Agua Caliente, Mex., North America's ace jockey, Johnny Longden, Sunday lost a horse race here to a woman rider, Mrs. Wanita Davis. The 32-year-old hornswoman, a veteran of western county fair riding, brought her mount home a length and three quarters ahead of Longden's in the six-furlong match race.

She was up on three-year-old Nasturtium, carrying apprentice handicap weight of 118 pounds. Longden rode Grey Spook, another three-year-old, toting 122 pounds.

The University of Rochester opened their 1949-50 basketball season Saturday night with a 51-43 victory over the University of Toronto before a crowd of 2,- 000. Winless Toronto, with a record of one win and four losses, made a game of it during the first half, which ended with Rochester leading 29-25.

Dorothy Strabac is awaiting official recognition from the Canadian Olympic Council for a perfect game —450—rolled at Hamilton Thursday in a ladies' five-pin league game. The game was rolled under C.B.A. rules which allow washouts on the foul line.

C.B.A. official said if the game is officially recognized it will go into the records as the second perfect game bowled by a woman in Ontario.

St. Paul Saints Still Sliding Toward Cellar

(By The Associated Press)

St. Paul Saints still are sliding downhill in the United States hockey league standings.

Four weeks ago they were top hands in the loop. Today they are next to the bottom.

Louisville's 4-3 victory Sunday night was the fourth straight loss for St. Paul. Bob Thorpe scored two of Louisville's goals and Ian Mackintosh both of the Saints' goals.

Omaha tied Kansas City 5-5 and climbed into a tie with the Mohawks for third place.

Kansas City had 2-0 edge in the second period and finished that session in front 4-3. Then they found themselves trailing 5-4 after Bert Giesbrecht and Bill Folk scored for Omaha in the last period. Mark Black managed to tie the score for Kansas City at 13:17.

In Saturday games Omaha knocked off St. Paul 7-3, Minneapolis defeated Louisville 6-3, and Tulsa downed Kansas City 4-1.

Calgary Wants Change in Issuing Player Cards

Calgary, Dec. 19. (CP)—The Stampeders football club is going to "screen" for a change in the Canadian Rugby Union's system of issuing player registration cards, President Tom Brook said today.

As things stand now, C.R.U. cards are not issued until August—which means a player cannot be definitely signed by a club until that time. Brook said it leaves the way open for doctest-dog raiding tactics between Eastern and Western Canada football outfits.

Although players in the West have signed to W.I.F.U. cards early in the year, there is nothing to prevent an Eastern Canada Club from offering a "signed" player a better proposition. This stealing it's possible until August when all players are signed to clubs affiliated with the C.R.U.

Brook said the Calgary Club will demand that the C.R.U. issue player resignation cards right after the start of a new year.

Coach Les Lear wants it even better. He said "we should be able to offer players now with us C.R.U. cards to sign before the present season is over.

"Under the present setup we can spend a lot of money on a half dozen players during spring training," said Brook, "then have other clubs go to work on them and try and sign them for the playing season."

The Stampede president said Calgary will also plump for seven American imports instead of the six now permitted for C.R.U. playoff series.

Sports Shorts From Britain

London — (CP) — If you want to send your boy to Eton, you have to enter the little fellow in the school lists while he's still a baby. And you want to run a horse in one of Britain's classic races, you have to nominate it as a yearling.

More than 2,000 colts and fillies have been named for the 1951 classics. Probably fields will be the usual 'size; generally about 19 or 20 animals contest the events But the increased number of entries seems to indicate an upturn in the British bloodstock industry.

The Derby, premier blue-ribbon event, closed with a record entry of 448, shading the 1949 high of 417. There are 431 nominations for The Oaks, 433 for the St. Leger, 303 for the Two Thousand Guineas and 402 for the One Thousand Guineas.

For the 1951 Derby, the King has nominated Reprimand, by Court Martial out of Feola, and an unnamed Hyperion colt. The Princess Royal has entered Brigade of Wartime Derby-winner Watling Street. The Aga Khan has 13 entries and Marcel Boussac, French textile magnate, 14.

In The Oaks the King has four entries and Princess Elizabeth and Princess Royal one each. Princess Elizabeth's filly is yet named, is by Stardust out of Belizma. Winston Churchill has entered his filly Cybarine.

His Majesty has entered three for the Leger—Reprimand, an unnamed colt by Hyperion out of Fair Profit and an unnamed filly by Bois Roussel out of Fairy Godmother. The Princess Royal has nominated Brigitta.

Freddie Mills, world light-heavyweight champion who is organizing his own training routine for his title defence against Joey Maxim here Jan. 24.

Manager Ted Broadribb announced that ferocious Freddie plans to do everything his own way for a change.

"He reckons that he has been boxing long enough to know how to look after himself now' said Ted. 'He has already begun light training."

The former boxing-booth scrapper, with the keenest interest in the ring and the big smile outside it won't stage any public workouts.

"That doesn't mean Freddie will train behind locked doors' explained Broadribb. "But Freddie feels he has given the public a fair deal in this matter in the past and only those connected with the training camp see him train for the Maxim fight."

None Injured When Airliner Crash Lands

London, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A British airliner with 19 persons aboard made a safe crash landing today after its undercarriage jammed. None of those aboard was injured.

The twin-engined plane, A British European Airways Viking took off from Northolt airport at London at 9:31 A.M. (4:31 A.M. EST) for Brussels with six passengers and a crew of four.

The pilot's message said one wheel of the undercarriage failed to retract.

The airways ordered the plane to circle over a private airfield at nearby Weybridge, in Surrey, until its gas supply was nearly exhausted and then to try to crash land unless the jammed wheel had been shaken loose in the meantime.

A low gas supply would reduce the danger of explosion.

The fuel was expected to be used up at about 1 P.M. (8 A.M. EST).

FIVE KILLED BY DEADLY FUMES

Montreal, Dec. 17 — (AP) —Deadly coal gas seeped through a small house undetected Friday killing a 29-year-old mother and her four children. Dead are Mrs. Joseph Lapointe, French war bride, and her children: Michael, 6; Francis Louis, 5; Jacqueline, 1, and Teddy, five months.

INJURED MAN FLOWN TO HOSPITAL

Montreal, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Clarence Cain, 20, was flown here Friday night from Greenwood, N. S., by an RCAF Lancaster to be treated in hospital for a spinal injury. Cain was severely injured Friday when crushed under a tree on his father's farm at Bath, N. B. His injuries could not be treated in New Brunswick or Nova Scotia hospitals.

SHARE YOUR JOY THIS CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a festive, friendly season. Beneath all its gaiety and warmth, its greetings and sparkling decorations, Christmas means the joy of sharing. To most of us it is a wonderful season, but for those who are less fortunate Christmas can be a real heartache. An invitation to dinner to someone who is lonesome, a toy for some needy youngster, food and clothing for a family that has met misfortune—such little things as these give life to the Christmas spirit . . . and to the spirit of "Good Citizenship".

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge players are notorious for talking too much. Not only on subjects foreign to the game, But also about the values their hand may be holding at the moment.

When partner-does not assist a suit, the suit should not be bid again unless it is rebiddable. When is a suit rebiddable? You can tell very easily if you know when a suit is biddable.

A suit is biddable if it contains four cards with two faces, or five cards with one face, or six cards of any kind; or better. These are the true basic biddable suit requirements.

When a biddable suit is mentioned and partner assists it, the assumption is that enough are in the pair. The combination thus shown by the partnership will give them enough trumps.

Therefore, either partner may bid the suit again and again with tricks enough for the raises. Neither needs any more in the suit. All they need are tricks enough for any increases in number.

But suppose partner does not assist the suit. Then the original bidder of the suit must not bid that suit again unless it is strong enough to rebid; unless it is rebiddable.

Add an honor card (ten or higher) to a biddable suit and it is rebiddable. Thus, K Q J 2 add the ten and you have Q J 10 9 2, a rebiddable suit. Add the ten to 7 5 4 3 and it is rebiddable.

Are you ever in doubt as to whether your suit is rebiddable? Then hide the lowest honor in it. If the balance is biddable suit is the entire holding in it is rebiddable.

Look at this hand:

♣K 4

Are both suits rebiddable? No. Only the spade suit is. The heart suit needs another honor. Players lack basis in too many cases.

Movie Column

Never has there been such a terrific turnover in filmdom matrimony as in 1949.

Most sensational of the marriages came May 27 when Rita Hayworth and Aly Khan exchanged gold rings in the town hall of Vallauris, France. This merger of Hollywood glamor and the riches of the Orient captured the world's interest.

Another European wedding ranked with that one for excitement. While Italian mobs screamed "Ty Ty Ty" erstwhile actress Linda Christian became the bride of Tyrone Power in Rome. The ceremony took place Jan. 27, just eight hours before Annabella's California divorce from Power became legal.

Top Bachelor Topples

Jennifer Jones married her boss David O. Selznick, at Genoa, Italy, July 13. Greer Garson took another fling at married life with Texan Buddy Fogelson. Rudy Vallee, 48, wed Eleanor Kathleen Norris, 21, a psychology graduate.

Mickey Rooney began his third marriage with Martha Vickers. Angela Lansbury and Peter Shaw found happiness. Parson after the Vicar of her family church in London to perform the ceremony she being a divorcee.

Marital Splits

But the marital splits were just as loud and numerous. Biggest bombshell was the break between Ingrid Bergman and Dr. Peter Lindstrom following her Stromboli flight with director Roberto Rossellini.

Almost as thundering was the split of Shirley Temple and Onslow Agar. The fable of their storybook marriage was shattered when she aired her troubles in a divorce court.

That thought intrigued me this week as I watched a bunch of oldtimers gather to honor Cecil B. DeMille, who began shooting the first feature picture 36 years ago.

There were many stars who were national idols 30 and 20 years ago, but are just half-remembered names today. I asked some of them how they left the Hollywood scene.

Francis X. Bushman, dashing hero with the classic profile, said he was ruined by the disclosure that he had a family.

"It wasn't so bad that I got married," he remarked, "but the real blow was that I had five kids! Women had been writing me to marry them and naturally they were outraged by the news. I was finished.

A Pioneer

"Nowadays movie stars can have large families. They doesn't affect their popularity, I had to be the pioneer."

Mae Murray, once the epitome of glamor, told a more personal story for her screen retirement.

"I had risen to the heights," she said. "I could go no higher. So I decided to leave it all behind and listen to my soul for awhile."

Wallace Reid, once one of the highest-paid star of all time: "I had saved $4,000,000 and I decided to quit and enjoy it. I wanted to go back to the stage and do the things I had always yearned to do. Then the crash of '29 wiped me out and I had to go back to pictures. By then, it was too late to take over where I had left."

Never Quit

Herbert Rawlinson, one-time matinee idol: "When you reach a certain age, the face changes, the hair turns color and you are a different person. When I was around 35, I found I couldn't play romantic leads any more. So I went back to the stage. When I returned to pictures my hair was white and I began playing character."

Ramon Novarro, famed for "Ben Hur": "In those days, you were a romantic hero and you couldn't change your character. In time, you run out of rules and there was nothing left for you to do but get out."

Mark Baby Point, Explorer There

First Saw Lake

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)— The spot from which French explorer Etienne Brule first saw Lake Ontario in 1615 has been marked. A bronze plaque prepared by the York Pioneers' Historical Society was unveiled Sunday at nearby Baby Point. The metal square is set in a huge granite boulder. Brule, a youthful scout sent out from Quebec by Champlain, was one of the earliest explorers of the Great Lakes area. He is believed to be the first white man to see Lake Superior.

SHANNONVILLE

Holy Trinity Anglican Church Elects Officers

Shannonville—After the "Service of Evensong" last Sunday the annual vestry meeting of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Shannonville was held in the church building.

A good congregation was present to hear the reports of the year's work and to elect officers for the coming year.

The rector, the Rev. E. M. Caldwell in his report spoke in appreciation of the services of Mr. Arthur Long and Mr. Joseph Huff, and of the fine co-operation given by all during the year.

He reported 53 services held in the church with the average attendance of 40. Fifteen young folks were confirmed by the archbishop at his visit to the parish in August. There were 19 baptisms and one wedding.

Mr. Caldwell expressed gratitude that the stipend had been raised to the minimum expected of a self supporting parish.

Best Year In 15

Mr. J. Huff in his financial report spoke of the year of 1949 as the best year in the 15 years he had been warden. He reported the new roof and structural repairs on the church, had been fully paid for; all bills had been paid. The missionary allocation had been met in full and a good balance was on hand. Mr. Huff expressed his desire not to be returned to the office as people's warden. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to him by the rector and the congregation for his untiring efforts over the past 15 years.

The report of the Ladies' Guild was given by the president, Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald, and the treasurer Mrs. Gordon Johnson. This report showed a good year's work About $900 had been taken in, extreme renovation, and repairs had been made to the rectory. Accounts had been fully met and a splendid balance was on hand.

Hunter Crestfallen As Prize Deer Head is Stolen

Wojnar has been hunting deer in season for more than five years. This year he bagged a nine-point buck and entered it in the annual buck deer contest run by Frank Ettinger.

Ettinger gives two prizes each year—for the first deer killed and for the heaviest.

Wojnar brought his kill in first. The buck, along with eight others, was hung on a rack outside Ettinger's store to await the judging Sunday.

The hunter still was indisputably eligible for the prize for bringing in the first buck of the season.

That's just the trouble— the prize for the first deer is a free mounting of the head.

CIRCUS ELEPHANT, WILD, IS SHOT BY SOLDIERS

Preston, Lancashire, England, Dec. 19 — (Reuters)—A three-ton circus elephant went wild on a train near here, smashed the sides of its truck, and injured a Swiss bear trainer. A detachment of soldiers from a nearby barracks shot the elephant dead. The bear trainer, 22-year-old Auguste S. Natsche, struggled to soothe the elephant and was fined about in the shattered truck. He was ruled unfit to continue his work.

AT THE McCARTHY — No sarong for Dottie Lamour in this hilarious thriller, "The Lucky Stiff," which arrives today at the McCarthy Theatre. Brian Donlevy and Claire Trevor are also featured.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie stayed at my house all nite, and after supper we started to tell pop about the new merder mistery she just finished saying. It's all bilt on zyko analysis, William. In the end they hipnotize the merderer, and a persons zyko annalist asks him unconscious questions and finds out that irresistable habit of killing other people was caused by an undeserved punishment that he received when he was a very small child. And that's so true, William. The first time the sed I said, Yes, my mother had zyko annalists do je to make you remember your extreme childhood, and that tells them everything, ma said.

Giving me a good idea, and I said to Artie, Hay Artie, let's play zyko annalits. You be a famous zyko annalist and I'll be your patient trying to find out what makes me do so many crazy things.

Okay, patient, what kind of things do you do? Artie said, and I said, Well, for instance, I cant resist tripping up old ladies to see if anything will brake, and for instance whenever I pass a bank full of money I always run in and grab a handful.

That's to, bad, did anything happen when you were too young to hardly remember? Artie said, leff, saying to me, He's got you there, mother.

my picture taken with no clothes on, and it's still in our fotograph album for people to see, and she wont le me take it out.

While then pop started to laff, saying to me, He's got you there, mother.

No he hasn't either, and if anything happens to that sweet dar ing innocent picture it will be a sad day in his life, I can tell him that, ma said.

The result being nuthing will probble happen to it.

U.S. Protestants To Hear More of Church Unity

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 19 — (AP) — From today on, American Protestants are going to hear more and more about a thing called church unity.

For the first time in the history of the country, a day-to-day campaign will be under way to create a single protestant church in the United States in some fashion yet to be decided.

That was the result of the conference on church union which ended here Friday after months of preparation and three days of actual sessions.

The conference didn't rush things—it didn't come up with an actual 'plan for union," but rather a "plan for a plan.'

Royal Road to Unification

Instead of a hard-and-fast plan for a protestant merger, the conference gave its name to a permanent, official organization that will try to find the royal road to unification during the next year and present it at a new conference early in 1951.

Seven churches with more than 14,000,000 members sponsored the conference, and seven other churches and the four great interchurch councils lent them moral support by sending observers. American Protestantism as a whole has nearly 45,000,000 members.

Methodist Bishop Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, a veteran of the long methodist struggle for unification, was named to lead the conference as chairman of the continuing executive committee.

"This is one of the most important Protestant meetings ever held in the United States," he said.

Fresh Union Ideal

Here is how the new machinery will work in pushing the merger idea on a national scale.

The permanent conference on union will enlist seven members inter-church councils will have two consultants each.

This will be the general executive body.

Under it will be another committee with two members from each of the sponsoring churches. Other churches interested in merger may also join it.

This is the group that will draw up the plan for union.

But before any final action is taken, the conference will send representatives to many protestant denominations.

These representatives will listen to what the individual churches have to say and carry their words back to the conference on union.

Married Women In UK May Deal With Inheritances

London, Dec. 19 (CP)—Married women in Britain now may deal as they please with any inheritances they receive, provided there are no special trust provisions.

A bill eliminating a medieval restriction on the freedom of married women to manage their own affairs was given royal assent at the final session of parliament Friday.

The heiress bill does away with "restraint upon anticipation"—an ancient legal practice designed originally to prevent a wife's money from being appropriated and misused by an unscrupulous husband. Under this arrangement, a woman was prevented, if she married, and as long as she remained married from disposing of the capital or her property or from charging th. income in any way before it was received.

History of Legislation

In 1935 parliament adopted legislation removing the restraint, but the measure was not retroactive so it did not affect inheritances received before that date. The bill which became law Friday makes it retroactive.

During discussion of the bill in the House of Commons Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross explained that the former restriction left older married women in the position of being unable to use their property as they thought best, while their younger and less experienced sisters could do as they liked.

At that time Sir Hartley said passage of the bill would mean that married women, simply because of their marriage, would no longer remain grouped, "as they are now in legal text books along with certain infants and lunatics as persons under a special disability."

It would mean that the happiness and future of these women would not be monopolized by a dead hand stretching out from the grave," he said.

The method of leaving money in discretionary trust is not affected by the bill.

GIRLS WELL PAID

Joliette, Que., Dec. 17 (CP) — Police Chief Valmore Lapierre said Friday night he learned "from a confidential source" that Windsford Parsons of Sarnia, Ont., and Olive Lundell, Toronto, received "$50 a week each" for distributing Jehovah's Witnesses literature.

He told The Canadian Press in a telephone interview that the two girls had tried to "indoctrinate" him in his office the day before they were taken to Montreal by two men Wednesday.

When he told them he knew they were being paid for their work in distributing the sect's literature, "neither of the girls denied it," the police official said.

Pictorial Revives Question Over Windsors' Status

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Thirteen years, almost to the day, have elapsed since youthful King Edward VIII broadcast the fateful announcement of his abdication for love of Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

The London Sunday Pictorial has revived the matter with the pungent declaration that the now Duke of Windsor is "virtually an outcast from the nation to which he wholeheartedly dedicated so much of his life."

The paper says an unofficial ban by the Royal Family is responsible for this situation, the boycotting of the former king rising only "from the ostracism of his wife," an American-born divorcee.

"Sensible people," the Sunday Pictorial declares, "will ask: 'Why cannot a man be put to this long drawn-out stupidity?'"

It's true that the Duchess of Windsor isn't received at the royal court. For that matter no divorcees are received there under rules of long standing. However, the matter probably cuts a good deal deeper than that, for Queen Mary and some other members of the Royal Family have been "thumbs down" on the Duchess from the outset.

To understand this unusual situation one must know that divorcees are banned irrespective of any personal feelings the Royal Family may have. Why? Well because the Church of England is against divorce. This is the established (state) church and the King himself is head of it as "defender of the faith."

And the ban on divorce doesn't stop there. A member of one of the crack guards brigades must offer his resignation if he is divorced. The same rule applies to the diplomatic service. This naturally doesn't mean that divorces never are tolerated in these circles, but they are the exception.

However, the Duke knew all that when he defied law and tradition in his marriage. Moreover both the Archbishop of Canterbury and the then Prime Minister Baldwin (since dead) both warned the King and begged him not to take this step.

SHOCKS TERRORIZE PEOPLE

Puna Arenas, Chile, Dec. 19 (AP)—Earthquake shocks covering a nine-hour period Saturday terrorized inhabitants of this southern-most city in the world.

One policeman was reported killed outside the city. There lapsed outside the city. There was some property damage, including walls toppled over and buildings cracked. Many persons fled their homes in night clothing when the first shock occurred.

Thousands jammed the city's churches to pray as the tremors continued.

Heaviest Toll In Province During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Highway and street mishaps accounted for seven of the 11 accidental deaths recorded by The Canadian Press in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

The heaviest toll was in Ontario, with nine fatal accidents. There was one in Nova Scotia and another in Quebec.

The last weekend before the heavy Christmas holiday movement was favored with generally good weather and fair driving conditions cutting down the usual accident toll on highways.

Only one accident resulted in more than a single death, and that was when Mrs. Beryl Kelly, 26, and her three-year-old son John were fatally injured by a motorcar while walking along the street in Long Branch, five miles west of Toronto. The English war bride, separated from her husband, leaves a one-year-old daughter.

Other Ontario traffic deaths were those of Kenneth Smith, 26, whose taxicab overturned at Belleville; Murray Fisher, 19, killed in a car collision at Toronto; Harvey Gratton, killed when his truck went out of control near Sudbury; and Mrs. Mary Ewing, 57, killed in a collision during fog at Brampton.

Police are probing the death of Sam Delibasich, 47-year-old taxi driver, whose beaten body was found Saturday near Welland. The man had been missing for a week.

At Delhi, Ont., Mrs. Tina Belanger, 59, died Saturday from asphyxiation by fumes of a gas heater in her apartment. Police found the heater did not have any outlet pipe.

The fire victim was William Chipman, 21, who died in hospital Saturday at Sydney, N. S., from burns received in a warehouse fire the day before.

Roland Pariseau, 17, of Lennoxville, was fatally injured when a car overturned near Shawbrooke, Que.

Police 'Get Tip' Man Stores Pistol In Station Locker

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP)—Two men, one from Montreal, were arrested Friday night after police received a telephone tip that a man had just stored a revolver in a locker at Union Station.

Eric Tuttley, 21, of Montreal, was charged with illegal possession of a loaded revolver. A few minutes later Arthur Wildman, 23, was picked up and charged with theft.

Police said Wildman was arrested as he was boarding a Montreal train. They said he was carrying allegedly stolen silverware.

Popular Toys Of Pre-war Days Are Returning

(By the Canadian Press)

In the rush for Christmas toys, one thing stands out in Canadian shopping centres from Newfoundland to British Columbia, playthings dating way back to Canadian tanks, planes, guns—are on the way out.

In their place as sales leaders are the popular toys of pre-war days, chemistry sets and mechanical novelties for the boys, dolls and miniature household utensils for the girls.

There's plenty of choice in the 1949 toyland. Busily decorated store counters sport an abundant supply of toys, many bonting "made in" legends from Germany, Italy, France, Sweden, Japan, the British Isles, Canada, and the United States.

In Toronto, Rudolph the red-nosed reindeer seems to be the most popular single item. Boys favor cowboy and Indian outfits and the same goes for Halifax where anything with the Roy Rogers stamp is selling well.

HONOR RETIRING MAYOR

Hamilton, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Hamilton and District Trades and Labor Council will honor retiring Mayor Sam Lawrence Jan. 26 with a special night of activity. Mayor Lawrence is retiring at the end of the month. Said Bruce Docherty of the council: "We wish to show our appreciation to Mayor Lawrence for his many kindnesses."

INCENTIVE CHEQUES

Cleveland, Dec. 17 — (AP) — Lincoln Electric Company Friday announced its 16th annual payment of incentive cheques would total $3,005,200 and be distributed among 1,028 employees. The average incentive cheque will amount to $2,929, bringing the total earning of the average worker for the year to $6,078, the firm said. The firm produces welding equipment.

Christmas is a time of words

Among other things Christmas is a time of words.

There are words that wish us well, that praise, that pay compliments and offer thanks for our many blessings.

And there are the words of the young—innocent words, full of the wonder of the day; and still other words, spoken over the vast spaces of a continent to waiting loved ones.

And there are words that are oft left unspoken,
words revealed only by a firm handclasp or a trembling tear; and words too, that remind us of seasons gone by and of those to come.

And always—as long as time itself—there will be the familiar words—rich and splendid beyond compare, words alive forever with warmth and sincerity,
and for which there is no substitute, words that are the finest of all words at this time . . .
those words which say Merry Christmas!

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

"Well, you'd be surprised how it's done." Miss Whiting's keen brown eyes turned rather suddenly towards her companion. After all what did she know about this man apart from what he had told her of himself and his affairs? "You see I'm a bit of a collector myself and I've learned quite a lot about jewels in the course of my quest for them. Not that I want to intrude on your affairs. It's merely the result of my observations and experience," and Harry Harper rose once more to pace the deck.

It seemed to Harry that he could never find Miss Whiting's place alone nowadays. He was more interested in her than ever despite her evident coolness. He was ready to settle down. Traveling was all very well but he had circled the globe many times and was well acquainted with the customs of the various countries. He had decided even though America was his native land that he would settle in Africa for his newest projects were there.

As Harper swung along the deck he drew a sudden deep breath. It was evident that so long as Riddell was aboard there was no chance for him with Mary Lambert. The look he had surprised on her face as he had by chanced across her face as he suddenly changed his course path told him more than any words could tell. Well, Riddell was a fine chap, but as he swaggered towards the companionway Harper made a sudden resolution.

Dressing for dinner Miss Whiting smiled as she remembered Harry Harper's remarks about her jewels. What nonsense! She never had a moment's fear about them. Mary would be amused about his solicitude for them. Strange she didn't seem to look with a great deal of favor on Harper. True he was a bit older but really he was a most cultured man, Mary's friendship with Riddell was assuredly progressing. Of course that was the way aboard ship. Once in port and at some of the European capitals it might easily become a thing of the past. Dismissing her conjectures Miss Whiting turned to Jenkins. "Put these with the others. I'll wear the small pearls tonight," she said as she handed Jenkins the pearls she had been wearing.

Opening the jewel case her well trained maid gave a scream of surprise: "They're gone!"

"Nonsense," declared Miss Whiting. "Look again. They must be there."

"No, Miss Whiting, the case is empty," and Jenkins handed it to her mistress.

An air of suppressed excitement was on board ship. Here and there little clusters of passengers chatted confidentially, while members of the crew also seemed to share the unwonted excitement. The daily sports were not patronized as usual and there was a distinctness among the regular walkers take their daily constitutionals. Echoes of whispered messages traveled every corner of the ship and passengers looked askance at each other.

"What's all the excitement?" questioned Jim Riddell as he entered the smoking room.

"Oh, Miss Whiting's lost a string of her valuable pearls," answered Harry Harper.

"They can't be gone—surely. They're too conspicuous. Anyone finding them would know whose they were," said Jim.

"That's just what I think," asserted Harry Harper. "Funny, it was only yesterday that I was speaking to Miss Whiting. She had on a gorgeous string and I suggested it was surely unwise to travel with such gems, but she assured me she had never yet lost a thing."

"Well, her jewels are so well known I don't suppose they'd be such good booty as some other more ordinary stuff," and Jim lit a cigarette.

"Oh I don't think that would make such a difference. You've no idea how skilful such thieves are in the disposing of their hauls. There's always the chance that way Mrs. Tracy spoke. "You know, Mr. Riddell, I don't like to mention it, but I imagine her niece, or at least that girl who poses as her niece, could tell something about them."

"What do you mean?" Jim's usual pleasing tones were rather sharp.

"Oh nothing, nothing," insisted Mrs. Tracy, "except that—well," she continued lamely, "there's something mysterious about Miss Lambert."

"That's mysterious about Miss Lambert?" Jim demanded.

"Oh well, of course you mightn't notice it," Mrs. Tracy simpered, "but some people question if she is really Miss Whiting's niece. You know she's not a bit like her."

"That's nothing. If you were to meet my brother you'd declare he was no relation of mine, yet he's the son of my father and mother This idea of having to be like your relatives doesn't count for much. Sometimes a resemblance is very marked but often it's all the other way."

"Perhaps, indeed," Mrs. Tracy hesitated.

Something seemed to tell the woman she had come to the wrong market with her gossip and insinuations so she merely smiled. "Oh well, Miss Whiting seems them soon for it makes things so awkward."

"I imagine she will," declared Jim as seizing the opportunity to escape from her mongering tongue he shrugged his shoulders and hurried along the deck.

But as the wind blew the smoke from his cigarette in zig zag clouds about him, her words roused some questioning thoughts within him. Although he was deeply in love with Mary Lambert and was equally sure she loved him, whenever he tried to win any response from her she always eluded the answer. However the joy of being with her more than compensated for this. There was plenty of time ahead of them. But the poisoned suggestions that Mrs. Tracy had offered disquieted him. Could Mary an imposter?

"Are you sure you've looked everywhere for them?" questioned Ann as she handed another box to Miss Whiting.

"Yes indeed, Jenkins and I have had everything out of the trunks.

"It seems awfully strange if you dropped them that no one has returned them," said Ann as she met the piercing gaze of her supposed aunt.

"Well, there are lots of rather strange things in this world" Miss Whiting remarked somewhat pointedly.

"I wish I knew what I could do to help you," said Ann noting the confusion in her aunt's room.

"Oh, I guess there's nothing else you can do. Jenkins will straighten out these things I suppose you may as well go along. If they're gone, they're gone and that's the end of it. Oh dear, I'll rather have lost any than those."

"Then they're the most valuable?" questioned Ann.

"Not from a monetary point of view." Miss Whiting stooped to pick up another box.

A questioning look flashed into Ann's eyes. Had there been a romance in her aunt's life? She was such a young guileless woman Ann had never linked her with romance. She wished that she knew what to do. Suddenly she regretted her bargain as Miss Whiting said somewhat coldly, "You'd better go now. I think I'll lie down for a bit."

"Is ther shon 'gilin,g'-sizyn [illegible] "No, I've told you so already."

The sharpness in her aunt's voice staggered the girl. Why should she speak to her like that? She had done everything in her power to help find the missing pearls and yet her supposed aunt seemed only to be annoyed by her presence, A dreadful thought stole into her mind. No, she shuddered, that surely couldn't be. Whatever would she do if—But as Ann emerged into the aisle Jim Riddell loomed up. Taking her arm he said cheerily "Well, what's the news? Are the pearls found yet?"

WHISKY-DRINKING BANDITS ROB BANK OF $2,050

Four Gunmen Steal Guns, Ammunition Before Looting Bank

Burford, Dec. 20 — (CP)—The Western Ontario countryside today was stirred by a carefree contrast between the old wild west and modern crime — the search by radio-equipped provincial police cruisers for whisky-drinking bandits who held up a branch bank from the Bank of Toronto branch here.

Fired by liquor which they shared with the silver-colored bottle, four youthful gunmen stole weapons and ammunition from a hardware store here and minutes before they held up the bank.

Johnny Gardiner, 23-year-old cab-driver, was hired to pick up four men at the railway station at Brantford. Out on the Burford road they loosed two pistols at him, lashed him to a tree after robbing him of $20 and sped away with the cab.

At this hamlet 10 miles west of Brantford the four entered all the hardware store operated by Fred Saddleton. Some of the posts whose butcher store is at the rear, tried to delay the men but they pulled out guns. They selected a sporting rifle and a shotgun from the store shelves and forced the proprietor to load both guns.

Remain as Guard

One man remained on guard at the hardware store while the other three entered the bank. Manager R. J. Sim had been told by telephone of the hardware store robbery so he had hidden some of the bank's funds. But one of the gunmen obtained available cash from the teller, Loyal Shields, and the trio departed. An elderly bank customer, Mrs. Lily Smith, attempted to follow them outside.

One of the men ran back and pushed her against the wall. "I won't hurt you lady," he said.

In the railway washroom at Brantford police found empty and empty pickle bottle which smelled of liquor. The car they said the men had been driving from it before they started their raid.

Provincial police said that details of police cruiser cars in the area had been alerted. Immediately the alarm sounded, and city police from a half-dozen municipalities in the area were also on the watch.

LAST CHRISTMAS

Vancouver, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Rev. Nelson's last Christmas. It's probably three-year-old Lorbut at least she will be home for it. Reported dying in hospital of an incurable blood disease—Leukemia—Carma said the things she wants most are: "A Christmas tree, a small dolls cradle and going home for Christmas." Santa Claus paid an early visit to the hospital Friday. Carma's parents were given permission to take her home to Hardin, B.C.

WEATHER SYMPOTHS

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—Symptoms are now and then of winter, but drizzle covers northern sections as the overcast is held closely and mild weather continues over the rest of Ontario. Colder air moving east from the prairies has entered northwestern Ontario this morning and will cover the northern half of the province by Wednesday morning.

A disturbance developing over the central United States will bring rain to Southern Ontario tonight and Wednesday. Colder weather will follow Wednesday night.

Lake Success, N.Y., Dec. 20—(CP)—Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines today urged the Big Five powers and Canada to concentrate on framing a stop-gap plan for international atomic controls to halt an atomic arms race.

"Every day brings us further evidence that the race for atomic armaments is accelerating at a frightening rate," Romulo, president of the recent United Nations Assembly session, said in a letter to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada.

Six-Power Conference

The letter was released immediately after the opening today of a six-power meeting to work out a basis of agreement on atomic controls. McNaughton is chairman of the closed meeting under a system of rotation.

Romulo suggested the six powers drop down to a few months the efforts to reach agreement on a permanent control plan and give priority instead of possibility of reaching some agreement on "interim prohibition or control."

The reason for priority on a stop-gap plan, Romulo indicated, is that improvements in atomic weapons and stockpiling of atomic bombs may soon build up to the point where control may be practically impossible even if east-west agreement is reached.

Lest should, of course, remain a cardinal principle that the efforts towards permanent solution should never be given up, Romulo added.

McNaughton was to ask the Russians a series of questions to discover just where they stand on the atomic question.

The six-hour meeting is the fifth in a series started last July when the 11-member U.N. Atomic Energy Commission decided it could go no further. The U.N. Assembly which ended Dec. 10 directed the six powers to continue the closed talks and to explore "all possible avenues" of agreement.

The Assembly could not break the deadlock between Russia and the pressed harder than ever for some guarantees against atomic warfare after President Truman announced evidence of an atomic explosion in Russia.

Reported Reviewer Foiley

Unconfirmed reports here come from Washington that the United States is reviewing her U.N. policy for, on atomic control, there has been based on the pin-point acceptance and reaffirmed by the recent assembly.

Woman Tending Family, Cooking Uses More Energy Than Most Men

By NORMAN CRESSWELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 20. (CP)—A woman pottering about the house, tending a family, quieting and bringing up a family of energy like most men, says Dr. Arnold Bender, well-known physician.

Stair-climbing, he claims, is one of the most strenuous occupations, using energy at the rate of 1,000 calories an hour—as much as a man uses in sawing wood or laying bricks.

A mannequin washing depletes the factory stock by 200 an hour —at the same rate as a man carpentering. Cooking is not generally regarded, as a restful occupation, is equal to tailoring or clerking in calliofic expenditures.

And take that spot of ironing. Dr. Bender says a woman pushing a five-pound iron uses 144 calories an hour compared with about 140 for most office work.

RALPH FOSTER RESIGNS POST ON FILM BOARD

Step Follows Newspaper Criticism of Chief

Ottawa, Dec. 20—(CP)—Ralph Foster, No. 2 man in the government-owned National Film Board, has asked to be relieved of his duties Jan. 1 because of recent newspaper criticism of retiring commissioner Ross McLean.

The 37-year-old former Toronto newspaper man in a letter of resignation to Mr. McLean made public said it was "hard to leave the film board" but "I could not continue in the statements that have appeared in the newspapers about you and your work."

"If you have been in error, which I refuse to believe, then I must share the consequences."

No Comment by McLean

Mr. McLean said he had no comment to make on Mr. Foster's resignation.

The resignation came five days after the government announced that it did not plan to reappoint Mr. McLean, whose three-year term as commissioner expires Dec. 31. Mr. McLean has advised the government he would not be able to accept re-appointment for the present salary." His salary was $8,000 a year.

Gordon Sinclair Irwin of Maclean's Magazine has been appointed to succeed Mr. McLean for a three-year term at a salary of $15,000 a year.

Administration of the Film Board was criticized in the Commons during the recent session after Defence Minister Claxton announced that his department is using private film companies to shoot films on "classified" subjects, pending a loyalty screening of the Film Board staff.

Parliamentarian Hartley Winters, who has jurisdiction over the Film Board, said that the board not to re-appoint Mr. McLean had nothing to do with the screening of N.F.B. employees.

In a memorandum to Mr. Winters, Mr. McLean stated that he could not accept re-appointment at the present salary.

"Perhaps should say that this note has nothing whatever to do with our recent discussion or with recent discussions in the press or elsewhere relating to the screening of N.F.B. employees.

I left Shanghai aboard the American ship Sir John Franklin of the Isbrandtsen Line.

Running in, the ship was shelled Nov. 30 by Nationalist artillery. Stroyer escorts which hover constantly at the Yangtze River mouth.

The U.S. State Department protested to the Nationalists.

When the Franklin went out Dec. 2 there was no trouble, although we were escorted by destroyer escort. A boarding party inspected the ship's papers and passenger list, and waved us on.

The Nationalists have to do anything about the blockade except blame it on "Nationalist bandits" and "foreign imperialists." They have tried three times to take the Nationalist blockade line, the Chusan Islands, 100 miles south of Shanghai. All three times they were repulsed with considerable losses.

The Communists are much about their military failures, but rumors put their losses as high as 70,000 men, and thousands of junks and sampans.

When I left Shanghai there was a rumor that they were preparing a fourth expedition with 20,000 more troops and junks. Most of the seals were busy dismantling or hiding them to avoid requisition.

The Nationalists have limited powers for not using their navies to break the blockade, for there themselves forbid foreign warships to enter territorial waters—and that's where the blockade is.

There is much controversy over the blockade in Shanghai. Some blame it for stagnation of the city, tremendous unemployment, general distress and high prices.

Others say the blockade is the best, perhaps the only weapon the Communists have because they can't be driven from their coast. These people say that if the blockade was lifted the harbor would be filled with out of repair in two weeks and imports would be paid for with gold and foreign exchange to pay for them.

London, Dec. 20 — (AP) — The greatest giveaway jackpot program in history is on today, with Russia's Joseph Stalin on the receiving end.

Stalin, overlord of world communism, hits the big round number when he reaches the age of 70. How much the take in birthday presents is worth anybody's guess. Tons and tons of gifts — no room for them. Nobody's could one man use them up—have descended on Moscow from the international world.

Reports reaching London through the Soviet Monitor and other channels indicate that there will be more than 1,000,000 parcels bearing the tag: "Happy Birthday Dear Comrade."

Besides, there will be a veritable flood of big crates containing the more unwieldy gifts—all the way from motorcycles to airplanes.

Take an average figure of $5 a gift—that would be cheap for a birthday gift for Stalin—and the jackpot would be worth more than $5,000,000.

Shoes, stockings, neckties, choice foods, wines, spirits toys, dolls, books, automobiles, horses, motorcycles, airplanes, locomotives and even whole factories are among the many carloads of Kremlin from the Satellite areas and the countries of the U.S.S.R.

With the gifts come all sorts of honors, pledges of special work, affirmations of loyalty and devotion, endearing greetings from the familiar communist pattern.

Long freight trains hauled gifts into Moscow. There were 70 cars —one for each birthday—from Communist east Germany. A freight train of 11 cars left Warsaw with presents from Poland.

Stalin probably will have little use for much of what he gets. Presumably much of what Stalin is given will be distributed.

Numerous cities in the Soviet orbit have held public displays of the presents. In impoverished Warsaw, six halls were needed to hold all the gifts. Rijn, capital of the unwilling satellite, Latvia, eight halls were needed.

Peiping's Chinese communists have outdone themselves. Besides thousands of gifts, the Canton communists have attempted to get 100,000 signatures on a birthday greeting to Stalin. The highest mountain in Czechoslovakia, 8,737 feet, Gerlachovka, has been renamed "Mount Stalin."

Blockade of Communist South China Ports Keeps Tonnage to Minimum

Editor's Note: Fred Hampson, chief of the AP's China staff, has been discussing the Nationalist blockade of Red China. After more than four years of fighting he is en route to Hong Kong, since the Communists have forbidden further correspondences from their territory.

By FRED HAMPSON

Pusan, Korea, Dec. 20—(AP)—

There are a few leaks, but the Nationalist blockade of Communist South-China ports is keeping tonnage to the minimum consistent with necessity.

Shanghai's waterfront, ones among the three or four busiest in the world, is so dead that when an occasional ship noses in there it was top news, celebrated throughout the city.

I left Shanghai aboard the American ship Sir John Franklin of the Isbrandtsen Line.

Running in, the ship was shelled Nov. 30 by Nationalist artillery. Stroyer escorts which hover constantly at the Yangtze River mouth.

The U.S. State Department protested to the Nationalists.

Unborn Quadruplets Save Woman From Term in Prison

Accused of stealing from taverns at which she was employed, she was sentenced Nov. 30 to a year's imprisonment.

Appearing for Mrs. Ethel Fletcher before the Appeals Committee, her counsel, J. F. Eastwood, told the Recorder Hall expected that she would give birth to twins in a matter of weeks. After a second examination they said it looked like triplets, and today they changed their prediction to quadruplets.

A. W. Cockburn, presiding official, quashed the prison sentence and ordered that the probation period be fixed. Based on probation for two years.

NIGHT WATCHMAN MISSING IN TORONTO

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—Twenty policemen and a lifesaving crew were continuing to scour Toronto's waterfront for Ernest Eastwood, 67, coalyard night watchman missing since Sunday.

MAYOR MACLEAN TO BE ARRAIGNED ON MURDER COUNT

Guard is Posted At Hospital Room

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 20 — (CP) — Mayor Dan Jack MacLean will appear for arraignment in court later today on a charge of murder in connection with the Sunday night death of 63-year-old Joseph MacKinnon, city registrar of voters.

Meanwhile, R.C.M.P. took over investigation of the case and posted a guard around Mayor MacLean's hospital room and his summer cottage eight miles from here.

A post-mortem was also scheduled for Tuesday. Police said the body of the aged semi-cripple whose last job was in the Dec. 6 civic election which saw Mr. MacLean re-elected for the fifth consecutive year, was found.

Mr. MacKinnon died shortly after being found in a darkened south-end alley, his head badly cut and his chest crushed.

Two youths living nearby told police they saw a car run over the body.

Police Seize Car

Later police seized a car which they identified as being owned by Mr. MacLean. The mayor was taken to hospital where it was found he was suffering a dislocated shoulder.

Police said Mr. MacLean and Mrs. MacLean had been to Mr. MacLean's summer cabin Sunday before returning to Sydney.

The murder charge was laid Monday after Crown Prosecutor Neil Finlayson had talked with the Attorney-General's Department at Halifax by telephone.

MacLean, 52, a native of Big Gabarus, is about 63. He operated a tiny stable here at one time and for several years was employed by the federal government as registrar of voters in Sydney. He lived in Toronto for a time.

He served eight years as alderman before being elected mayor in 1945.

MacKinnon, a pioneer telephone operator, worked as a bookkeeper and manager before entering city hall. He was a native of Big Pond, about 40 miles from here.

Police Crows

Duncan, B.C., Dec. 20 —(CP) —There appears to be honor among the band of thieves that has begun regular raids here. Householders say a flock of crows arrives each night to consume bottles of milk left on doorsteps. The birds pick off the cap and lap the contents. And there's never any quarreling among them, witnesses say —each crow is assigned to a bottle and the others leave him alone.

Accomplice Holds Up Two Keepers At Kingston 'Pen'

Trio Found in Garage Half-Hour After Escape

Kingston, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Two convicts from Kingston penitentiary, under escort for X-ray examination at the Kingston General Hospital, shot their way to a half-hour of freedom today. Police said the two men were aided in their attempted escape by a former convict Harry Hancox, 31, of Toronto, who held up two keepers from the penitentiary and took the two convicts away from them.

The convicts are: Marvin Breaton, Toronto, serving a sentence of seven years and two months for wilful damage and prison break, theft of auto, carrying offensive weapon and manslaughter, and Joseph Parks, Toronto, serving two years for theft and auto theft.

Police captured the trio in an empty garage 30 minutes after the first alarm was given.

Still Wearing Handcuffs

The convicts were still wearing the handcuffs which had been placed on them before they were taken from the penitentiary earlier in the morning.

Prison messenger Victor Rendall said the men were also brought out of the hospital through the ambulance entrance when Hancox walked up and ordered the guards, Angus McLeod and Joseph Thrasher, to hand over the prisoners. The three men raced for the street where they saw Mrs. Erma Martin of the hospital staff getting out of her car. She was just reporting for duty at the hospital.

Pull Woman Out of Car

The two shackled convicts followed Hancox who grabbed Mrs. Martin and pulled her out of her car, ordering her back onto the sidewalk. The two convicts piled into the back seat and Hancox took over the wheel and started the car.

The Chief Victory Brightman, leaving the hospital at that moment, shouted "hold up" and raised the first alarm.

At the men sped from the driveway of the ambulance entrance, Hancox leaned from the car and fired a shot at the prison car in sitting. The car roared from the scene and Hancox fired a second shot. Both shots went wild.

Detectives Vincent McGuire and Glen Brennan sighted the car three men after a chase by cruiser and on foot. The three men drove Mrs. Martin's car to the end of Colborne Street where they found themselves covered in the back and there. They abandoned the stolen car and started running north on Chatsm Street, then west on Elm Street and north again on Alfred.

Police Cordon Set Up

At one time in the chase four city police cruiser cars, two provincial police cruisers, two detectives, the cars of Chief of Police J. T. Truesch and Inspector Andrew Gray were closing in on the men.

Hancox was released from Kingston Penitentiary Dec. 8. He had been serving two years for car theft.

WHEAT-DEFERRED PLAN MAY OPEN U.K. CONTRACTS

Cheese, Bacon, Salmon, Lumber May be Sold

Ottawa, Dec. 20—(CP)—Canada is seeking to defer some of the big wheat shipments to the United Kingdom to open markets in that country for cheese, bacon, salmon and lumber.

It was learned Monday that the United Kingdom is being sounded out on the possibility of taking less wheat in the 1950 crop year and using the dollars that saved to buy other Canadian products.

The U.K. has already announced that she is letting sales some $25,000,000 for cheese purchases in North America in 1950. The two countries can reach agreement in a few days, it is believed, is expected to be spent in Canada.

In addition, the U.K. is understood to be agreeable to a plan whereby she would defer 19,000,000 bushels of wheat already contracted for and use the dollars to buy an extra 18,000,000 cwts. of Canadian bacon.

Now it is understood that up to 15,000,000 bushels of wheat may be deferred, allowing the U.K. to make purchases about $5,000,000 worth of Canadian salmon and the same amount of lumber. Salmon and lumber contracts thus obtained probably would both go to the Pacific coast.

Cut 15 Million Bushels

The wheat shipments to the U.K. in the coming twelve months would be cut from 140,000,000 to 125,000,000, but the government expects to have little trouble selling the 15,000,000 bushels elsewhere in 1950.

A snag to completion of cheese and bacon contracts is reported to be a requirement that cheese and bacon producers for floor prices on 1950 production of livestock are completed at lower than current prices.

If the government agrees to this price-support action it would have to establish wide-scope for price-support requests from other produce like potatoes.

Canada sold the U.K. bacon for $28 a hundredweight in 1949 and Britain now is asking 1950 prices at $30 a hundredweight. The United Kingdom contract this year was for 30 cents a pound, next year Britain offers 32 cents a pound.

Unknown Person Sends $60 and Note To Montreal P.O.

An envelope received in the Montreal post office contained $60 in cash and this unsigned note: "Remboursement au Ministere des Postes, par un citoyen de Montreal.?

Translation of "Repayment to the Postmaster-General by a Montreal citizen."

The Post-Office Department says it doesn't know how the person who sent the money "got" Montreal $60.

But in a statement today, the department formally acknowledged receipt of the money.

$2,000 IN SUITS STOLEN

Sudbury, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Suits and overcoats valued at approximately $2,000 were stolen by a thief or thieves who broke into Sickery Tailors here early today.

Owner Joe Sickery estimated between 25 and 30 suits and overcoats were stolen.

English Nursery Rhymes Rewritten, Canadian Experts are Critical

Toronto, Dec. 20. (CP)— News from England that the venom has been knocked out of nursery rhymes, so that the youngsters won't have nightmares, has been given a going over by Toronto experts.

A Manchester businessman, Arthur Bernhardt, has rewritten the old nursery rhymes and publish- "them under the title: "Old rhymes for new." He's given the Three Blind Mice their sight; Old Mother Hubbard her dog a puppy say more and Humpty Dumpty's fit on the wall.

"Churchill had no hand in this, I'll warrant," commented psychology Professor Ruth Wallace of the University of Toronto. "Perhaps the Labor government has gone too far at last."

When it was pointed out that this was a private enterprise proposition, Prof. Line said that as far as he was concerned, watering down of nursery rhymes which have always been told in a make-believe atmosphere that children enjoyed, wouldn't pan out.

"No drama," he said. "No excitement."

Mary Grannan, producer of children's programs for the CBC and author of books and short sellers for juveniles, doesn't think much of the idea either.

Both Professor K. S. Bernhardt, director of the Institute of Child Study at the University of Toronto and Mrs. Bernhardt, who does juvenile book reviews, agree that the rhymes should be left as they are. Children they have seen have shown any marked deterioration from reading of the Poor Little Dog of Old Mother Hubbard who, Mr. Hall now has it.

"Went to the cupboard

"To get her wee dog a bone;

"When she got there

"She found plenty to spare,

"And so the dear dog had one."

Wm. Knightley Enters Private Accounting

Well known in governmental and veteran circles, William Knightley, retired recently from the Department of Transport to enter private accounting practice in Toronto. Born in England Mr. Knightley came to Canada in 1911 and was engaged in commercial accounting prior to joining the Department of Railways and Canals in 1913 as accountant. He served four years overseas in the First World War and returned to the Department in 1919 as resident auditor in the Welland Ship Canal construction.

During post war years Mr. Knightley has served as an administrative and financial officer in the Canals Services Branch of the Department of Transport.

Mr. Knightley was married to Minnie B. Kerr, Roslin, Ont., by Rev. Archdeacon F. A. Smith in St. Thomas Church, Belleville on November 26th last.

Burglars Ransack Cafe, Take $250

Proprietor of the lunch room Mr. Tsoumulis, discovered the loss of the money when he opened his place of business this morn. He reported the matter to police, investigation is being made by Inspector J. C. Hayes and Constable Chas. Lockwood.

Kinsmen and Kinettes Guests Of Hotel Quinte

Members of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville, together with Kinettes, were guests of the Hotel Quinte for their regular dinner meeting held Monday evening.

Dining tables were appropriately decorated in the true Christmas spirit while the club members, their wives and girl friends, enjoyed a lovely turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

There was also a very brief business session presided over by club president Kin Ernie Colebourne. Club members then got down to the business of wrapping parcels of gifts to be presented to wards of the Children's Aid Society at a special Christmas party to be held in Stirling this evening.

Mr. William Lockyer, superintendent of the Hastings county C.A.S., with Mrs. Lockyer, were guests at the dinner meeting with Mr. Lockyer expressing the appreciation to members of the Kinsmen Club for their thoughtfulness in providing a Christmas party for wards of the society. Because of the interest of Kinsmen, the unfortunate children would have a happier Christmas, he said.

President Ernie expressed the appreciation of the club members to the hotel management and staff for the lovely dinner.

Good Quantity Poultry Offered, Prices Firm

It was an almost 100 per cent poultry offering on the pre-Christmas market today as turkeys, geese, ducks and chicken were offered in quantity. Attendance was not large.

Turkeys were the largest offering with drawn hen turkeys bringing 70 cents and toms 65 cents. Undrawn turkeys sold at 55 and 60 cents per pound. One 37-pounder was offered at $12. Geese sold generally at 70 cents with ducks bringing 65 cents. One vendor sold smaller ducks said to be a cross between the wild and tame varieties, at 55 cents the pound.

Only a very few eggs were offered with vendors asking 45 cents for Grade A and 38 cents for mediums.

Christmas trees were finding a ready sale on the outside market at price ranging from 50 cents to $1.50 each.

Top grade Spy apples sold at $3 per bushel; McIntosh $2.25; Russets $2 and Snows $1.90. Greenings were $1.50 per hamper. One vendor offered live geese at $7 and $9 each, according to size.

COINS INVADE LONDON

London, Ont., Dec. 20. (CP) — Police hurried to an east side address when a woman reported that two "wild animals" had been cornered by children who were stealing them with dishes. The victims were two full grown raccoons, and they had found refuge in a tree before police arrived. A game warden rescued them.

That Elusive Bird, the Turkey-Duck, Giving Reporter the Heeby-Jeebies

What is a turkey-duck?

Does it look like one of those prehistoric monstrosities of World Wars I, a spine-chilling combination of feathered effort resembling some slithered conception of a futuristic rocket to the moon?

Or is it possible that the atomic explosions at Bikini and Hiroshima upset the partners of nature to produce an altogether new species of bird life?

These are some of the questions asked by this reporter as he searches for the missing link of this feathered family.

For the past week the city has been rife with rumors centred around the introduction of the turkey-duck into the poultry industry particularly in the Belleville area. One informer claims that the new bird was developed by cross-breeding a turkey with a duck, which was the reason he refuse to guess. And according to the informer's informer the result, a hybrid bird that has started to multiply in ever-increasing numbers. It has been said that some of the choicest of the birds will be available for the Christmas dinner.

From meagre details and sparse pieces of information gathered from people who have never seen the turkey-duck but know of the man who raised them, it is impossible to give a full description of this creature. However, it has been learned from information believed to be reliable that the turkey-duck has a bill, not a beak, is not web-footed and weighs between 12 and 15 pounds. Evidently it is not able to fly although one of its foster parents, the duck in the wild state is known to be strong of wing and a master at flight.

One of the informants who is expecting delivery of a plump turkey-duck for Christmas has ordered his turkey-duck turkey just in case.

Who knows, the editor may send us to find out on our next assignment if de moon is really made of green cheese.

Seven-Year-Old Boy Struck Down By Passing Car

Struck by a car on No. 2 highway 15 miles east of here yesterday afternoon, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Howell of Marysville is in the Belleville General Hospital in a critical condition suffering from severe concussion and multiple fractures of the right arm and right leg. Hospital authorities reported this morning that the youth was in a semi-conscious state and his condition was only 'fair.'

According to investigation at the scene the boy dashed into the path of a car driven by William Patterson of Napanee. The lad was sitting with his parents in their car when suddenly he jumped out of the vehicle on the highway. Dr. Russell Scott attended the injured boy at the scene, and he was rushed to the Hospital in Bush's ambulance.

Menzies Govt. Seeks United British Empire

Canberra, Dec. 20 (Reuters)—Robert G. Menzies, in his first broadcast as Australian Prime Minister, said today his government would seek a United British Empire.

"In its common instincts and unity or voice there is real hope for mankind," he said.

Menzies added: "Let us remember with pride that the people of our own race have twice in this century stood between the decencies of life and disaster.

"If there is to be real peace for the men and women of the world, who seldom make war but always suffer from it, we must cultivate the closest ties of real affection and real understanding with the great, decent people of the United States of America."

But Menzies said his government's purpose was not to establish some exclusive "isolationist" club. On the contrary, Australia's happiness would in the long run depend upon the well-being of the simplest citizens of India, China or any other of the great communities of the people.

Menzies continued: "If we are to achieve the best for all people we must begin by realizing the greatest possible measure of unity among those who value peace, who resist aggression and who un'erstand that a good life for ordinary men and women must be the supreme preoccupation of the government."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 20—Prices declined steadily for the second successive session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Western Oils joined the downtrend after holding firm in Monday's session.

Volume for the first three hours was 460,000 shares.

Industrials led the big board lower as activity slowed to a crawl. Declines were generally held to fractions and scattered over a wide list. Papers, utilities, steels, agriculture and foods were all down. Atlas Steel dropped a fraction to a new low following news that directions had again passed the dividend. Burns A was against the trend for a new high in foods following news of increased dividends.

Bell Telephone continued active and lower on news that the company's request for an interim rate increase would not be heard until March.

Profit-taking pressure on recent gains pushed leading Western Oils into lower ground. Losses ranged up to 20 cents. Deadlines tripled advances in base metals. Golds firm compared with the remainder of the market. Junior producers a little support following yesterday's sharp decline.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Hog prices at Stratford, Ont., have not yet been established this week.

Other markets are unreported.

Residents of County Home To Enjoy Christmas Dinner

Over at the Hastings County Home on the Kingston Road, the residents are to be treated with a special Christmas dinner . . . and Mrs. Ken York, the matron in the institution, has already arranged the menu.

The spirit of the season prevails throughout now that the three big trees in the main entrance and home halls have been put up and decorated in the most lavish fashion. The lighted fixtures decorating the tree at the front of the home can be seen from the highway at night . . . adding to the heavy Yule atmosphere engulfing the place.

There will be a party and general get together around the tree on Christmas day, when each resident will be given a gift including candies, nuts, oranges and apples.

When the old folks sit down to their Christmas repast they can order and get served with any part of the following list: fruit juice, roast chicken (as much as they can eat), seasoned dressing, cranberries, jellied vegetable salad, mashed potatoes, fresh (frozen) peas, gravy, lettuce, tomato and pickle Chef's salad, mince pie and Christmas pudding.

In the evening after the festivities and celebration have ended for another year the residents will be served with a light lunch comprising Christmas cake tarts, squares of cheese and a fruit cocktail before turning into bed.

To Enjoy Dinner

For the 35 inmates of the Belleville jail expected to spend this Christmas "inside" the day will be one of worship, feasting and general entertainment, says Governor Robert Scott.

On Sunday morning under the auspices of the local Salvation Army the usual period of worship will be solemnized in the jail. Then the inmates will prepare themselves for the period at the festive board when all the nicelies will be served from a menu which reads like an hotel bill of fare. Mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, leg of pork, mince meat pie, cranberries, Christmas cake (baked by the governor's wife) bread with no butter, candies and nuts and coffee will be served.

The Sunday dinner will be eaten around one big table in one of the cell corridors. A Yule tree will grace the corner of each cell block corridor and great cains will be taken in decorating them. Presents will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

A radio installed through the Salvation Army services will be playing Christmas music, while the inmates are marking the occasion. A moving picture will be shown them on Boxing Day and later provide diversion to the patients at the General Hospital and the folks at the Old People's Home.

All that is lacking for Christmas is a half a care of oranges and some nuts, the governor remarked.

Picture Actor Found Bound In Apartment

New York, Dec. 20 —(AP)— Robert Wilcox, motion picture actor, was found bound and gagged today in the apartment of actress Diana Barrymore. Police said he was tied up by two men who ransacked the apartment.

Police said Wilcox told them he was alone in the apartment when two men appeared at the door at 9.30 a.m. and said they wanted to leave flowers for Miss Barrymore, confined to hospital from the effects of a fall.

Taken from the apartment, the police said, were a mink coat, a silver fox scarf, a suitcase and about $50 in silver.

Wilcox, whose name has been linked romantically with the young actress, said he had been occupying the apartment in her absence.

Miss Barrymore previously was married to John Howard and Bramwell Fletcher. Last year she said she intended to make Wilcox her third husband.

Blames Downfall On Comrades In Air Force

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — A former airman who blamed his downfall on free-spending air force comrades, James Donnelly, 27, was sentenced today to 2 1-2 years in penitentiary on 10 charges of fraud.

Donnelly told the court: "I blame all my troubles on the air force . . . I was discharged after getting more money than I'd ever had before. The people I was with in the air force had more and I got into the habit of spending money."

He was convicted of defrauding small shopkeepers in Toronto, North Bay, and Whitby.

KILLED BY CAR

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — John R. Ward, 21, of nearby Milliken, was killed today when struck by an automobile in suburban North York township. Ward's car broke down and he got out to flag down an approaching automobile for help. Police said he stepped into the path of a car driven by Kenneth Marsden of North York. No charges were laid.

In April, 1949, he was appointed to Naval Headquarters as Assistant Medical Director General, and in December of the same year took up the appointment of Principal Medical Officer in the aircraft carrier, "Magnificent".

Surgeon Commander Wellman is a member of the American Psychiatry Association; the Association for research in psychosomatic problems and the American Association for the Advance ment of Science.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Swayne Mark 62nd Anniversary

Married 62 years ago in Limerick township in North Hastings, Mr. and Mrs Arthur Swayne today are "at home" to friends and relatives on their anniversary at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Fairhead, College Street West.

Residents of the Ormsby district for the greater part of their lives, Mr. and Mrs. Swayne lived in North Hastings until one year ago. Mr. Swayne is 84, while his bride of 82 years is in her 81st years.

Mrs. Swayne is the former Jessie Isobel Livingstone, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Livingstone and was born in Glasgow, Scotland, coming to Canada at an early age to settle with her parents near Ormsby. Mr. Swayne was born in Limerick township.

Married at the home of bride's father on what is known as the Old Hastings Road, by a Methodist circuit rider, the couple are members of Coe Hill United Church. Mr. Swayne was an employee of the C.N.R., being section foreman at Brinklow. He has been retired for 19 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Swayne have seven children, four sons, Fletcher, New Liskeard; Ray, Englehart John of Iroquois Falls, and Norman of Crosse Point, Michigan; and three daughters, Mrs. Ed McGuire of Camborne, north of Cobourg; Mrs. Sandy Martin of Peterborough and Mrs. William Fairhead of Belleville. There are 18 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Love is Deadly

Paris, Dec. 20 (Reuters) — Love is 17 times more deadly than alcohol as a motive for suicide, according to statistics published Monday by the Municipal Bulletin of Greater Paris. A survey of 51 suicides in the area in July, the bulletin said, showed 17 took their lives because of "love worries," while only one was deemed due to drunkenness. The second major cause — 16 of the 51 — was incurable illness.

MAN'S YEARS

Man's quest for the fountain of eternal youth is tireless and relentless. As soon as it is known that some old-timer is having an anniversary, the wonder grows how and by what means he has attained so long years with health seemingly unimpaired, even up into the late nineties. He may be asked what he eats as if what he eats is sure to bring the same results in others. People will want to know how his occupation and his hobbies have influenced his life span so that he is now in that charmed upper circle of great age.

Most people want to find the secret of long and healthy age. This problem naturally gives them food for thought on this matter while others for the life of them can not tell why they are hale and hearty at an age when some people are incapacitated. So this question of the limitation of years is the problem which concerns a great many persons. There are of course those who seemingly defy the laws of health in a general way, as for instance the person who smokes from 16 to great age, an age so patriarchal that it seems to mock scientific explanation of health, vigor and happy old age.

Favorite foods have been in for attack or praise. Foods containing the making of the elements which make for cholesterol some men may have the effect of aging their arteries. Just recently rice has come in for a great measure of praise as likely to expand the bounds of life as far as years go and the Chinese are held up as models.

Hamilton Spectator tells of the view held by some that the human being is as old as the gristle in the human body.

There is however general consent that excessive giving way to the emotions has a deleterious effect. An elderly witness says that one who takes short and holds opinions has the assurance of long life while others warn that the excitement of the emotions may act as a drawback in attaining the ideal of a great age.

In this self-conscious day where youth or age count so much it is natural for man to seek the fountain of youth or failing that, the key to long and the highest fulfilment in the span of years he is likely to live.

THE SEASON'S RUSH

"Those who have been shopping early and doing their mailing of letters and shipping of Christmas gifts are finding as anyone will inevitably find that the early purchasers and senders of cards and parcels have reaped reward for their promptitude in heeding the voice of the business and postal authorities by not adding to the expressed load and parcels before the full avalanche of the piles of mail begins. These almost threaten to overwhelm the heroic postmen and the inside postal staff who have the task of delivering the endless total of cards and letters which are sent across the country.

A great volume of mail and many parcels is handled by the postal staffs who are always expecting a flood of mail at this time. They are prepared.

But to have bought early does not mean that one is going to have nothing to do, for Christmas festivities are persistent and however early the work of preparing for the season is begun there is always the unfinished task to take up the attention of the housewives on whom falls no very small part of the responsibility for the making of the Christmas festives happy events as long to be remembered.

Now Christmas season is a time when all the work never seems to be nearly done and yet when Christmas Eve comes and the youngsters are gone to bed to dream of Santa Claus, his team of reindeer and the huge bags of gifts which he has to carry around the earth in the space of a few hours the seeming busy reindeer all the anxieties and worries seem to be solved in a way that ordinary problems cannot be solved.

On the highways of the twentieth century there are delays and mishaps, but not so on the route of Santa Claus who has never failed to come in the destined hour of dark with his message of goodwill to the children who obediently have gone to sleep before the time of his arrival so that never has the secret of his speed and certain delivery of gifts been made known.

EXCITED

It is good to watch the women
Deck the house with Christmas trimmin';
Place a wreath at every window
And a candle on the sill.
And, I like nearby and handy
Figs and raisins, nuts and candy,
So that all who come to visit
Can step up and eat their fill.

There is something bright and merry
In the holly leaf and berry
And a little sprig of mistletoe
For, although some call it folly,
I have always thought it jolly
To entrap a maid beneath it
And bestow on her a kiss.

Though I long have been a grown-up,
Unashamedly I own up
I forget that time is measured
By the calendar and clock.
I'm as thrilled and as delighted,
As impressed, as excited
By the wonderment of Christmas
As the youngest of the flock.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

Dec. 20th, 1929

Over two feet of snow have fallen in Belleville and district since the storm struck two days ago; a large amount of snow fell early this morning. In this city the situation was never as bad as it is today. Motor cars are stuck on every street in the city. Some stages managed to get through, but arrived very late. The Frankford stage arrived drawn by horses instead of by motor. The Tweed stage did not arrive here today as the road is blocked. The Belleville Boys' Re-Union here next summer. Mayor Lorne W. Marsh will preside.

Messrs. F. W. Johnson, M.P.P., W. C. Mikel, K.C., and W. S. Morden went to Picton today to attend the banquet this evening which is being given by Mr. Hugh Ross Gray, the Warden of Prince Edward County.

Mr. William Rogers, Reeve of Rawdon Township, and Warden of the County of Hastings, was a visitor in town today.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The expression — "You can't take it with you" is seldom used by the rich. But it ought must surely be often in their minds.

What is it that drives a man with a talent for wealth to keep on creating, expanding, amassing? The more he gets, the more forbidding becomes the rather horrible thought that he can't take it with him. More than that, many of them, beholding their offspring, must realize that it won't be long after the parent leaves the scene whole great, skillful edifice of their wealth, and watch it be scattered to the four winds; or, what is worse, be in the grip of strangers!

But no such reflections appear to daunt the wealthy and powerful. Few of them ever lie down until they die.

What are we going to do with these insatiable people whose wealth when the welfare state, with its taxes, to-wards which, in Britain, United States and Canada, we are steadily progressing, arrives? With income taxes, surplus profit taxes and succession duties, how shall master minds of industry and commerce continue to create sufficient money power. By all sorts of contrivs, we have learned, is authority and their ventures omeness.

It is the opportunity that makes the man? Or the man who makes the opportunity? It can, of course, be both. The study of history demonstrates that the man who makes his own opportunities just about as often as men have created their own.

A shrewd brain, a dominating personality, an unusual spirit cannot help but make the most of its opportunities; or seeing none, cannot help but create them. With the day comes that it is more exciting to manage public funds than private funds, our tycoons will all be in the public service. All they want, after all, is to be free to throw men and money around.

Mexican Border Boy Asks Santa For Snowstorm, C of C Arranges it

Calexico, Calif., Dec. 20 — (AP) — Some small boy here is going to have an "honest-to-goodness" Christmas with some true.

On Christmas Eve it will snow on this California-Mexican border town for the first time since 1932. And all because of a letter to Santa Claus.

The United States Post Office received the note in which the boy, who didn't sign his name, told Santa how good he had been, all year and how sad he was that he couldn't play in the snow at Christmas time, like northern boys.

All he wanted this Christmas was a snowstorm.

The Post Office passed the letter on to the Chamber of Commerce and the board of directors decided, they would fulfil this wish.

Starting at 3 P. M. Saturday, planes of the Border Flying Service will take off and, using cropdusting ejectors, drop snow over the city. Snow will be freighted in from California mountain areas.

Mackenzie's Column:

China-Russian Relationship Shown in Visit

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The over-credulous, who have allowed themselves to be persuaded that Chinese communism has no relation to the Moscow brand, now can disabuse their minds of this much advertised piece of propaganda.

The presence in Moscow of the Chinese communist leader, Mao Tze-Tung, is in itself proof enough of the China-Russia relationship. Mao, who frequently has said that he adores Prime Minister Stalin, has not — footed it for the red capital as soon as possible after clinching his continental victory over Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces.

Indications are that a big deal is cooking. An AP dispatch from Moscow says that a Chinese-Soviet friendship pact appears almost a certainty. The two countries also are expected to work out trade and mutual assistance agreements.

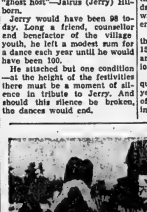
But China represents only one phase of this Armageddon which is in full swing in the Orient between communism and Moscow.

However, while we shouldn't underestimate the importance of the development neither should we overestimate it. Mao is delivering a sound military success to Moscow, but he isn't delivering political domination of China's 500,000,000 people.

China is far from communized ideologically, just as it was far from being completely within Chiang Kai-Shek's nationalist fold. Untold millions of Chinese are lowly folk who aren't politically conscious. They are interested in an ideology which fills the stomach. Nobody yet has given them what they want.

This means that Mao, in order to consolidate his victory, must now rehabilitate war - ravaged China. He must give the people food, clothing and fuel. He must reduce the taxation which hangs like a millstone about the necks of the small peasant farmers.

China won't be communized (if at all) until this rehabilitation has been achieved. That's why Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek persists in the belief that he can make a "comeback," and regain the country from the reds.



Countryfolk Make Merry on Birthday Of Man Dead 23 Years

West Minot, Me., Dec. 20 (AP) —Countryfolk will make merry tonight a the birthday ball of a man dead for 23 years.

The scene: West Minot's tiny Grange Hall. The program: Modern standard and the old-fashioned square dances beloved by the Minot Square Dance Club members.

Jerry would have been 86 today. Long a friend, counsellor and benefactor of the village folk, he left a modest estate for a dance each year until he would have been 110.

He attached but one condition —at the height of the festivities there must be a moment of silence in tribute to Jerry. And should this silence be broken, the dances would end.

Banded Canada Goose which he shot on Lake Biscotasing, near Chapleau, is displayed by Harvey Jurgenson of St. Catharines. It was the first Canada Goose he had ever shot in his long hunting career.

27 Germans Freed For Good Conduct

Landsberg, Germany, Dec. 20 —(AP)— Twenty-seven shilling German war criminals were freed today. These were the men who commanded nazi concentration camps, or who served as camp guards.

The oldest was Friedrich Katz 80, a former Weisbaden policeman, convicted of taking part in the murder of American fliers.

Col. Walter R. Graham, the prison commander, said that 27 others probably will be released tomorrow.

The U.S. High Commission announced Monday that five top nazi criminals, convicted by American courts at Nuremberg, also will be released. They include Ernest Wilhelm Bohle, British born S.S. general who was head of the nazi party's foreign organization.

SEES 73,000 LAYOFF BY 1951 IN THAMES TUNNEL YARDS

London, Dec. 20 (AP)— A British Union official predicted today United Kingdom shipyards will have to lay off 73,000 workers by 1951.

E. J. Hill, general secretary of the Boilermakers Society, said 15,000 ship repair men already are out of jobs, and advised union members:

"Unless orders come in more quickly, 1951 is going to be a lean year and probably the beginning of a serious shipbuilding slump in this country."

MEDICAL AND SURGICAL TREATMENT OF THYROID DISEASE

Overactivity of the thyroid gland causes a number of symptoms to develop which are highly typical of the disease. Loss of weight, emotional instability, tremor of the hands, intolerance of heat and profuse perspiration, and, in some instances, protrusion of the eye-balls develop. Rapid pulse is one of the constant symptoms.

Surgical operation is a successful method of dealing with this disease. In this operation, a large part of the offending gland is removed with the object of reducing the functional capacity of the gland. Results following successful operation are immediate and usually permanent.

With adequate preliminary preparation of the patient and skilful operation, the hazard involved is slight. Even in an occasional untoward complication may result under the most favorable circumstances. The occasional appearance of a nerve which activates the larynx, or voice box causes a life-long hoarseness. Accidental removal of the adjacent parathyroid gland may result in tetany — muscle twitching, cramps, pains in the muscles of the wrists and ankles, requiring perhaps, life-long treatment.

These accidental complications are, fortunately, very rare. But the victim of this accident derives very little solace from this fact. Even without the outside possibility of an accident of this type occurring, a person could hardly be expected to look forward to operation with pleasure.

Iodine has long been employed as a medical treatment for thyrotoxic disease. Its use may result in improvement or, in exceptional cases, iodine is used nowadays only as a means of preparing a patient for operation.

In recent years, radioactive iodine has been used as a curative procedure with very encouraging results. While surgery will probably always be required in thyrotoxic disease, radioactive iodine may, in time, supplant surgery as a method of dealing with thyroid overactivity.

In an effort to avoid surgery, X-ray treatment has been given extensive trial. Results have been favorable and unfavorable. The unfavorable have been due to such-that X-ray treatment is seldom used any more. Whether or not there, of course, may be found a physician who still employs the method in the conviction that it is a useful procedure.

A drug, propylthiouracil, is now being used extensively in the treatment of so-called thyrotoxicosis or hyperthyroidism. It is established that this drug will cure many cases although it is routinely used as a method of preparation of a patient for operation. Its use requires constant expert supervision, involving frequent examination of the blood for evidence of an untoward effect.

When the diagnosis of thyroid disease is made, the choice of method of treatment must be based upon several considerations. Other more facts that some cases may be handled without operation does not mean that all cases. The increasing success of non-surgical treatment, however, should justify full consideration of this development before the decision to operate is made.

Simple enlargement of the thyroid gland—simple goitre—without evidence of malignancy or over-activity, may, in time, yield to non-surgical methods. Research along this line have not been very encouraging to date. Surgical removal of the goitre is largely as a cosmetic and preventive procedure rather than surgery for toxic goitre.

Finally, we have little knowledge at this time, of the future place of hormone therapy in thyroid disease. It is possible that research now under way, may revolutionize our current concepts of this disease.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

More than One Way to Happiness

After seventeen years of childless marriage we have finally been able to adopt a two-months-old baby and the happiness we wish to raise her as a Brady Baby. (T. E. H.)

Many autographed copies of The New Brady Baby Book are available for any readers who tell me they have adopted babies. People who merely have babies may find it easy to obtain a copy by sending twenty-five cents and a stamped addressed envelope and asking for it in writing. There's something particularly gratifying about people who adopt babies. Something fine and noble in the impulse that makes the happiness they derive from having a baby or babies of one's own is core for is or should be an object lesson for couples who have been childless for from five years. A considerable number of childless couples who are blessed until nearly three years of marriage, A few are blessed after nine years of care and childlessness. But as a general rule a couple should begin looking for a child or children to adopt if they are not blessed within five years. Even should one of their own arrive after they have adopted others, the more the merrier.

MAGIC THINGS

We are divorced from life when we are no longer able to feel the magic in things. The human voice in song, for example. One evening I sat alone in my room and listened to the recorded voices of the great singers. In the changes of the seasons, in rain-drops, and in the fairies. But these are as common that little thought is given to them.

Said Richard Jefferies, the English nature writer: "Color and form and light are as magic to me, while recalling ten years afterwards the flight of a swallow backed suddenly, a yellow-hammer singing in the sinking sun, and the sunlight falling upon magic mists!

the crab-tree's flowers of white. Here, in the hedge, with interlacing the fall of colorful leaves and the wind all through the changing mood. My magic all the trees stripped of their wonderful foliage. Now bare in the sunlight, but with shadows that seem to be a part of each trunk and branch, and squirrels romping about them as they have been just read a small little book by Rumer Godden, the English writer, called The Magic into all that she writes. The book is called "An Episode Ark." In poetic form this writer has interwoven Pegasus, the winged horse, Noah, Ham, and the animals of the Ark. This is the authority of first poetic creation, but there is the same magic handling of words that so distinguishes her writing.

How Benjamin Franklin would get a thrill right of the modern newspaper press! Magic, certainly. It is perfectly wonderful. We live each day of our lives in a mass of magic. The mind itself is a magic.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE SIN OF RESPECTABILITY

We hear a great many reasons advanced as to what is the matter with the church. May this be its trouble? Is it respectability?

At first glance this would seem to be a highly commendable state. Certainly no one fancies a term of respectability in a relative or friend or would one want the church to be stained with scandal. But the truth of the matter is that when the Church was evilly spoken against in the days of the Roman Empire, it enjoyed a vital spiritual life with the same ability to go and as soon as the Emperor Constantine made it respectable the official religion of the Empire. The more respectable the Church became, the more it grew away from the real needs of the people. It frowned on enthusiasm, left the propagation of the faith to ordained clergymen, became interested in the erection of great buildings and the acquisition of property, gave up all thought of direct living, and in general became like the world. Today there often seems to be a wild scramble on the part of the Church to have the respect of the world and be as far removed as possible from anything that might savor of fanaticism.

Respectability can kill the Church as quickly as sin—or perhaps we should say, more quickly than any other kind of sin.

Motor Trip to West Coast

Drive Through Mountain Range Provides Many Exquisite Views

By M. HALSTEAD HORN

Leaving Cardston, the home of the Mormon temple in Canada, on a beautiful warm day we were not long covering the twenty-six miles to the international border and the Canadian and United States Custom offices. The landscape is much the same as it is from Macleod into Cardston, very rolling, but adapted to mixed farming and particularly, to the grazing of cattle and sheep.

Coming along we have noticed that the mountains to the right seem to be so much closer and they are very majestic with their snowy summits. We are crossing at Carway and it must be that there is enough the winter season, since there seemed to be a shorter building than the Canadian Customs building and a short distance down the highway was the American Customs building.

We were treated very courteously by both the American and Canadian officers and then we were on our way.

Big Chief Mountain

Inquired about this huge mountain that seemed just a short walk away and was informed it was called Big Chief and that it was at least twenty miles away.

We had planned on taking the highway through the Glacier International Peace Park, and over Kagan Pass, it being a good highway and a scenic route, but while we were in Cardston, were told that the pass was closed, came to the junction of the highway No. 89 and No. 2 in St. Mary to inquire of conditions in the park as we were liable to run into snow at the five thousand foot level.

Arriving in St. Mary, we found it in a summer resort, and as the season was over all the places as well, were closed, the doors padlocked, windows shuttered and summer goods ready for winter. In the near distance could see the river and signs advertising boating and fishing. It must be very lovely in the summer as there were many trees and although it was October 12th the grass was beautifully green and the running water a gorgeous aqua shade.

Saw Snow Drifting

Looking towards the mountains on our right could see the snow drifting from the peaks and as those peaks were in the park, we decided to take highway No. 89 to our left. I was disappointed at not seeing the park as I had heard much about its beauties.

The landscape for a number of miles was just a continuation of that we had driven through going to Cardston, very rolling.

Big Chief still showed up, but was left behind to be replaced by other mountains equally as grand. I noticed some of the mountains were covered with evergreens right to the summit, then other peaks seemed to be mostly rock. It is hard to describe the beauty of the snow and ice-capped peaks with the sun shining on them. Sometimes the snow seemed to be tinged with blue as though some one had added too much blue, to the snow, other times it was pearly white, and like large pillars or columns of sparkling glass. With all their beauty we notice the snow was still drifting over the park so we were quite content that we were travelling on highway 89.

We had the road quite to ourselves as we had seen no traffic since leaving the boundary.

We were gradually climbing and had evergreens on either side of us. Soon we were running through a few inches of snow and as my left ear began to crackle, I decided we must be up some distance above sea level, then we came to a sign post giving the altitude 6,067 feet above sea level and this is the "Hudson's Bay Divide".

We were still driving without our coats on and very comfortable. What a view as we started down and passed out of the state of the evergreens. At the 5,368 foot level there were some beautifully colored rocks, rose, terracotta, cohloid and very many shades of turquoise. At the 4,500 foot level the grassy willows were out in full bloom and strange to say the farther we were from the Divide the more I noticed that I was chilly and needed my coat. Could See For Miles

When we left the forest like our way down we could see miles below in the valley and were coming into a farming district where the farmers were doing some strip farming and also carrying large herds of Aberdeen Angus and Hereford cattle. On some of the farms we noticed small bands of range horses. These being used in rounding up the cattle in the hills. Seeing some elevators in the distance we began to feel at home and pass through a real prairie town. Those hills and gullies would support tens of thousands of head of cattle, if the $2.45 frost had not struck the market. Reaching a small town we decided to call it a day as it was nearing dusk. We found most of the tourist camps and motels were taken for the winter by families coming in from farming communities to allow the children to attend school during the winter months. We registered at a small hotel, very clean and I was delighted with the wide streets lined with trees of large size, mostly cotton wood.

While here we learned that much of the land is irrigated and that very large herds of cattle are raised throughout the district.

Fred Combs Slasher

Considering the size of the place they have very many business places and good places to eat, but we noticed food was higher than on the Canadian side.

Leaving Choteau in the morning by highway No. 33 we were on our way to Helena, the capital of Montana. From Choteau to Helena we crossed numerous creeks and creeks, and the land became much like a table, level and the farms are very large; sometimes we saw as many as three large combines on one farm. We have not been some show as we passed some little patches of it along the highway.

Around Augusta we noticed large ranches carrying Hereford cattle while others had large flocks of sheep. These were very large holdings as homes are some distance apart. There was a mail delivery and I believe school buses. It was so very mild that several times struck our windshield on the car. We were meeting more traffic and most of the large trucks had heavy diesel motors and trailers. Those mountains were still with us as the range is just to the west of us. Crossing Wolf Creek at the foot of the mountains, I could not help but notice how many trees and shrubs were covered by clematis. We were warned to watch out for fallen rock and deer.

Enter Helena

Coming into Helena which we knew from quite a distance off, we were disappointed at first. It seemed rather ordinary until I inquired if we were on the main thoroughfare and was told to go on around two miles when we would be in the city, as we were only on the outskirts. After a grand lunch we drove about the city and were delighted to find how really beautiful it is. The government buildings are quite impressive with beautiful lawns and shrubs around them.

The district about Helena is the best known as an agricultural part of the State of Montana, the land of shining mountains, then too, there is much stock raising and mining. In 1864 what is now the main street in Helena was then called the Last Chance Gulch and has yielded over $40,000,000 in placer gold. Needless to say it is a very wealthy city and we saw many very large and beautiful homes. I was so glad that we had time to drive about the city, otherwise we would have had a wrong impression of a beautiful city.

Drive Through Mountains

Leaving Helena we soon started to climb as we were going to try and reach Missoula our next stop and would be driving through the mountains most of the way. We were on highway No. 10 from Helena and it goes through the mountains by way of MacDonald Pass at 5,323 feet. This time I was using some caution wadding for my ears so did not mind the altitude so much. It was a very scenic drive sometime we had a stream of water and railroad on our right, suddenly we were between the river and the railroad and then we would find river and railroad on opposite sides of the highway and mountains seemed to be on three sides of us. Some of those mountains are tree covered mostly by evergreens, others seem to be solid rock and very little foothold for a tree but a seed has blown half way up then appear like beads in some small crevice and the small evergreens are doing its best to grow and cover up some spot.

Looking at those formations of rocks, we cannot help but wonder at the convulsions this old earth must have gone through, to throw up those portions of the earth, so that when they cooled, they are as we appear like beautiful cathedrals with turrets and spires and pinnacles, while other rocks look like the huge pipes of a mammoth pipe organ. Next Week—To Tunnels

On most of this drive we had mountains on either side and sometimes very close as I mentioned the river, the highway and the railroad track are parallel then I missed the railroad only to see it very soon through a tunnel, then our highway, too, passed through a tunnel where we had to turn on the car lights. What amused me was a sign "No parking in the tunnel". As though one would care to park in tunnels and so many beauties of nature outside.

I wish I could tell you just how much I enjoyed going through the mountain passes, possibly due to the altitude you have such wonderful feelings of exhilaration and I enjoyed the coming down part.

Fine Highways

The highways through the States are wonderfully built and maintained and through those mountain passes, well banked so one never thought of danger. We crossed a number of small rivers and passed through several small busy towns on our way to Missoula and I do not think I shall ever forget the beauty of that drive.

Arriving in Missoula around five o'clock we decided to call it another day and I began to inquire for a good place to stay and was directed to a very new and up-to-date hotel, where we registered and by the time we were ready to eat, it seemed to have become very dark. That is one thing we noticed, the sun disappears behind a large mountain and lo, it is night.

Missoula is a very clean progressive city of 25,000. I noticed that the streets, all paved, were very wide and the traffic lights were on cables in the centre and above the intersection of the streets and as the lights were to change a ball rang. I thought what an improvement over the lights in many places. There are many industries and gold mines in the vicinity and I noticed a copper plate on a building telling us this was the first flour mill in district in 1865. There was a very good shopping district and fine buildings and instead of Bank of Montreal or Bank of Commerce etc., their banks are mostly National Banks. Also a million dollar hotel.

Much Lumbering

Leaving Missoula we took our time, being to make Coeur D'Alene by evening. We were still on No. 10 and crossed many small and medium sized rivers. Lumbering seemed to be one of the chief industries. There were many beauty spots suitable for summer homes and many of these homes seemed to be below us on another highway. There seemed to be plenty of timber on the hillsides, spruce, pine tamrac and many of the small crews had lumber mills. Other places had cement works and there was also rock seemed suitable for grinding for cement.

What amazed me on so much of our trip through the foothills, was the many beautiful farms and farm homes with a huge hill or mountain in the background, sometimes right in the yard. Fancy may have only a few head of cattle but of a good dairy breed, while some one else was raising large flocks of chickens. At least they had their mail self-supporting and at no easy task to clear this hard. Just before we left Montana to go into Idaho we were in another mountain pass this one called Lookout Pass, 4,738 feet high and this time I was thoroughly enjoying my theric. Arriving in Coeur D'Alene, we found this was a real mill city, and because of the many logging trailers we have seen carrying logs have large diesel motors as those logs are large and often times not more than two or three to a load and many the only one.

This evening we decided to stay at a motel, as we had been told of motels by friends while in Ontario, but from now on, for a long distance, we had not been very fussy about trying them.

Like Motel Accommodation

Let me tell you when you become tired of prepared meals, go to a good motel, where you have comfortable beds, electric ranges, refrigerators, easy chairs and often a radio. We were quite delighted with our motel quarters. One in particular stands out to us, it was like a miniature flat, we had a nice bed sitting-room, the bed folding up in the wall behind closed doors, nice rug on the polished floor, good lights for reading two easy chairs, writing desk and bench and a radio that played two hours when you put twenty-five cents in a slot, then we had a bathroom with shower while the very bright kitchen had plenty of cupboard space, electric stove, dishes, cutlery, cooler for food, and under the same roof, storage for our car with closed door and all less than a room at many hotels.

Leaving Coeur D'Alene we had just a short drive to Spokane and a still shorter drive to leave Montana and we were in the State of Idaho, where the licence plates on the cars have a picture of a potato, advertising Idaho as the potato State. We drove into Spokane on a four-lane highway around noon and needless to say there was plenty of traffic. Failed to see the right turn and we found we were off No. 10, so we parked and I called we were right in front of the C.I.O. committee rooms.

Built on Hills

Spokane is a large sprawling city built on the hills which makes for a beautiful city. It is also a very wealthy city as there are many industries in and around the city. It is the home of the Hammond organ, and Gold Medal flour, much lumbering is done in the vicinity and the making of matches is another large industry. The residential part is very lovely, with beautiful gardens of many varieties of flowers and shrubs surrounding palatial homes.

Soon as we had our directions that led to No. 10, we were leaving Spokane on a four-lane highway. Many of the grocery stores pile their fruit and vegetables out in front of their stores or markets and I thought what a shore to bring that all in at night.

We had lunch in a clean little town by the name of Greenacres, home of National Biscuit Co.

FLYING PROMOTERS SAFE

Flin Flon, Man., Dec. 20.—(CP)—Two flying mining promoters, awaiting in their light aircraft since Friday, landed Monday noon in the wrong direction from which they were forced down three times.

Holly and George Thompson told their inspection trip to mining claims 165 miles northwest of here was hampered by poor visibility and bad icing conditions.

ANTARCTIC-BOUND

Dr. Ernest Roots, 28-year-old native of Salmon Arm, B.C., and graduate of the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, is one of 14 scientists en route to the Antarctic for a study of Queen Maud's Land. They will spend two years there, collecting weather data, surveying uncharted areas and checking the thickness of arctic glaciers. Dr. Roots is a geologist in the party.—(CP Photo.)

12 RED MINERS HELD

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 20—(AP)—Police announced Sunday night the arrest of 12 Communist copper miners on charges of plotting with "foreign elements" in this Chilean capital to overthrow the government during the Christmas holidays. The Communist party is banned in Chile.

Canadian Legion Branch 99 Holds Christmas Party

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion Branch 99 held their annual Christmas party for their families in the local club rooms. There was a beautiful Christmas tree, well loaded with gifts. Games, singing of Christmas carols, assisted by Mrs. Soule at the piano and Mrs. George Guilleer with his accordion was enjoyed.

During the intervals of singing the children were given a wonderful assortment of cookies, also bottle of soft drinks. Mrs. Bradford was the mistress of ceremonies, which were creditably carried out. Great credit goes to Mrs. Watts and her committee for their splendid supervision of the presents.

Little Brenda Fox gave a dance but the best time of all, was when jolly Old Santa arrived with the playing of "Here Comes Santa Claus" by George Guilleer, followed by the presentation of gifts, candies and oranges.

Three cheers were given for Santa after which all departed for home tired but happy.

Women's Activities

GILEAD Y.P.U.

The annual meeting of Gilead Y.P.U. was held on Sunday evening at the home of Ronald Badgley.

The meeting opened under the capable leadership of Mrs. Arthur McCreary with the singing of Christmas carols.

Scripture was read by George Clare followed by the Christmas story by Mrs. McCreary.

Business consisted of election of officers for 1950:

President, George Clare; vice president, Ronald Badgley; secretary, Wanda Swan; treasurer, John Huffman; pianists, Mrs. G. Livingston and Ann Clare; Conveners—Fellowship, Mrs. Arthur McCreary; Missions, John Huffman, Mary Clare; Culture, Carman and Wilma Huffman; Citizenship, Mrs. Earl Ross, and Carol Ross; Recreation, Ralph Swan, Albert Grills; press reporter, Wanda Swan.

Letters were read and discussed. It was decided to purchase one dozen scriptural calendars.

The next meeting to be held at the home of George Clare on Wednesday, Dec. 28.

Christmas Concerts

MT. VIEW SCHOOL

A splendid Christmas entertainment was held in Mountain View Church last Thursday, sponsored by Miss Mary Huff and school pupils. The music supervisor, Miss Lois Doxsee assisted at the piano.

Mr. Stanley Barber capably acted as chairman for the following program. Pauline Morris gave a recitation of welcome; a solo by Hilda Joyce "Toys in the Drum"; The Junior Rhythm Band then appeared, with Bradley Lee as conductor; an acrostic was given "Let We Forget" by Mervin Thompson, Lorne Vey, Bradley Lee,

Bernard Lee recited "When Santa was a Boy", and the Intermediates sang, "The Jolly Old Man".

A lovely double duet "In a Manger Lowly", was rendered by Janice Joyce, Rose Mary Lee, Ila McMann and Yvonne Poste, followed by guitar selections by Douglas Trumble.

The main feature of the program was the operetta "The Night, Before Christmas", put on by the Senior pupils.

Santa Claus arrived in due time and helped unload the gaily trimmed Christmas tree. Candies and nuts were passed out from the Sunday School.

The collection amounted to $26.27. Ten dollars was donated to the Sunday School, $10 to the crippled children's fund and the remainder to the school fund.

GORE

VICTORIA W.A.

Gore—There was a splendid attendance at the Christmas and annual business meeting of Victoria W.A. at the home of Mrs. Melvin Fuller, on Wednesday afternoon. Following the opening exercises, which included carol singing, the Rev. J. P. Henderson took charge of the election of officers. Mrs. Morley Dempsey was re-elected president, with Mrs. Clifford Calnan, Mrs. McIntyre and Mrs. Gordon Waterhouse first, second and third vice respectively; Secretary— Mrs. Harmon Montgomery; Treasurer Mrs. G. Waterhouse; pianists Miss B Dempsey and Mrs. Hubert Townsend.

Some reports were given on the year's work. A feature of the afternoon was the placing of white gifts' around the Christmas tree. There was a most generous response to this suggestion— canned fruits and vegetables, clothing, home cooking, toys apples and many other things were given. These were later packed and taken by Malcolm Hubbs to the Salvation Army to be used in their Christmas chore baskets. Five dollars was voted to the work of the Picton Children's Aid, and $5. to the Sick Children's Hospital from the W. A. funds.

CENTRE CONCERT

Centre concert on Friday evening drew a full house. The different numbers under the direction of Mrs. Ronald Giles, with Miss Doxsee assisting at the piano, for the musical numbers, were all well received. One number "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" was especially good. The petite wedding party and minister took their parts so well. Miss Tamy Reid, the bride; Master Lyle Vanclief, the groom; Miss Beverly Pulver, bridesmaid; Master Ross Staveley, best man, and Master Lloyd Spencer as officiating clergyman all looked lovely in their wedding gowns. Master Allen Vanclief, as usher, did a perfect job. Another feature was the play by the members of the Y.P.U. "Advice to the Lovelorn" in which Mr. Alfred Calnan starred.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fox and Lee of Belleville, attended the concert at Centre Friday evening.

ROSLIN

ST. PAUL'S CAROL SERVICE

Roslin—A carol service conducted by the rector, the Rev. Clarence Wright, was held in St. Paul's Anglican church, on Sunday afternoon and consisted of carols, interspersed with Bible readings, telling the Christmas story. Those assisting with the reading were—Arthur Hart, Norma Bates, Valentine Wright, Yvonne Skinner, Mary Bates, and Clifford Hart.

The lesson was read by Mr. Everett Geen. An interesting highlight at the service was the presentation of cards, and badges to the members of the Junior W.A.

After the carol service was ended, a service baptism took place, and Clare Eldon Bates, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bates was baptized.

Woman's Auxiliary

Officers elected for the coming year were—

President, Mrs. C. Wright; vice president, Mrs. H. Sills; secretary, Mrs. Floyd Meeks; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Bates; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Wm. Bates; secretary of Little Helpers, Mrs. W. Clapsaddle.

A branch of the Junior W.A. with ten members has been organized with Mrs. Wright as leader. Meetings held every Wednesday after school at the rectory.

Ladies' Guild

The December meeting of the Ladies' Guild, 8th Line, was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. C. Wright.

The Roslin Young People's Union met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reid on Monday evening for their regular meeting.

Personals

Master Donny Lee Vance spent the weekend with Master David Geen.

An aged resident of this community Mrs. James Hamilton, passed away at her home on Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Easton of Toronto, spent the weekend with Miss Della McCormack.

A number from here attended the Santa Claus parade in Tweed on Saturday.

Paraplegic Expert Seeks More Nurses

Stoke Mandeville, Buckinghamshire, England — (CP)—The man who is restoring Britain's paraplegics to useful life has sent out an S O S for nurses.

With 125 men and women in his hospital being helped by his treatment for war-caused paralysis of the legs and lower trunk, Dr. Ludwig Guttman is unhappy because shortage of nurses is curtailing his work.

"Those on my waiting list (and there are several hundreds) are dying without hope. Give us nurses — even two will do—and we'll take 50 of these people immediately and more as beds become vacant."

Dr. Guttman is a German who fled his country with Hitler's rise to power. His Spinal Injury Centre here has made Britain a world centre for treatment of paraplegia.

Whereas after the First World War the death - rate far paraplegics was above 80 per cent and survivors were doomed to helpless lives in hospitals, Dr. Guttman's record is less than 7 per cent.

Three - quarters of those he has treated are at work, and many are married.

"I was called an enthusiast in 1943," he says, "when I predicted 75 per cent of my patients would be employable. Today fortunately my prediction has come true. Eventually I hope there will be no unemployable paraplegic pensioners of the 1939 war.

TEMPERATURE AT 85.5 IN BUENOS AIRES

Buenos Aires, Dec. 20 (AP)—Christmas shoppers sweltered here Monday as the temperature soared to 85.5. A late-afternoon shower broke the heat wave. Buenos Aires, south of the Equator, has its summer when North America has winter.

ChamberMusicGroup Formed by Women

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — A Sydney woman has formed a string orchestra for the purpose of bringing high quality chamber music to Australian audiences.

The orchestra members, all students at the Conservatorium, rehearse in their own time and skip vacations to prepare for performances. They intend to remain together as a professional group after they graduate.

Miss McDonald is the orchestra leader, but there is no conductor. She believes that conductors detract from the spontaneity of the players in chamber orchestras.

Club Activities

MAPLE LEAF GIRLS' CLUB

West Huntingdon.—The Maple Leaf Girls' Club held another meeting last Thursday, at the home of Shirley Elliott.

The meeting was opened with roll call, a traffic law you have learned. The minutes were read and business was attended to.

Discussions were held on "Home Studies" and many new phases of the work introduced.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, which brought the meeting to a close.

Wife Preserves

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Nude spuds will be exposed to public view soon.

Peeled potatoes put up in five pound visible containers by an Illinois concern are now being market-tested for sale early next year. The potatoes are automatically trimmed, eyes removed, sliced or left whole and then bathed in a preservative solution. The treatment, processors claim, leaves the potatoes as fresh and white as in their unpeeled state.

Not all labor savers are practical for home use. Sliced peeled fresh apples, for instance, have been used in restaurants and bakeries for a number of years successfully. In homes, however, they could hardly take the place of the apple in the fruit bowl.

Peeled potatoes will be a blessing from heaven to every K.P. in the army. They will not satisfy those women who want to serve boiled potatoes in the jacket or baked potatoes. Since so much of the nutritional value of potatoes is skin deep, many cooks will probably still call for potatoes in their natural garb.

Potatoes should be boiled in the jacket to get the best slices for potato salad. In the winter months hot potato salad is a perfect accompaniment for light meat dishes.

Hot Potato Salad. Serves 6

Wash six medium size potatoes. Place in cold salted water. Bring to a boil and cook until tender but not mushy, about 30 minutes.

Remove from fire. Drain. Cool slightly. Scrape pegs off potatoes with a table knife. Cut potatoes into slices about 1-4 inch thick.

Cut 4 slices of bacon into small dice. Place in frying pan and cook until bacon is crisp. Remove bacon from pan but let fat remain. To the bacon fat add 1-4 cup vinegar, 1-4 cup water, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons chopped chives or grated onion, 1-2 cup of peeled and chopped celery including leaves, 2 peeled chopped hard boiled eggs, 2 teaspoons salt 1-4 teaspoon pepper and 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard.

Bring mixture to a boil and pour over warm potatoes. Toss lightly with a fork to mix ingredients but do not break up potato slices.

Potato salad may be kept warm in top part of a double boiler or placed in a hot oven a few minutes to reheat. Just before serving sprinkle with pieces of bacon and 1 teaspoon caraway seeds.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped, envelope for his reply. —Ed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Good general rule: don't put fa- ...ved with a married man.

...sually dangerous to make ...eral statements about anything.

...hat the same, there are some ...situations in which, paradoxically perhaps, it is safer to follow general rule than to do anything else.

The general rule that I think is usually wise to follow is: Avoid getting involved with anyone who is married.

I have said that it is dangerous to lay down general rules, and I am perfectly aware that there may be circumstances which seem to precipitate people into involvements of this kind almost before they realize what is happening. But there are even more instances where it is possible to see what is coming, and to step aside before the thing gathers so much momentum that it may run over you.

A young divorcee, who is the mother of three boys, writes to tell me that she is in love with a married man, and can't decide whether she should give him up or go on to him. In her case, it seems to me unusually clear that she would be far wiser to put an end to their friendship, or at least to refuse to see him until he has arrived at some definite decision in regard to his own marriage.

The reason I think her course of action should be clear is because her relationship with this man seem extremely vague.

In the first place, there is a strange discrepancy in what he has apparently told her about the state of his marriage. She says that "he isn't separated from his wife as yet, because of their religious views." In another part of her letter she says, "His claims he loves me but he can't divorce until his son graduates from high school, which will not be for another two years."

Now if he has already found marriage difficult to dissolve for religious reasons, his son's graduation from high school is certainly not going to remove this obstacle from his path.

In the second place, this woman quite obviously lacks fall confidence in the man's sincerity since she says, "Shall I go to his wife and find out if he is telling me the truth about her and their life together? Sometimes I feel though he is hiding something from me. He has a married daughter and also a single one. Shall I ask them if he is telling me the truth about his home life?"

Even if there were no other factors in the case, there would be doubt on this point of his sincerity seems to me more than enough reason for her to stop having anything to do with this man until he clears up his position. If she has been going with him for eleven months, as she says, and still doesn't know whether he is telling her the truth or not about it, I would think he was hardly the kind of man she would want in her life.

Fashion Flashes

GOING STEADY are charming separates, handsome when worn together, right when teamed up with other garments. Brown and navy checked woollen is used for an attractive skirt with big patch pockets marked by small triangular flaps that end in blue tassels. With it is a navy blue jersey blouse with turned-back collar and convertible neckline.

FILLING the bill for wear on every so many occasions is the little dinner suit. A beauty is fashioned of rich black silk satin, the top cut like a suit jacket, with fitted waist and curved front. A pretty double collar and notch pockets, the latter heavily worked with jet.

DESIGNED FOR WEAR on every afternoon or dinner suits is the blouse slip, made with a sensible top. The garment eliminates "riding up" and is washable. Nylon crepe is used for a new blouse slip made with a pretty lace bodice and self collar with rhinestone stud closing.

THE LOOK OF LUXURY is well exemplified by a cocoon-shaped wrap of chinchilla. The chinchilla fur is worked with the tail in circular shape. The membrane dips in back, and there is a large cupped collar that is convertible.

COLOR CHANGES mark many of the new coats, with the advent of blue and fur. A coat of dark red woollen becomes a very dashing one with a notched collar, pocket flaps and cuffs of navy blue Persian lamb.

VERY PLEASING to the teenagers are these new hats made of sturdy burlap. Mostly they are cloche-shaped and trimmed with jeweled bands.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Dance along the good-looks way

Square dances are popular all over the country! That's just dandy! They help along the universal project of keeping young, agile and quick on the toes. They are a prop and a boost to the woman who has a definite, and maybe justified, notion that she is "getting along", fears that she is approaching the period when she will feel settled—a terrible word. Maybe she has been working too hard, hasn't had any fun. Perhaps she is a bit musclebound, due to the fact that she hasn't had any exercise since Fida was a pup. If she has begun to feel old she'll look it, even if she has just turned forty, which, these days, is late girlhood.

Dancing is the most marked example of appeal made by rhythmic movements; it is the highest form of physical culture.

It infuses high spirits and is prescribed for its psychological as well as physiological effects. If you have no opportunity to dance, make one. Walk yourself, alone, if necessary.

Breathe in the breakfast dishes, made the beds, trundled the carpet sweeper over the rugs. Kids won't be home from school for several hours. Nobody home to make smart cracks at you. Put on a dance record, prance, leap, kick up your heels and be gay.

Put on a dance record, kick up your heels and be gay

When the family income permits, a little gift should be taught to dance. Eventually she will want to trip the light fantastic and, if the time for that doesn't come, until later years, she may be distressed at the stiffness of her joints, her awkwardness of movement. Dancing helps to cultivate body balance, and body balance is a step toward creating the svelte figure and good posture. One gains poise and freedom of movement, and the health benefits are manifold. Calories will find that chest defiance treatment takes place; plumpies will shake off a few fat cells, discover that hips, thighs and calves are assuming more pleasing lines.

During January dancing season, try this excellent exercise; do a mazurka hop sidewise to the left, then forward, then backward. Stamp your foot three times, take three grape steps to the left, then waltz half a dozen turns, back to the first step and repeat. In a side step the left foot slides to the left, the right foot follows with the toes on the floor all the time.

Put on a waltz record and dance in the old fashioned manner to get the most muscle effort you can out of the movements. Extend your arms out at the sides on a line with your shoulder; come up high on the toes at every turn.

Pause at the first sign of fatigue, lift the chest, pull in the tummy, take half a dozen deep breaths.

GOOD MANNERS

CHRISTMAS . . . For 'One World'
So shall we learn to understand
The simple faith of shepherds then,
And singing kindly hand in hand
Sing "Peace on Earth, Good-Will to men."
—James Russell Lowell

How to Thank Her Employer for h Christmas Present

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. Last evening at choir practice, my predecessor (now married) in the position I have as secretary to the man who is head of our department, told me that this employer always gave her a very fine Christmas present, and that he undoubtedly would give me a present this Christmas. Now I'm wondering . . . if he should, should I open it when he hands it to me?

2. Besides thanking him when he hands me the gift, should I also write him a thank-you note? You see, I have never met his wife, but I have spoken with her many times over the telephone, and she is always most cordial. Would it be proper for me to send a Christmas card to him and his wife at their home address? — (Even though I have never met her?)

Deedie

1. I'm sure you will find it more graceful not to open the Christmas present when he hands it to you. Instead, say something like this: "How very kind of you, Mr. Allen. Thank you, very much indeed. I'll put it on my Christmas tree to be opened on Christmas Day!"

2. And then, as soon as possible after Christmas, write a thank-you note to him. If only his name is on the enclosed card, write your note to him only and leave it on his desk. But of course write to both him and his wife if her name is included on the card . . . then mail the card to their home address.

3. Yes, even though you have not met his wife, it is entirely proper, friendly too, for you to send a card addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." at their home address.

How to Address Card to Minister and Wife

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

How do I address the envelope of our Christmas card to our clergyman and his wife? (He's a "Dr.").

Margaret D.

Address the card to:

Silver Dollars as Presents to Youngsters

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'll confess to my "last minute gifts" . . . but I'd like to give a silver dollar to each of several children of whom I'm particularly fond. But my problem thinks this gift of money is not in good taste for children. What is your thought about this?

S. L.

These youngsters will be dazzled by the shiny silver dollars . . . I'm sure of this and I see no reason for not dazzling them! You can give the Yuletide festive Christmas air by putting them in one of the wondrous money - envelopes to be found this year, with bright designs, particularly the design of a wisely-grinning Santa Claus. Or put the silver dollar in the toe of a tiny Christmas stocking. Bell-trimmed. Or tape the silver dollar to the gay piggy bank cards that are to be found in most stationary stores.

THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR

The shepherds set out for Bethlehem, "to see this thing which is come to pass."

The Shepherds Come Worshipping

"And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger." (Luke 2:16)

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

"And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child." (Luke 2:17)

Simeon and Anna, the Prophetess

According to custom, the baby Jesus was brought to the Temple in Jerusalem for religious rites when he was eight days old. There was an old man there named Simeon.

It had been revealed to him by the Holy Ghost "that he should not see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ." (Luke 2:26.) And when the parents brought in the child—

"Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace . . . for mine eyes have seen thy salvation." And to Mary he prophesied darkly, "Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also." (Luke 2:29, 30, 35.)

And Anne, a prophetess who had been a widow for 84 years, coming in that temple, "gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption." (Luke 2:38.)

The Wise Men From the East

"There came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him." (Matthew 2:1, 2)

When King Herod heard this he was greatly troubled. So he had the wise men brought before him and questioned them.

"When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them till it . . . stood over where the young child was." (Matthew 2:9.)

When they saw the child with Mary they fell down and worshiped him, and presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh." (Matthew 2:11.)

Play Pen no Place To Penalize Child

New York — (CP) — Don't make a penalty box out of the play pen, say the experts on child rearing.

If your child is naughty or you wish to get him from underfoot for a while, don't take the path of least resistance and pop him into the play pen, saying: "There now, you stay there and play!"

Mrs. Aline B. Auerbach, member of the Child Study Association counselling service, warned recently that play pens can "threaten the baby's personality development."

Putting baby in the pen from time to time during the day gives him a chance to play alone and to learn that he can't always expect to receive his mother's attention, she said. But as the child grows older, he will require a wider scope for his activities.

Mrs. Auerbach warned also against the practice of giving a child too many toys.

"Some children receive so many toys they never get full benefit or pleasure out of any one," she said. "We should strive also to keep a jump ahead of our children in helping them grow by giving them the right playthings at the right time."

For the child just learning to walk, a simple pull toy or doll carriage is the thing, advised Mrs. Auerbach. His interest in water play can be aided by means of rubber animals in his bath or bathtub dolls.

Toys are part of an education, according to Mrs. Auerbach, and parents "should try to provide the simple things that will help youngsters take the next step instead of staying put." Good toys help to develop the senses of touch, taste, sight and sound, help in body development and in arousing the imagination.

The question of stuffed toys—the stuffed bunny or rag doll that baby must have every night in his crib — was brought up by a group of mothers taking part in a discussion at the Child Study Association. The consensus of opinion was that it was good for youngsters to have these toys although their meaning was hard to fathom.

"Perhaps," suggested Mrs. Auerbach, "it's the association of people or certain situations with the toys that makes it so beloved. Or maybe it's how the toy was introduced and who presented it. The answer sometimes is meaningful."

URGE CHRISTMAS AMNESTY

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (AP) — Seventy eminent Americans have urged in a letter to President Truman Christmas amnesty for thousands of conscientious objectors, the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors said Sunday. The request was made in behalf of those whose convictions as objectors not only resulted in their imprisonment but classed them permanently as felons deprived of civil rights.

Volume of Christmas Sales Compares Well With Other Years; More Selective Buying

Merchants knew that the big annual rush had hit for another season as swarms of shoppers converged on the downtown shopping area this past week looking for that Christmas present for members of their families and personal friends. And the buyers were buying, 'too, buying as much as they have in former years from a complete selection of gifts.

Armed with a Christmas list as long as your arm and mindful of family hints as broad as the proverbial barn door the shopper seems to have reached a state of frenzy with only four more days left until Christmas.

But the shopper is more particular this year. He doesn't mind spending his money for an article that is of better quality, better value and featuring newness as on of the local merchants put it. Shoe Dealer Complains

Prices of goods seem the same perhaps a little less and the wise retailers are having to stock more and different merchandise for the Christmas buyers. The chief complaint came from a shoe merchant who claimed that the lack of snow was hurting his seasonal trade. "Business is kind of spotty," he said. "What we need is snow. Artificial snow in the window is no good. They don't get it on their feet."

Santa Claus is coming to town all right and you can wager that his famous Rudolph the red nosed Reindeer will be heading the parade in fact Rudolph threatened the popularity of old Saint Nick himself when he may have to become redder to compete with the bright mount of his interradiously-known reindeer. The book store owner on Front Street tells of increasing sales in the three or the Rudolph releases. The story book has been sold out completely, he reported, outpacing the latest seasonal musical selection with the song "White Christmas" that swept the country a few years ago. "Last Saturday saw 100 pieces of the Rudolph sheet music picked up by crazed music lovers," the merchant said "I'm telling you the sales are terrific."

Big Volume of Sales

From the number of customers in the stores and the amount of merchandise they are buying it looks like the whole family welfare even better than in other years. Fans can expect anything from a carton of cigarettes in an outboard motor; Mama has many surprises in store for her too, ranging from nylons to a mink coat; little Jimmy can almost be sure to get one of those new fangled games while sister Susie should not lack for much after she opens her packages.

All the jewellery stores report business as good as usual with emphasis on watches and rings ...although the staples are moving briskly. From the number of engagement rings being purchased 1950 may be a record year in marriages in these parts one jeweller reported. English bone china is still on the scarce list due to production conditions in the British Isles. The industry apparently lost many experts in the war and the government's high taxation to these skilled workers has not helped the situation any. A coffee set of Aynsley bone china, comprising six cups and saucers, a coffee pot and a cream pitcher and sugar jug hand painted and bearing the artist's signature for example retails at $100. The set is inlaid with gold.

Novelty Decorations

The traditional Yule tree is getting as much attention this year with all sorts of novelty decorations and the standard colored globes and lights. Holly wreaths and the mistletoe will be displayed in the homes of most of the inhabitants.

The survey here shows that most of those sitting around the festive board will be eating traditional turkey although many have ordered a goose and there has been the usual demand for ducks, chicken and ham with the bone in. One butcher feels that farmers should concentrate on raising smaller turkeys. "Everybody wants a bird weighing between 10 and 12 pounds" he said, quoting present prices for good quality fowl.

Turkey is retailing at from 50 to 65 cents a pound, the heavier birds fetching the smaller prices. Geese, 65 cents a pound, duck 65 cents a pound, chicken 45 cents a pound and capons 55 cents a pound.

Ham roasts with the bone left in sell at between 55 and 60 cents a pound.

Held Up Just As He Expected

Pittsburgh, Dec. 20 (AP) — Samuel Meredith 27, told police Mon., he was held up just as he thought he would be sometime.

Meredith told how he's carried two billfolds for years, one with a small amount of cash, and the other with the rest of his money. In case of a robbery, he planned to fork over the one with the lesser amount.

And what did he do when the hold-up man accosted him? Well, Meredith said a little bashfully he got excited. He handed over the wallet containing his $200 bank roll and kept the one containing only $13.

HAZARDS OF LOVE

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—Arthur Naylor, 21, is in hospital suffering from a fractured skull and pondering the hazards of love.

It all started when a girl he was attempting to woo refused to admit him to her home. He took off his shoes and began to climb to a roof beneath the girl's window.

She still refused to admit him and called the landlord. A struggle followed and the landlord is alleged to have hit Naylor on the head with one of his own shoes.

Thes landlord has been charged with wounding.

Doukhobors Told Police Not Going To Play Any More

Nelson, B.C., Dec. 20. (CP)—Provincial Police Sunday night took a good look at the olive branch proferred by the Sons of Freedom and decided to have a of thorns.

At a meeting at Krestova, 18 miles northwest of here, Commissioner John Sibirsz steeply told 150 professedly-penitent members of the radical Doukhobor sect that the government is "not going to play . . . any longer."

The meeting was called to discuss a pledge made last week to cease the protest violence that has periodically rocked the West Kootenays with fire and dynamite.

To Doukhobors it was something of a holiday. With characteristic pageantry they dressed in hand-made shawls and Slavic clothing, their bearded men chanting deep-toned Russian hymns as they marched to the community hillside rendezvous.

Commissioner Sibirzs reminded them that similar pledges had been broken in the past, and warned the alternative to obedience this time is isolation of "certain section from society".

At first the blunted warning set yet for the 5,000-odd members of the religious sect which sought political supremacy and religious freedom here from the Czarist regime in 1899.

It followed dynamiting of railway tracks in the dangerous roadbeds through the mountains. Railway crews refused to make the run without guards, and armed civilians watched bridges.

Inspector Nelson, after the meeting, called on more Sons to come forward and confess their parts in past acts of violence.

He said he wanted confessions so "that the rest of the world will know that it was not carried out as a result of a general feeling held by you all. I am satisfied that some of you know who they (the perpetrators) are."

No one came forward.

Low Family Income Big Factor in Many Sex Crimes

Washington, Dec. 20 — (AP)— A University of Chicago sociologist says that a low family income is a big factor in sexual promiscuity among young girls.

Dr. Samuel W. Burgess told a Congressional economic sub-committee Saturday that, in addition to low income, delinquency in both sexes is caused by "bad housing, slum neighborhoods, prevalance of gangs and lack of community organization."

The sub-committee is studying low incomes and what can be done about them.

Dr. Burgess gave this picture of the road to juvenile delinquency:

Most girl delinquents are from low-income families, and the "great majority of girl delinquency is that of sexual promiscuity."

These girls meet "other girls already engaged in illicit sexual behavior with a number of youths from a group unsupervised by parents or characterless institutions."

At first the girls "decline to engage in drinking and sex relations," he said.

"The group soon gives her to understand that she must conform and join in these activities or leave the group. Many decide to join in for the sake of fun and companionship."

"Finally, she may learn that she can receive presents and obtain money for sexual relations. Sooner or later she is apprehended, brought into court and committed to the state training school for girls."

Dr. Burgess said his testimony was based upon a study of 100 girls in a state training school.

Burgess said the boy from a low-income home becomes a member of a tough neighborhood gang, and then moves from petty crimes into serious felonies.

Consul-General And Wife Arrive In Yokohama

Yokohama, Dec. 20 (AP) — Consul-General and Mrs. Angus Ward came back to fellow Americans from a year's virtual imprisonment by the Chinese Reds and got a rousing welcome on their 30th wedding anniversary.

The Wards and members of the United States Consulate staff at Mukden, Manchuria, arrived here aboard the Lakeland Victory to complete the first leg of their journey back to the U.S.

The Ontario-born Consul-general, who was kicked out by the Chinese Communists, said he was overwhelmed by the greetings of some 200 Americans waiting at the pier when the ship docked.

Behind him —but fresh in memory—was what Ward called the "hellish" treatment at the hands of the Reds in Mukden, months of bickering to try to leave the country, and finally his arrest and a month in jail before a "peoples court" ordered him expelled. The Communists accused him of beating two Chinese employees in a wage dispute. The U.S. State Department said the charge was "trumped up."

Ward walked down the gangplank of the Lakeland Victory to the strains of an enthusiastic U. S. army band.

Puffing a stubby pipe, Ward was obviously touched by the reception.

Few — if any—of the official greeters and throngs of well wisher on the dock knew their welcome was marking the Wards' 30th wedding anniversary. But crew members of the Lakeland Victory and correspondents aboard the ship had marked the occasion in advance with a party for them Sunday night.

The Wards are scheduled to leave Japan for the U.S. Thursday on the liner President Wilson.

REV. DR. BRACE DIES

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — A leader in Y.M.C.A. work in West China for many years, Rev. Dr. Albert James Brace, 72, died suddenly Friday night at Preston, Ont. He lived in Toronto since his retirement two years ago.

In Victoria he entered Y.M.C.A. work and went to China in 1912. In Victoria he entered Y.M.C.A. work and went to China in 1912 as secretary for West China.

One Man Killed And Five Injured In Train Wreck

Dauphin, Man., Dec. 20—(CP) One man was killed and five others injured Sunday in a head-on collision between two Canadian National Railways freight trains at Dublin Siding, 24 miles west of here.

Dead is Douglas Lytle, 24, of Rignfield, Man., a brakeman who died when pinned under the wheels of derailed box car. He had leaped from one of the freights just prior to the crash-up.

Injured and taken to hospital are Roy Wells, W. B. Ballantyne, Peter Crowder, R. D. Ross and N. E. Lavalee, all of Dauphin.

The mishap occurred when an eastbound freight, heading from Kamsack, Sask., to Dauphin, with about 35 box cars and an extra engine, rammed head-on into a west-bound engine and caboose.

The collision, which occurred on a siding, threw seven box cars and the two engines on the east-bound freight off the track. Several box cars overturned across the adjoining main line between Kamsack and Dauphin.

Wells said from his hospital bedside that the east-bound freight, of which he was engi was coming downgrade as it proached Duition Siding. W the train was a few hund yards from the switch, he said noticed the switch was said him. He shouted a warning to other crew members, then jum ed just before the trains collid

Police Will Help Santa Make Life Happier for Girl

Greeneville, Tenn., Dec. 20 — (AP) — For 13-year-old Joyce Conduff, police have ordered a Christmas present — a happier family life.

Police Officer H. C. Burgess said that this is how it happened the law is lending Santa Claus a hand:

Neighbors told police Saturday that Joyce was living in an attic, sleeping on the bare floor with no blankets, coming down to eat scraps left on the table after supper.

She told them she chose the attic two years ago because she didn't like her stepmother. She said her father, Ernie Conduff, wouldn't do anything about the stepmother.

Both Conduff and his wife said they knew nothing about Joyce living in the attic. They both work all day.

The stepmother is Conduff's third wife. He has seven children by his second wife—Joyce's mother—but none by the stepmother.

The officers went back Sunday night and found Joyce sleeping behind a couch in the parlor. Conduff said that with his big family, there was not room for a bed.

No charges were filed. Sheriff Dahl Pruit said he could continue his investigation, and Conduff could have until Christmas to straighten out the situation and make a place for Joyce in the family.

Women Invited To the Inaugural Council Meeting

London, Ont., Dec. 19—(CP)—With their "objective" thinking, wives should be first-class advisers to their aldermen-husbands, Mayor George Wenige told the 1950 council at its inaugural meeting.

In an effort to increase interest in civic affairs, the mayor invited about 100 local organizations to send representatives to the inaugural and many did. Wives of aldermen and civic officials had seats of honor.

"It is a source of satisfaction to see your wives and my wife here today," said the 76-year-old mayor Wenige, starting a record-breaking ninth term.

"Two heads are better than one, and if you consult your wives on civic activities you will be repaid. Wives have an objective viewpoint. They are in a position to give interpretations to projects you might easily overlook. Make your wives partners in civic administration. You'll find their co-operation is invaluable."

BENELLI ITALIAN POET AND PLAYWRIGHT, DIES

Rome, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Sem Benelli, 73, one of Italy's most-celebrated playwrights and poets, died Sunday at Zoagli, on the Italian Riviera. His plays include "Supper of the Jesters," which was set to music and presented at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York about a quarter of a century ago, and "The Romantic Tragedy."

Staff of David's Electric Shop Enjoys Dinner

The proprietor Mr. Enos David was host to his staff, their wives and friends, at a happy Christmas party at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, where a delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served to some twenty-five guests.

Mr. David spoke briefly, paying tribute to the loyalty and the cooperation of each member in making this a very successful year, and continuing the expansion of the business. At this time bonus checks were presented to each member of the staff and gifts were distributed to the ladies and for the younger members of their families.

Mr. Jack Moring expressed appreciation on behalf of the staff for this annual get together which is always looked forward to by everyone.

Mrs. David in a few words expressed her thanks to the staff for the lovely flowers which she had received.

Messrs. J. Houston, Mr. H. Baker, Mr. E. Lyons and Mr. J. David representing Canadian Westinghouse, Beatty Brothers, Philco and Coleman products and Rogers Majestic brought greetings from their respective companies.

FOUR TO RUN

Brantford, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Three men and possibly four will contest the mayoralty as a result of last week's death of Mayor Walter J.Dowden, it was indicated Monday night at a special council session that approved by-laws for another election Jan. 3. Nominations are Saturday.

Ex-Mayor John H. Mathews, Ald. John T. Shillington and Ald. Howard Winter said they would enter the race. Ald. Wilbur H. Reeder, who was defeated in the three-man contest Dec. 6 said he might be a candidate again.

Four Placed Under Protection At Joliette, Que.

Joliette, Que., Dec. 20 — (CP) — Two members of the Jehovah Witnesses sect and two newspaper men were taken under protective police custody in this industrial city 40 miles north of Montreal Monday night when an angry mob of 300 persons threatened them with bodily harm.

The four persons—two women members of the sect and a reporter and photographer from the Toronto Star—arrived early Monday from Montreal. The women were identified as Winifred Parsons, 26, of Sarnia, Ont., and Olive Lundell, 31, of Maidstone, Sask.

Police said the women attempted to organize a meeting at the city hall in protest against their alleged abduction by a group of litany-singing youths, who forcibly took the girls from Joliette to Montreal last week.

Messrs. J. Houston, Mr. H. Baker, Mr. E. Lyons and Mr. J. David representing Canadian Westinghouse, Beatty Brothers, Philco and Coleman products and Rogers Majestic brought greetings from their respective companies.

The newspaper men, unidentified, were wanted to "stay out of Joliette" by the crowd. A note pad used by the reporters was seized and torn by the mob. At this point police intervened and ordered the four under police protective custody.

Left-Wingism Fear Unseated Aussie Govt. Says Casey

Voters Did Not Want An All-Powerful State

Washington, Dec. 20 —(AP)— The unseating of the Labor government in Australia resulted from public fear over "left-wingism" and "the all-powerful state," says one of the men who sparked the victorious liberal and Country parties.

The voters wanted change, contends one of the losers, but some of them "don't know why."

Reporting for the winners was Richard G. Casey of the Liberal party who was sworn in Monday in Canberra as Minister of Supply in the Australian ministry.

His views were reported in an overseas telephone interview with the United States News and World report, weekly news magazine published at Washington.

Asked if he thought the voters were "discontented" over any particular issues, Casey answered:

"It was not discontent as much as fear of left-wingism and the all powerful state."

The magazine also published interviews with Joseph Chifley, the retiring prime minister of the Labor Government, and H. A. M. Campbell editor of the Melbourne Age. It reported the ages an independent of major influence in Australian affairs

Chifley denied that "the welfare-state idea" had been repudiated by the elections. He added that all parties in Australia "are pledged to provide adequate social services, educational facilities and health services," and said defeat of his party was a result of voters wanting a change "but they don't know why."

Campbell said the change resulted from: "First a general weariness of a party which has been in office eight years."

"More specifically," he added, "it was popular impatience with long-sustained bureaucratic controls remaining from wartime, and resentment a rather high-handed use of ministerial powers in administration..."

Hard to Persuade UK Workers to Work On Saturday

London, Dec. 20 (Reuters) — It has become almost impossible to persuade British workers to do overtime on Saturdays since the introduction of the five-day week, Chief Inspector of Factories, C. P. Hewlett, said in his report for 1948 published today. Saturday has become a day set aside for rest, recreation and entertainment, the report said. Workers frequently suggested Sunday work to leave their Saturdays free.

Santa Becoming Well Known In Many Oriental Countries

San Francisco, Dec. 20 — (AP) Santa Claus is pretty well known these days around the Pacific ocean, even in oriental countries where he was once a stranger.

This is reported by Pan American World Airways which flies airplanes to a number of Pacific ports and recently got to wondering how Santa Claus was doing. Pan-Am men surveyed the scene and found:

Christmas always comes first in the Fiji Islands, because that's the first spot Christmas day hits west of the international date line.

It lasts longest in the Philippines starting with a mass on Dec. 16 and ending with epiphany Jan 6. Xmas bands arouse villagers to go to church. Colorful lanterns deck the streets, and carolers sing in English and Tagalog.

In Tagalog, Merry Christmas comes out "Malingayang Pasko."

After the Fiji Islands, Christmas next hits New Zealand and Australia as the world turns eastward into the day. New Zealand kids hang their stockings on the foot of their bed. The more optimistic ones hang up a pillow case. Australians in Sydney day cancel on Christmas morning (before the day gets too hot, because it's summer there) instead of Christmas eve. They gather 300,000 strong at the river Yarra in Melbourne to sing carols on Christmas eve. They end with "Auld Lang Syne." On Christmas day beaches are crowded.

In Thailand (Siam), Christmas isn't a public holiday, but Christian families observe it quietly at home. There's a big family feast with Siamese and Chinese food.

Christmas in Ceylon has caught on with non-Christians in Thailand, and friends and neighbors, Christians and Buddhists alike, throng the house on the host.

In northern Alaska, Christmas day is dark throughout and the lights on Christmas trees burn continuously.

In Japan before the war, only Christian families paid any attention to Christmas. Now, with thousands of occupational personnel present, the custom is spreading.

But the big day in Japan is still New Year's.

Sheriff Says Man He Trusted Was Ohio Bank Robber

Marion, Ind., Dec. 20 — (AP) — The sheriff said today the man he trusted with the keys to the jail turned out to be an Ohio bank robber.

Nearly four months ago Sheriff Vaughn Treber hired a new turnkey. The man called himself Jimmy Burke.

But Jimmy wasn't his real name. Monday, through an F.B.I. photograph, he was disclosed as James H. (Bugs) Perry, 36, of Rittman, O., Treber said.

The F.B.I. has been hunting Perry for the $3,134 robbery of a bank in North Fairfield, O., last June 13. Perry admitted he was their man straight off, Treber said, regretting only the embarrassment the incident might cause the sheriff.

This is the way they caught Perry, according to Treber:

He was picked up Aug. 9 on a vagrancy charge and served an 11-day jail term, Treber took a liking to him and hired him as turnkey. He did a good job too.

But Detective Capt. Hobart Whitten happened to be thumbing through F.B.I. circulars of wanted men. One photo looked a great deal like Jimmy Burke.

Whitten and the sheriff showed the picture to "Jimmy Burke, Jimmy — or Perry — agreed it looked like him.

"That's it," said Perry. "I'm the guy."

Perry was working around the clock shift at the jail, seven days a week, and had access not only to cell keys but to gun racks and the jail's mail. He ate there and was being paid $100 a month.

He said he had planned to go straight and liked the job.

Perry will be returned to Ohio to face charges. He has a record of having served 32 years in prison for larceny, burglary and possessing narcotics.

HEPC Reserve Not to be Used to Offset Increase

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Robert F. Saunders, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said today the commission's $20,000,000 reserve fund will not be used to offset the increase in Hydro rates announced recently.

"This money is paid into the Ontario system to meet a specific objective—that of stabilizing rates during depression period when costs continue and consumption falls off—and must be reserved for that purpose," he said.

The commission would "not complain too much" if some municipalities with similar reserves of their own sought to apply them against the rate increase.

Any increase in rates charged by the municipalities to the consumers must be approved by the commission, Mr. Saunders said today. That no applications for increases have been received yet but he expected a few to start coming in early in the new year. The commission's financial advisers are studying the new rates as they affect each community.

The commission recently increased wholesale rates for power by 25 per cent, giving increased costs as the reason. Utilities officials in Kitchener and Welland suggested that, instead of boosting rates, the commission should dip into its reserves.

Weary Workers Still Digging For Lost Miner

Blairmore, Alta., Dec. 20 — (CP) — Weary miners, working in 24-man shifts, after 72 hours of digging through tons of coal and rock, today still sought the body of fellow-miner Ben Carter.

Carter, 56-year-old father of five, was buried in a cave-in Friday night with Mike Kwiatkowski, 25, whose body has been found.

Mine officials held little hope of finding Carter alive. All other mining activity has ceased.

Hog Producers Request Floor Price by Government; D. Hollinger Named President

Endorsation of a request for a floor price to be established for pork products was made by members of the Hastings County Hog Producers' Association at their annual meeting held in Stirling Monday afternoon.

The request for a government supported floor price was unanimous on the part of the members. The resolution will be forwarded to Agriculture Minister James Gardiner and the minister of finance.

As guest speaker for the afternoon, Chas. W. McInnes, livestock of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, said that in view of wartime promises made by the government it was only fair that a floor price be set on pork products. Also he recommended the establishment of a long term hog marketing system which would make the industry independent, from a free enterprise standpoint of the exportable surplus.

Hog Marketing Agency Urged

He urged the establishment of a hog marketing agency which could bargain with the packing plants for the best possible prices, and for greater profits for the farmer of his product.

"Unless we have control over our product we will never have true prosperity," he said.

During the period between the two wars Canadian hog producers had difficulty seeing their United Kingdom market slip away from them but still Canadian producers were content only to be producers. In Denmark it was different. There the producer never lost control of his product until it was sold to the retailer, they studied their market and controlled their product all the way through.

Not Been Fair Chisler

Referring to a reported British claim that the Canadian hog exports to Britain could not be depended on, the speaker claimed the United Kingdom had not been fair to Canada when it was stated this country had not filled her hog contracts.

He pointed to completely filled pork contracts during the first year of the war and said that all contracts would have been filled if they had been set early enough and a fair price had been offered.

Under present trade conditions the Canadian farmer was being caught in a squeeze between the dollar and sterling countries. "We did not blame Britain for not wanting to renew her bacon contract with Canada as at last year's price it would cost an additional 20 per cent because of the devaluated pound.

Equally True

However, if Canadian farmers were forced to accept 20 cents it would be below the cost of production. This would call for a government supported price. Mr. McInnes claimed. If the subsidy system was found in wartime to prevent prices spiraling then it was equally as important in peacetime to prevent a downward spiral.

He said the government had a definite responsibility in this matter and that farmers must be definite in their demand for a price which would give them cost of production. "Why should agriculture be singled out to produce at a price below the cost of production?" he asked.

The speaker said that if the United Kingdom bacon contract was not large enough to take care of the exportable surplus, it might be well to investigate the U.S.A. market. However, the producers must go into marketing in a business-like way, studying the need of the consumer and select a long term marketing principle.

Wanis Contract Renewed

W. E. Tummon, secretary of the Stirling Wanis Club reported that it was not reasonable that fifty to sixty million pounds of pork which made up Canada's exportable surplus should establish the price for the total pork pounds on the domestic market.

He told of efforts of the National Hog Committee to have United Kingdom bacon contract renewed.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings, declared that the Canadian farmer had been "misled and deceived" in that they had been promised markets by the government following the war.

"Today the situation is changed entirely," he said. "Not only do we not have our United Kingdom market but the Canadian consumer is not prepared to export lower food prices."

"But the farmer is not prepared to accept lower prices when machinery and everything he purchases is increasing in price."

Only Answer

He stressed that a government supported price for bacon and cheese was the only answer to the problem.

He said the farmer could not afford to accept lower prices. If they did they would be forced to curtail production to maintain present commitments and services.

In a brief discussion period Mr. Robson advocated the establishment of a central selling agency for hogs, claiming that present day drovers were not taking sufficient interest to get the best possible price from the packer. He said the drover could be used in a different capacity in that he could advise farmers when to ship their hogs.

He felt that if all hogs from one district were marketed by one man, better prices would be obtained.

Wants Drover to Continue

Elmer Post, Huntingdon township, pointed out however that farmers had cattle and other livestock to sell. He doubted if doing away with the drover would be good business.

"We don't want to look after the drover, he will look after himself," returned Mr. Robson.

Frank Tummon, Foxboro, pointed out that the Foxboro co-operative had done away livestock marketing. He said there was nothing to prevent Hastings county hog producers setting up their own marketing agency.

Mr. Tummon agreed that the export price had been $36 for Wiltshire sides, but stated that the Canadian producer was paid on the basis of dressed carcass. "A shortage of hogs on the domestic market last summer had forced the price up to $35," he said.

Other speakers heard included Seldon Homan, Thurlow township deputy reeve, and Mr. Fraser, of Marmora, bacon manager. Mr. Fraser said that it was unfortunate that producers took little interest in organization until a crisis arose.

David Hollinger of Stirling, was selected president of the hog producers with Elmer Post of Huntingdon as vice president and George Bailey, as secretary treasurer.

Cold and Snow Hit Prairies

Winnipeg, Dec. 20 (CP)— Temperatures in Manitoba will plunge to about 20 below tonight but milder weather is in prospect for Wednesday, the weather office at Winnipeg predicted today.

Churchill was the low spot in Manitoba during the night, with the mercury dropping to 30 below. Saskatchewan's low point was Dafoe, with a reading of 36 below.

Winnipeg's temperature was only five below up, to 8.30 a.m.

Snow which fell from Monday, will continue today. Near-zero winds, 4 to 1-3 inches during the last 24 hours, had the heaviest snowfall in Manitoba. Winnipeg was second with four inches.

'BUSHING' FOR HUMDS FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

Whitehorse, Y. T., Dec. 20 — Cecil A. Moore, a man with a mission and 10 huskies, is resting up for the next lap of his journey. Moore is "mushing" to Lewiston, Me., to raise funds for a children's home to be established there by the Lions Club. He arrived here Sunday from Fairbanks, Alaska. His chariot is an Alaska sled, equipped with pneumatic wheels for traversing bare spots along the road.

Santa Claus Dangerous Character Says Official

London, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Santa Claus is a dangerous character, says R. M. Smith of the Home Office's fire prevention department.

"Each Christmas brings a flock of fires," he said.

Christmas fires are caused by fairy lights, faultily wired by amateur electricians; cotton wool snow that is 1,000 times more dangerous than the real thing; paper chains and streamers hung near flames and party frocks that catch fire near gas stoves.

In a big drive to reduce the number of fires in Britain—there were more than 60,00 last year in England and Wales—every fire outbreak is fully reported to the Home Office fire prevention department where there is a big research staff.

Careless or ignorant use of electrical gadgets in the home, or bad electrical wiring are among common causes of fire, Smith said.

Consequently the Home Office's message in Britain this Christmas is: "If you are not sure of what you are doing, for Heaven's sake call in an electrician."

Old Country Letter:

Observance of Sunday as 'Lord's Day' on the Wane in Britain

By MICHAEL O'HARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

British Sundays are growing more aimless and less interesting. Observance of the day of rest as "The Lord's Day" is on the wane.

These are among the conclusions of "meet yourself on Sunday" (The Naldrett Press), a survey recently conducted by Mass Observation.

What do British people do on Sunday? How do they pass time, which not long ago was almost solely devoted to religious and spiritual exercises?

The vast majority just hang around home, the survey replies. Even Soho's petty crooks, who normally wouldn't be caught dead away from their favorite cheap coffee houses or pubs, retire close to their dingy bed-sitting rooms in gloomy contemplation of unwashed windows which look out on empty streets.

The most popular pastime is listening to the radio. At least three-quarters of the population turns on the BBC or nearby European stations for part of the day.

One in four stays in bed late, two in five visit or entertain, and one in six spends part of the day gardening.

Pub Crawling Restricted

Away-from-home activities are fewer. To in five go for a walk, one in six visits a pub for a drink or two—licensing hours are restricted on Sundays — one in seven goes in for driving and one in 12 goes to the movies.

One in six is at work Sundays and gets his "weekend off" in mid-week.

Only one in seven goes to church.

To compensate for the loss of religious character, Sundays have not gained much in the way of secular pleasures. Blue laws still put a stop to many week-day sources of amusement.

Solid Stuffing

It still is "clearly an excuse for solid stuffing." Meals—at least in the middle-income groups —are much heavier than on week days.

A certain amount of stuffing goes on in the living room as well as the dining room. Sunday newspapers are fatter than dailies and readers have a chance to digest a more solid budget of feature articles, serials, sport news, gossip and scandal and maybe even a little serious news.

But the majority now finds Sunday a relatively dull-characterless day, rounding off Saturday rather than religiously initiating Monday and the week's work.

Women's Auxiliary Elects Officers For 1950

Shannonville—The annual business meeting and election of officers of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's Mission Church, Shannonville pastoral charge, was held on Thursday last at the home of the president, Mrs. Annie Connor, Herchimer Avenue. The rector the Rev. E. M. Caldwell, presided.

Encouraging reports were given of the year's work. Two suppers had been put on by the ladies. One for "the work of the Mission", the other for St. Margaret's—on-the-Hill, the new church project on Parkwood Heights, into which St. John's Mission shall be amalgamated next year. The bazaar held in Christ Church parish hall had been most successful despite the inclement weather. Some $197.50 had been spent on the rectory in Shannonville during the year, including the gift of a new desk for the rector's study.

Mrs. Meens, in her financial report, expressed satisfaction of a good year's work done and a substantial balance on hand.

Miss Jennie Redner, the Guild secretary, resigned her position, so that the secretary and the treasurer should be combined in the one office.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were:- president, Mrs. Harold Putman; vice president, Mrs. Russell Babcock; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. William Meens.

At the close of the meeting, a vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president for her efficient year's work.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Offers Sale of Former Penitentiary Lands

Kingston, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Sale of former Kingston penitentiary farm lands to building contractors has been offered by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation with the understanding that Kingston township will provide sewer, water and electric connections. Kingston township will in turn have to make application to Kingston city council for permission to connect with city services or else build a new sewer of its own for the 46-acre plots.

Plumbers Ready To Strike if Terms Not Met

Toronto, Dec. 20—(CP)—First action was taken by Toronto plumbers Monday in what is regarded as a test case in the construction industry's determination to hold the line against wage increases in 1950.

A meeting of 1,076 members of the Plumbers and Steamfitters' Union (A.F.L.) unanimously endorsed strike action if necessary in their request for a wage increase of 25 cents an hour. Such an increase would bring the rate to $2 an hour.

The employers, the National Association of Master Plumbers and Heating Contractors, have said no wage increases could be made. Present contracts expire on Dec. 31.

John Bruce, international representative of the Union, said that the Union has requested another meeting with employers. If the increase is still denied, a strike deadline will be set, he said. Such would tie up all commercial, industrial and residential building in Toronto.

The construction industry recognizes that any increase granted the plumbers would probably set a wage pattern for other building trades. But contracts held by other building trades unions do not expire until next May 1.

Artificial Eye so Perfect It Baffles Medical Students

By A. E. FULFORD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)— An artificial eye that does everything but see has been developed at the hospital for sick children here.

It moves just as a natural eye does. It's so natural looking it baffles medical students.

Specialists spent years developing the eye, working under difficulties in the 74-year-old hospital. To complete a new, $12,000,000 building, $4,000,000 is being sought from well-wishers across Canada.

The visible part of the new-type eye—created to match the good one perfectly —is a thin, plastic shell, much like the old, stationary artificial eye. The vital part of the two-piece mechanism is a base which is imbedded in the muscle and gives the eye movement.

The base, made of plastic and covered with tantalum mesh, is a ball ball about the size of a thumbnail with a square opening on its flat surface.

Specialists embedded the base in the muscle, weaving strands through the mesh to secure it firmly. The muscle then moves the base just as it moves a natural eyeball, independently or in concert with the good eye. The shell is clipped into place in the opening of the base.

Latest in Series

The eyes, developed by a team of hospital doctors and technicians, is the latest in a series, each an improvement over the previous one. At one stage in its development the eye muscles were sewn to holes in the plastic base. Control was not perfect so the team developed the mesh covering of tantalum, a rare metal used for filaments in electric lamps. Woven through it, the muscles hold the base firm.

Mothers who showed their children proudly to newspaper men at a hospital clinic recently said no one ever notices their children's eyes are not normal.

A favorite joke of specialists at the hospital is to have medical students examine a child with an artificial eye. They notice nothing unusual until the eye fails to react to light. They talk learnedly of this strange condition until the youngster's grins flip them for the joke.

Sulpha drugs and penicillin have cut sharply the number of injured eyes which must be removed but the hospital treats from slight to 12 children a year whose eyes are damaged by air-rifle pellets. Glass, knives and sharp kitchen tools also take toll.

SHANNONVILLE

Shannonville—Mr. Jimmy Kent of Toronto, was a weekend guest of his mother, Mrs. John Kent.

Mrs. Archie Arbuckle and Mrs. James Vesterfelt and Colin attended the "war brides" tea on Friday afternoon in St. Thomas' parish hall, Belleville. A large number were in attendance and the ladies reported an interesting and enjoyable afternoon spent on renewing old acquaintances.

All are sorry to hear Mrs. Sager Sr., is not in very good health at the present time, and all wish her a speedy recovery.

The Shannonville Girls' Group of the United Church used their regular meeting period this week to decorate the church for the Christmas season, and later practised in the local hall for the Christmas entertainment to be held on December 23rd.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. The superintendent of the Sunday School, Mr. Ernest Crispe, also assisted with the decorating.

Friends of Mr. Lewis Cumming, son-in-law of Mrs. Robert Kincaid, will be pleased to hear he was able to return home this week after his recent operation in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Brant recently entertained friends and relatives from the U.S.A.

Mr. James Vesterfelt is now employed at the Bakelite.

Mr. and Mrs. Armour Colden are now back in the community as permanent residents.

Mrs. A. W. Lougheed of Seagrave, arrives on Monday to spend the Christmas season with her daughter, Mrs. S. M. Fraser, Vernon and Bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Harvey of Deseronto, were recent Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. Marks.

Miss Eliza Bell attended the Christmas dinner on Monday evening of the Evening Branch of Christ Church Women's Association in Belleville, last Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. MacFarlane have returned home after spending several days with their daughter, Mrs. Sherry, Mr. Sherry and two sons of Belleville.

Miss Audrey Scott who is a student at Toronto University, has arrived home to spend the Christmas vacation with her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Scott at the parsonage.

Mr. Kenneth Vivian was a visitor to Toronto on Wednesday.

Miss Betty Mastin nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital, was a guest during the weekend of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mastin.

Mrs. Walter Morden is spending the holiday season with her daughters in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem J. Bell, of Dinsmore, Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keirl.

Miss Eliza Bell leaves on Thursday for Barrie, where she will spend the holiday season with her brother and family.

Mrs. Kenneth Vivian motored to Kingston on Monday, and was accompanied home by her daughter, Mary Isobel, who will spend the Christmas holidays at her parental home. Mary is a student this year at Queen's University.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem J. Bell of Dinsmore, Florida, have been renewing acquaintances in this vicinity. Mr. Bell is a brother of Mrs. Fred Barlow, and Mrs. Bell is a sister of Mrs. Elmer Vivian and Mr. Ross Sheller.

A number of the members of the United Church Women's Association met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Elliott on Saturday and packed some 30 "good cheer" baskets for the ill, and shut-ins of the congregation at this Christmas-tide.

The United Church on Sunday evening presented an effective setting for the service, with its gaily decorated Christmas trees, and choir loft railing.

Prior to the service, beautiful Christmas carols were heard by means of a movie projector operated by Mr. Ernest Crispe.

The junior choir was in attendance and sang with the decant a lovely old Christmas carol "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night."

The pastor Rev. L. W. Scott chose his scripture lesson from John 1. He expressed his thanks to those who gave their assistance in the decorating of the church.

Mr. Scott spoke of the old carol "O Little Town of Bethlehem," which referred to the place where Jesus was born. A town built on the hills with numerous caves nearby. The church of the Nativity now stands over one of these caves. This town is often called the city of David. There is a fine pasturage for sheep, so a number follow this occupation. Bethlehem is a town of about 5,-000 population and almost all are Christians.

"In every dark age, God is thought of as an impersonal spectator looking upon world events, continued the pastor. The Christmas message is that God does care, God lives and God saves. He is interested in the humblest folk and the humblest tasks—the angel appearing to the shepherds. God is interested in you and in me, stated Mr. Scott.

Sin Spells Happiness

"The Glory of God is in the life of the Babe being born in the manger. If God is interested in us and wants us to have joy and happiness, what should we expect of Him? asked the pastor. What is it that spoils human happiness? Is it not the sin of man against himself and against each other? We have to have the need of the Saviour before God can come to us.

He purged our sins (Hebrews) and was called "Jesus," because He came to save His people from their sins, continued Mr. Scott.

The Jewish people looked for a Saviour to save them from the Roman rule. People today need a Saviour to save them from war, dictatorship and chaos. The moral rebellion of the youth today is the natural electrid between earth and Heaven, stated the speaker.

Mr. Scott continued with the thought that the great news is, "that Jesus has saved us from sin. He is enthroned in power and is eternally able to save. He is available at any time, any place, to the one who desires friendship and guidance and cleansing from sin. Christ holds fellowship with us. God is desirous of revealing His heart by some living truth to humanity.

The Incarnate Christ

"The word 'incarnation' means God taking upon Himself our limitations. Jesus, long before His birth, was called 'Emmanuel' —God is with us. The disciples saw God in Jesus, stated the speaker. Christ came in the likeness of men that men might be clothed in the likeness of God. John wrote his epistle so people might know Jesus and have fellowship.

Mr. Scott concluded his remarks with the thought that "Christmas is something more than just knowing Jesus was born, so that we might have a fine and glorious time at Christmas. This isn't worth very much. Full joy comes when we receive Christ into our lives and hearts."

Delivers Personal Messages From War Brides

London (CP)— Millicent Duncan, a former policewoman, is back in Britain after a 10,000-mile mission to war brides in Canada and the United States.

Now she is busy delivering scores of intimate family messages, collected in a three-month tour of North American cities and towns.

She is taking the messages to parents in East Anglia whose daughters married Allied servicemen and later accompanied their husbands across the Atlantic.

Miss Duncan told an interviewer she had visited Toronto, Montreal and Quebec. She said most of the messages were collected in Detroit.

During the war Miss Duncan carried out special police duties in East Anglia, headquarters of several Allied units. She became known as the "G.I.'s Friend" and her apartment in Buttermarket, Ipswich, was a rendezvous for girls seeking advice on wartime romances.

After the war she organized the first association of mothers and war brides and arranged special shipping rates for mothers crossing the Atlantic to daughters and granddaughters.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

An elusive bunch of puck - chasing wraiths wearing the insignia of the Peterborough Triple-Ring (whatever that is) fooled out the up-and-coming Junior "B" Rockets last night and toddled off to the Liftlock City with our scalps in their belts, eatin' it. Yeah, those ornery upstarts, from Herbie's ballwick had the danged nerve to come down here and knock the pins from under our Cowley Cubs, believe it or not.

Yup, they beat us 3-2. In as neat a hockey game as you would like to see, and there were not too many out to watch the calisthenics. But the smart little Peterborough front line shook troops slithered and slid their way around our great big bruising defence and at times made them look like the proverbial monkeys. Had our fascie and brawn, and like the proverbial monkeys. Had our fascie and brawn, and believe us, brother, these Rockets have plenty of it, used it to good effect, the score might have been different.

* * *

We may be all damp, but we do believe had the Rockets used their weight to good advantage in the early periods the score might have been different. We are not taking away any credit from this fast-skating tricky Peterborough bunch of pucksters. They deserve all the credit that is coming to them especially the Mason - Desjardins line. Where the BHA slipped on that score is another story. But we believe that the Belleville team, as from what we saw last night, at least, are bigger, and better than that which were the Peterborough uniforms. True, not as fast, perhaps. These Peles kids are a well-coached team. Birch Wasson, the Hannas et all are youngsters with a future. But we do have the same thing in the Rockets. We have the beef and brawn and had that been used to good effect last night the story might have been different.

However, the game is water under the bridge. The Rockets were out there and were not found too much wanting. Don Hogan, Graham and pals including Art. Wright made themselves felt and were servicing at a better pace. They were beaten 3-2 which is not a bad licking in any man's league. They should have emerged the victors on the slight's play, but that is one of those things of hockey.

* * *

But we did like the individual style of the Peterborough kids. They were opportunists to say the least. They are grand little stickhandlers, know how and when to pass the puck, fast skoot, and will give the best of 'em a go for the money. The kids from the Liftlocks will do. More power to 'em.

* * *

But on the other hand, Coach Dan Cowley's charges did not, as we mentioned before, use their bodies to advantage. They, in our opinion, can play a much better defensive game than they did last night. The smart swift elusive Peterborough forwards were swishing in, out and around the local defence like will-o-the-wisps. Only Master Tripp, between the Belleville pipes saved the situation at times. But the boss was a glamorous. It was a picture of what the Peles have to offer and the Rockets Juniors have nothing to fear if that is the best performance the Peles kids have to show up. It all looks like a grand set-up, this junior "B" group, and from what the Peterborough sports scribe told us last night, it is going to be all even-Stephen around the loop. It was a good game and it is too bad that John Public did not turn out to see two grand teams do their hockey stuff.

But tonight is another story. In Memorial Arena the Northern Electrics squad and the Trenton Flyers clash to settle that little issue of the Belleville District Hockey League. It's for the chips, folks, and there will not be any sniffing. Flyers, rolling along on the crest of that smart victory of last week feel confident that they can repeat the dose of last week feel confident that they can repeat the dose of their handed out to the planters last week. The issue is all tied up at one game each apiece, and there'll be a battle galore in tonight's tilt. No footin', these teams are not foolin' so don't miss tonight's tilt between these squads.

By the same token the CNE Diesels and the Rockets Juniors tangle in the other half of the semi-finals on Saturday night. Rockets took the scrap or all whatever it is, out of the trainmen the other night and are anxious to repeat. On the other hand the railroaders of the CNE smarting under the reverse are out to cop the right to meet whoever it is that is in the other half of the finals group. So 'fer year per ing or against and yez tikes yer chance."

* * *

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association appears to be away to another record breaking season. If present indications can be taken as any criterion. Entries to date far surpass any previous figure, in fact are farther ahead of any previous year than they have ever been at any corresponding time. Already one hundred and sixty five entries are on file, compared with 116 at this time last year.

Entries to date compare with previous season as follows: 1946-47 season — 101 teams; 1947-48 season — 110 teams; 1948-49 season — 113 teams; 1949-50 season — 165 teams.

Royalties ranging from five cents per skin for weasel (ermine) to $2.00 per pelt for beaver are to be collected this year according to the schedule of royalties issued today by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. Fisher and lynx will call for payment to the Department of $2.50, while otter, coyote, black or blue, white or not specified foxes will bring in 50 cents and red foxes 10 cents. Royalties on marten or otter are $1.00; mink 50 cents, muskrats 10 cents, raccoon 10 cents, and skunk five cents. The wolverine, not common in Ontario, is worth 40 cents in royalties to the Department, it was stated.

Triple Links of Peterborough Score Junior 'B' Victory By Downing Rockets by 3-2

A fast-skating gang of pucksters wearing the uniform of the Triple-In-Links of Peterborough edged the Belleville Rockets team in a closely fought game in Memorial Arena last night. The score was 3-2.

The game was the first tilt played in the Junior "B" grouping that sees Kingston, Belleville, Lindsay, Oshawa, and Peterborough clash in this district. The Peterborough Juniors defeated Lindsay 5-3 and tied them 7-7 in two previous meetings.

The game last night was the first test of the Rockets juniors in "B" competition, and the Peterborough victory puts the Liftlock City kids at the head of the group standing.

It was a clean hard-fought battle with scarcely a handful of fans in attendance. Eight penalties were handed out by Referee Wm. Radley of Kingston and all were of a minor character.

The Peterborough team were fast heady skaters. They flashed through, in and about the Belleville defence and at times appeared to be all set for sure goals. Tripp, in the Belleville nets, stood out as did Wasson between the pipes for the Petes. Had the Belleville team, especially the defence used their heads the score might have been different.

Fast, Clean Hockey

However, it was fast, clean hockey and the Petes went one up at the six minute mark in the first period when the Stirling line of Mason, Mason and Desjarding raced through is score with D. Mason firing home the pellet. This line was the best the Petes had in the attack although individually Burch, Baker and Doris stood out.

It was nip-and-tuck hockey all through the second period with both sides scoring once by a narrow margin. A desperate Rockets team pressed the forest at times but the canny speedy Peterborough forwards watched their opportunities in clever ways. Belleville capitalized on this system when with but seconds to go, Jud Sarmark broke into the clear and raced in on Wasson to beat him cleanly and tie the score.

The Rockets drove hard in the third period and Art Wright raced in on Wasson only to miss the net by three feet. Rockets were missing on many shots and the Petes were waiting and waiting for breakaway opportunities. Doris finally put the visitors up one when he took Baker's pass at the five-minute mark to score. Two minutes later Art Wright tipped down the ice pass in line with Murphy and fired home the rubber to even the count at 2-2 all. A few minutes later Turner for Peterborough broke a loose puck from a Rockets ganging attack and drove to beat Tripp with what proved to be the winning goal.

Rockets turned on the heat in the last minutes of the game. Coach Cowley pulled Tripp out of the net with 60 seconds to go but a hard-tough Peterborough defence turned back the efforts of a desperate Belleville crew to cop the nod of victory.

Art. Wright, Graham, Don Hogan and Bone stood out for the locals with the Hannas, Desjardins line, Baker and Birch doing yeomen service for the Petes.

The teams — Peterborough — Goal, Wasson, defence, Richark, D. Wasson, centre, Turner wings, Wyatt, Floyd, subs, Baker, D. Mason, B. Mason, Desjardin, Burch, Harris, Hehn, Fennel, Miller.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 20 — (AP)— Now that Dick Wakefield has gone to the Yankees in exchange for a reasonable facsimile of the first baseman he wanted, Detroit manager Red Rolfe can concentrate on another problem child, Frank House. . . the 17-game home catcher who couldn't hit in the Central League, will have to stick with the Tigers this year. . . Rolfe figures House will do okay if he's a good receiver, mechanically. . . "as long as he doesn't drop balls and let them steal on him, he doesn't have to hit," says Rod. . . Biggest dam press-agent stunt of the basketball season was staged by Dave Sidolph of Washington State, who shipped this department a gallon of water from Grand Coulee Dam to replace what the Cougar basketballers might drink in New York.

Writing Papers

It was at the annual lettermen's banquet of the New Hampshire football team. . . senior grads Allspaw Swetka and Gus Gilman approached line coach Pat Petroski, who had toiled with them daily for four years. . . solemnly each placed a hand on Pat's shoulder . . . it was a tear-jerking occasion . . . "Gosh, Pat," they told Petroski, "now that we're graduating, you'll have to start coaching."

Three Major Loop Records Broken in '49

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)— You'd think that after doing business for more than 70 years, the National League would have finished breaking records in wholesale lots.

But just take a look at the senior loop's miscellaneous marks for the last season. Three major league records were broken, and four others tied, according to official records released today. Eight National League standards were smashed and a half dozen tied.

Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh's man with the big bat, was the individual standout. He did something the old Sultan of Swat, Babe Ruth, couldn't accomplish by leading his league in home runs for the fourth consecutive season.

Three other two major league marks cracked were 536 home runs for the league as a whole and only 17 bases stolen by St. Louis Cardinals, that was one in reverse.

Kiner, who poled 54 home runs during the 1949 campaign, also broke two of his own league's records and tied another. It was the first time anyone hit 50 or more homers on two straight years. He also punched out 16 round-trippers in one month for the first time in the history of the circuit.

He tied the mark of hitting 49 or more home runs on three different years.

Pair of Records Broken

Sian (the man) Musial and Red Schoendienst of St. Louis each broke a pair of records. Musial paced the league in base hits for the fifth straight year and in triples for the fourth consecutive season to set new marks.

Schoendienst's records were in the fielding department. He had the longest errorless streak for a second-baseman, accepting 285 chances without a miscue and finished with the highest fielding mark in the history of the league for a second baseman, .987.

Other major league records that were tied included:

Most home runs one inning by a club—Philadelphia A's.

Most home runs one inning by a player—Andy Seminick, Philadelphia, and Sid Gordon, New York, 3 each.

BORN AT NAPANEE

Toronto, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Clarence A. Bogert, 64, chairman of the Dominion Bank and former president, died at his home here Saturday after a lengthy illness.

Born at Napanee, Ont., he entered the bank's service at Toronto in 1887. He was appointed general manager in 1906 and in 1925 became vice-president and general manager. He was president of the bank in 1935 and retired a year later.

Hoosman Says Louis Hits Just As Hard as Ever

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 20—(AP) —You can take the word of boxer Al Hoosman that retired heavyweight Joe Louis "hits just as hard as ever."

Hoosman, sparring partner "to the Brown Bomber when he was the titleholder, made the remark Thursday night after he was flattened by Louis in 2.16 of the fifth round of their 10-round exhibition match.

Louis belted the six-foot-five inch Hoosman with a left to the jaw and then dropped him with a terrific right to the other side of the face.

The retired champ, who many think may face N.B.A. titleholder Ezzard Charles in a championship fight next summer, weighs 225¾ pounds. Hoosman tipped the beam at 211½.

Tolley Throws Away Golf Clubs To Enter Politics

(By The Canadian Press)

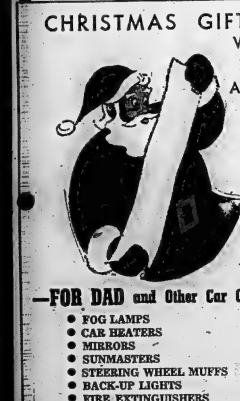
Barnstaple, Devonshire, England, Cyril Tolley, twice Britain's amateur champion, has thrown away his golf clubs and picked up the political cudgels. He'll stand as Liberal candidate for Barnstaple in Britain's forthcoming general election.

Tolley, once known as the "Guildford siege-gun" for his powerful hitting off the tee, served in both world wars and won the Military medal for gallantry at Ypres. He also won most of the honors that can fall to a British golfer.

The 54-year-old Tolley was once the "enfant terrible" of British golf. Purists hated the way he stepped up and walloped the pill clean out of sight.

But they accepted the Tolley tactics when he won the amateur at Muirfield in 1920, and paid him the supreme honor when they elected him captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club at St. Andrews in 1948.

The longest consecutive playing streak of any current National Hockey League player has come to an end at Chicago Wednesday night. Kenny Smith, lightweight Boston Bruins winger, will miss the Black Hawks game after playing in 227 consecutive contests since Jan. 10, 1948. He is suffering from a groin injury.



The N.H.L. all-time consecutive-game record is held by Murray Murdoch, now coaching at Yale, who competed in 600 games without a miss during 11 seasons with the New York Rangers from 1926-37.

Five Ottawa high-school students will leave by Monday, today to seek tennis laurels in the Miami Beach Orange Bowl tennis tournament starting Dec. 26. They also expect to play in the Dixie tennis championships at Tampa, Fla., starting Jan. 2.

New York Giants Monday announced the outright sale of first-baseman Elmer Ripp to the Minneapolis farm of the American Association. Ripp, 33, hit .287 in 96 games last season.

At Key West, Fla., President Truman acted Monday to preserve fish and coral reef life by signing an executive order to stop low-level flying over a prohibitive land area in Monroe county near the Ontario border. Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan explained that fishing and hunting parties were being flown into the "superior coolness" by seaplane and landing on lakes otherwise accessible only by canoes, denuding the preserve.

Four Players Reason for Long Lead of Marlies

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Four good reasons for Toronto Marlboros' 9-point first-place lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" loop are Scotty Mair, Johnny McCormack, Al Buchanan and Red Johnson, who hold the first four places in the individual scoring race.

Scoring statistics released Monday show Mair and McCormack tied with 40 points each. Mair's 24 goals is also more than his teammate's goal-total.

Pat Boehmer, also of Mair's line, with a 2.5-goal-a-game average leads the goalies.

Top man in the Junior "A" division is Earl Reibel of Windsor Spitfires with 61 points—24 goals and 37 assists. George Armstrong of Marlboro Juniors, with 52 is next and Connie Switzer of St. Catharines Teepees third with 51. Marlboro' Don Lockhart leads the goalies with a 2.38 average.

O.H.A. to Cool Out Hot-Headed Fans in Rinks

Toronto, Dec. 20 —(CP)— The hot-headed hockey fan is about to get cooled off.

George Hunter, assistant-secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said Monday night that he hopes to run these types right out of rinks. He pointed out that two men were ejected over the boards during a game at Toronto's Varsity Arena recently after they tackled the referee were taken to court and fined.

"We're going to go after them," Panter said, "it won't be enough to just put them off the ice. We'll take them to court at every opportunity."

He said that one referee had a cup of coffee thrown in his face and was hit by an orange at Stratford. . . . The person who threw the orange was put out of the rink but we're going to see if we can press charges against the person who threw the coffee."

Panter also commended on the O.H.A. executive's decision to have Windsor replay nine games they won while playing with four ineligible players.

Clubs Support Proposals of Calgary Stampeders

(By The Canadian Press)

A Calgary Stampeders suggestion for a change in the Canadian Rugby Union's player registration system seems to be earning at least favored approval in other football officials.

Stampeder President Tom Brook suggested that C.R.U. registration cards be issued earlier than the present August date so players can be signed up sooner. He figures this will help cut down player raiding.

The idea is meeting with considerably more favorable reaction than the Stampeders suggestion after the Grey Cup final that the various leagues break away from the C.R.U.

Whole-hearted approval of the move came from Eddie Armstrong, President of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts C.R.U. and "it is up to the leagues to settle it."

Ken McCaffery, President of the Rough Riders, said he could see "no logical objection to the Calgary proposal."

Suggests Another Change

McCaffrey also suggested another change in the C.R.U. rules. He said players should have until Oct. 1 to declare what American citizens they are members of the present Sept. 1.

He said it would give clubs a chance to see their imports in action in four or five games and if their efforts don't live up, they could be replaced. "At present, if the imports are not up to scratch, the clubs are stuck with them anyway."

Ken Anderson, Manager of Edmonton Eskimos Monday night said he is sure all members of the Western Interprovincial Rugby Union will favor issuing registration cards earlier than August.

"I would not go so far as to say they should be issued at the New Year, as President Tom Brook of Calgary Stampeders has suggested," Mr. Anderson said. "But I think they are issued before training becomes serious, such things as the Bartolini-Aull incident would not happen."

Anderson was referring to Ralph Bartolini and Mel Aull who attended spring training with Eskimos but appeared with W.I.R.F.U. cards then returned to eastern Canada to play football. If they had been signed C.R.U. cards they would not have played in any league affiliated with the C.R.U.

HOCKEY CLUB WITHDRAWS

Seattle, Dec. 20 — (AP)—The Oakland Hockey Club withdrew Monday from the Pacific Coast Hockey League because of lack of public support.

League president Al Leader quoted owner Eddie Shore as saying the franchise would be operated again "when and if refrigeration equipment is installed in the Oakland Auditorium or a new building is built in Oakland which will accommodate ice hockey."

The Oakland team has been playing in Berkeley, Calif.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ALBERT HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 20. (CP)—Who's the greatest hockey player in the game today?

Ask Sid Abel, veteran centre with Detroit Red Wings, and he'll answer—the Rocket.

Chatting with Dink (Montreal Canadiens' Maroon) Carbonneau, who treated his pranks on Montreal Canadiens' Maurice Richard, whose 22 goals have given him the top goal-collecting berth in the National Hockey League.

"When's he gonna stop?" Abel mused. "That's what I want to know. When's he gonna stop?"

He said Richard and goalie Bill Durnan make "what make Canadiens click."

"The one guy puts them in at one end and the other guy keeps them out at the other."

Asked and Reardon.

Mulling over the League's doyennemen, Abel said Montreal's Detroit's Leo Reise is the most under-rated.

"He's the best in the league," Abel thinks. "Who's better? Don't tell me Reardon."

"Ken Reardon of Canadiens, apparently one of Abel's pet peeves, "makes more mistakes in a single game than Reise will make all season."

What's more, says Abel, every team in the league, "wants a piece of him . . . that's no secret."

"He's bullying around in the goal-crease all the time asking for trouble. He'll find it."

Versatile Kelly

If the players, instead of the coaches, had more to say about all-star teams, Abel would pick teammate Red Kelly as the most versatile.

"We use him for everything—to kill off penalties and on power-play," Abel says.

"But he hasn't had a chance to settle down in any one position long enough to prove how good he is."

NAT'S TOP JOB

Washington, Dec. 20—(AP)—Spurred by authoritative reports that the Russians are building up their submarine fleet, the United States navy indicated Monday that anti-sub warfare is its top job.

Jane's Fighting Ships, British publications which is recognized as an authority on fighting fleets, reported that Russia now has some 320 submarines and hopes to have between 750 and 1,000 by 1951.

A navy spokesman would not comment directly on the publication's estimate of Russian submarine strength but, in response to an inquiry, the spokesman said planning of new weapons for anti-submarine warefare remain the United States navy's top job.

Lindsay Holds Slim Edge in Scoring Race

Montreal, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Detroit's Ted Lindsay continues to hold a slim edge in the National Hockey League scoring race, but Chicago's Doug Bentley and Montreal's Maurice (Rocket) Richard are rapidly overtaking him.

League statistics released today show that the swivel-hipped Lindsay leads the point-getting race with 33 points made up of 15 goals and 18 assists—two more than Bentley and three more than Richard.

Bentley has seven goals and 24 assists while Richard has 22 goals and eight assists. Sid Abel of Detroit is in fourth place with 12 goals and 16 assists for 28 points.

Richard's 22 goals in 29 games put him in top place for goal scoring honors. He is followed by Abel with 12 goals. Lindsay with 15. Doug Bentley leads the assist department with 24.

Lindsay is proving himself a hockey oddity. Besides leading the league scoring, he also heads the penalty parade with a total of 63 minutes spent in the 'cooler'.

Ties Lead

As a result of a shutout over New York Rangers Dec. 18, Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs increases his goose-egg total to five to take a lead in that division. Bill Durnan, Montreal Canadiens and Harry Lumley of Detroit are next with four each.

During the past week Detroit won two out of three games to hike their point total to 39 in the standing race. Montreal Canadiens with two victories and a draw are in second place with 31 points. Toronto is next with 29 and New York Rangers are fourth with 23.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Feel sad for Johnny Conant. His bridge is in the dumps. He always finds opponent with much too many trumps.

The jangle on my phone bell at three A.M. does not waken me. It is the middle of my working day. I usually start writing after midnight. At that hour people are up to listen to me,

Along toward morning my friend rang up to call off this deal:

NORTH
	♠ A K 5 4 3 2
	♥ K 10 9
	♦ J 8 5 3
	♣ None
WEST	EAST
♠ Q 10 6	♠ J 9 8
♥ None	♥ 8 7 6 5 4 2
♦ 8 7 4 2	♦ 10 9
♣ J 10 9 8 7 4	♣ 5 3
SOUTH
	♥ A Q J 3
	♦ A K Q 3
	♣ A K Q 6 2

It seems he had not go to sleep worrying about it. Doubled by east he failed to make a seven heart contract, losing seven. Too many trumps in the east hand were his undoing, he wailed.

What he was looking for was sympathy, which I intended to give him. But he never waited for it. First I started telling him how it could have been made. And he banged up the receiver.

Opening lead west, he had said, was club jack. The fact that east had six trumps does not prevent 13 tricks from coming in. If he would have listened I might have told him the way.

East must be doubling on trump preponderance. Six top aids (ace and seven cross-suits are 12. Anticipate a third round ruff of diamonds. Then it makes no difference who has the unseen trumps.

Dump a dummy small spade (or diamond) on the opening lead and win with south club queen. Cash a trick with spade ace. Lead spade king and sluff thereon the south diamond queen.

Ruff a third spade with the small south trump. Cash another top club and two top diamonds. Now lead clubs and dummy side suits for six cross-ruffs. The seven trumps are thus taken separately.

After three spade, two diamonds, two clubs; east has nothing but six trumps. So what? All he can do is let them fall helplessly on six tricks, declarer trying with higher trumps.

All I said was he could have; not should have.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 20. (AP) — Gene Autry is setting the pace in the trend of having movie stars go out to meet the public.

The monkeyed cowpoke is planning the longest appearance tour of his career. He has already booked 35 towns for his 1950 winter tour and is negotiating for 34 more. He opens his show Jan. 7, taking along 27 rodeo performers, plus Champion and Little Champion, his horses.

Autry will continue his weekly radio broadcast along the route. He returns to Columbus studios April 1 to begin his six-picture schedule for 1950.

Bits and Stuff

Anna Nagnini, the volcanic Italian actress, is expected here any day. She will record dialogue for "Volcano", another film about an erupting Italian lair.

Poor Lana Turner. She gets blasted when she haunts the night clubs. Now she gets blasted because she stays home. Three trade papers have criticized her remarks to me about staying home and looking at television. They claim she should be going to the movies instead. Maybe they do not understand what it's like for a movie star to attend a public theatre.

Speaking of reaction brings us to Gloria Grahame. Her convention here about sleeping nude were attacked by the lingerie industry, then supported by other Hollywood actresses. I feel it's only right that Gloria should have the last word.

Glenn Ford, the Quebec-born star, and Eleanor Powell are still trying to stop the rift rumors that got started when he went stag to a premiere. They are discussing the idea of doing a show in London together. Strictly dream stuff.

Capsule Review

"The Man on the Eiffel Tower" (R.K.O.) lists among its stars Charles Laughton, Franchot Tone, Burgess Meredith and the City of Paris. The latter is a lot prettier than the three men and contributes a great deal to the enjoyment of this film. It's an intriguing thriller ably set against the colorful backdrop. The chase sags a bit in the middle, but otherwise it's good out-of-the-rut entertainment.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By the Associated Press)

New York—Jimmy Flood, 162½, New York, outpointed Bobby James, 157, New York (8).

Boston— Lew Jenkins, 138½, Sweetwater, Tex., knocked out Iggy Vaccari, 136½, Boston (9).

Douglas Leads Scoring Race By Wide Margin

New York, Dec. 20 — (CP)— Les Douglas of Cleveland Barons continued to lead the American Hockey League in scoring this week with 48 points.

Second place was held by Kelvin Sentner, Springfield Indians rookie, at 38 points. Johnny Chad of Providence Reds was third with 37, followed by Roy Kelly of Cleveland, 35. Another Cleveland player, Ken Schultz, and Harvey Fraser of the Reds were tied for fifth with 34 points each.

Douglas also remained the league's top playmaker with 30 assists. Kelly retained the leadership in the goal-scoring column with 19.

Cincinnati Mohawks were firmly entrenched in the cellar in the league standings but one of their players topped one column: Jac Lepine had spent 87 minutes in the penalty box.

Sentner's total was the top goaltender honors found Pittsburgh Hornets' Gil Mayer a stock ahead with an average of 2.45 on 71 tallies in 29 games. Connie Dion of Buffalo Bisons had allowed just one more goal in the same number of contests for a 2.48 average. The two were tied in shutouts with three each.

Douglas and Phil Hergesheimer of Cincinnati were on the verge of becoming 500-point men. Both finished the week with 499 points for their A. H. L. careers. Only two other players have ever gone over the 500 - point mark.

Phillies Paying Price of Being Pennant Threat

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 —(AP)— President Bob Carpenter is worried about the reluctance of other clubs to do business with his Philadelphia Phillies.

Carpenter was informed that he was paying the price of being a pennant threat.

"Either we don't have what the other clubs want or they're afraid of us," Carpenter said.

Carpenter admitted he was a little worried about his team's prospects next year.

"After all, we finished third last season thanks to great years on the part of veterans like Ken Heintzelman and Hank Borowy. But suppose those two don't repeat.

"Of course we have some fine rookies coming up. A pitcher like Bubba Church from Toronto can mean the difference between third and second place."

Carpenter unhesitantly selects Brooklyn to win the National League pennant in 1950.

MAYOR OF NEW YORK WEDDED

Stuart, Fla., Dec. 20 (AP) — Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York, tanned and happy, was married today to radiant Elizabeth Sloan Simpson, former model, in a simple ceremony at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. SHANNONVILLE

St. John's Mission Church Elects Slate of Officers

Shannonville — On Monday evening the Woman's Auxiliary of St. John Mission Church, Herchimer Avenue, was held at the home of Mrs. George Hamett. The rector, Rev. E. M. Caldwell, of Shannonville, and 13 members were present, and heard the first annual report of their Missionary Society. This society was just formed one year ago by the sponsoring branch from Christ Church.

A highlight of the meeting was the answering of the roll call by each member, depositing a gift toward an overseas parcel of food for Britain.

The pledges had been fully paid, and a complete layette sent to an Indian Mission in the north country.

The "Living Message" secretary, Mrs. Earl Williams reported that eight members were subscribers to the Society's magazine.

The "Dorcas" secretary, Mrs. Clifford LeRue thanked all the members for their fine co-operation in getting together materials and making garments for the layette.

Mrs. E. M. Caldwell, the president, expressed the pleasure to have the president elected from the members of "The Avenue" for the coming year. Mrs. Russell Babcock, secretary, and Mrs. Annie Connors, treasurer, expressed satisfaction with the initial year's work.

Election of Officers

Rev. E. M. Caldwell then took the chair for the election of officers for the year 1950. Those elected were as follows:

Honorary President, Mrs. E. M. Caldwell; President Mrs. Donald Leeming; 1st Vice president, Mrs. Harold Putnam; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. George Morris; Clifford LaRue; Assistant Secretary Dorcas Work, Mrs. Eric Leeming and Living Message Secretary, Miss Hilda Meens.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess to bring an interesting meeting to a close.

ALL-WOMAN PRISONER REVUE IN JAIL

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (AP) — An all-woman prisoner revue, the first in Los Angeles county jail history, is scheduled for Friday night.

The Jailhouse Jollities will feature Christmas carols, a pantomime written by a prisoner and assorted song and dance acts.

Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz had a previewer yesterday and said it was a fine show.

"Good," said one of the girls, "how about our taking it on the road!"

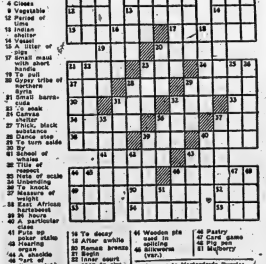
Little Benny's Note Book

Sticky Purdy's aut gave him a grate big 2 pound box of mixed candy for his berthday, and Sticky gave me and Puds dime-zine each a medium size piece without even letting us pick it out ourselves, probably giving us one of the kinds he didn't like the looks of, and me and Puds were talking about it mad, me and Puds. What do you know about Sticky nay like that? I wish I'd told him I didn't want any, just to show him what a miser he is, I said.

Sure, I bet he'd rather let it sit grt stale and useless before I'd see anybody elts injoy it, Puds said, and I said, Hay, I got an idea. Let's give the old candy dont meen a darn thing to us by going n.d wishing him a happy berthday jus' as if he had gave us each a whole handfull, I said. Okay, sure, and then if he gets sot hearted and offers us each a bit, we can decide whether to give him the satisfaction of excepting it-or not. Puds said.



And we went and rang Sticky's doorbell and Sticky opened the door, and I said, Happy berthday, Sticky.

Happy berthday, Sticky, we forgot to wish you one before, Puds said, and Sticky said, You're just doing this! for another hunk of candy, but it's no use.

That's all you know, I said. Just to prove I'm only intristed in you personly and not your candy, I hard hunk, I hope it's a frunt wish you another happy berthday and I hope you dont choke on more than one piece at a time, I said, and Pude said, That's a same way I feel. Happy berthday again and if you brake a tooth on a iden you wont forget to go to the dentist, he said.

Making us feel partly better.

Home during the closed season of navigation on the Great Lakes, Dan Alexander, 32, takes a moment to tune his violin while Chummy looks on. Instrument has a bottom made of an old bedstead salvaged from Thunder Bay, a top hewn from a log of driftwood and a finger board made from a piece of wood from steam yacht Phryne.

Holdup of Bank of Toronto branch in Burford yesterday was preceded by robbery of hardware store where Fred Balsdon (left) at gunpoint was forced to load two rifles and a shotgun. Suspicious of men loitering outside, bank manager R. J. Sim (right) moved bundles of bills into vault and locked it, phoned police during holdup.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District — Mrs Glen Meyers was hostess to the White's Woman's Association on Thursday afternoon last, for the Christmas meeting, with 15 members present. The president, Mrs. Glen Meyers, opened the meeting with the "theme song" followed by the reading of the minutes which were adopted.

The devotional, which was the Christmas Story, was taken by Mrs. Ernest Curtis, and was well presented, followed by a Christmas carol.

The roll call was answered by an exchange of Christmas gifts.

The treasurer, Mrs. R. Ketcheson, gave a report of finances which was quite encouraging. Mrs. W. Jones donated $2 and Mrs. F. Dudley donated 65 cents as they were unable to attend November dinners.

Mrs. F. Dudley took charge of the program and gave the origin of Christmas in different countries. The French carol "The First Noel" was sung. She gave a short talk on the symbols of Christmas, such as holly, ivy, bells, candles, cradle, poinsettia, mistletoe, the Christmas tree, yule log and gifts. Mrs. W. Jones, and Mrs. F. Sandercock read "Christmas in Denmark", and "Christmas in Finland". The Welsh carol "Deck the Halls with Holly" was sung. "Christmas in Yugoslavia" and "Christmas in Poland" were read by Mrs. W. A. Jeffery and Mrs. C. Ketcheson. "Silent Night" which originated in Austria, was sung as a duet by Mrs. F. Dudley and Mrs. G. Bilham. "Keeping Christmas" was read by Mrs. L. Young and the Rev. A. C. McCallum gave a short talk on Christmas in Ireland.

The election of officers followed— President, Mrs. G. Meyers; 1st vice, Mrs. F. Dudley; 2nd vice, Mrs. E. Curtis; secretary, Mrs. L. Young, treasurer, Mrs. R. Ketcheson; flower committee, Mrs. G. Bilham, Mrs. F. Sandercock; visiting committee, Mrs. E. Curtis, Mrs. R. Flyer, Mrs. W. A. Jeffery; program committee, Mrs. F. Dudley, Mrs. R. Stickle and Mrs. C. Ketcheson; pianist, Mrs. F. Sandercock; parsohage committee, Mrs. C. Stickle, Mrs. L. Hunt; auditors, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Mrs. F. Sandercock.

Mrs. G. Meyers, Mrs. A. Jones, and Mrs. F. Sandercock were named as a committee to check the supply of dishes, towels and silver for the church.

Mrs. C. Rush moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

Refreshments provided by the hostess and Mrs. Stockaday, were served and a social time was enjoyed.

Centenary and White's Y.P.U.

A very enjoyable meeting of White's and Centenary Young People's Union was held at Bayside parsonage on Wednesday last, with a good attendance.

Mr. Thomas Rush, president of White's Y.P.U. conducted a devotional period which included the singing of Christmas hymns and the scripture reading. The group listened to the United Church broadcast over CJBQ, Belleville.

Centenary Y.P.U. took the topic which dealt with events leading up to Church Union in 1925. This discussion was led by Mr. Lloyd Pearson with others assisting.

Following this a very enjoyable hour was spent in contests which provided a good deal of pleasure. The hostess, Mrs. H. J. Mooney served refreshments which were enjoyed by all. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Mooney and the Rev. A. C. McCallum for their kind hospitality.

Quinte W. I.

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Wilson on Wednesday afternoon. Christmas gifts were exchanged and a pleasant time enjoyed by all. A Christmas program presented by several O.S.D. students added to the success of the afternoon. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Personals

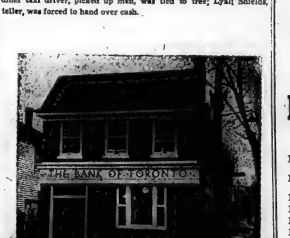
Mrs. R. Flyer, Mrs. Walter Sarles, Mrs. Leonard Young and the junior members of White's Sunday School met at the home of Mrs. D. Bowers, on Saturday afternoon to practise for the Christmas entertainment.

The Quinte View school concert which was held on Friday evening was a decided success. Much credit goes to the teacher, Mrs. H. Campbell and the music supervisor, Miss Grace Pitman.

Bayside school concert, which was also held on Friday evening was very successful. It was under the supervision of the teacher, Miss Beryl Gilbert. Master Bruce Hunt, of Grade VIII, capably acted as accompanist for the choruses.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young visited relatives in Prince Edward on Tuesday. They also called on Mrs. D. Howe, who was celebrating her 101st birthday.

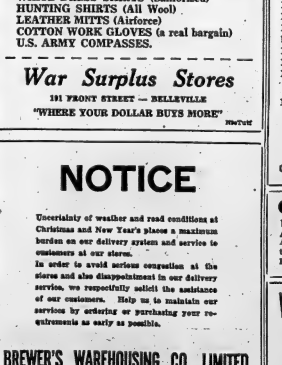
Started Santa Parade For Forty Years



Toronto, Dec. 20. (CP)— Bert Munro, 68, who for 40 years blew the whistle that started Toronto's Santa Claus parade, died Monday. He supervised construction of floats and had charge of arrangements for the parades. Each year he took some of the floats to Montreal for a similar parade there.

ZEINSTATES DIVORCE SUIT

Los Angeles, Dec. 20—(AP)— Gloria de Haven, wife of actor John Payne, says their trial reconciliation has not worked out. She has reinstated her divorce suit. The new suit alleges cruelty, the same charge contained in her original action, dropped Oct. 28. The couple, married, March 28, 1944, have two children.



BAN DISCRIMINATION COLOR, RACE, NATIONALITY

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 20—AP —The Harvard University student council voted 7 to 6 Monday night to ban discrimination for "color, race or nationality" in the membership of all college organizations. Proponents of the anti-discrimination measure said adoption would make it possible to put it into the charter of student organizations.

Polis Gardiner Shields

Don Potts got revolver from father's butcher store; John Gardiner taxi driver, picked up men, was tied to tree; Lyall Shields, teller, was forced to hand over cash.

Three gunmen entered the bank, one remained in store.

Delay of Plane Probably Saves Woman's Life

Vancouver, Dec. 20 (CP)—Few minutes' delay in the takeoff of a British Columbia police plane may have saved a woman's life. Mrs. Mary Ann McGhee, 34, was near death from post-natal co plications Sunday. The plane w delayed at the remote northwe Vancouver Island town, enabli Mrs. McGhee's doctor to flag down in time to get the suff ing mother aboard. Hospital fficials here said that if she h missed it she would probab have died.

CALLED RETROGRADE STEP

Montreal, Dec. 20 — A McGill University accounting professor Monday night scored as a "retrograde step" a system of accounting to be introduced in Canada by Finance Minister Abbott under the new income tax law, effective in 1950.
K. T. Byrd, professor of accounting at McGill, said the move "is the diminishing balance method—is dangerously outmoded."
Addressing the Montreal chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors, Byrd said Britain abandoned the method in 1944.

PLAN TO TAP HUDSON
New York, Dec. 20 — (AP) — A plan to tap the Hudson River to ease New York City's grave water shortages was announced Monday.
Chairman Irving V. A. Huie said his board of water supply will set at once to initiate a link between the river and the city's aqueduct system.
He said 100,000,000 gallons of water a day could be drawn into the city water supply from the Hudson, which empties into New York Bay. This is one-tenth of the 1,000,000,000 gallons used by New York in an ordinary day.
Reservoirs for that city of some 8,000,000 now are two-thirds empty. Rationing has been a growing threat.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

"Oh no, and it makes me sick." A note of weariness was in Ann's voice as she involuntarily leaned against Jim's arm.

"Well, little girl, you can't help it. I'm sure you're doing all you can to help your aunt find them. Do you realize that I haven't been you all day long?"

"It's a wonder you see me now" said Ann pushed her hair wearily.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked Jim solicitously.

"Oh, Aunt Margaret and Jessica and I unpacked every bit of her baggage and of course we haven't found the pearls. I think it's getting on my aunt's nerves."

"Well, you mustn't let it get on yours. Are you coming to the dance tonight?"

"I feel more like going to sleep," answered Ann, who seemed suddenly to have lost all her unusual gaiety and vivacious spirits.

"Well, honey, why don't you take a little snooze now and then come down? I'll call for you if you'll tell me when you'll be ready."

For a moment Ann hesitated. Then she remembered that after all—in spite of her apparent relationship to Miss Whiting—she was still Ann Hampton. A little sparkle flashed into her eyes. "I believe I shall," she said as she slipped her arm from his.

Away from the fuss and confusion with which her supposed aunt was surrounded, Ann flung herself with delight on her couch. She would not let such things trouble her. Life was too short. Why should Miss Whiting get her all worked up about a few jewels? What were they, anyhow? Ann had never possessed anything worthy of the name of jewels. Somehow, knowing the practical side of life so well, she failed to see why anyone should want to tie up so much money in baubles. Her only treasure was a quaint locket in which she had her mother's picture. She would wear it tonight. It would go well with the picturesque gown she was going to wear.

Refreshed by a few minutes sleep, Ann rose at length and dressed. She had resolved to forget all her worries about the pearls. When Jim Riddell called for her she was once more her gay, vivacious self.

The evening passed quickly, for Ann was a delightful dancer. Despite his request for nearly every dance, Ann had laughingly refused. Now she was sitting out watching the dancers, having assured him she would save the last for him. Her fingers involuntarily sought her pocket. With a little cry she rose hurriedly from her chair and was groping on the floor when Harry Harper approached. "Have you lost something?" he asked as she raised her eyes to his.

"Oh, I've dropped my locket somewhere and I must find it," Ann replied excitedly. "I know it was still on when I sat down here. Surely it can't be far away" she added as she pushed her chair backwards while Harry Harper knelt beside her.

"There it is," he declared as he caught sight of a shining object behind the chair. The fastening had opened with the fall and as Harper handed it to Ann he staggered for a moment as his eyes rested on the picture.

"Oh, I'm so glad that you found it, Mr. Harper. That's my mother's picture and I wouldn't lose it for anything. Wasn't she a dear?" questioned Ann as once more she held the picture before him.

"She's beautiful." Harper said softly as he gazed at it with a hungry look. Suddenly the years rolled away. His Mother's voice was calling: "Harold, Harold, dear."

As Harry Harper turned away from the gay throng and the nuances of the jazz orchestra his thoughts were far from the activities aboard. Leaning against the rail and listening to the splash of the water against the boat, he closed his eyes. Again he was seeing the picture in the locket Mary Lambert's mother—impossible! Then he clenched his teeth as he remembered the first time he had seen Miss Whiting's niece There were two girls with red hair! Suddenly a bit of their whispered conversation came to mind again.

Lighting a cigar, he seated himself on a deck chair. No one was around, for all had gone to the fancy dress ball that was the event of the week. This certainly was a strange world. Once he had hoped never to remember certain things. He thought he had attained his ambition. He moved amongst people who knew naught of his former associations. He had cut himself off from them entirely, and yet, as he thought of the picture in the locket, it seemed as though all his life flashed before him.

His home, his mother—such a pretty woman, his father, his sisters, the two older ones with all their beaux and good time, then the little one—just a schoolgirl. By jove, he really was a cad. Then the dreadful tragedy. He had not been to blame for the affair, yet so cleverly had his erstwhile friend handled the matter that he had been convicted. At first his father had been willing to spend his fortune on saving him from prison, but something had happened, and when he got out there was no one to help him. His father grew hard to his son, His mother had died. Harry Harper wiped away a tear. The older girls went west, the little one shunned him. Yet how he used to love her.

Things couldn't go on like that. He left home. There were bitter years when it seemed as though every man's hand was against him. H lived with the scum of the earth. At last his chance came. He was ready. Success beckoned. Once he had though of going back home, but the memory of what he had lived through could not be obliterated. Success was with him. Today he was a rich man. He thought he had forgotten the lies of his youth, but the sight of that picture had brought everything poignantly before him.

Rising from the deck chair, Harper made his way towards the saloon where the ball was still in progress. As he stood beside a pillar Miss Whiting's niece flashed past him. Jim Riddell was dancing with her. She looked beautiful in her picturesque gown she was wearing. Once more he watched her as she danced by. Yes, Riddell was the man for her.

As Harper left the gay scene he heard a snatch of conversation. Pulling himself up suddenly he walked hurriedly towards the officers' quarters. It would never do to let things slide now. He knew too well how quickly rumor can gain credence. Miss Whiting had unwittingly revealed a new angle in the case. Surely she would not turn against her niece, No, by hook or by crook the pearls must be found.

Dawn was breaking when the party broke up, and many of the guests who had never seen a sunrise at sea watched the soft light stealing over the ocean. "Hello, Harper. We missed you at the ball. Thought you liked dancing," called Riddel as Harry Harper came into view.

"Oh," I looked in once or twice but I didn't feel like dancing last night," he remarked. "You seemed to be having a good time though."

"Yes, I did," acknowledged Jim as a little smile hovered around his rather sternly modelled lips. "Any news about Miss Whiting's pearls yet?"

"No, but I want to talk to you about that. Of course you understand it's confidential."

"Oh, certainly," answered Riddell, wondering if Harper had found some new clue.

"These pearls have got to be found. There's some talk involving Miss Lambert. Of course I don't believe a word of it," Harper hastened to add, "but some of these gossips are only too glad to find a flaw in a popular girl, and it strikes me that the young lady may be in quite a pickle if this fuss isn't done pretty quickly. Her aunt is a very erratic person. She hardly knows her niece so you can hardly blame her if—"

"You don't mean to say that she accuses her niece of taking her old pearls!" interrupted Jim furiously.

"Now, old fellow, don't get all excited about it. I'm not saying anything. I merely insist that something's got to be done immediately" and as Riddell calmed himself Harry Harper revealed his plan.

As the days passed and her pearls were still missing, Miss Whiting began to wonder if after all she was mistaken in her niece. Something had been with her for years. She was the soul of honor. Yet it seemed terrible even to harbor such a thought. Of course she knew little about Mary's father and confessed that "what's bred in the bone will come out." Perhaps he'd been—yet she could not bear to entertain such suspicions. The girl had really no jewels. She was young and attractive. Miss Whiting confessed she had been careless in the handling of her jewels but she had such implicit faith in every one.

As she lay on her couch —for she'd been threatened with another heart attack—she thought she'd gotten over that old disorder, but dizziness had overcome her just after she'd risen from the bed. She realized—she tried to forget the veiled hints that Mrs. Tracy had given her concerning Mary. She'd been very indignant, but she had passed the matter, over in the most natural way. Yet somehow the very sight of Mary seemed to irritate her.

The door opened and her niece entered. "Oh Aunt Margaret, Harrison says he hasn't had another spell!" she asked as she went sympathetically towards her.

"I'm better now," the woman answered somewhat languidly. As her eyes rested on the girl a pang of remorse surged through her. Perhaps she had made a terrible mistake to doubt the girl's honesty even for a minute. There was real sympathy in the girl's voice and manner.

"Oh, I'm so glad," Mary answered as she seated herself beside her. "I heard something rather interesting."

"What was that?"

"They say there are some very clever crooks on board. Of course no one seems to know who they are. One of the girls who has travelled a great deal, told me her father once met a man playing cards with some very famous people. Later he found they were international crooks, but to see them or play with them you'd never have suspected such a thing."

"Then I suppose they have got hold of my pearls."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that, aunt Margaret. Do you know what I think?"

"I'm sure I don't." Miss Whiting smiled faintly. Mary's niece's talk interested her.

"If I were asked to point out the crook, I'd point to Mr. Harper,"

"Oh, nonsense," laughed her aunt "I'm quite sure you're wrong there, Mr. Harper has been most solicitous about my loss, but I fear you're making a mistake my dear, What makes you come to such a conclusion?"

U. K. MINERS VIEW MECHANICAL REPLACEMENT

The 15-ton Continuous Miner, imported by the British government for experiments in British mines, is demonstrated on the surface at a Leicestershire mine, where it is to be tried out. It is claimed that the electrically-operated machine can move two tons of coal a minute. It is capable of cutting and loading coal and moving forward in one operation. The model shown is the first of its kind to leave the United States. Here miners of a Leicestershire shaft inspect the new machine.—Central Press Canadian.

Queen, Twenty Cardinals Will See Pope Inaugurate Holy Year Christmas Eve

Vatican City, Dec. 21 (Reuters)—A queen, 20 cardinals and at least 12 foreign cabinet ministers will see Pope Pius open the Holy door of Saint Peter's on Christmas Eve to inaugurate the 25th Holy year of the Roman Catholic Church.

On Friday, eve of the Holy Year ceremony, the Pope will broadcast a Christmas message to the world urging mankind to "turn away from a new peace and understanding between nations. Before the broadcast, which will be released in 22 languages, the 'entire college of Cardinals will pay Christmas homage to Pope Pius.

Queen Mother Elizabeth Belgium will travel from Brussels to see the opening of the Holy door. Dr. Franz Erhard, minister-president of Bavaria, is to attend with three of his cabinet ministers.

Foreign Minister Sean McBride of the Republic of Ireland and foreign Minister Martin Artajo of Spain, two representatives of the Quebec provincial government and Labor Minister Antonio Barrette and Health Minister J. H. A. Paquette, and several Italian cabinet ministers will be present.

Two thousand people will see the opening ceremony, but 30,000 others will have tickets allowing them inside the church. Vatican authorities reported today that more than 500,000 requests had been made for places inside the church.

On Thursday the Pope will receive the silver hammer and trowel costed with gold, presented by the Catholic workers of Italy for the opening and closing of the Holy door.

Immediately after the ceremony is over, pilgrims will start filing into the church through the Holy door in the special Holy Year indulgences.

Because of a cold spell in Rome plans for the Pope to be carried on his throne among the crowds in Saint Peter's Square before the ceremony have been cancelled.

Instead, he will use the traditional royal staircase from the Quirinal Palace to the threshold of Saint Peter's.

DYNAMITERS FAIL TO BLOW UP CIO HEADQUARTERS

Attempt Missed Fire Due to Faulty Fuses

Detroit, Dec. 21 — (AP)—Dynamiters made an attempt to blow up the United Automobile Workers' (C. I. O.) headquarters Tuesday night.

They failed, but only by a hair's breadth.

A stack of 39 sticks of dynamite, wrapped in blue and colored Christmas gift paper, was found at a side stairway of the union building.

Two fuses had burned to within an inch or less of the explosives before they sputtered out.

Except for two night workers, the union building was empty. However, lives were imperilled in a neighboring General Motors building.

As a result, authorities were confronted today with a new task in solving mysterious acts of violence against the big auto union and its leadership.

Within less than two years would-be assassins have tried to kill one of U. A. W.'s presidents Reuther Brothers.

Walter Reuther, president of the U. A. W., was shot by an unknown assailant in April, 1948. Police found the use of a rifle.

Victor Reuther, the union's educational director, lost an eye in a similar shotgun attack last May.

Both shootings still are unsolved.

Police immediately linked Tuesday night's incident with the attempts on the Reuthers' lives. The dynamite sticks, it is according to Inspector Joseph A. Krug, the police special investigation squad.

Anonymous Call

An anonymous call to a Detroit newspaper man led to what at first a crank prank turned at the union headquarters. Later two union employees came upon the wrapped sticks of explosives. They had been planted for Christmas paper. The destructive package lay at an outside stairway not far from the adjacent General Motors research building.

Inspector Albert Langtry of the police scientific laboratory said that dynamite is designed to have destroyed the three-story building. If the building it was prepared, Krug said, by someone "with a lot of experience with dynamite."

Two 90-inch fuses had been timed to burn in "back door" of the union building. The caller did not tell Krug.

In intermittent rain and murk, police made a search of the area surrounding the U. A. W. headquarters and General Motors main office building. They found nothing.

Reporter Received Call

Reporter Jack Pickering of the Detroit Times said he had received a telephone call from a p. m. that dynamite had been planted in the "back door" of the U. A. W. building. The caller did not identify himself.

Into the night Krug and his investigators worked.

"No appreciable amount of snow is expected in the motor cities in the next few days," he said. "There may be a little snow in southern areas, but we'll just have to wait and see."

Nine Are Injured In One Critically In Plant Blast

Match Dropped in Plastic Wrapping Paper Said Cause

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP) — Nine persons were injured today when an explosion rocked the east-end (Queen and Coady Streets) Pen Manufacturing Company.

One employee, Nancy Bracken, had almost all her clothes burned off and is reported in serious condition in hospital. The plant has 19 workers.

Employees who fled from the building said they feared others were trapped inside but firemen said everyone had been accounted for.

A match dropped by one of the girl employees among cellophane used to wrap toys, was blamed by one of the workers for the explosion and fire. The girl was on her relief period and was lighting a cigaret, the employee said.

Three men and four women employees of the Pax Manufacturing Company, 1228 Queen Street east were taken to hospital. Several girls fled the plant, their clothing aflame. One of these, Nancy Bracken, had almost all her clothes burned off and is reported in serious condition.

All Escape

Later police said they believed all employees had escaped. Firemen had searched the building to research the smoke-filled structure to make sure no one was still inside.

As smoke filled the building, employees dashed for safety. Mrs. May Edwards, an employee, said there was a general confusion.

The fire charged Hungary with violating a 1928 commercial treaty by refusing U.S. consulate the right even to talk with Vogeler and added the U.S. is "giving urgent consideration to such further measures as may be appropriate" under the treaty to protect Vogeler.

Diplomatic sources said the U. S. and it was fair speculation to include the possible closing of Hungarian consulate in New York and Cleveland among these further measures.

The State department declared that Acheson's cutthroat no longer are "free to transact normal business or to visit in Hungary without sufficient surveillance, arbitrary arrest, and other intolerable molestations at the hands of the Hungarian police authorities."

Until further notice, the passport of Americans going to Europe will be stamped "not good for travel in Hungary."

The United States has only accredited consular officials stationed in Hungary at Budapest, headed by Minister Edmund P. Davis. Hungary has the two consulates, and a legation in Washington.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

...Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—Snowfalls and blizzards have spread southward across Northern Ontario making the current mild spell, unseasonably warm weather from the upper thirties to about twenty above in most areas. The cold wave will move eastward into Quebec but temperatures over Northern Ontario will rise ten to fifteen degrees today.

A fairly intense storm is developing over Texas this morning and will move rapidly to the Lower Lakes region tonight causing rain and strong winds to be followed by colder weather and occasional snow on Thursday. Gales or strong rain are likely in Central Ontario tonight along the northern edge of the precipitation area associated with this storm.

Arraigned on Murder Charge MacLean Says 'I Didn't Know This Was to Happen'

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 21 (CP)—Mayor Dan Jack MacLean arraigned today on a murder charge, said "I didn't know this was going to happen until five minutes ago."

Charged with the Sunday night murder of Joseph MacKinnon 55-year-old city registrar of vital ers, he was arraigned in Dec. 22, First Public Appearance

It was the mayor's first appearance in public since he was taken by hospital Sunday following the finding of MacKinnon's unconscious body in a darkened alleyway. MacKinnon, a semi-cripple, died shortly afterwards.

The mayor appeared nervous and spoke in a husky voice as Magistrate Vernon read the murder charge.

Asked if he had retained counsel, MacLean said he would be represented by Alexander Patterson, a son of Attorney-General MacKinnon.

Mr. Patterson did not appear when called and MacLean explained "I didn't know this was going to happen until five minutes ago." He made no further statement.

After a five-minute recess during which court officials tried without success to reach Mr. Patterson, the arraignment continued,

(Mr. Patterson, reached later by reporters, said he had not been asked to represent Mr. MacLean and added that he would not.)

Arm in Sling

MacLean had his left arm in a sling when he entered the court, handcuffed and under an R.C.M.P. escort. He had a bruise on the left side of his face and his left hand appeared to be swollen.

MacKinnon, whose last job was that he died while collecting which saw MacLean re-elected for his fifth consecutive two-year term, was found in an alley with his head badly cut and his chest crushed.

Police said at that time he had been in the alley when he met an unidentified car. Later police seized a car which they identified as being owned by Mayor MacLean.

Two youngsters living near the alley told police they saw a car running over a body in the alleyway.

Storm Damages Hamilton Area

Hamilton, Dec. 21 (CP)—Power blackouts up to 24½ hours and small-scale flooding of parts of Hamilton and district in the night when one of the year's first electrical storms lashed the Southern Lake Ontario district.

The blackouts here followed the blowing out of three transformers. Rainfall was reported so heavy at times that traffic was slowed to a crawl by poor visibility. There was flooding of new housing projects in one section of the city.

At St. Catharines, Domonic Facci, 62, was struck by a car while cleaning street railway company switches.

Gardiner Parries Queries on Eggs

Ottawa, Dec. 21 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner today parried questions on whether the government will pay support prices to Canadian egg producers.

"The government has helped egg producers in the past," he said in a brief interview after leaving a two-hour cabinet meeting where it was believed floor prices for eggs were discussed. "We likely will help them in the future."

He added, however, that numerous requests from producers for floor prices did not determine government policy.

They made the requests after an announcement that the United Kingdom will not continue to buy eggs in Canada in 1950. Widespread drops in prices followed the announcement.

BUSY SESSION

Ottawa, Dec. 21—(CP)— The Cabinet met today with a considerable agenda before it for consideration.

There was no indication of what was under discussion but issues which suggested themselves were cabinet and senate appointments, the date for the opening of parliament, the January dominion-provincial conference and price support for eggs.

PLEADS GUILTY

Kitchener, Dec. 21—(CP)— Dorothy Morgenroth, 23 and Mrs. Rebecca Calines, 18, both of Hamilton, pleaded guilty in police court here today to false pretences and forgery in connection with two bad cheques of $30 and $25.

They were remanded a week for sentence.

Kids Take Two Truro Cleaners To "Cleaners" After Offer is Made

Truro, N.S., Dec. 21 — (CP)— Children in this central Nova Scotia town of 12,000 have just about taken two of Truro's cleaners to the cleaners.

One dry cleaning establishment put an advertisement in the paper last week announcing that as "our Christmas gift to all little girls and boys we will clean, absolutely free, any stuffed rag doll, animal or teddy bear. The ad stated that repairs could be made and any dolls uncalled for would be given to children throughout the town.

Up to today, children of the area had answered the call and deposited more than 2,000 toys to be dry cleaned.

"I'd have never gone into it had I known what the results were going to be," said proprietor W. T. Prechette, "But now that we've started it, we're going to finish it."

Mr. Prechette figures the retail price for all the cleaning would run to more than $600. Some of the toys are more than three feet high and one doll arrived complete with wardrobe, even to overshoes and a raincoat.

Not to be outdone, another laundry inserted an advertisement announcing the arrival of Santa Claus. The plan is that any letter sent in will be answered by Little Nora, Santa's helper, an effigy of which sits in the window.

So far, 500 letters have come in and Little Nose has, within reason, answered them as requested.

Most of the girls wanted a "permanent doll". The boys went for more practical things, such as games.

One little girl wrote in from Springhill saying she would leave a "bottle of beer and a piece of cake" on the table for Santa.

The request of Ann Maria MacPhee of Truro was: "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth." She received two false teeth in the mail two days later.

Little Ann later discovered this week that Ann Maria's second teeth are starting to show through.

COMMUNISM PAYS HONOR TO STALIN ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

Red Founders Put in Shadow by Celebration

London, Dec. 21—(AP)—Communists of the world, even the extravagant tribute to Generalissimo Stalin today as the greatest Saint of communism. Millions celebrated the Russian ruler's 70th birthday.

Organization of the most tremendous celebration ever ordered one man spread from Moscow over nearly half the world.

Workers under communist rule sent glowing pledges to "the genius Stalin," promising greater production, greater loyalty, greater struggle for peace and greater purges of communism's enemies.

Birthday gifts poured into Moscow in an unending stream of freight cars, trucks, carts, planes and sleighs.

Cities, Mountains

Seas for Stalin

Cities, streets and mountains in every corner of the vast area ruled by the party within the pale Soviet Union had their historic names changed in honor of this one man — there were Mount Stalins, Stalin Boulevards and Stalin Cities.

Over half the globe the traditional preparations for Christmas were dimmed almost into oblivion by the new joy over the birthday of the man with the pipe and the heavy moustache — called "inspirer of mankind" in one Moscow newspaper headline.

CHRISTMAS STAMPEDE

Toronto, Dec. 21.—(CP)—The annual Christmas "Stampede" is on and out of Toronto has started. Reservations are more than 12,000 travellers will have moved through the Union Station, another 1,000 by bus and some others by airplane, officials estimated.

N.A. Continent Retains Title As World's Wheat Granary

Ottawa, Dec. 21—(CP)—The North American continent has retained its title as the world's wheat granary.

Of the 6,185,000,000 bushels of wheat produced this year, wheat fields on this continent yielded 1,311,000,000, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. The top position was retained despite severe production cuts in Canada and the United States.

Canada's production of 367,000,000 bushels was 25,000,000 below last year's record, but still 100 above the 1935-39 average of 312,000,000. U.S. production topped the 1,000,000,000 mark for the sixth straight year despite a sharp reduction to 1,187,000,000 compared with last year's 1,339,000,000. Like Canada, U.S. production was well above the 1935-39 average of 759,000,000.

The Bureau estimated that of the total Canadian supply, about 218,000,000 bushels would be available for export and for carry-over into the 1950-51 crop year. This compares with 230,000,000 bushels for the same purpose last year.

The 1950 year's export and carry-over total, 231,300,000 bushels was sold on the export market in 1948-49 by only 98,700,000 for actual carry-over in the current crop year. The government believes the carry-over into 1950-51 likely will be about 88,000,000 bushels.

At the same time the bureau released its July crop report, chinch infestation on the Prairies is growing worse. In Manitoba 800,000 acres, nine miles of fence—twice the area infected last year show evidence of the pest infestation. South-Central and Southeast regions of Saskatchewan also are affected, as well as parts of Alberta.

In returning to wheat estimates, the Bureau placed production in Asia, excluding Russia, at 1,486,000,000 bushels, only slightly below last year's 1,583,000,000 figure and above the 1935-39 average of 1,499,

Council Meets Hospital Board To Discuss Report

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP)— City council met with the hospital night following its regular and final session of the year to discuss with the board of governor's of the city-owned Metropolitan General Hospital the 1949-50 administration, mission report of hospital administration. Directory of the hospital's school of nursing also attended.

Main recommendation of the report—brought down last Sept. 12 after a three-month survey of the hospital's affairs by Judge Eric Cross of Woodstock was described as the most controversial ing next week.

The joint meeting of council and hospital directory agreed to seek from the provincial government legislation to permit a change from 12 to 11 members on the hospital's board — and also later tabled the issue until the later meeting.

The Royal Commission probe was conducted last spring and investigated hospital administration and reports of a Detroit hospital survey committee. The hospital nurses and four prominent Windsorites including Mayor Arthur J. Reaume.

Main decision of last night's meeting was toward the consideration of the report into affairs of the hospital's school of nursing, operated jointly by the hospital and the Canadian Nurses Association. Whether the nursing construction was actually deferred to ascertain how activities of the school of the new hospital's nurses training school could be integrated.

RECOGNITION, NEAR

London, Dec. 21—(Reuters)—British, along with most of the commonwealth countries will recognize the Communist government of China immediately after the new year, usually reliable sources here said today.

Barred Minister Holding Services In Orange Hall

Guelph, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Rev. Thomas A. Colling, barred from his York Road Baptist Church by a legal injunction, has switched his services to the hall of the congregation who charged he wrote and indiscreet letter to a married woman.

Shortly after the letter split the congregation of 300 members and held services in the local Orange Hall. Mr. Guthrie who now is conducting the Sunday morning services in the hall and the prochurch group have the church.

An injunction, obtained three weeks ago by the congregation of 300 members, will be heard in courts must decide tomorrow which church will have it.

Mr. Guthrie says that now the injunction has expired he should be reinstated in the church. In other faction, however, says they have the possession of the church and if Mr. Guthrie wants to get reinstated he will have to get a court order of his name.

Mr. Guthrie said the injunction was granted without representing a meeting would be held in the church. He declined to say the issue of his relationship to the church. This has not been held, he said.

WILL BE UNABLE TO ATTEND WATERLOO TWP. CENTENARY

Kitchener, Dec. 21—(CP)—Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King will be unable to attend a dinner Jan. 21 to celebrate the centenary of Ontario's Waterloo township, a F. C. Bowman, township clerk, said today.

Mr. Bowman said that communiqué to the dispatch from Gatineau Tuesday, the dinner would be held at Bingeman Park Grove, just outside Kitchener, not in Galt, which is not in the township, and on Jan. 21 not Jan 9 as reported from Galt.

Doctors Welcome Acth as One More Treatment Even if Result Temporary

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Medical Writer and Science Editor

New York, Dec. 21. (AP)—The hormone Acth now being tried on Billy B., a seven-year-old Toronto leukemia victim, has had varying effects on leukemia in four similar cases in New York hospitals.

In New York this hormone temporarily stopped all signs of leukemia. When the disease returned, the hormone again stopped it. Only in Billy's case was there a third period of temporary recovery.

Leukemia does not always kill quickly. Occasionally the temporary disappearance lasts for quite a time, so that ability to multiply these temporary improvements may in some patients add years to life.

In New York the other new hormone, Cortisone, had effects the same as Acth on Leukemia.

HUNGARY PLACED OUT OF BOUNDS TO AMERICANS

Consulates in New York and Cleveland May be Closed

Washington, Dec. 21. (AP)— The State department has banned travel by Americans to Communist-run Hungary and is reported considering further actions. These include the possibility of closing American consulates in New York and Cleveland.

The travel embargo was announced late Tuesday in a stinging note of protest against the treatment of Americans in Hungary.

It reinforced a demand for the prompt release of Robert A. Vogeler, an American communications official who has been held incommunicado by the Hungarians for more than a month. Officials said the note applied equally to U. S. consulates.

Vogeler was arrested last week in Budapest of Israel Jacobstein, head of the Hungarian office of the American joint distribution committee.

The note charged Hungary with violating a 1928 commercial treaty by refusing U.S. consulate the right even to talk with Vogeler and added the U.S. is "giving urgent consideration to such further measures as may be appropriate" under the treaty to protect Americans.

Diplomatic sources said the U. S. and it was fair speculation to include the possible closing of Hungarian consulate in New York and Cleveland among these further measures.

Until further notice, the passport of Americans going to Europe will be stamped "not good for travel in Hungary."

CORDOVA RESIDENT STRUCK BY CAR

Daniel Ellis, 82-year-old resident of Cordova, sustained head injuries on Saturday evening about ten o'clock, when knocked down on Forsythe Street by a car driven by John Mumby of Deloro. He was crossing from the east side to the other side of the street near McGregor's store as the accident happened. He was removed to Dr. W. J. Donovan's surgery at first aid and later taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital.

DEPT. ON LOOKOUT FOR RUBBER BOOT

Members of the local fire department are still on the lookout for a rubber boot which was lost off one of the fire trucks while answering an alarm some days ago. A big No. 3 was painted on the rubber boot.

It isn't the value of the rubber boot, but as Fire Chief Gerald Vance points out, just one rubber is no good to anybody. So if the finder will call the fire department his act will be much appreciated.

TURKEY DRAW HELD BY MOOSE

Sponsored by the Loyal Order of Moose a turkey draw was held last night at Vanity Fair with a large crowd attending. The winners were Mrs. Dolan, Susie Hearns, Mike Jenova, Frank Delano, Wesley Stephens, R. O. Sullivan, "Warpy" Clare, Phyllis Harrow, Mrs. John Yorke, Jr. Simmons, Ernie Sweet, Sam Howe, Armour Bennett, J. W. Dougherty, Dr. R. S. Ross, C. McAvay.

INJURIES SUSTAINED WHEN HIT BY CAR

Ernie Rose, 30, living at 211 Coleman Street, suffered injuries to the back of his head, on his right leg, side and hand, when he was struck by a car as he crossed Coleman Street at the intersection of Bridge.

During the rush hour last night Mr. Rose was walking home carrying a case of beer when a car driven by Gordon Anderson, 40 Charlotte Street, turning onto Coleman from Bridge struck him with the fender. The injured man was attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

Besides suffering personal injuries as a result of the accident, Mr. Rose also lost a quantity of beer as only three bottles of the 24 escaped being broken.

RECENTLY FILLED STREET EXCAVATIONS BEGIN TO SETTLE

The current mild weather which is causing recently filled street excavations to settle, is resulting in the grief for motorists in several sections of the city with complaints of this nature having been received at the police station.

Yesterday a motorist complained of a large hole in the street by the corner of Victoria Ave., and Goldale Road in the Parkwood Heights area. The hole was filled with water and the motorists not realizing the depth was thereby causing a broken spring and some damage.

BANK OF MONTREAL STAFF HOLDS PARTY

The staff of the Bank of Montreal branch here held their annual Christmas party at the Queen's Hotel last night. Some thirty-four "starters" sat down to a lurky dinner with all the trimmings under the supervision of Manager Harry Becker. There was a Christmas tree, music and entertainment and a Santa Claus "who forgot his uniform". A good time was had by all.

SHORTEST DAY OF YEAR

Today is the shortest day of the year, during the long six months ahead many obviously will be thinking of the pleasant weather summer brings with it, and enduring the raw, chilly days of present weather.

In comparison, in the Argentine in South America, the population swelters in temperatures exceeding 95 degrees while the sun is shining on their longest day of the year.

Don't Drive After Drinking During Christmas Season Warns Chief of Police

"Spare someone's life for Christmas — should be the top item on every driver's Christmas list," says Police Chief Walter Proctor, head of the local police department.

"It costs nothing" he points out, "and takes little time" and effort. Show Christmas goodwill by allowing others the right of way. Slow down for slippery streets, watch carefully for pedals and cars that are hard to see and don't drive after drinking."

As result of the Christmas jaiety of Christmas and New Year's, more people are out shopping, delivering, attending parties. More children are out playing and more people can expect the risk of traffic accidents than at any other time of the year.

Chief Probert asks motorists to be particularly careful of people bet-

Wards of C.A.S. Entertained by Kinsmen Club

In many respects much more unfortunate than the vast majority of other children, wards of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society on Tuesday evening again had their yearly treat that really is a Santa Claus.

Approximately 85 kiddies, all wards of the county C.A.S., last evening were guests of the Kinsmen Club in the Stirling community hall when they were all presented with gifts from the Kinsmen Club of Belleville. The party was under the C.A.S. wards, is an annual event for the local Kinsmen.

The entertainment of the local service club made the trip to Stirling a double treat for the children a good time. Two of the club members outfit themselves as Santa Claus while another club member dressed as Santa personally presented the gifts to each of the kiddies. Ten members of the CAS including superintendent Wm. Lockyer, were also present.

The kiddies had a whale of a time with Christmas carols during a song-fest which was led by Allan Preston. Santa Claus Colebourne had club member Murray Davis. They had all the chocolate milk they could drink, this supplied by Reid's Dairy of Belleville, and all the hot dogs they could eat. The hot dogs were supplied by the Stirling Rotary Club.

After a three-hour program the happy but tired kiddies, ill with their gifts and candy, bundled off to their various foster homes in different parts of the county. And each was sure in his heart that there really was a Santa Claus.

Original Christmas Story on Air Friday

"The Man Who Invented Christmas", an original one hour radio drama written especially for the Ford Theatre by Andrew Allan, will be presented on the Dominion Network (CBC) Friday, December 23rd from 9 to 10 p.m. EST. This is the first drama so far this season, "The Man Who Invented Christmas" will be the third original play by the Canadian dramatist.

"The man who invented Christmas" tells the story of a young RCAF veteran who operates an all year round lodge, called Valhalla, in Canada's North Country. Faced with a slack Christmas season, and on the urging of one of his friends who believes Christmas to be a racket, he advertises that at Valhalla there will be no Christmas. The assorted characters who make up his guests over Christmas are skillfully blended into a dramatic theme which all ends happily.

Canada's most prominent radio artists will make up the cast of "The Man Who Invented Christmas." Alan Savage and Lucie Agostini composing and conducting an original music score.

Obituary

LATE MRS. META THRASHER (Camilton)

The funeral of Mrs. Meta Thrasher was held from her late residence at Camilton on Tuesday afternoon, services there and at Elmwood Cemetery was conducted by Rev. J. Walter Madden, minister of Camilton United Church.

Pall bearers were Blake Bedell, Harold Horn, George Shorey, Arthur Holgate, John O'Grady and Clarence Hearns.

DANIEL J. BREEN (Tweed)

Tweed, Dec. 21. —A resident of this community for a considerable number of years, Daniel J. Breen died in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday December 14th, 1949, this year. He was a son of the late James Breen and his wife Elizabeth Mirwin.

The late Mr. Breen lived at Maynooth for many years where he was a blacksmith, carriage maker, and pulpwood operator. Some 20 years ago, he retired here to Tweed to make his home. He was held in the highest regard by many friends.

Among the survivors are following children, Stephen, John and Thomas Breen, Tweed; Mrs. Rose McNichol, Buffalo, N.Y.; Mrs. Carmel Hinds and Leon Breen, Toronto; Mrs. May Graver and Miss Julia Breen, Buffalo, N.Y.

The funeral was held from his late home on McGowan Street to St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed, where requiem mass was held on Saturday morning, December 17.

KENNETH RUSSELL SMITH (Trenton)

Trenton, Dec. 21 — (Special)— Kenneth Russell (Bill) Smith, 37 Nicholson Street, Trenton, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday night. He was born in Trenton and was in his 27th year, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith.

During the Second Great War Kenneth K. (Bill) Smith served in the Canadian Armoured Corps from 1941 to 1945. The greater part of his service he was stationed in England, Holland, Italy and Germany. Since the war he has spent overseas he lived all his life in Trenton and for the past few years he was employed as a civilian in the works and building department in the Canadian Air Force Station, Trent Road.

Surviving him are his parents; four sisters, Mrs. Everett (Eva) Weller, Dorothy Pierce, Mrs. Kenneth (Dorothy) Keitel, Belleville, and Lois Smith and Betty Smith, Trenton.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from the home of his parents, under the direction of the Canadian Legion, Trenton Branch No. 110, to St. George's Anglican Church where service was conducted by the rector, the Rev. A. S. McConnell, who also said the committal prayers at St. George's Cemetery.

The bearers were Keith Brown, Arnold Radway, Fred Davis, John Miller, Harry Hyatt and Carl Phillips.

Hastings Expected To Send Largest Number Students

Kingston, Dec. 21—Twenty counties will be represented at the Ontario Provincial Junior Farm Forage in the action finals played this week, defeating the 9th Anti Tank Regiment three games at one after some exciting play.

The ANAF team won the league title last year and won their three games by identical scores of 6-3 while the losers scored a 5-3 win in their bid for victory.

Charlie Hayes equalled the high score of 140 and climbed into the championship circle of Sandin, Milbourne and Edgecombe.

A feature of the matches was the exceptionally fine work of Joe McCluskie of the 9th Anti tanks. Playing a championship form he won his second game using only ten darts to accomplish the win.

The second half of the schedule will start early in the New Year.

Three Children Die In Wisconsin Fire

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., Dec. 21 — (AP) — Three children died Tuesday night in a flash fire, while five brothers and sisters and their parents escaped as their two-storey rural home was levelled.

Dead, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Senheim, were Nancy, seven months, Gary, 2, and Robert, 14.

TEACHER SHOT TO DEATH

Aberdeen, S. D., Dec. 21 (AP) — A 19-year-old rural school teacher was shot to death Tuesday and a former student severely wounded in what authorities said was a murder and attempted suicide. Jo Anna Burup was found in the front seat of a car parked in the school driveway. Beside her was Liscom Boardman, 20, used car salesman. Boardman, with a bullet wound in the head, held a .22 - calibre pistol.

ANAF Wins Sectional Title Of Darts League

The Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Belleville are the championship of the first half of the Belleville Service Darts League in the action finals played this week, defeating the 9th Anti Tank Regiment three games at one after some exciting play.

The ANAF team won the league title last year and won their three games by identical scores of 6-3 while the losers scored a 5-3 win in their bid for victory.

Kiwanis Members Enjoy Turkey Dinner, Carols

The festive season prevailed at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Centre on Tuesday. Presents were passed around, congratulatory addresses were made and the members enjoyed a splendid address by Cliff Holmes of the O.R.D. staff on the subject "What you can buy for a nickle." This address was fully covered in a recent issue when Mr. Holmes addressed the Rotary Club on the same subject. Mr. Holmes reviewed the many books that are to be found on the shelves of the Corby Public Library and the work that is being done there outside the lending of books.

President Norman Edwards presided at the luncheon, which was a full course turkey dinner with all the trimmings and thoroughly enjoyed by the members. Harold Carruthers with Phil Huddleston at the piano conducted the singing of carols and the members were in the best voice of possibly the whole year. Ted Schwenk collected a number of quarters for welfare work by a simple subterfuge, which of course, brought him in a substantial fine. Jack Bonn and Warren Green were the samples to the members and this also brought down the fine.

The speaker of the day was introduced by Bob Stone and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Jack Walton. The attendance prize, donated by Claude D. Cox, was won by Charlie Cawker. Congratulations were extended to several members of the club who were appointed to office in the city, while Angus Duffy was given special mention for his advancement in his beloved regiment, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. It was a splendid, enjoyable hour and before the members departed they all wished to their president the very best Christmas and a happy New Year.

Youths Plead Guilty To Assault, Robbery

Whitby, Dec. 21—(CP)— Two youths pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of assault and robbery of a casket salesman Dec. 10. They admitted rolling his car over a 200-foot embankment with the victim inside—an idea they said they got from a gangster film. Remanded to Dec. 28 for sentence were Ross Church, 22, of Toronto and Milo Mills, 23, of Leamington, Ont. Gerald Trueman, 23, said the two men threatened to kill him.

Firemen Called To Cannifton But no Blaze

It was a fast run to the village of Cannifton, which members of the local fire department made today when a call came through for assistance in extinguishing a fire in a motorists automobile.

The fire truck raced out the highway with firemen on the lookout for the blazing car as did truck neared the village. But there was no blazing car in sight, this despite a quick circuit of the village.

Investigation revealed the motorist in trouble had been on the west side of the river across the bridge, but here again no car was in sight. Firemen now believe the motorist had been successful in extinguishing the fire in his car and had driven away without waiting for the firemen.

Unseasonal Weather Brings Mixed Blessings

The unseasonal mildness of late may be easier on the coal bin, but provides no stimulus for colds and other epidemics. Cases of intestinal influenza reported in the city recently are also attributed by some people to the cold, damp weather.

Merchants displaying every conceivable device for sporting in the snow are finding trade slackening now that it appears that there will be no white Christmas. The shoemen have noticed several merchandise meeting slowly still blaming the unusual situation completely to the lack of snow.

It can be naturally assumed that the Ontario Hydro Electric authorities have received the Christmas present they were looking for in the form of recent abundant rains; however, a series of heavy snowfalls certainly would do much to replenish the northern reservoirs in the spring.

But those people who are downhearted and disappointed with the mildness and discouraging winter sports situation can expect their hopes to soar upwards in the next few days with the reports of abundant snow and freezing weather in the Canadian west.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—Firming tendencies appeared in mid-session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Early trends were down but some support showed in golds, western oils and industrials.

Volume for the first three hours was 400,000 shares.

The gains in golds appeared following recent sharp declines. Seniors led the upturn on fractional gains and advances ranged up to 15 cents in junior producers. Sullivan jumped ahead 15 cents at $2.70 and Cochenour Willans added 12 cents at $2.30.

Sherritt Gordon highlighted base metals, adding 12 cents at $2.30 in brisk mid-session trading. Consolidated Smelters, Noranda, International Nickel and Hudson Bay were off fractions.

Western oils continued under pressure of profit-taking sales in early dealings but gains began to appear at the half - way mark. Royalite added 10 cents at $9.60 and Pacific Petroleum gained 10 cents at $4.40. Calgary and Edmonton remained down 45 cents at $8.

Industrials were held to mixed fractional changes. The new shares of International Paper Common were listed on the curb and some 70 shares traded at 37.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Cattle trade was dull at the Toronto livestock market this morning. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service: cattle, 100; calves, 60; hogs, 300; sheep and lambs, 30. Carried over from yesterday were 80 cattle.

A few butcher cows sold at $13-$15.25 with canners selling downwards to $10 Medium quality heifers brought $19.50.

Calves were steady at $27-$29 for choice vealers while common to medium ranged from $10-$23.

Hog prices have not yet been established today.

Good lambs brought $24.75-$25. No sheep sales have been reported.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Stratford hog prices this morning were established at $27.50 for hogs and $27.25.

Hogs at Hull, Que., were $27.75, dressed grade A delivered. Hogs off trucks unquoted.

James Peets Wins Speaking Contest at "Y"

An enjoyable Christmas banquet was held by the Effective Speaking Workshop in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium Tuesday evening. Frank Follwell, M.P., presented a trophy donated by himself to James Peets, who, in the opinion of the judging board, was most deserving of this award for his speaking performances during the nine weeks of the Workshop.

Honored guests at the banquet included John Deacon, president of the Y.M.C.A., and Mrs. Deacon, Rev. Don Amos, Edward Follwell, A. J. Davis, Linton Read, Jerry Hyde, Court Miller and Frank S. Follwell. John Deacon with Mrs. Deacon accompanying him on the piano, favored the group with several songs. Previous to this, under the direction of Don Amos with Linton Reed at the piano, the group enjoyed singing a number of Christmas carols.

Member Speaks

Frank Follwell was the special speaker of the evening, and in his address he mentioned one way to learn to speak well was to accept every opportunity to speak. He commended the Workshop in that it gave individuals an opportunity to participate, and in this way they were inevitably gaining poise, confidence and effectiveness on the platform and beyond, in the wider sphere of public affairs, business contacts and social life.

Mr. Follwell, a former mayor of Belleville, and now a member of parliament, invited the 1950 Y.M.C.A. Effective Speaking Workshop, to come to Ottawa and be his guests for a day. Mr. Follwell said he would be glad to conduct the group through the parliament buildings, giving them an opportunity to see the Peace Tower, the mint, the library, and he would arrange so the group could "sit in" and see the parliament in action. Bill Pope, program director of the Y.M.C.A. accepted this invitation on behalf of the new Effective Speaking Workshop which will commence on January 23.

Must be Prepared

Speaking on the "Marks of a Good Speech," Mr. Follwell in his informal, pleasant way said the effective speech must be prepared, delivery, and having a message of interest. Leaving the audience with a thought provoking idea to consider was an effective way to close a talk.

Other points to be kept in mind when preparing a good speech, Frank Follwell stated, were the following: Know what audience you are going to address, keep within your allotted time, make sure the audience can hear you without straining to hear your thoughts clear and unified, use simple language, be natural, speak concisely and make use of every word. Repetition, if not overdone, can be used to advantage in impressing and emphasizing an idea.

At J. Davis, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. made some interesting remarks on effective speaking ideas, and capably introduced Jerry Follwell to the group. Bill Pope outlined briefly for the contest the second Effective Speaking Workshop, to commence on January 23rd, and invited those interested to enroll for this new course.

Six Finalists

The six class finalists who spoke during the evening were Charles Lusk, Harold Meyers, Robert Murphy, James Peets, Mary Waller and R. E. Peterson. These finalists were introduced by Keith Bennett, Russ Perkins, Robert Smith, Charles Potter, Homer Riverst, and Gladys Linton.

After a careful consideration of all finalists the board of judges, headed by Don Amos, selected Jim Peets as the best class speaker. Mr. Peets had perfect attendance during the course of instruction, and during the final evening spoke on the topic "How Forceful are Right Words?" He said "words should have the twin merit of simplicity and good taste." Jim Peets illustrated the effectiveness of vivid, forceful words, and stated that "words are the common property of all who read and write."

Jerry Hyde acted as chairman, and kept the varied program moving at a happy pace. During the banquet proper, several interesting facts were given. Russell Perkins proposed a toast to the King, Robert Brown to the Y.M.C.A. with John Deacon responding, and William Thrasher to the Ladies, with Jean Redfern responding. Robert Smith expressed on behalf of the class members an appreciation of thanks to Bill Pope for the effective work he had done in organizing the class. Mrs. Blackburn spoke briefly on what the course had meant to her, and Homer Riverst expressed an appreciation to the workshop instructors.

Pearson to Meet Pakistan Leaders

Karachi, Dec. 21 — (Reuters)— L. B. Pearson, Canadian minister of external affairs, is to have talks with Pakistan government officials when he arrives here Jan. 6 on his way to the Commonwealth Foreign Ministers' Conference at Colombo, it was authoritatively learned today.

Pearson, flying to Ceylon in an R.C.A.F. plane, will stay here for one day. He will be accompanied by Canada's newly-appointed high commissioner to Pakistan, David Johnson.

Johnson will accompany the foreign minister to Colombo and return here after the conference to take up his post.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Brantford, Dec. 21 — (CP) — A charge of having illicit veal for sale for human consumption against William Thompson, local butcher, was dismissed today.

Defence evidence was that the veal was for sale to a dealer in fox and mink farmer meats.

Magistrate R. J. Gillen said that the prosecution had not proved intent on Thompson's part to sell the veal for human consumption. Under the Public Health Act, veal must be three weeks old before killing for the dinner table. Slink veal is that less than three weeks old.

YEAR'S TOURING RECORD GOOD

It pays to have visitors to one's country. The New World countries realize this and not they only, but the lands beyond the seas, in the Old World, which also has infinite appeals after millenniums of civilization have passed into history, into customs and into their laws and ways of life.

Canada is one of the young countries, with so much of her area yet in the natural state, and so much which has scarcely touched in the cities, towns, villages and the countryside of the more thickly populated parts of the Dominion.

Ontario has a rich past and a prosperous present and can logically look to the future as holding immense developments now yet dreamed of.

With its books for this year soon to be closed, it is known that more than 490,000 visits were paid to reception centres by visitors across the Province. This will go down in history as the greatest year for visitors Canada has known and the total is but a symbol of the greater numbers yet to come. The 1949 total shows an increase of 132,000 calls over 1948.

Naturally Niagara Falls from its strategic position as one of the doorways into the heart of Canada ran to the top of the list of cities where centres were visited, nearly 100,000 men and women having visited the centre in that city. Sarnia, also in a strategic position, ran a close second with 84,000 visitors. Windsor tunnel was third, Sault Ste Marie fourth and Windsor bridge with 28,000 was fifth.

These figures give some measure of the interest which visitors take in this country with its appeal through the vastness of the country's extent. They show how the various parts of the province can contribute to the benefits which tourists and modern summer travel mean from the standpoint of the good will of the two neighbor nations.

THIS CHRISTMAS INSPIRATION

At the Yuletide season those who organize entertainments for the young and even for their elders are performing what merits the sincere thanks of those who attend and enjoy these functions. They are drawing their inspiration from the greatest source possible, one that has its foundations in truth and fact. Down the centuries the spirit of Yuletide and Christmas has been expanding as each age lends its individual viewpoint on the greatest of festivals in the calendar.

Christmas is the rich source of the inspiration of the lives of many hundreds of millions. The ages have drawn heavily on the festival and it becomes the greater as the observances go by. Two thousand years of faith and hope have made the anniversary of the birth of Christ a source of inspiration for millions upon millions, and its influence continues.

The deepest human emotions have been stirred by the appeal of the Christmas season and in that soil lives have been inspired, especially children, who have caught the glow which the season of the Nativity brings with results which are never to pass away.

A HAPPY CUSTOM

One of the happy features of Christmastide is the observance year after year of customs which have become part of the people's nature. Such a one is the annual gift by His Majesty the King of a royal pine tree to the St. Paul's. For centuries this historic custom has been followed, trees from Windsor forming the main feature of the decorations at this world famous London church of the English-speaking world. Two trees for this year's decorations have arrived, each 30 feet high, and taken from the royal forest at Windsor. One of the trees is set up inside the cathedral and the other on the entrance steps. Colored lights will shine from the branches of these trees.

The continuance of the long-established custom is a symbol of the continuity of events and life in the British Isles. Such have their effect on the world of change. The body season brings people back to the realities of life which are continuous from generation to generation.

SANTA FOR THE OLD

The old should have a Santa Claus,
They had a Santa, too,
And so should all the sad—
They'll go to bed on Christmas
A gracious saint who'd think Eve to pause And dream as children do.
To see how hurts they'd had.
The toys which children's A Santa Claus we grown-ups
stockings fill need,
Mean laughter sweet to hear, As well as children small—
But O there are so many ill A saint who will our wishes
Who need a word of cheer! heed

And gladden one and all.
The troubled hearts which joy would strum
And frowns would disappear
If we'd a Santa Claus to come,
And watch for, once a year.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

Belleville was pretty well dug out of the snow drifts today and the road crews department has the main streets in good condition. Movement of vehicles along the main streets is not as rapid as usual owing to the number of cars and sleighs taking the place of motor cars on their way to and from the city market. Ald. Geo. A. Reid, chairman of Public Works, and the men in charge of the snow clearing operations have been highly complimented on the result of their battle with the storm. Never has such effective work been accomplished in the city in dealing with snow storms.

Belleville saw more horses from the country today than has been seen here for years. Where to stable the horses was a problem as stabling is not as plentiful as was the case before the advent of motor cars. Many farmers had to keep their horses moving about in order to keep them warm, while waiting for some person to take his team out and they could move their horses in.

THE PACKSAK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A man walked into a cigar store the other day and dropped dead.

The storekeeper called not on call the policeman off the corner. When they returned, the police man telephoned for a doctor, and searched the body for identification. He found no wallet. But there were some letters in a pocket that served.

Soon after the doctor came, members of the dead man's family arrived. The storekeeper mentioned that he could find no wallet.

But the family declared that the dead man invariably carried his wallet and that he would be somewhere between $50 and $300 in it. But wallet which was gone, a valuable timepiece. And his gold fountain pen and pencil were missing.

The storekeeper recollected that a stranger had accosted one son in the store when the poor fellow keeled over; but he was a stranger.

The feelings of the family can be imagined. There is a sense of robbery in the unexpected death of a member of the family. But to have the body searched and robbed within a minute or two of life's passing, adds an element of outrage that comes close to the unspeakable.

The police tell me that cases of this kind are not at all unusual. In disasters where many lives are lost, the police have to be particularly alert in guarding the bodies of the victims. The number of people who are not at all saved by death and disaster seems to be larger than might be expected. The recent wars and the earthquakes include incredible stories of looting that took out in almost immediately. The looters are people who, a few minutes before, escaped with death as a miracle. Nobody's death not even their own, saves them.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

EVIDENTLY, THERE NEVER WAS A KONOWITZ

My less conniving students will remember that at the last session of this class I told them the story of Konowitz, the East Side storekeeper, who saved a gangster's life by handling him up in mattress and hiding him in a cellar. This Volstead valentine, I reported, had been passed on to me by a reformed bootlegger who is currently the police president of a big whiskey company.

The night the yarn appeared in print I happened to meet the distiller at Dinty Moore's restaurant.

"Thanks for the story," I said. "By the way, if I promise not to print it, will you tell me the name of the hoodlum who hid under the mattress?"

The whiskey man grinned. "There's no reason why you shouldn't print it. The guy's name was Bonaparte — Napoleon Bonaparte."

"You're joking."

"If I am, the joke's on you. The story was a Yiddish one. Why don't you talk like my Pop told me when I was a kid.

"How about telling me the original."

"I'm glad to," said the ex-bootlegger. . . .

One day when the French Army was nearing Moscow, a detachment of Russian Uhlans broke through the flank of the main body of troops and created an uproar. Word got around that even Napoleon had to run for it. When the Uhlans were on his elevator heels, he fled to a Jewish village and knocked on the door of the local tailor.

"Hide me," he begged.

Not knowing the Emperor from a hole in the Steppes, the tailor took him in, hid him under a bed and a few minutes later the Russians arrived and began searching the house. Finding no one but the mattress, a sergeant jabbed his bayonet through the padding, slitting Napoleon's coat up the back but missing his imperial hide.

"Tailor," said the little general when the Russians were gone, "you have saved the life of the Emperor and he is grateful. Ask for the three things you most want, and when the war arrives your wishes shall be granted."

That afternoon, when the French recaptured the village, Bonaparte asked the tailor to name his first wish.

"For two years," said the village peddler, "all of my house has been leaking."

"A petty request to make of an emperor. Nevertheless, you shall have a new roof. What is your second wish?"

"Moike, the tailor in the next village, says he is carrying hare. This is a small town, and — "

"Mistakes shall not compete with you," said Napoleon. "What is your final request?"

"Well, the tailor hesitated, by, "all my life I've wondered why big shots and emperors have the same feelings as other human beings. When the soldiers were standing over you with the bayonet, how did it feel under the mattress?"

"You repay my kindness with impertinence," said Bonaparte. "Tomorrow morning you shall be shot."

At sunrise, the tailor was tied to a tree and a squad of soldiers leveled their muskets at him. The lieutenant in charge studied his watch and finally lifted his hand and began to count.

"Un — "

The muskets were cocked.

"Deux — "

The soldiers took aim.

But before the lieutenant could say "trois," one of Napoleon's generals rode into the clearing and shouted to the men to lower their weapons.

"The Emperor begs your pardon," the general told the tailor, "for me to give you this letter."

"Dear Tailor: Here letter read, "I want to know how I felt when I was under the mattress."

Mackenzie's Column:

Higher Wages Demanded by Palace Servants

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The new and mighty nation of Russia has a month hence assumes the status of a sovereign republic, is displaying some astonishing growing pains.

For instance, take the strange case of the Gaskwar of Baroda in India. The servant of the new India was one of the richest and most powerful rulers in India, with some 600 ruling princes. His highness is the potentate whose attendance was so splendid that he blew $10,000,000 in a six-week spree. In this case was compromised when the charge was dropped and the Gaskwar allowed to live in splendor behind a mighty barricade of jewels and gold. His highness was described by the Bombay government.

Now Private Citizen

So his nibs now is a "private citizen," which is a technical designation for one who manages to keep so much in the public eye. The difficulty with this potentate is involvement in a dispute with his prime minister. They have organized a union under India's new freedom and are on strike for higher wages.

There's a fine knotty old fish for a ruler who virtually held the power of life and death over 2,000,000 subjects, with now 3,000 municipal workers in the city of Baroda on strike in sympathy with the palace servants. The Bombay government has stepped into the delicate dispute because, for sooth, his highness has run out of money.

If the current Gaskwar did spend $10,003,000 in six weeks he was merely living up to the record set by some of his elders. They squandered the wealth that they just didn't have much idea of its extent. These potentates were accustomed through the sweat and blood of long generations of their subjects.

During my time in India there was one princely ruler who used to bathe in champagne and chase wild dogs across country in a Rolls Royce. Fox hunting he called it.

Too Much Alcohol

Perhaps in some previous column I may have told about the Indian prince who was driving his own car when he found his road blocked by a peasant's bullock cart, pulled a pistol and shot the peasant dead. Later this ruler remarked to a friend of mine:

"You know, I shouldn't have shot that fellow. It really wasn't a nice thing to do. Hereafter I'm not going to be responsible for anything I'm driving."

However, it would be unfair to stop our column on this note. Many of the rulers of these princely states are returning to the simple life. Some of the Maharajahs were accustomed to the luxuries of Paris and London. When they left, me, he handed me a piece of paper on which were written these words. Whether they are original or were gleaned from his reading he did not say, but I pass them on to readers, feeling that they may be interested. And indeed they have been to me:

"Oh, the comfort, the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person, having neither to weigh words nor measure words, but passing them all right out, chaff and grain together, certain of a faithful hand will take them and sift them and with the breath of kindness blow the chaff away. It is inspiring to stand at the beginning of life and look up the dazzling pathway to the crest of the hill upon which we believe God has set the shining city of achievement. But it is equally pleasant and no doubt more profitable—to stand in the late afternoon or twilight of life and look back upon the path spent on arduous climbing, in the solving of problems, the meeting of joy and pain with equanimity, and in comradeship with good friends, who lend light up the pathway of life and makes all going easier."

Claims Systems Can Get Along In Peaceful World

London, Dec. 21 — (AP) — Georgi M. Malenkov, a top-ranking Soviet leader, marked Generalissimo Stalin's 70th birthday today by declaring emphatically that communism and capitalism can get along together in a peaceful world.

In an article in the communist party newspaper Pravda, Malenkov heavily underscored some of the basic contentions of the Soviet Union's two economic systems need not fight each other to death. The Pravda article was broadcast by Moscow radio and heard here.

Malenkov, a member of the ruling Politburo and a deputy premier of the Soviet Union's council of ministers, made the key speech last month on the anniversary of Russia's 1917 revolution.

Southern Belles Of the Bee World Shipped by Rail

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—Southern Belles of the bee world arrived in Toronto today on one car for air travel, have been using the railways when they head north to their summer quarters.

W. E. Harrell of Hayesville, Alabama, who raises queen bees for the export market, was a speaker Tuesday at the 70th annual meeting of the Ontario Bee Keepers convention. After giving some statistics on bees in Alabama geography and the raising of queen bees, he explained why they are sent in buyers by railway instead of by air. He said that they could travel by air all right but when he found the insects were occasionally detained at airports while in transit, he switched to rail shipment.

Queen bees are sent out by Mr. Harrell is accompanied by her court—eight or more workers—to feed her on the way. Each one takes over the new hive.

Mr. Harrell at Tuesday's meeting explained hive equipment, benefits of bees in orchards and the value of pollination when bees are put in orchards.

Some of the Maharajahs were inexperienced rulers and did much for their people.

Most of the principalities of course have been absorbed by the new government of India, which has beheaded Maharajahs with their richly capsicioned trains of clerks and servants returning to the AH! AH! DON'T CAUTERIZE THAT WOUND!

Further evidence that the concept of rabies, still followed by many physicians and health officers in practice, is wrong is this arbitrary statement made by a metropolitan health commissioner in a warning to the public.

"The only possible way to destroy rabies virus is by cauterizing the wound with fuming nitric acid."

A typical bit of modern public health hokum bunkum. Had no physician, health authority, pathologist, bacteriologist or other expert has discovered or identified a virus or germ or other specific cause of the hypothetical disease rabies in man. (I do hope sophomorous readers will ask references to publications that mention Negri bodies—I don't believe I have overlooked any significant item of that kind.)

How the indignant health commissioner knew that "fuming" nitric acid (the strongest nitric acid) and nothing else destroys the undiscovered "virus" is one of the mysteries which only a mental "science" can make wonderful. The commissioner was not so far out of line as I am probably the last majority of physicians who have any definite opinion about what would agree with the dictum that the wound inflicted by animal or bird presumed to be rabid "should be cauterized with fuming nitric acid, and very few physicians would agree with me that cauterization of that or any fresh wound does more harm than good, in any circumstance.

A physician as a health authority will never argue that my doubt that rabies ever occurs in man disqualifies me from attempting to give a question or from giving the public my opinion.

Frankly I don't know whether I am more or less qualified to speak on the subject than one who thinks rabies question than any other doctor or health authority. But after long and earnest study of the subject I have found it impossible to refrain from giving out the best advice I can give, with years of experience.

The only advice I have ever given or shall ever give in any case is this: Clean the wound, wash or scratched by animal or bird presumed to be rabid, and apply immediate treatment by a physician. The patient should learn sufficiently to be physician enough to give Pasteur treatment or not. I've been as conservative as that in the physician who attends the patient to decide about it.

My own life is a different matter. If I were wounded, bitten or scratched by an animal, I'd want immediate treatment as follows,

1. Thorough surgical cleansing of the wound, the same as is necessary for any pyosuable-ly infected wound.
2. Application of a suitable sterile dressing.
3. Immediate injection of a prophylactic dose of antitetanus serum (lockjaw antitoxin).
4. Second dose of the tetanus antitoxin 5 to 7 days later. Perhaps third dose 14 to 16 days after the injury.

That's all. You see, I believe unrecognized perhaps modified tetanus (lockjaw) is the cause of death in many cases diagnosed as rabies.

All of the symptoms and signs described in reports of cases of alleged rabies in man are precisely the symptoms and signs of tetanus.

I may be wrong, but this is what I believe.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Send Him to the Pen

Have you any advice for a wife whose husband is trying to learn to cheer people up? Even I do will have to be done secretly, of course. (Mrs. T. R. D.)

Answer—You might fix up a pen for him, out behind where you keep the pigs. Try doing something secretly you mean doping his coffee, maybe. Use your own mind. It is a snide notion employed by swindlers to cheer people up. Even a human being of adult development should try to learn to cheer himself up by comprehension—one who still expects to be cheered with candy, toys, that is. Some inveterate tobacco chewers have used the following absurdly crumbled prickly ash bark (Xanthoxylum), powdered Rue, Senna (boxylum) and coarsely ground gentian root (Bitter-root) with honey or molasses to bind into the mixture together in the semblance of chewing tobacco.

Colon Hygiene

I followed the instructions in your booklet, including the daily eating of flaxseeds right from the feed store and now for the first time in my life my colon behaves like it haven't a leg other aid than the flaxseeds for many months. (Mrs. W.)

Answer—Send 25c and stamped self addressed envelope for the booklet Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHY HURRY?

One of the famous phrases of the world it this: "The more haste, the less speed." But is this truth exemplified nearly very day in the news printed in the daily newspaper. Only this week I read of how it might soon be possible to fly from Montreal to London in a single hour We do it now in a day—and that a quick enough — excepting in a grave emergency.

Many of the things that we buy these days begin to fall apart before we have been long in use. The more power that is put into the engine of an automobile, the more close is the driver of its speed—all too often to his regret. The latest model may be speedy and comfort, then why hurry? Why not enjoyment at the least risk to no one?

The best worker is the conscientious one, not the rapid working one. Good work takes time. It is a joy to see a child home that were built by our forefathers. We can be made impressive in their arrangements, but not in their painstaking efforts to make them serve for a long time.

I have just read a little book that the author stated it took him seventeen years to write, and when it was first published in 1883, only today have I bought a copy and read it with delight. You see it was not just "dashed off" as so many of the books, and so many will live. The late William Allen White once told me that he could write a book for a $10,000 advance if he would give himself time, but he couldn't. It was some ten years later when he did give them a try.

Take the lifetime for Marcus Aurelius to give to the world his book of Meditations. Nothing we know about Bunyan, Cervantes and Montaigne fell from the rest book, but they took their time to write it. That's why we read them.

Why hurry? Nature doesn't. Some of the largest redwood trees in California, mocking man's mad haste for speed, there are those that would even have them cut down into timber, and for money! Good! I mean it two thousand years would then be the best. It took millions of years to get the world we now enjoy.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LOOKING BACKWARD AND FORWARD

Recently I met a friend at a preparatory school class reunion whom I had not seen for many years. We spent considerable time together reminiscing over the days recently pleasant, some tragic—which had characterized the intervening years. When I left me, he handed me a piece of paper on which were written these words. Whether they are original or were gleaned from his reading he did not say, but I pass them on to readers, feeling that they may be interested. And indeed they have been to me:

"Oh, the comfort, the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person, having neither to weigh

Half-Century of Experiences As Sailor on Sea and Lake Recalled by Capt. E. Knudsen

"A life on the ocean wave, and home on the rolling deep" has left little imprint on Captain Elias Knudsen, 370 Charles Street who recently retired as master of the Canada Cement Company's electric motor vessel "Cement-Karrier" after 50 years voyaging over the seven seas and the Great Lakes.

CAPTAIN ELIAS KNUDSEN

In his well-appointed home with "Hector, Duke of Quinte" a handsome three-year-old boxer, and shipmate for the past two years, curled at his feet, this sturdy, handsome 68-year-old mariner unfolded the story of a half century of life spent aboard wooden and steel ships.

He has seen curling breakers caressing the white beaches of palm fringed islands of the Caribbean. He has lain at anchor in sleepy Mexican ports. He has heard the thunder of the Atlantic pounding the rock-ribbed coast of Nova Scotia. Five times he rounded the "Horn" and fought the tremendous gales caused by the meeting of Antarctic winds and those of South America in an effort to "make westing" in his square-rigged sailing ship. And he has travelled the comparatively peaceful lanes although at times they, too, were rough, of the Great Lakes.

Has Visited Australia

To Australian ports he brought his white-winged sailing ships loaded to the plimsoll mark, so to speak, with lumber. Dusky stevedores have unloaded coal from his vessels in Acalpuico, and other Mexican ports. From Puget Sound he brought cargoes of square timbers to London, England. In his native Norway he piloted a small passenger craft. In Nova Scotia his vessel hauled coal to Halifax, Montreal, and other eastern ports.

Tall, erect, greying hair topping a sturdy six-foot frame, Captain Knudsen is the epitome of his countrymen "who went down to the sea in ships." He speaks with a marked Norwegian accent, is direct and talks with the clipped language of the master mariner. Time has been kind to this son of the sea for he shows little of its ravages after being exposed to wind and wave for half a century.

In his veins runs the blood of Norwegian sailors. Born in Porsgrunn, Norway, in 1881, the son of K. A. Knudsen, sailmaker and rigger young Knudsen early felt the call of the sea. At eighteen years of age he shipped before the mast on a wooden sailing vessel.

Given Promotion

For four years he manned the sheets until he got his sea-legs and experience. The proudest young man in Norway was Knudsen on the day he received his chief officer's "ticket" for "square-rigged ships in foreign trade."

The world loomed ahead, Adventure beckoned. Like other sailors of that day he "signed on" for two years to be paid off at the home port.

There were no crack trans-Atlantic liners in those days. Sea-travel was slow. On one trip which took him to ports on the coast of Australia, it was 23 months before he sighted his beloved Norway. Another voyage lasted 24 months. On yet another occasion when winds were fickle Captain Knudsen and his crew were at sea 149 days without sighting land.

To Mexico, the United States, South America, Australia and Canada he took his wooden cargo carriers. He rounded the Horn five times, Twice the sea was calm and peaceful. The other three trips saw savage gales tearing unmercifully at a ship, sails trimmed as she battled the elements in efforts to "round" this famous landmark of the mariner.

Seas Ad

Captain Knudsen told a humorous story pertaining to Cape Horn

"On its rugged face is the most expensive piece of advertising in the world," he smiled. "In large letters an English soap-manufacturing firm emblazoned the words 'Use Sunlight.'

"Later," he added, "a competitor of this firm sent a special expedition to the Horn. When they had finished their work, underneath the sign 'Use Sunlight' was the phrase 'When you can't get Pears'." Pears' of course, was the name of the brand of soap of the rival company. The sign can be seen for miles.

His dream was partially realized in 1903 when he was appointed chief officer of the "North Star" Norways largest three-masted, full-rigged wooden ship at the time. Later, he reluctantly bade farewell to his beloved sailing vessels. Steam was rapidly replacing sail, and he and other marine officers were turning towards the new method of propulsion.

Chief

He was named second officer of the steamer "Tanki" which plied the trading along the coast of Nova Scotia. He remained aboard this vessel for four years serving as second officer and three as chief mate.

Married in 1909

Unlike the traditional sailor, Captain Knudsen did not have a "girl in every port." But he finally succumbed to the darts of Dan Cupid and in 1909 he married the former Miss Mary Cann of Halifax. Mrs. Knudsen is a famous Nova Scotian seaport. They were married in St. Paul's Church, Halifax, reputed to be the oldest Anglican church in Canada.

Three months later, Captain Knudsen took his bride to England where she remained while he sailed to Norway to sit for his master's ticket. Mrs. Knudsen followed him later. "It was a bit difficult for me," she smiled, "as I did not speak a word of Norwegian, but I got by all right."

Receiving his master's ticket some months later Captain Knudsen was appointed master of a small passenger ship which navigated the inland waters of Norway. In 1912 he migrated to Canada via the United States, settling at Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Joined Canadian Company

After passing the examinations demanded by the Canadian marine authorities, he joined the Dominion Coal Company's fleet and was named master, a position he held for the next 19 years. He saw service with this company which operated colliers running between Sydney, Halifax, Louisburg, Halifax and Montreal during the summer months. In the winter they ran cargoes to Europe. Came the first war and Captain Knudsen's vessel carried war supplies to France. He emerged safely from his war experience although two of the fleet's ships were torpedoed at sea.

In 1929 he joined the marine staff of the Canada Cement Company as chief officer of the "Bull Karrier." After a year's service on this ship he was sent to England to bring back the "Cement Karrier" which he commanded for the next 19 years, or until a few days ago.

Never Shipwrecked

Captain Knudsen has never been shipwrecked. Superstitious? Not a bit of it. "But," he added, "I never sailed without my plaque-mounted horseshoe which I always kept in my cabin."

His natural ability as a leader of men, his amiable disposition and friendly if authoritative attitude towards those who called him superior officer, resulted in a scarcity of that traditional bugbear of sea captains, "crew trouble."

Substantiating this is the fact that his former chief engineer of the "Cement-Karrier" M. E. Fowler, of Kingston is one of the original crew and who served with Captain Knudsen for nineteen years. He is still aboard the vessel, Another long-service crew member is Harry Bland, Belleville, a machine operator who served for 18 years.

Chief officer, now Captain R. H. Thorne who succeeded Captain Knudsen as master of the "Cement - Karrier" has been aboard for the past eight years.

Honored by Crew

One of the most treasured incidents to happen in his long and orderly career of Captain Knudsen occurred a few days ago, when the officers and crew of the "Cement-Karrier" waited on the "skipper" and Mrs. Knudsen aboard the vessel.

There before he bade the last farewell to his beloved ship, Captain Knudsen was given tangible appreciation of the high esteem and regard in which he is held by his crew as well as appreciation of nearly two decades of faithful and efficient service as master.

The Captain and Mrs. Knudsen were presented with a beautiful silver tray and tea service on which is engraved: "To Captain E. Knudsen and Mrs. Knudsen from the crew of the 'Cement-Karrier'". The ship's company also presented Mrs. Knudsen with a sheaf of red roses. The presentations were made by Chief Engineer Fowler, who, as was said before, has been associated with the ship and its retiring skipper for the 19 years.

Present, too, was "Hector, the Duke of Quinte" the Knudsen's pany as boxer "sailor." Hector has sailed the waters of the lakes with his master since he was a pup, and is probably the only dog in the district which has his sea-legs.

On Emergency List

Although Captain Knudsen has retired from active service as a skipper, he is being retained for an indefinite period as "extra master" by the Canada Cement Company. He will be ready for instant action if his services are required in an emergency.

Asked if he would choose the sea as a life career if he had to "do it over again," the Captain rubbed his chin, removed his stubby black pipe, rubbed Hector's ear for a moment and replied, "Yes I think I would. However, a second choice would be the medical profession."

Asked to elaborate on that statement, he replied: "It is a fine profession, and I think I would like it. You see," he added, "a sea captain has to acquire a certain amount of medical knowledge. In my time I have attempted to a large number of sick sailors. In Norway before one can get his master's ticket, he must have knowledge that will rate him at least 33 per cent doctor."

The life of the wife of a sea-captain is not as bad as it might appear, Mrs. Knudsen, a gracious soft-voiced lady smiled. "It was lonely at times, but after the seven children arrived, well, no wife can be lonely for long."

Five sons and two daughters constitute the Knudsen family. The sons are Knute, Karl, Bill, Eric and Rolfe. The daughters are Bee and Vicky. Bill, Karl and Rolfe reside in Belleville.

The sea and its life has a strong urge for these sons of mariner forebears. Bill, Eric, and Rolfe served four years in the Royal Canadian Navy during the last war. Bill was a lieutenant, Eric a 3rd engine room artificer on the frigate "Antigonish" and Eric a 4th engine room artificer on the corvette "Ilesapeler."

The Knudsens have resided in Belleville for the past 19 years "and have never regretted it. Belleville is the most beautiful city I have ever seen or lived in" said the Captain, "but," he added, "a lot of its residents do not realize it."

FIVE YEARS FOR THEFT OF MINK PELTS

Perth, Dec. 21.—(CP)—Charged with stealing 300 mink pelts worth $9,500 which police say he sold for $3,000, Lawrence Bruce, 23, no fixed address, was sentenced Tuesday to five years in penitentiary. The pelts were taken from Mrs. Charles Gillen, Pakenham township, and sold in Montreal.

Santa arrives by air at Malton Airport yesterday with his amphibian plane full of Christmas presents for TCA's airport party. There were plenty for the hundred children, and some for grown-ups, too. Here Stewardess Betty Wilson and Vickie Stewart are seen receiving theirs.

WEDDINGS

EVANS—GOYER

On Saturday morning, Dec. 17, a quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Michael's rectory, Belleville, by the Rev. Father Baker, when Gwendolyn Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goyer, became the bride of Frederick William Mills Evans, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Evans, of Chester, N.S.

The bride, who looked lovely in blue crepe and lace gown with silver coronet, and matching shoulder length veil of blue. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Lillian St. Louis, of Belleville, was the bride's attendant, wearing a turquoise blue gown with gold accessories, and carrying a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Vernon James Goyer, brother of the bride, of Belleville, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the Kiwanis Centre, where the bride's mother, covered in wine-colored crepe with black accessories, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and St. Hyacinthe, Que., the bride chose a grey dress with matching accessories, and black fur coat. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Evans will reside in Belleville.

W.C.T.U. Holds Christmas Program

The December meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held in the Y.M.C.A. reception room on Dec. 16, with a large attendance.

The president, Mrs. Farnsworth, welcomed all the ladies and urged all to be diligent in The Master's vineyard.

The corresponding secretary gave a summary of letters sent to those in sorrow and replies were read.

It was decided to hold a meeting of the executive on January 9, at the home of Mrs. Cole when the plans for the tea to be held in January would be discussed. Mrs. French then conducted the spiritual. "Devotional Service" and Mrs. Hubbs and Mrs. Houston took charge of the beautiful Christmas program which followed.

Mrs. Hubbs gave an interesting account of the origin of carols in general and also dealt with the origin of several individual carols.

Mrs. Houston delighted her audience with the singing of many of the familiar carols.

Mrs. Youdale gave two expressive readings one entitled "The Boy with the Twisted Leg" and the other "The Black Madonna".

The meeting closed with the singing of the carol "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing", and the benediction.

Gable Marries Lady Stanley For Fourth Wife

Hollywood, Dec. 21. (AP)—"The king" has a new lady—a laughing, lovely blonde reminiscent in many ways of the girl whose death kept him lonely and distant for almost eight years.

Clark Gable is honeymooning somewhere today with Lady Sylvia Stanley, the 39-year-old widow of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. They were married in a surprise ceremony late Tuesday at a luxurious guest ranch 40 miles north of Santa Barbara, Calif. After the wedding, they departed for points unknown.

Sometime today or tomorrow they are expected to return to Hollywood, in time to sail for a two-to-four-week junket to Honolulu.

"The king", so-called because of his box-office drawing power, and Lady Sylvia long have been friends. She arrived here about ten days ago, but there were no rumors of an engagement.

Fourth Husband

The new Mrs. Gable divorced Lord Stanley of Alderley 18 months ago. Gable, 48, is her fourth husband. She was divorced in 1935 by Lord Ashley, who named Fairbanks as correspondent. Gable's first wife was Josephine Dillon. They were divorced six years later and in 1931 he married Ria Langham. Their divorce came in 1939.

Shortly afterward Gable took his third bride, actress Carole Lombard. Both had a great capacity for fun. Once she gave him a bear as a tribute to his acting. On another occasion, it was a lizzard.

Gable, an addict of fine cars, put a high-powered engine in the actress' coupe and drove it for a year.

Miss Lombard was killed in 1942. The plane carrying her home from a war-bond selling tour crashed near Las Vegas, Nev., carrying Carole and 20 others to their deaths. Gable mourned openly for months.

Her Last Message

His last word from her had been a message from Amarillo, Tex., which said, "Hey, Pappy, you'd better get into this man's army".

Gable enlisted, demanding combat action. He was awarded the Air medal and rose from private to major in the Air Force. He made several missions over Germany as a gunner.

Yesterday's ceremony was witnessed by a few close friends and some ranch hands.

Champagne flowed at a reception afterward and Mrs. Gable cut a four-tiered wedding cake with a sword.

Holloway St. Church Choir Gives Cantata

It is many years since the congregation of Holloway Street United Church have had occasion to feel as much pride in their church choir as they experienced last Sunday evening, when the choir rendered the Cantata "The Child of Bethlehem". This was the first time this Cantata has been presented to the public.

Maurice Sinnett, formerly of the Royal College of Music, London, England, now choral director and vocal teacher at Albert College, and leader of this choir, sang the introductory solo in voice expressive of reverence and majesty of the theme.

The Cantata, as the name implies, was the story of the Birth of Christ, telling of the Shepherds keeping watch in the fields and how the Angels appeared, unto them, singing "Glory to God in the Highest", and of the time when the Wisemen were guided by the Star and led to the stable in Bethlehem where they found the Christ Child.

Tuneful Message

The whole Cantata was a tuneful and inspiring message, interspersed with the eight choruses which brought in several well known and loved carols such as "Silent Night", and "Come All Ye Faithful", as solos and taken by different members of the choir, descriptive of the scene of the Nativity. The musical score was splendidly rendered by Mr. William Conner.

The reverent solemnity felt by the large congregation, paid tribute to the excellence of the leader's training, and the responsive application of his choir members.

Rev. C. A. Perkins suitably expressed his personal thanks, and that of the congregation for this fine contribution of music and song.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Watson and family, Foster Avenue, will spend Monday, December 26th, with the latter's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ross, 59 Cadillac Avenue South, Oshawa. We will celebrate their golden wedding on that date.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross were former residents of this city, Mr. Ross was employed in the Customs' office for a period of 25 years, and after retirement moved to Oshawa.

Their many friends extend to them congratulations and best wishes for the future.

Club Activities

BELLEVILLE GIRLS' WORK BOARD

The regular meeting of the Belleville Girls' Work Board met at Bridge Street Church, on Monday evening, with Mrs. Morden, president in charge.

Plans for leadership training for the C.G.I.T. leaders, C.A.D.O. week and camp were discussed.

Holloway Street Energetic Club Holds Turkey Supper

The executive of Holloway Street Energetic Club entertained the members and their families to a turkey supper at the church on Friday evening.

After supper an enjoyable program was presented by the children as follows:

Chorus by all the children; guitar solo, Fred Fox; duet, Gloria and Judy Townsend; chorus, preschool children; recitation, Douglas Stickle; solo, Gail Grestris; recitation, Clara Wilson; recitation, Bruce Post; duet, Linda and Brenda Grille; recitation, Barbara McMillan; piano duet, Maureen and Lanna Wyatt; recitation, Joanne Fraser; vocal trio, Ron Post, Roddy Grija, and Gary Regenburg; recitation, Carol Acheson; chorus, girls' eight and over.

During a chorus of "Jingle Bells" Santa arrived and he and his helpers distributed candy, and presents bringing to a close a very happy evening.

Women's Activities

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD

The December meeting of the Young Women's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. R. A. Rieo, 241 Bridge Street East, Monday evening last with the president, Miss Hazel Thompson, presiding.

During the business session, the usual Christmas donation was to be sent to the United Nations' Children's Emergency Fund this year—U.N.I.C.E.F.—as it is known in brief.

The customary worship service was ably conducted by Mrs. J. Buchanan, and so suitable for the Christmas season, reading from Scripture, the story of the Birth of The Saviour.

The program of the evening was the reading of Robertson Davies' play "Eros at Breakfast", which won the Canadian Play award at the 1940 Drama Festival. A current review reflects the influence of Shaw as seen in three respects — "Fortune, My Foe", depends on dialogue rather than upon action,—it is a play of ideas of current concern and it is witty.

Tea was served to close a most enjoyable evening.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.-W.A.

Halloway—Mrs. Earl Snider was hostess to the W.M.S. and W.A. for December meeting. The president of the W.M.S. Mrs. Harry McMullen, opened the worship service. The Christmas story was completely told by the Scripture reading by Mrs. Blake McMullen and the singing of numerous Christmas carols.

The candle lighting service was conducted by Mrs. Earl Snider, Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Lorne Wellman and Mrs. Kenneth McMullen. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and roll call was responded to by saying "What Christmas Means to Me".

The January meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. Kenneth McMullen. The president of the W.A., Mrs. Earl Snider, then took charge of the meeting and called on Mrs. Wilkinson to read the minutes of the last meeting.

Both auxiliaries reported a good year. The W.M.S. met their allocation, and the W.A. reported $150 raised this year.

Members then gathered around the bazaar table after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

In large hotels the sauce cook is second in command to the chef. He's the prince of the kitchen hierarchy, ranking above the roast cook, the fry cook, the broil cook and all the other lesser artists.

His high standing is explained by the fact that good sauces demand the subtlest of blending, and that one can make good sauces can turn out good soups, stews, pot roasts or any other dish which requires moist cooking. One of his tricks is to give sauces body without using a lot of fillers—flour, cornstarch and other thickening agents. Hollandaise sauce, for instance, is nothing more than drawn butter thickened very carefully with egg yolks. A good pan gravy made from the drippings of a roast should be as thin as broth but should have all the flavor of a rich brown sauce.

You can make a sauce out of light cream by merely cooking it slowly until it has acquired a slight thickness, somewhat heavier than whipping cream. Whether pure cream is too rich for ordinary stomachs, depends on the amount served. A filet of sole swimming in cream is ebonicious but a portion of the same fish with a tablespoon or two of this kind of cream sauce is just the right thing for a very lean fish.

Sole Baked in Cream with Rice. Serves 4.

Place 1 1-4 pounds of filet of sole in a shallow greased baking dish. Add 1-2 cup of hot light cream. Sprinkle pieces of fish with salt, celery salt, paprika and white pepper. Place in a hot oven 425 degrees and bake for 20 minutes.

Wash 1 cup rice thoroughly. Combine with 1 1-2 cups cold water and 1 teaspoon salt in a heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil. Cover with a tight lid. Reduce flame as low as possible. Simmer 15-20 minutes or until rice is tender. Do not stir while cooking or rice will stick.

Wash 1-4 pound of fresh mushrooms. Cut caps and stems into 1-8 inch slices. Place in a saucepan with 1 tablespoon melted fat and cook over a slow flame until tender, about 5 to 8 minutes.

Remove fish from baking dish when ready to serve. Taste the sauce; add salt or pepper if needed. Spoon a few tablespoons of the sauce over each portion of fish. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Combine rice and mushrooms, toss lightly with fork. Place rice beside fish on serving platter or individual plates.

If rice has been cooked beforehand and has cooled, add a few tablespoons cold water to the saucepan and reheat, or keep hot in the top part of a double boiler.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply. —Ed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Your technique is very bad, girls!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It's a long time we have tried to persuade the handsomest boy we know to join our club, but without success, as he is a shy type. When he was 15, he had his first date with a girl 2 years his senior in age. Now he is 18, and in college, and still going with this girl.

One night I met his mother coming home from work and casually asked if her son could attend one of our dances. She told me confidentially that she hardly sees her son at all, that he is always with his steady date. He stays out late, does no home work and hardly eats. In consequence, he has acquired a cough which has her worried, yet he will not go to a doctor about it. The girl is expecting a diamond for Christmas from this boy, who hasn't a father to guide him, but has an ample weekly allowance which his father left him and which he spends on the girl.

Don't you think this is a bad situation? What can be done for the boy's health, while the mother is impairing hers by working to send him to college?

Teen-Agers Club

Dear Teen-Agers:

To put it bluntly, I can't see that either this boy's health or that of his mother is any concern of yours, and I don't believe for a minute that that is what's worrying you.

What you've really interested in, is luring this handsome young man into your club, if you possibly can do it. In the hope that you might be able to make him lose interest in this girl and pay some attention to you.

Don't you realize that it's very bad technique to let him see you are so anxious to have him join? Your best bet, by far, would be to treat him very casually indeed, and have such good times in the club that he'll begin to think he's missing something by staying outside.

You won't find a boy friend by hunting one

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I thought I would write and ask you to help me if you can. The way I mean is to try and find me a nice boy friend about my age. I am 39 years old, have blonde hair, blue-green eyes, am 5 feet, 3 inches tall and am a domestic worker.

I have never met the right boy friend. They all seem to be too smart and I won't stand for it.

K. L. S.

Dear K. L. S:

I am afraid there is no way I could help you to meet a man friend, but there are certain things I always tell women with your type of problem, and so I will say them once more to you.

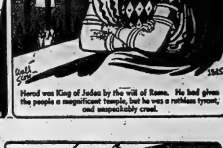
The best advice I can give you is that you take up some sort of interesting activity outside your home and your work which will bring you in contact with other people, and give you the opportunity to make new friends. The more friends you have, the more likely it is that eventually you might meet somebody's brother or cousin or other relative. I am sure there is a YWCA in your town where you could join a club, and through which you could have some good times.

Don't join it, though, just with the idea that you might sometime meet a man through some friends you make. Just make up your mind to have all the good times you can, and then your life will be sufficiently busy and interesting so that you won't mind too much if a man doesn't come along.

FOUND INJURED ON HIGHWAY

Oshawa, Dec. 21 (P)— Police Tuesday night arrested Douglas Gilde, 32, of Oshawa, on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident less than an hour after an accident in which they say he was involved.

THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR



The World Into Which Christ Was Born

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D

Peace was over all the world, but it was the "Pax Romana," the peace of the sealed fist of Rome, which had then conquered everywhere.

Herod was King of Judea by the will of Rome. He had given the people a magnificent temple, but he was a ruthless tyrant, and unspeakably cruel.

Danger Threatens the Child

Herod had heard the Wise men spoken about when they had found the baby, that he might worship him also, but evil was in his heart to destroy the child.

Being warned in a dream not to return to Herod, the wise men returned to their own country by another way. (Matthew 2:12.)

Then Herod's fury knew no bounds. He ordered the slaughter of all the boy babies in Bethlehem, hoping thereby to destroy the Christ-child. (Matthew 2:16.)

The Flight Into Egypt

Joseph had been warned: "Flee into Egypt, for evil time, threatening to call to it dreams, Herod him take the baby and Mary and flee into Egypt. (Matthew 2:13.)

They remained there until Herod's death, when again an angel appeared in a dream and told Joseph to take his family into the land of Israel. (Matthew 2:19, 20.)

After much thought, Joseph decided to go back to Nazareth to live. There he resumed his trade of carpenter.

Your Christmas Cards Charmingly Displayed

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Do you think it is in good taste to display one's Christmas cards, or the family Christmas cards, for example, on the mantelpiece-shelf or attached to a large living-room mirror? My family has never done this, but last year I saw it done in the homes of several of our friends, and I very much like the idea. Mother and Dad like the idea too, but my older sister scoffs at it and insists it's "show-off stuff", that it just isn't in good taste. But we all read what you write about Christmas cards, know you like them, and so we propose to abide by your judgment on this.

Beatrice T.

I'm most heartily for this all-out-for Christmas plan! The family Christmas cards can be dramatically displayed so that they become a thrilling holiday decoration. Please urge your sister not to be stuffy and hold back her enthusiasm. . . . Any family could put her imagination and ingenuity to work to design the best Christmas pattern for these gala, heart-warming lines. Think, too, how wonderfully complimented your family friends will be at finding their card-remembrances so delightfully displayed.

Red and green and metallic ribbons can be festooned around the mantel and the cards secured to the ribbons with transparent tape or tiny paper clips. Or have a Card Tree. . . (this plan was popular last year, and I'm sure will be even more popular this year) . . . an entire Christmas tree, a green or white or blue one, decorated with cards. . . or next to the family Christmas tree have a smaller tree entirely garlanded with cards. Or a large sheet, or sheets, of red or green or radiantly gold or silver paper can be thumb-tacked to the picture-molding and the Christmas cards attached to the paper with transparent tape. Or a large mirror may be the radiant background (very gala) for the cards.

For several years I have enthusiastically urged this festive display of Christmas cards. . . in the way they will "look prettiest in our Christmas song"; So I'm delighted that this year there have been several display- aids made. . . rather timid ones, to be sure, but aids. One is a shiny cardboard display tree that can be assembled, and the cards are to be put between the colorful sections. Another smart and very convenient answer to card-display is the new bright-red, chrome with pockets to hold the cards. One style hangs on the wall, and the other, even, more conservative, is free-standing style, for the mantel or table.

To make your family very proud. . . and to convince them of the charm of "personality decoration by Christmas cards" . . . you may be able to arrange the cards, or a group of them, over the mantel-piece or on a large mirror in the formation of the initial of the family surname.

Teen-Age Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. Should a girl of teen-age rise when she is introduced to a boy?

2. When the girl is introduced to an older woman, should she (the girl) make hands with the older woman?

Margot.

1. A girl does not rise when a boy is introduced to her unless (1) she is the hostess (a hostess always rises when she greets a guest, and when the guest says good-by); or (2) unless the introduction is made by an older woman or by an elderly or distinguished man. In the circumstances of (2) the girl does not rise to acknowledge the introduction but does show her courtesy to the older person making the introduction. (And by the way, never say, "when a girl is introduced to a boy? . . . a boy is always introduced to a girl).

2. The girl should not extend her hand first. . . she should wait for the older woman to offer her hand.

TABERNACLE EVENING AUX.

The Auxiliary held their December meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Irvine. All members responded to roll call with a Christmas greeting. There were also several visitors present to help make the combined meeting and Christmas party a big success.

Vice president, Mrs. A. Miller, took charge of the devotional period with the Christmas spirit in mind.

Little Misses Cathy and Dianne Irvine delighted everyone with dances and piano solos. The president, Mrs. R. Lockyer did the honors of Santa Claus, in fine style and also had a gift for all. Lightful evening to a close. Candy, popcorn, nuts, grapes and refreshments brought a delsh cheer to this splendid

McLean Accepts Offer to Head U.N. Film Section

Ottawa, Dec. 21 — (CP) —Ross McLean, who has resigned as chief of the government-owned National Film Board, has accepted the offer to head the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization's Film Section, it was learned Tuesday night.

Mr. McLean, 44, who left the film board because of government refusal to extend his term as commissioner at a higher salary, will have headquarters in Paris in his new job and will receive a tax-free salary, reported to be considerably higher than the $8,000 he received as head of the N.F.B.

Mr. McLean declined to comment on both the U.N.E.S.C.O. reports and on the resignation of Ralph Foster, 59-year-old former Toronto newspaperman, from the No. 2 post in the government-owned film board. Mr. Foster, executive assistant to Mr. McLean, disclosed Tuesday that he was resigning because of newspaper criticism of Mr. McLean's work as commissioner.

Mr. McLean had asked all board members to remain to help his successor—W. Arthur Irwin of Maclean's magazine.

Mr. McLean's predecessor, John Grierson, also joined U.N.E.S.C.O. when he left the film board more than four years ago. Mr. Grierson, first N.F.B. commissioner, now is head of the British Central office of information in London.

Two-Year Term

Mr. McLean's successor in the N.F.B., Mr. Irwin, was appointed to a two-year term at a salary of 15,000 a year. He will take office Feb. 1.

In his letter of resignation, Mr. Foster said his action did not reflect an attitude against Mr. Irwin.

The board was roundly criticized during the recent session of the Commons when it was disclosed that the defence department was using private film companies for "classified" work pending a loyalty screening of N.F.B. employees.

Ross McLean might be a "likely candidate" for chief of the films section of UNESCO, but no appointment has yet been made, an official of that United Nations committee said Tuesday in Paris.

However, the spokesman for the United Nations Economic, Scientific and Cultural organization, which has headquarters here and meeting delegates has been decided.

CONDEMNED SECOND TIME

Antwerp, Dec. 21 — (Reuters) — Joseph Leroux, 29-year-old Belgian who served in the German S. S. during the war, has been condemned to death for the second time by a military court here. Rachot was originally sentenced to death in January, 1946, after being found guilty of killing six Belgian patriots during the German occupation. He appealed. His second death sentence followed his trial on a charge of shooting another man.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Skating moves indoors!

Gala ice revues, big-league stadium games . . . started on a January day nearly a century ago!

It was a big day for the Halifax of 1863. The Earl of Mulgrave, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, was to open the new indoor skating rink . . . the first in Canada's history.

At the Public Gardens, spectators thronged into the building. As the arena was declared officially open a band struck up. Onto the ice streamed 60 costumed ladies to give an exhibition of fancy skating. Canadian indoor skating had been born. And 46 years later—in 1907—the Toronto Skating Club pioneered ice revues with their first Skating Carnival.

Sportsmanship has always meant much to Canadians. Combined with team work, it has made us one of the world's great nations. Together, sportsmanship and teamwork keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited;

The Canadian Amateur Figure Skating Championships for 1950 will be held at St. Catharines, Ont., Feb. 7th, 8th and 9th.

Living Costs Up Slightly in First Half Year

Ottawa, Dec. 21 (CP)—Living costs in most countries increased during the first half of 1949, but most advances were confined to three per cent or less.

From January to June, the cost of living in Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom advanced about one per cent. In Australia it rose about five percent in the same period and in South Africa about three percent, a bureau of statistics report shows.

Consumer prices in France, the Bureau said in its summary, appeared to have passed their peak. After reaching a high point last January, they dropped more than 10 percent in the following six months.

Of world prices in general, the report said improved supplies of certain commodities permitted a decrease of elimination of subsidies in some countries, with consequent increase in prices.

James Fosbraey Sent to Trial On Murder Count

Nepanee, Dec. 21 — (CP) — James Fosbrey, 28, Tuesday was committed for trial by Magistrate J. P. Garvin on a charge of murder arising from the Nov. 28 fatal stabbing of his wife, June Marie.

Mrs. Fosbrey was found on the outskirts of Napanee by Neighbors shortly after she left work to go home. She had three knife wounds in the chest and died moments after being discovered.

During the three-hour preliminary hearing, Lieut. Philip Gardiner of the Salvation Army said Mrs. Fosbrey told him earlier that she had kept company with someone else. The couple was separated for several months.

Corp. W. E. Smith, in charge of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here, said that the dead woman had complained of her husband threatening her.

Special Drug "Smuggled" in To Help Child

Kitchener, Dec. 21 (CP)—Four-year-old Barbara Veitch Tuesday night was aided in her fight for life by a special drug "smuggled" into Canada from the United States.

Two doses of the drug, sureomycin, were rushed from a Canadian border point Tuesday. No details were made public on how they were smuggled over the border to avoid delaying red tape nor was the name of the border point disclosed.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Veitch of nearby Baden, was admitted to St. Mary's hospital here last Wednesday with pneumonia complications. Doctors said she is suffering severe complications, including virus pneumonia and intestinal intoxication.

Two physicians, Dr. Robert Barton of Baden and Dr. Robert Cowan of Kitchener, said the special drug would undoubtedly help the girl.

It was reported that attempts had been made to obtain some of the type needed from Montreal and elsewhere but they were unsuccessful. Officials said arrangements were made to obtain it in the U.S. and it was smuggled across the border for fear that red tape would delay its delivery.

Arrangements now have been made to fly more supplies of the drug from Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, it was reported.

FIVE-YOLK EGG

Markham, Dec. 21 — (CP)— While baking a cake Tuesday, Mrs. William G. Maxwell broke an egg into a dish and found it had five yolks. The egg was of normal size but the yolks smaller than average.

SLUGGED AND ROBBED

Toronto, Dec. 21—(CP)—Slugged from behind Tuesday night when he attempted to escape two armed thugs, Sebastian Giardetti, 23-year-old taxi driver, was robbed of $40 and left lying semi-conscious in a rain-soaked lane. Two years ago he was held by two armed men who forced him to drive them to London at the point of a gun.

Industry, Labor Link Arms for Production Drive

London, Dec. 21—(CP)—British industry and organized labor linked arms today in plans for a new production drive in 1950.

Intent on starting the new year right, representatives of employers and trade unions opened a series of meetings with Labor Minister George Isaacs and Foreign Secretary Bevin.

The foreign secretary's presence was not unusual. He has taken a keen interest in talks on increasing output and has the confidence of trade unions.

Among the topics slated for discussion today were priorities for dollar-earning industries and the general question of incentives, a topic on which the labor government seems to have varying viewpoints.

During the weekend, Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross came out publicly in favor of relating reward to output. Another straw in the wind is that the Labor Ministry is preparing a supplement on incentive schemes for its industrial relations handbook.

But Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, remained a stubborn opponent of those who preach more pay for harder work. "All this talk about incentives," the Chancellor said recently, "assumes that people will not do things which they know are good for Britain unless somebody pays them extra."

Busy Day

Today was a busy day all around for organized labor. Apart from the production meetings, Britain's trade union leadership received a report from a special committee on what individual trade unions think is reasonable for continued wage restraint.

At stake is a key issue which could make or break the government's hopes for intensified production.

The situation briefly is that last month the Trades Union Congress asked its 187 affiliated unions to suspend new wage claims unless the cost of living rise from its present level of 112 points to more than 118—about five per cent.

This policy bears particularly upon the 2,500,000 workers whose unions hold sliding-scale agreements which tie wages to the cost of living. Normally workers with such agreements would be entitled to more money for each increase in living costs.

The T.U.C. convinced of the gravity of economic situation, warns these workers to "hold the line" unless the rise in living costs exceeds five per cent.

Every Raisin Shipment Must Meet Standard

Ottawa, Dec. 21 — (CP) — It's Christmas cake time — the season when the usually unglamorous raisin is given a chief supporting part in the big annual pastry show.

Millions of pounds of raisins are currently going into cakes in homes and shops across Canada.

But while the interest of the average Canadian is purely from the standpoint of how that Christmas cake will taste, it has been a different matter for the folks at the food and drug division of the health department.

Their job is to assure that every shipment of raisins coming into Canada meets the food and nutrition standards set by this country.

Up to the end of October this year 38,528,000 pounds of raisins valued at $4,058,455 came into Canada, almost all from California and Australia. The rush actually started in October which accounted for just about half of the total imports.

With arrival of each shipment samples are sent to Ottawa where the raisins are inspected for possible insect infestation and to establish what oils were used to treat the raisins.

The first job is comparatively simple. Insects can be detected at a glance. The oil analysis is a more involved process.

During the war Australia was affected by a general shortage of vegetable oils and for a time all raisins were treated with mineral oils.

The idea of spraying the oil vapor over the raisins is to prevent them from sticking to each other and to retard sugaring.

The Canadian health department didn't care for the mineral oil spray because the oils contained no nutritional value.

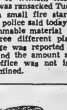
The food and drug division advises assurance that all raisins coming into Canada now have received vegetable oil treatment.

ASK BOYCOTT

Lahore, Pakistan, Dec. 21 — (Reuters) — The Women's Welfare Society of Lahore Thursday appealed to Pakistan movie-goers to boycott all Hollywood films. Reason for the appeal was the prospective release in Britain and the United States of the picture 'Everybody Does It' starring Linda Darnell. The Society said it depicted the life of Hazrat Fatima, daughter of the prophet Mohammed, in a manner offensive to Moslems.

Ten Graduate As Navigators At P.E.I. School

Summerside, P.E.I., Dec. 21. — (CP)— The new type navigator's double wings Tuesday were pinned on the first ten men to graduate as navigators in the RCAF since the end of the war. Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Slemon of Trenton, Ont., officiated at the ceremony.



The Navigational Training School here, classed as second to none, gained importance through its specialist air navigator's course, which trains men for duties in all climates and in different types of aircraft.

The graduates now move to Trenton to take several months of armament training.

They included: J. G. Kilgour, North Bay, Ont., and R. J. Noonan, Schreiber, Ont.

PICTON

Special Music To be Featured In all Churches

Picton—Special music will feature Christmas services in Picton churches on Christmas day. At the Church of St. Gregory the Great, there will be a Christmas Eve mass when carols will be sung. Mass in F will be sung by the choir. Miss Jeanne Seed will be the soloist, her selections being 'Jesus Bambino' and 'Adeste Fidelis.' Reverend J. G. Clancy will officiate.

A Christmas Eve service will also be held in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, conducted by Rev. W. H. Swayne. The processional will be 'Hark the Herald Angels Sing.' The choir will sing 'Christ was Born on Christmas Day.' The introit at the Holy Eucharist will be 'Behold a Virgin.' The choral eucharist will be sung to the Merbecke setting. The gradual will be 'Splendors of Nature,' and the offertory anthem 'Sing on Merrily.' The oblation hymn will be 'Adeste Fideles,' and the recessional 'O Little Town of Bethlehem.' On Christmas Day, there will be a communion service. 'Christ Was Born on Christmas Day,' 'Silent Night,' 'O Little Town of Bethlehem,' and 'Hark the Herald Angels Sing,' are included among the carols to be sung. At evensong, the processional will be 'While Shepherds Watched' and various carols will interspress the service.'

At Picton United Church, the Junior, Senior and Intermediate choirs will sing at the morning service. Miss Florence Barber will take the solo in the anthem 'O Thou that Tellest' (Handel). Ralph and Shirley Pickering will take the solo parts in the anthem 'The Holly and the Ivy' (Whitehead). Miss Shirley Pickering will sing 'The Holy City' (Adams) At the evening service, the old English carol 'Past Three O'clock' will be sung, as will be Stainer 'Echo Carol.' Grant Maddens will take the solo in the anthem 'Jesus Bambino.' A trio of Doris Calnan, Aleda and Beryl Wilson will sing 'Long, Long Ago.' The quartet, Doris Calnan, Aleda Wilson, Ralph Pickering and Earl Holt will sing 'As I Walked in Bethlehem' (Anderson).

At Calvary Baptist Church, there will be a joint service of the Bible school and congregation. Carols will be a feature.

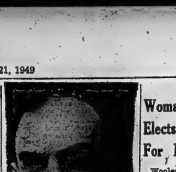
At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, carols will feature the morning service. An innovation being introduced for the winter months will be a four o'clock evensong instead of the usual evening service.

Bad To Cut Power

Add to the old incidents of the year: Yesterday afternoon, Picton had its power cut off for two minutes—for an unusual reason. An airplane flying over the town in some unknown manner, a parachute fell from it. It plummeted to the ground, partly open. It landed across hydro wires close to the Picton hydro sub-station. It was necessary to cut the power; supply briefly while the parachute was removed.

Returns Satisfactory

Returns from sale of Christmas seals are coming in well, according to treasurer John Arnold. More than $700 has been received to date and each mail brings other donations. Proceeds will be used to fight tuberculosis.



The annual Christmas party was a great event at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery. After a program and refreshments, Santa arrived to distribute gifts from a gaily decorated tree.

Instead of giving each other and members of the staff gifts, pupils at Picton Collegiate are contributing to cheer baskets which will be distributed through the Children Aid Society. The pupils will have a program and luncheon Thursday afternoon and a dance at night.

The Oddfellows and Rebekahs held a get-together night for their C.T.P. fund. Turkeys were won by Carl Evans and Janet Jeffrey.

Accidental Death

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury at Wellington yesterday into the death there on Dec. 6 of Wilfred Eugene Smith, who was found dead lying by the garage with the motor of his car running. It is believed he suffered a heart attack. The jury gave carbon monoxide as the cause of death. Coroner Dr. R. A. Thompson presided and Crown Attorney G. T. Walmsley, K.C., questioned witnesses who included Constable Earl Marvin, F. J. Jones of the RCMA, Walter Nind, Roy Wight and Mrs. Smith. The jury was composed of W. A. Devern, foreman, J. A. McNeil, A. Walker, C. R. McKenzie, W. A. Jackson.

TWEED

Parents Visit High School On Open Night

Tweed, (Special)—Last Friday night Tweed High School held its annual open night, at which time parents and citizens of Tweed and district, were invited to visit the school to meet the teachers and inspect the work being done. In spite of the severe weather, an encouraging number braved the elements to spend a most enjoyable evening, as the guests of the staff and students. After a general inspection, all assembled in the agricultural laboratory, where principal W. R. Hamilton expressed a few words of welcome and then called on Mr. T. E. Moffat, district supervising principal, for a few remarks.

Mr. Moffat referred briefly to the work being done in the district schools and the advantages of the new district organization. Two of the local members of the Centre Hastings High School District Board, Messrs. Thomas Beatty and Felix Edgar, were then called upon and both spoke of the work being accomplished, and the plans of the board for the district schools and referred particularly to the proposed addition to Tweed High School. "We hope to have an assembly hall, a gymnasium and home economics department, when the construction is completed," they pointed out. The latter part of the evening's program consisted of experimental demonstrations in agriculture and chemistry by the students of Grade IX and XIII under the direction of Mr. J. C. Burns. Following these Mr. Burns showed a number of very interesting and educational films of agriculture, which were much enjoyed by all.

Blood transfusions corrected Billy's anemia. Auromycin and penicillin were also administered before doctors realized that the child had a rare case of blood disease, prompting the call for Acth. As far as is known here, this is the first case where the drug has been used in such a condition.

Arrange For Donation

Dr. John R. Mole, Director of the Chicago Institute, arranged for the donation of 1/1000th of the world's annual output of Acth. The drug was produced from the pituitary glands of 116,000 hogs.

Billy B., an attractive, tousle-headed youngster, is suffering from eosinophilic leukemia. In normal persons, eosinophils — while blood cells manufactured in the bone marrow—form about one per cent of the total white cell count.

When this rare type of leukemia develops, the eosinophils multiply vastly in number and destroy the other blood cells.

Billy's battle for life is being watched by an army of specialists, including two psychiatrists, scores of researchers, technicians and hospital attendants. Four full-time and two part-time chemical research technicals are on the case daily. He has three special nurses.

So far in his case, 68 chemical analyses of blood have been made 94 counts of the red cells and white cells, and nine bacteriological studies of his blood, throat, and so on.

AIRPLANE EQUIPMENT INVENTOR DIES

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 21—(AP)—Gerritt Van Dusen, 56, who invented airplane equipment widely used in the two world wars, died Tuesday. He was 56. Van Daam, born in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, was credited with inventing the device which first synchronized with an airplane propellor and discharged bullets through the revolving blades.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your digestive tract every day. If bile is not flowing freely, food may not digest. It may just decay in the digestive tract. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, and the world looks punk.

It takes those extra, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Big or little dosages.

Liberals Retain Richmond County In By-Election

St. Peter's, N.S., Dec. 21—(CP) — Party standings in the Nova Scotia legislature reverted to their June 9 distribution today after the Liberals retained the Richmond County seat in a provincial by-election Tuesday.

Earl Urquhart, 28, was elected over his only opponent, Alfred Baccardax, also 28, Progressive first test of strength since the June 9 Nova Scotia general election.

With results still to come from eight of the 35 polls, Mr. Urquhart had 2,295 votes compared to 1,612 for Mr. Baccardax. This gave him a majority of 683.

Standing in the 37-member house is: Liberals 28, Progressive Conservatives, 7, C.C.F. 2.

The by-election was made necessary by the elevation of former attorney-general L. D. Currie to the Nova Scotia supreme court bench.

Youngest Member

Mr. Urquhart will be the youngest member of the legislature. Both he and Mr. Baccardax are third-year students at Dalhousie University Law School in Halifax.

Premier Angus L. MacDonald said he was happy at the Liberal victory and added:

"While Richmond County has been Liberal since 1933 the Liberal candidate's task on this occasion was made more difficult because of the fact he had to follow in the footsteps of Mr. Justice Currie, attorney-general and senior cabinet minister in the province, who had represented the county for eight years."

Robert L. Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader, said the results were "most encouraging."

He said the government's majority had been cut in half and that "this augurs well for the party in the county in future elections."

Animal Trainer Killed by Lion, Children Watch

Thousand Oaks, Calif., Dec. 21 — (AP) — With a roar, a savage lion sprang at a widely - known woman animal trainer and killed her while her horrified children tried to save her.

Mrs. May Kovar Schafer, 42, was in the cage Tuesday with the lion, Sultan, attempting to break him into training. The powerful animal lunged at her, bore her down and bit her in the neck, severing the spine.

Her children, Michael Kovar, 18, and May Kovar, 14, were watching their mother, who was working with a chair and whip when the sudden attack occurred.

The children, armed with short poles, rushed through the cage door. But the beats, with Mrs. Schafer's neck in his jaws, ignored their pokes. Rudy Muller, 59, an elephant trainer, ran to their aid.

"I grabbed up a pitchfork and an eight-foot length of pipe," the frail man said. "The lion was very quiet. I stabbed at him with the pitchfork with one hand and then brought the pipe down on his head with the other.

"That made the lion drop her and back up. Must have stunned him for a second because he sagged back on his haunches.

"But I didn't have much time. Just enough to pick up Mrs. Schafer. Then the lion started for me and the children.

"I backed out, inch by inch, never taking my eyes off the lion. The children got out."

Montreal Man Shot by Gunman Dies of Injuries

Montreal, Dec. 21. (CP)—Victor Rainville, 50-year-old tobacco-and-candy jobber who was shot in the back by a holdup man Tuesday night, died in the hospital today before he could help police identify his assailant.

Rainville, a native of Casselman, Ont., was shot a few minutes after he took an order from an east-end restaurant owner.

Police said Rainville was getting merchandise from his truck when the gunman apparently stuck a gun in his back and attempted to rob him. Rainville resisted and the man fired a shot and fled.

Detectives said Rainville, although semi-conscious after being wounded, identified the photo of an ex-convict as the man who killed him, but police felt today the identification was unreliable.

Inspector Ernest Francoeur, deputy chief of the Montreal detective office, said the police were tracking down several "suspects", but he added that "the prospects so far don't look too good."

Henri Vezina, employer of Rainville, said: "I told him he would be robbed some day—that he carried around too much money, but he just laughed."

He added Rainville sometimes carried as much as $1,000 on him but Tuesday night had only a little more than $90.

Clayton Bedore New President Canadian Legion

Marmora — Clayton Bedore, veteran of the Second World War and member of the Hasty Paras, was elected to the presidency of Marmora Branch No. 227 Canadian Legion at its meeting Sunday afternoon.

The retiring president William Regan called upon Zone Commander Wilfred Munday to preside for the election of officers for the current year which resulted as follows:

Other appointments will be made at a forthcoming meeting.

Ask Duplessis To Probe Report Of Threats of Violence

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—The Association for Civil Liberties today released text of a letter addressed to Premier Duplessis of Quebec, asking him to investigate threats of mob violence this week to two members of the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect and two newspaper men in Joliette, Que.

"...immediate steps should be taken to protect those who are attempting to exercise their lawful rights of freedom of worship, press and assembly," the letter said. "Otherwise, it will appear as if the authorities have surrendered to mob rule in Joliette."

FORCED TO FLEE

Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — A mother and her three children were forced to flee to the street early today when fire swept their suburban Scarboro home. Mrs. Ethel Sarrion carried her 13-month-old baby with Peter, 12, and Bobby, 9, following.

Firemen said the fire was caused by overheated furnace pipes.

Negro School Girl Beaten, Attacked By White Convict

Wrens, Ga., Dec. 21 (AP) —A Negro school girl was attacked and brutally beaten near here and Sheriff James Hubbard announced he had charged a life-term white convict with attempted rape.

"And if she dies," Hubbard added, "then it will be murder."

The sheriff named the convict as Pete Coleman, 30 and said he received his life term for the slaying in 1947 of Bertha Mehrtens, called the "Good Samaritan" because of her community benefactions in Savannah.

Hubbard said the girl, 14-year-old Dorothy Carswell, was attacked Monday morning on the way to school. Her head was battered and she was tossed into a brier patch to die.

Another Negro found her after she had lain unconscious for 14 hours.

Hubbard commented that in 18 years as a law officer he had "never seen a more horrible crime."

The officer said Coleman leaped from a second escape he was moving from the Louisville Corrections camp to Matthews, Ga., and attacked the girl.

Bandit Hurls Bar at Man Who Resists Him

Brantford, Dec. 21 (CP)—The current crime wave in Brantford and district—a series of break-ins and armed robberies—continued Tuesday night with an attempted robbery of a lunchroom.

Douglas North, proprietor of the lunchroom was treated in the hospital for serious head injuries inflicted by a man who escaped after a rain robbery attempt shortly before midnight. The masked bandit was foiled by Mr. North's resistance.

Unable to open the cash register the bandit picked up a 10-inch bar at North, an anything else on which he could lay his hands.

In another incident refusal of a Brantford taxi driver, Gerard Tierney, to co-operate in effecting thief, led to the capture of a 26-year-old St. Thomas war veteran charged with the toy pistol hold-up of a men's wear store at Aylmer.

A truck stolen Tuesday night from the Dominion Natural Gas Company in Brantford was found abandoned at the scene of a lumber company break-in at Grimsby.

LIQUOR SALES ABOUT SAME AS LAST YEAR

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—Ontario's liquor supply is expected to be equal to this year's Christmas demand, Arthur Welch, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, said today.

Christmas is the biggest sales period in the year, he said, and certain brands are bound to be sold out. He said sales this year are about the same as last year.

COYOTES FACED WAR

Edmonton (CP) — Alberta farmers, plagued by coyotes, organized 13 hunts this fall with as many as 200 armed men taking part. Officials report the hunts have been effective in reducing the number of the marauders.

Convicts Quickly Recaptured After Break From Hospital

Getaway car was seized from Mrs. Emma Martin (left) at gunpoint as she stood in doorway. Convicts were caught after chase in empty garage (right) owned by Mrs. William Hepburn, shown standing in doorway.

Marvin Brenton

of Toronto, one of the fugitives, is serving a seven-year term.

Ken Killen points to bullet holes shot through back window of car which was stolen and abandoned by two convicts who tried to escape yesterday from Kingston General Hospital, with the aid of an accomplice.

BURNED TO DEATH

Shediac, N. B., Dec. 21 (CP) — Alphonse Leblanc, 45, of nearby Harshman's Brook, was burned to death Tuesday when fire destroyed his small one-storey home. A leaping spark from a stove was believed the cause of the blaze.

WINDSORS SAIL FOR N.Y.

Paris, Dec. 21—(AP)— The Duke and Duchess of Windsor sail for New York today on the Queen Elizabeth. A member of the Duke's staff said Monday the couple will remain in New York three weeks, then spend the rest of the winter in Florida. They plan to return to Paris next April.

SHIP BOMBED BY NATIONALIST CHINESE AIRCRAFT

Hong Kong, Dec. 21. (Reuters) —A British-registered, Chinese-owned coastal vessel has been bombed by Nationalist aircraft, an unconfirmed Chinese report said today. The report said there were heavy casualties aboard.

It said the 563-ton Wingking was bombed near Swabue, Kwangtung, about 150 miles northeast of Hong Kong.

INQUEST ORDERED

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)— An inquest has been ordered into the death of Michael Dodds, 2, of suburban Mimico, who died in hospital Dec. 14 of a fractured skull and brain, hemorrhage.

Boys who were with Michael Dec. 7 said he and three others were leaving an altar boy practice at St. Leo's Church when they were met by a group of boys from suburban New Toronto who threw Michael to the ground.

Alleged Kingpin Of Smuggling Is Arrested

Havana, Dec. 21 — (AP) — Gregorio Simonovitch, described by a United States prosecutor as "the kingpin of all smuggling activities in the Caribbean," was arrested Tuesday night by Cuban police. Police said that Simonovitch had confessed to charges of smuggling aliens and drugs into the United States from Cuba.

Simonovitch's arrest followed a U. S. border patrol roundup of at least seven accused smugglers in Miami and New York earlier this month.

Police said Simonovitch, 44, former Russian army lieutenant who came to Cuba in 1924, confessed that he aided in smuggling 30 aliens, including four children, into the United States by flying them to Florida.

Police said a letter sent by Simonovitch to an American in the aerial smuggling ring led to the roundup of the smugglers. They said the U. S. Immigration Department intercepted the letter in which Simonovitch told of difficulties in smuggling aliens.

For five years, police said, Simonovitch worked in the immigration division of the American embassy in Havana.

MEN FLEE AFTER BEATING TORONTO MAN

Toronto, Dec. 21—(CP)—Two men early today fled after beating Charles Lee about the head with a wooden stick and kicking him when he was down. Mr. Lee, whose scalp wound required 10 stitches, said he believed his cries prevented robbery. He was putting his automobile away when the men jumped him, he said.

QUEBEC TOLD PRODUCTION UP

Quebec, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Quebec Mines Department reported today that the province's gold production in October was 87,144 ounces compared with 66,727 ounces in October, 1948.

Silver production was 359,554 ounces compared with 191,595 in October last year.

Rookie Officer Captures Two, Both Wounded

Windsor, Dec. 21 — (CP) — A rookie policeman interrupted two men cutting their way into the office of an east-side construction company Tuesday night and captured them after successfully winging each with the two remaining shells in his pistol.

City Constable Jack Farrer reported his pistol cylinder fell open just after he had challenged the thugs and apparently three of the weapon's five shells fell out.

With the remaining shells the policeman, a rookie with six months with the city force, shot and wounded Bill Power, 30, and Leonard Johnston, 32. Both were taken to hospital by police cruisers which arrived in response to Farrer's call for assistance. Power was shot through the neck as he ran from the scene and Johnston in the shoulder.

Farrer said he came upon the pair during his routine check of the area. They were on the building's roof and apparently cut their way through its shingles. Police reported later an opening in the roof large enough to admit a man.

Farrer said he challenged the men to "halt or I'll shoot" and then took chase when they started to flee.

Attempted Murder Charge is Laid Against Salesman

Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — A charge of attempted murder was laid today against Donald Gray, 40-year-old salesman. The charge followed investigation of a report he dragged his wife into his garage, hit her with a hammer and started the motor of his automobile after closing the doors.

Police said the alleged attempt was made Dec. 9.

Gray was arrested the same day and charged with assault and with drunkenness.

Police said Gray beat his wife in the house, after a quarrel. Then he dragged her to the garage. She managed to escape when her husband struck his head against the car door and was momentarily dazed.

Currency Devaluations in Many Countries Led by Pound Sterling Shake World Money Into New Pattern

By RADER WINGET

New York, (AP)— A wave of currency devaluations this year led by the pound sterling, shook the world's money into a new pattern.

The move was made to adjust the value of the so-called soft currencies in relation to hard money, principally the United States dollar.

More than 30 currencies were cut down in value against the dollar by amounts ranging up to 30 per cent.

The purpose was to start world trade calling again and to untangle the maze of government restrictions on money that had brought business to a standstill in many important economic areas.

We won't know for many more months yet whether devaluation was the medicine the sick world needed. It will take time to tell its effectiveness.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced Sept. 18 that the pound would be cut to $2.80 U.S. from $4.03.

The reason Britain wanted to cut was to bring down her prices in terms of dollars. That she calculated, would stimulate exports to dollar countries. She needed the dollars because the high value of the pound and uncertainties surrounding it had led to a drain on Britain's gold and dollar reserves.

It also, she felt, would choke off imports into Britain from dollar countries because prices after devaluation would be too high to make purchases in dollar countries profitable.

Here's the way it was designed to work: A pair of British gloves priced at £1 would cost an American $4.03 before devaluation and $2.80 afterward—or 30 per cent less. And a pair of American gloves priced at $4.03 would cost a Britton £1 before devaluation—and about £1 9s afterward —or 44 percent more.

Many Reduce Value

Other countries in the Commonwealth, except Canada, which is in the dollar zone, and most countries in the sterling area or closely allied economically with Britain reduced the value of their currencies, by 30 percent against the dollar, Canada cut 10 percent. Other European and Asiatic countries dropped their money value by various amounts.

So far things haven't worked out entirely by the book. Producers of many key raw materials raised their selling prices in their own currencies to the point where it cost almost as much in dollar to buy as before devaluation. The general tendency has been to raise the local prices of commodities in great demand under the theory that the United States had to buy them in any event and would be willing to pay a high price.

Upped Selling Price

In a number of other cases where local prices weren't raised sharply, American importers upped their selling prices here as the goods were bought.

Many prices in dollars did go down. British automobiles were slashed immediately and sharply. But they hadn't been selling so well before devaluation anyway.

Prices tend to seek their own level as a result of supply and demand, and that seems to be the governing factor on goods priced in devalued currencies. Nevertheless, there is a heavy cushion of fat now that can be sliced off prices if demand dwindles.

U.S. Stands Pat on Gold

Largely ignored in the devaluation scramble was the position of gold. The United States price of fine gold is 535 an ounce. Other countries changed their gold price in their own currencies to achieve devaluation of that money. The United States stood pat, despite widespread speculation on whether the dollar also would be devalued by raising the price of American gold.

The U.S. has more than $24,- 000,000,000 of the world's gold, which built up steadily during the last 13 years. But just after devaluation abroad, American gold started to be diverted during a 24-hour period with world war, of a vanished, opulent age. Behind an imposing facade it seats only 730 persons — a small capacity even by London's modest standards.

Always Lucky

"We have always been fortunate in our choice of players," Sir Bronson Alfrey recalled. "Many great actors and actresses have made their name on this stage. Sir Gerald du Maurier was a notable example."

Howard Wyndham, son of the founder, who died at 80 in 1948, often talked of his adventures as a cowboy in Western Canada and the United States. They were described as "lurid but authentic."

"But his father tried to make him an actor," Sir Bronson said, "but he was a madcap who would not settle down. He went out west and stayed there a number of years. But after his father's death in 1919, he returned to London after the criterion and new theatres as well as Wyndham's."

ANCIENT TREE COMES CRASHING DOWN

Scores of descendants of Ontario pioneers gathered Saturday in the Ratcliff bush in Whitchurch township to witness felling of 100-foot pine tree, dating back to the time of Champlain. Tree survived Algonquin fort which stood a few yards away. At one time it was reserved as a mast for one of His Majesty's ships.

London Letter:

Wyndham's Theatre Controlled By Same Family for 50 Years

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 21 (AP)— Practically every great actor and actress of the 20th century has played at Wyndham's theatre in Charing Cross Road. London's oldest theatrical business, the theatre has just celebrated its 50th anniversary.

Founded and built by actor-manager Sir Charles Wyndham and his actress wife, Mary Moore Lady Wyndham), the theatre has been controlled by the same family throughout its existence.

Since the death of Howard Wyndham, Sir Charles' son, it has been managed by Sir Charles' step-son—Sir Bronson Alfrey and Sir Irving Albrey —assisted by younger members of the family.

Designed in the Victorian style with lots of gilt and plush, Wyndham's opened Nov. 16, 1899, with a revival of one of Sir Charles' hits—the mid-Victorian comedy, "David Garrick"— in which he played the name part.

Since then its choice of plays has ranged far and wide. For years it was the chosen ground for Edgar Wallace thrillers and Wallace himself was theatre manager for a period, staging his own plays. The last of them "The Green Pack" was still being played when he died in the United States in 1932.

Few Musicals

During its whole life Wyndham's has presented only three musical shows, the last being "Sir Little Widower" in 1919. Of late the theatre has gone in for more "highbrow" plays such as James Bridie's "Daphne Laureola" still running.

The theatre's 50th birthday was marked only by a backstage party after the show for members of the cast and the maintenance staff. Felix Aylmer, starred in "Daphne Laureola," proposed a toast to Wyndham's to which Sir Bronson Albrey responded.

Though Wyndham's is by no means the oldest London playhouse, it is regarded as the survivor, little altered and undamaged by two world wars, of a

Canada to Have Election-Free Year in 1950

Ottawa, Dec. 21 (CP)— Barring an unexpected upheaval somewhere along the political front, Canada will have an election-free year in 1950—the 11th since Confederation in 1867.

With 10 general elections in Dominion and provincial — in 1948 and 1949, Canadians came through the busiest two-year voting period in the country's history.

Neither year — each with five elections — set a record for number of general votes. The all-time high was are back in 1886 when seven provinces — all there were then — held general elections. Three times there were six elections in a year — in 1890 six provincial elections; in 1872 and-1906, a federal and five provincial votes.

The busiest two years before 1948-49 was 1944-45 when there were a federal and eight provincial elections.

In 1949's June 27 federal vote and four provincial elections, 7,- 253,783 votes were cast, second highest total for a single year. Biggest year was 1945 with 7,- 990,346 votes in one federal and four provincial elections.

Nineteen-forty-nine marked the first time since 1903 — when Alberta and Saskatchewan became provinces — that a new province held its first election as a part of Canada. That was the May 27 vote in Newfoundland.

Governments found 1949 — and 1948 as well— a good year to call elections. A government was defeated in the 10 votes in the two years.

In 1949, Liberals went back in the Dominion and in Nova Scotia, Coalition governments made up of a fusion of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives were returned in British Columbia and Manitoba. The Liberals broke new ground by winning in Newfoundland. In 1948, a Liberal administration was re-elected in New Brunswick, Union Nationale in Quebec, Progressive Conservatives in Ontario, CCF in Saskatchewan and Social Credit in Alberta.

If all the governments sit out their legal five-year terms, the next election would be in Prince Edward Island in 1953— and then there would be five each in 1953 and 1954. But it would be a safer bet that most would be held earlier.

Helped to Found Saskatoon Phoenix

Kingston, Dec. 21 — (CP) — George Marshall Thompson, 74, former newspaper man and co-founder of the Saskatoon Capital, forerunner of the Star-Phoenix, died in hospital Monday night following a brief illness.

Born in Port Hope, Ont., he lived in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary and Toronto before coming to Kingston 16 years ago.

Mr. Thompson went to Saskatoon in 1905, and with Charles Tyron established the Capital which they sold in 1913. Six years later, he moved to Calgary to take over the management of the News Telegram, now defunct.

He moved to Toronto in 1920 where he assumed the position as manager with the Strout Farm Agency of New York City.Ten

More Motor Vehicles Built And Sold in '49 Than in Any Previous Year

By DAVID J. WILKIE

Detroit (AP) —The automobile industry of the United States built—and sold—more motor vehicles in 1949 than in any previous year. Barring an economic upset it may do nearly as well in 1950.

Final official figures probably will not become available until about mid-January, but they are certain to show 1949 output of more than 6,000,000 cars and trucks. They also should show that, excepting units in transit from factory to distributor, most of these vehicles were sold.

The industry's previous production record was 5,358,420 vehicles, built in 1929. But that year, unlike 1949, saw the industry carry over more than 1,000,000 unsold vehicles. It was followed, too, by a high total of repossessions.

Disputed Question

Whether the steel strike late in the year material cut down the auto industry's 1949 output is a disputed question in many quarters. Ten-day to two-week shutdowns of considerably more than half the industry's capacity that began Nov. 24, generally were attributed to the shortage of steel.

But there were many among industry chronicles who asserted that had there been no steel shortages prolonged shutdowns would have been ordered and attributed to new model changeover work.

Aside from record production 1949 brought for most companies the greatest net profits in their history.

Examples were General Motors' $502,414,029 net during the year's first nine months against $337,155,222 in the corresponding period of 1948; Chrysler's net of $97,631,453 against $59,887,901, and that of Studebaker, leader of the independents, $17,242,243 against $13,392,724.

No Interim Report

Only two companies — both newcomers — ran substantially against the general trend, Kaiser-Frazer which built 121,317 cars in 1948, turned out fewer than 60,000 in 1949. Crosley, which started with relatively low volume in 1939, got production up to nearly 30,000 units in 1948 and dropped and fewer than 10,000 in 1949.

Aside from huge production, sales and earnings, 1949 brought into the high-compression engines and more automatic transmissions to the car industry. Design changes, however, were relatively few.

Exception in the design pattern were Studebaker's 1950 models, brought out late in the summer, and a completely new Buick special model.

Major price cuts did not materialize. Several companies, including Ford and General Motors, made minor reductions during the first half of 1949, but the sharp cuts predicted for July and later did not develop.

The combination of steady demand, increased wage demands and pension programs deferred any major list price slashes the industry may have planned. The nearest it came to more price cuts later in the year were $25 to $40 reductions in the cost of automatic transmissions, by General Motors and two companies using its hydro-matic device.

TRAVELLED TOPPER

This battered hat, cove of a mute "conspiracy" by railway shipping agents, has gone from one end of Canada to the other. Nobody knows how — or why — the trip started. Wounded Whale Escapes, Whaling Crew on Strike

Tokyo, Dec. 21 (AP)—Three hundred Japanese aboard a whaling ship watched with interest as a wounded whale threshed about in great pain. But not a man lifted a harpoon for the kill.

They were on a sit-down strike for a 14,000 yen ($38) year-end bonus.

The captain frantically radioed the whaling ship's owners in Tokyo. Their reply was blunt:

"You won't get a yen. You are a disgrace to the tradition of whalers."

The wounded whale got away.

SEEK PERMANENT PEACE ISRAEL AND JORDAN AREA

Jerusalem, Dec. 21—(Reuters) Secret negotiations "somewhere on the frontier" for a permanent peace treaty between Israel and Hashemite Jordan are likely to end late in January in a draft treaty to be initialed by both governments, according to reliable sources here Mon. The two countries signed an armistice agreement last April.

Sturgeon Caught In St. Lawrence Weighs 235 lbs.

Brockville, Dec. 21 (CP)—Fred Truesdell today reported landing a seven-foot sturgeon weighing 235 pounds.

Truesdell, who lives at Ivy Lea, 24 miles west of here, said he caught the fish last Thursday on night lines set in the St. Lawrence River near Hen Island in the Ivy Lea area. He towed it to shore with his rowboat and had photographs taken.

When he showed the pictures to newspaper men here today, Truesdell said the fish was the largest he has ever caught during the many years he has fished in the St. Lawrence.

(In Toronto, Dr. W. J. Harkness, chief of Lands Department's Fish and Wildlife division, said Truesdell's catch was a "very fine" fish. But it did not break the record set by the seven-foot-six-inch, 310 pound sturgeon caught in Batchawana Bay, near Sault Ste. Marie, by Frank Lapointe in 1922 or 1922. Dr. Harkness said the Lapointe fish, judged to be 100 years old, was the largest fish ever taken from Canada's inland waters.)

See No Softening Of Russian Front In Religion

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP) — State department officials said Tuesday they do not believe that permission granted an American priest to conduct services in Moscow indicates softening of the Soviet front in the cold war.

A passport visa came through Monday from the Soviet Embassy for Father Louis Robert Brassard—10 months after the priest had requested it. It would authorize him to serve the 118 members of the American colony in Moscow.

Since Father Brassard first applied for the visa, the state department has sent several reminders to the Russian government that Russia agreed in 1933 to permit one American Catholic pastor to work in Moscow.

Father Brassard was resignated to succeed Rev. J. Antonio Laberge. Laberge left Moscow last June with a six-months permit but this subsequently was cancelled.

Since then Soviet authorities have taken over control of the Roman Catholic Church in the Russian capital.

Robbery Motive In Cabbie's Death Police State

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police said Tuesday their continuing investigation into the shotgun-slaying of Sam Delibasich, Welland taxi driver, leads them to believe he was killed by a passenger bent on robbery.

They said their inquiries have not borne out a theory advanced by acquaintances of Delibasich, a former resident of Timmins and Kirkland Lake, that the slaying had political implications and was possibly linked with the murder of the cabbie's brother in Yugoslavia in 1945.

Delibasich was said to have been in the habit of carrying $200-$300 in his pockets and police believe he was slain for his money. His frozen, battered body was found in a field near Welland Saturday. Investigators said they found no clues in Delibasich's taxicab, abandoned here, nor have inquiries among his acquaintances provided any useful information.

FIRE DESTROYS MAIL

Dalhousie Junction, N.B., Dec. 21 (CP) —Several hundred bags of Christmas mail, destined for Canadian points west of the Maritimes, were burned Monday night when fire destroyed a mail car of the Canadian National Railways' Scotian express, bound from Halifax to Montreal. About 300 bags of mail were salvaged.

TELLS POLICE THE SCORE

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 20 —(CP) —An unidentified thief wasn't happy when police reported he had stolen 21 watches. He telephoned them and said the score was "29." Police said he was apparently one of the thieves who threw a brick through a jeweler store window here Saturday. They are still searching for the culprit.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OPEN LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS

Dear Santa—

Please look around your Muskuk Lake or wherever you have your lumber yills and see if you can scrape up sufficient timber, boards and whatever is required to build us a baseball park. We've got an excellent opportunity next year to bring at least last to this fair city a senior baseball team, something that has been needed here since the grand old timers of the Central Ontario Baseball League hung up their spikes and hats for good.

We need a park that is not used for the stamping grounds for circus elephants one day and baseball the next. One that the hell drivers won't tear up and rodeos won't turn upside down. We have a good site in the Stewart Warner Alemite Recreation Field, so please impress on the powers-that-be that this would be an ideal spot to have the permanent baseball park, and maybe you could throw in a band - shell as well.

And being a lover of children you might put into your sack a few greenwarded parks for the little Joes and Janes, with playground equipment toned in. As I while you're on the kiddies' subject you might include a couple of swimming pools in which the ill fellas and gals can disport themselves.

And at the other end of the lifeline we have some elderly gentlemen among others who have no yen as yet to resort to the fireplace and slippers but would rather carvet wi' brams and sloon over a curling rink. This would be greatly appreciated so if you can slow away a rink in the corner of your bear, we all would be exceedingly grateful.

And please Santa, we would also appreciate larger crowds at the hockey games especially in the Intermediate and mogret class. A group of sportsmen are doing their best to see that the younger fellows are getting the opportunity to develop whatever hockey talent they possess and it is not very encouraging to see a mere handful of spectators turn up at the different games. Anyway makes the mare go, and it also helps hockey teams.

That's all for now,

A Merry Christmas

Belleville Sports Fandom.

THE DAY BEFORE CHRISTMAS

"Twas the day before Christmas
And all over town
And all over town
All the people are rushing
So madly around,
All the shops are so crowded,
All the stocks are so low,
All the sales - clerks so weary,
All the service so slow!
All along the "Buy - ways"
There is a clamor.
Robbing Christmas
Of much of its glamor.
"Some nice rayon stockings."
"Sorry, we're all out."
"No more ties?" — no more pearls."
The sales girls all shout
Perfumes and undies,
Heavens above!
What a choice
Of the things that you'd love
Your plans, how they're shattered,
Your limbs, how they ache,
Your heads, how they're dizzy;
Your hearts, how they break.
"Too late for delivery; Carry your own."
"Oh why did I wait?"
You sorrowfully groan.
Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight;
Give me a month ago—just for tonight. Anon.

Well, that was a thriller-diller of a battle the Northerns and Flyers staged in Memorial Arena last night in their third and deciding battle of the semi-finals series. It was by far one of the better games of the season if not the best and the boys finitured up and down the ice like hopped up jackrunnies. The pace was terrific, especially in the first chukker and the wise-acres looked for a relapse on somebody's part before the plexiglos looked the call-to-arms in the third beat. But they were disappointed. Both squads were travelling under a full head of steam and if anything the tempo in the dying minutes of the game was faster than any previous.

The Northern front lines, clicking like an eight-day alarm clock, set a blistering pace from the start. Flyers were clearly outskated and their passes were not the old Flyer type. They were shooting high and wide within the less stirring duties of the Masters were laid asnitch. It was a grand game to watch, even if you couldn't hear the whistles of the officials the cang ang after the cow-bell chorus swung into cacaphonic action. The Flyers, like the grand sportsmen they are, crowded around their opposition after the ball was over and roundly congraiulated each and every one of them. They went down battling to the last inch and put up a grand fight. The best of luck to McLeod's clan in their search for intermediate "B" honors in the forthcoming OHA race.

Next, the CNR Diesels and the Quinlan Rockets in the other bracket of the semi-finals. These teams clash tomorrow night and that too, should be one for the archives. The Rocks were defeated the other night in their opening Junior "B" game and they aren't feeling any too chipper about that. And believe me, they would like nothing better than to defeat the Diesels, which sums up to a battle royal. Don't miss it. Game starts at 9 p. m.

According to an announcement made last night by the executive of the Oldtimers Association, Jackie Wardhaugh, of the Northern Electrics hockey squad is the winner of the Whalen Trophy and miniature emblematic of the "most valuable player to his team" in the Belleville and District Hockey League. Wardhaugh received three votes, Vern Gerow two and "Pop" Lawlor of Flyers, one. Karns of the Flyers squad wins the Boland Trophy awarded to the outstanding goalie of the schedule season.

Northern Electric Team Downs Flyers 5-3 in Thrilling Game To Qualify for League Finals

Setting a blistering tempo of speed, they completely outclassed consistently all through the game, the Northern Electric hockey squad defeated the Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers by a 5-3 score in Memorial Arena last night and earned the right to meet the winners of the C.N.R. Diesels-Rockets Juniors semi-final for the championship of the Belleville District Hockey League of the Ontario Intelligencer trophy.

The game was the third of a two-of-three semifinals series with both teams having a win to their credit.

Northern thoroughly deserved to win on the night's play. They had a margin of territory play throughout although the gallant Flyers on their credit it must be said never gave up trying until the last whistle tooted. In fact they were down 3-1 at the end of the first period 3-1 at the end of the second, but they blazed right back in a desperate third period effort to tie the score and again to two goals. And they were battling desperately in an eleventh hour battle when the game ended.

Best of Season

It was one of the best games of the current District Hockey League season. Northern Electric, their front lines clicking like a machine, their individual efforts standing out and their speed bordering on the terrific set a pace that the hard-fighting Flyers tried to match.

Barrett, Marsh, Jackie Wardhaugh, Cousins, Reeves and the rest starred in blistering play while Art Plumley, Williamson, Ken Murphy, Porky Yorke et al took care of the job behind the blue line as well as lending their efforts offensively.

Flyers led by Miller put up a valiant effort but the Northern Electric lines were not to be denied. Both teams missed plenty of chances but for the most part and both Art Plumley and Keys, the rival goalkeepers turned in sterling efforts, especially the Flyer goalie.

Fames Went Astray

The Flyer forwards were shooting the puck from all over in their forays and many of their passes went astray. They were weak, too, in front of the opposing net and many of their shots were well off the target. They were outplayed and outskated except for sporadic efforts. But their last-minute drive in a desperate attempt to snatch victory out of defeat is a distinct credit to them as individuals and as a team.

Al Marsh, veteran, played a fine game throughout opened the scoring after three minutes of blistering play had like when he swiped away from a Flyer ganging attack to sweep in front of the net and beat Keyes cleanly. Flyers evened the score two minutes later when Barrett and Cousins teamed up in a neat down-ice combination play with the latter taking Gagnon's pass to flip the puck in the net.

Five minutes later Peter Jones grabbed the rubber and passed it to Johnny Barrett who made no mistake and with five minutes to go the crack Northern line of Barrett, Wardhaugh and Cousins swept down three abreast in a picture passing play with the former firing the counter.

Early in the second period Peter Jones stuck the rubber for Northern's fourth goal and midway Huck Reeves let go a blueline shot that found the far corner of the net behind Keyes to give the planters a 5-3 margin.

The fast tempo did not subside in the third period and both sides raced up and down ice with Northern having the edge. Barrett missed two clean shots and the planters surged in, in waves of attacks.

Flyers retaliated and in a ganging drive Plumley was dumped in the net with the puck and Flyers scored their second goal. The airmen came back with concerted drives and with two minutes to go, Gagnon took Gordie Auit's pass to score the Flyers third goal. Northern hurled back the Flyer attacks over the rest of the period and skated off the ice with the victory.

The game, though productive of many checking at times was cleanly-fought, referees Vip Radley and Pat Patterson, of Kingston handing out four penalties.

The lineups:

Northern Electric—Goal Plumley, defence, Williamson, York, centre, Barrett, wings, Wardhaugh, Cousins, Reeves, Murphy, Semark, Jones, Mesgher, Whitman, Creighton, Markle.

Adams Figures Wings Top Team In National Loop

By JIM BASTABLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Manager Jack Adams figures his Detroit Red Wings are tops in the National Hockey League. There's nothing in the league records to refute him.

The portly Red Wing pilot took time off from his Christmas shopping in Detroit Tuesday to say: "I certainly can't see any better team at the moment than Detroit."

A glance at the scoring figures will verify that. The Red Wings now hold a comfortable eight-point margin atop the league race. And their ace left-winger, Ted Lindsay, is leading the individual point-getters with 35 goals and 18 assists—two points ahead of Doug Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks.

The Red Wings haven't been plagued with the injury bugaboo, either. Their only injured player, rearguard Joe Fogolin, is expected to be in the line-up when the Red Wings take on the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs in Detroit tonight.

In two other games tonight, Montreal Canadiens clash with New York Rangers and Boston Bruins meet Chicago Black Hawks.

Adams didn't appear perturbed about Toronto Maple Leafs this week-end when he was asked edged his Wings out of two Stanley Cup playoffs. He also evaded a question on the Wings' chances of copping the trophy this season.

He wasn't worried about tonight's game, anyway. "We've beaten the Leafs both when they were at full strength and when they've had injuries."

The undermanned Leafs will still be minus their two key centres—Cal Gardiner and Ted Kennedy.

Meanwhile, the Canadiens won't have the services of Elmer Lach, who suffered a cut eyebrow last week-end. Lach said yesterday that he hoped to be in the ling-up this weekend. Other non-starters tonight will be defencemen Kenny Reardon and Hal Laycoe.

Phil Marchildon May go to Yanks For Lindell

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 — (AP)—New York Yankees who apparently feel their livery is a cure-all for ailing and disappointing ball players, believed interested in the "stranger case of pitcher Phil Marchildon."

During the recent Major League meeting manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks, indicated interest in the smallish pitcher from Penetanguishene, Ont. Stengel is reported to have offered outfielder Johnny Lindell for the A's righthander provided doctors reported his arm is in good shape.

Connie Mack always has openly coveted Lindell but he steadfastly refused to part with the likes of pitcher Joe Coleman to get the big outfielder. He might be willing to make a deal with Marchildon as bait.

The Marchildon-Lindell deal cropped up today with the news that the pitcher was in Philadelphia preparatory to going to Baltimore for an examination by Dr. George E. Bennett, surgeon who removed the bone spur from Joe DiMaggio's heel last spring.

Philadelphia officials say hearing the expense of bringing Marchildon down from Canada for the examination but the popular belief is that the Yankees are footing the bill to find out if the hurler is fit.

Apparently Stengel feels the old Yankee magic will work with Marchildon — just as it's done on Yankee uniform and somehow you are a new man and a better ball player.

Remembers McQuinn

Nobody realizes that more than Connie Mack. He remembers George McQuinn, first baseman who hit .200 for him one year, went to New York supposedly a washed up veteran and hit over .300 to spark the Yankees to a pennant and world championship.

Only the other day the Yankees finalized Hank Bokdefeld from Detroit and apparently are going to try a reconstruction job on the fabulous Bonus rookie who never quite live up to expectations.

The 26-year-old Marchildon won 19 games for the A's in 1947 and nine in 1948. Last season he appeared in nine games, completed none, pitched a total of 16 innings and Mack in three decisions in which he figured.

Marchildon yielded 24 hits, 19 bases on balls, two wild pitches and a total of 23 runs. He fanned two but hit another batsman.

Burstius complicated by a delayed nerve reaction from his harrowing war experiences with the R.C.A.F. was ascribed as the root of his troubles, though by the end of the season his arm appeared as strong as ever. Marchildon was a prisoner of the Germans for more than two years after parachuting from a stricken plane during the war.

The Macks indicated that Stengel and New York definitely were not interested unless Dr. Bennett issues a favorable report.

A good report, however, might make the A's think twice before unloading Marchildon. They might decide to keep him unless the Yankees tossed in more ball.

Another Move To Convince British Public

(By The Canadian Press)

Bruce Woodcock offered £100 ($310) Tuesday at London if the sparring partner who can knock him down, and the line started forming on the right.

The offer apparently was another move to convince the British public that he is serious about his off-postponed fight with Lee Savold of Peterson, N.J., for the British version of the world heavyweight title. The best now is tentatively set for late May at London.

Despite his denials, rumors persist that Woodcock, rather than fight again, will go through with his previously-announced intention to retire. Once before he retired and then "unretired".

Jack Williams, a young English heavyweight, was the first to sign up for a chance at £100. There were indications that Woodcock would not lack for other takers.

As a consolation prize Woodcock's manager, Tom Hurst, offered £5 to anyone who can stay his feet for one round against the British champ.

Hidden Since a Boy

Even Woodcock's scrapbook was Cardy's personal horsemanship. A hotel chain owner in business life, Cardy has ridden for fun ever since he was a boy in his native Galt, Ont. This year, despite his age, he competed with the best circling North America has to offer. At the famed Royal Winter Fair, the five-footnine, 196-pounder won his Times Square to several personal championships.

At the same show, his Jervis Bay Lad won the coveted International Challenge Cup for the second time while Gold Lode was taking the Canadian Jersey Challenge trophy.

Cardy's horse won top success at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show in Harrisburg and the International Horse Show in New York. Gold Lode, a brown gelding, captured the Horse Championship at both events . while Atomis lost out in a jump-off in the open jumping to a American horse.

Cardy concentrates on a small group of well-trained horses — he only has 16 show animals in competition at present. Two of his 1949 winners were bred at Meadowvale while others were purchased in shrewd horse deals.

His best personal mount, Times Square, won him over $1,800. Cardy tells how he was driving past a farm in Virginia when he spotted a shaggy, ungroomed hunter. He promptly took a trial ride and purchased the horse from his farmer-owner.

Vernon G. Cardy Virtually Riding On Top of World

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 21 (CP)—Burly, black-haired Vernon G. Cardy at 49 is literally on top of the world.

At the age when most business executives are contented with golf as exercise, the Montreal hotel owner is riding and training some of the best show horses in North America.

Competing against much more expensive strikes and often, personally, against much younger men, Cardy in 1949 sent his flashy hunters and jumpers out to roll up one of the most enviable records compiled at the major horse shows in the United States and Canada. It was Cardy's biggest season in almost a life-time as a horse-lover.

From his 2,500-acre Mount Vernon farm in the Laurentian resort district 61 miles north of Montreal, Cardy horses went out to score victories in Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York, Ontario and Quebec.

banded Oakland Oaks hockey team has sold nine of his 18 players to other teams in the Pacific Coast League and one to Louisville, Kentucky, of the U.S.H.L. Terms of the sales were not disclosed in the announcement at Seattle.

Shore will strengthen his Coast defence with Lester Iseno, Springfield Indians, by transferring all or some of the remainder to the Oakland club.

The Oaks were disbanded Monday after Shore notified league President Al Leader he could no longer operate the club under present conditions. They had been playing home games before only a handful of fans.

Jack Lancier, 185-pound, 26-year-old defenceman has been recalled by New York Rangers of the National Hockey League from their New Haven American League farm.

Lancien, a native of Regina, will arrive in time to dress for tonight's game against Montreal Canadiens.

OH, YOU KID!

Harry Tucker, left, a traveller, and Diane Smith, a model, resurrected a couple of grandma's naughty-naughty swim-suits for this mighty test of icy English Bay at Vancouver. TORONTO POPULATION REPORTED AS LOWER

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)— City assessment commissioner A. B. K. Gray announced today that Toronto's population is 673,104 compared with 693,302 in 1948. With no appreciable decrease in civic crowding it was presumed the lower numbers dropped from last year-ed had moved to suburban municipalities.

Fireman Dies As Result of Fire In Flower Market

London, Dec. 21 (Reuters) —As dawn broke over London today smoke-blackened firemen were still fighting the city's worst basement blaze in 20 years — beneath the famous Covent Garden flower market. It was nearly 24 hours since piles of boxes and Christmas trees stacked in a 16,000 square, catacomb-like basement caught fire. Already one fireman had died and 29 more had been sent to hospital after being overcome by smoke.

MONTREAL GROWING

Montreal, Dec. 21 (CP)— The population of Montreal proper is 1,420,057 while that of the entire island of Montreal totals 1,650,011, the 107th edition of Lovell's Montreal directory showed today. The island's population increased by 24,546 last year the newly-issued directory said.

Bobby Laurent Adds Strength to Tigers' Defence

(By The Canadian Press)

The addition of Bobby Laurent to the Hamilton Tiger line - up for last night's game with league-leading Toronto Marlboros added some much needed strength behind the Tiger blue line but they still only managed a 3-3 deadlock with the top-slot Toronto crew.

In the only other contest last night, Marlboros Junior 'A' edition blasted Galt Black Hawks 7-2 to increase their first-place lead to 14 points over St. Catharines Teepees.

At Hamilton, with Laurent tightening the Bengals' defence, Tigers held a one-goal lead until less than five minutes to go in the game. It was the first game this season for the Tiger veteran, who has been working himself into shape again.

That was the gave Marlboros a 1-0 first - period lead with the only marker of the evening's frame. The homesters clicked for two in the middle session to take the lead. Max Taylor and Eddie Busch were the marksmen. Red Johnson popped in the second Duke counter with less than a minute remaining to deadlock it at 2-2.

Polly Misciuvich rapped in the third Tiger tally early in the final frame and the one-goal lead held up until the 16:39 mark when Toronto's old reliable, Monty Mair, popped in the tying marker.

Lewicki Paces Dukes

Jack McKenzie and Danny Lewicki, with two goals each, paced Marlboros to their 7-2 conquest of Galt.

The two clubs split tallies in the opening period, Jack McKenzie sinking his first in the Toronto clubs only Pete Conacher clicking for Galt.

Marlboros bulldozed their way to five markers in the middle session, Lewicki counting twice while Lorne Firie, Red Mitchell and George Armstrong popped in the others.

The teams returned to tight hockey in the finale and only two goals were scored, one by each club. McKenzie notched his second for the league leaders and Ken Ford popped in the final Galt counter.

Five games are carded for tonight. Hamilton play Marlboros at Toronto and Owen Sound play Kitchener in the senior circuit. The junior schedule lists Galt tackling Oshawa, St. Catharines travelling to Windsor and Stratford playing host to Guelph.

Think Crocodile Has Swallowed Pop Bottle

Cincinnati, Dec. 21 — (AP)— Officials of the Cincinnati zoo are worried. They're afraid Marc, their 600-pound crocodile, has been hitting the bottle too much.

They don't mean the kind of bottle that causes hangovers, even though Marc is old enough to take a drink if he wants it—he's about 35.

Jack Heusser, zoo executive director, explains it this way:

About two weeks ago some one tossed a pop bottle into Marc's pool. Marc got it into his mouth and superintendent Charles White couldn't get it out. The next morning the bottle was gone. White said it couldn't have gone down the drain. He surmised it was in Marc's stomach.

About that time Marc began to lose his appetite so Dr. Carl A. Plueger, zoo veterinarian, was called. But he hasn't been able to get close enough to make an examination.

"He's able to digest bones but a bottle is another matter," said Dr. Plueger. "It's possible that he could live a full life with the bottle in his stomach but if it obstructs his intestinal tract it will shut off circulation and he'll die of gangrene."

Thrill on Ice

No winter visitor from south of the border willingly misses a chance to see the famous Maple Leafs in action. But all over Ontario there is fine hockey to be seen. Each arena can be made an attraction so tourists who contribute so much to the prosperity of our provinces. Let all of us do all we can to make them want to come back.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 21 — (AP) — What are the deathless quotes of the year in Hollywood?

Maybe some of these won't live into the second half-century, but they seem out of the ordinary to me. Here are some of the bright, pointed or insane sayings that I have collected from 1949 news:

Robert Mitchum commenting on his sentence at the county detention farm: "It's an experience every tax payer should go through."

Laurence Olivier, after winning the acadamy awards: "I always did say Shakespeare was a good script writer."

Actor Paul Valentine, divorcing strip teaser Lili St. Cyr: "Everybody in the country could see more of her than I did."

Milton Berle, answering an attack on him by Fred Allen: "Allen still has the first penny ever thrown at him."

Frustrated Mason

Claudette Colbert, disapproving French bathing suits: "Of the many features of a woman's anatomy, one of the least attractive is the navel."

Mae West: "I'm still looking for the right man. My trouble is I find so many right ones it's hard to decide."

Clifton Webb: "There's no use pretending I'm a modest fellow . . . Some day I shall write a song called 'I fascinate me.'"

Bette Davis: "Hollywood tries to combine entertainment for both kids and adults in the same picture. The result is a movie which isn't suitable for either."

Shelley Winters, after returning from a blustery location: "I was so cold I almost got married."

The Shlamz

Description of the "shimmy" in Gilda Gray's suit against the picture "Gilda.": "A rhythmical shivering and shaking of parts of the body, synchronized and performed in a personalized syncopated music rhythm and accompanied with appropriate songs."

AT THE BELLE — As an artist sees Gregory Peck in the title role of "The Great Sinner," powerful M.G.M. drama coming to the Belle screen today. Peck, who has won a distinguished place for himself among the screen greats as the result of his performances in such hits as "The Paradine Case," "Duel in the Sun," and "The Yearling," now plays a man whose passion for gambling almost ruins his life.

AT THE CAPITOL — A scene from the Royal Canadian Navy musical show, "Meet the Navy," with scenes in Technicolor opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program: Law of the Golden West," starring Monte Hale. Matinees daily starting Thursday, December 22nd., and throughout the school holidays.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When an unusual hand is made, most players are content when they hear how it is done. Accurate bidders, however, will not let it go at that. They want to know how it got there.

Here is a deal:

NORTH
♠A K 5 4 3 2
♥K 10 9
♦J 8 5 3
♣None

WEST — EAST
♠Q 10 8 — ♠J 9 8
♥None — ♥8 7 6 5 4 2
♦8 7 4 2 — ♦10 9
♣J 10 9 8 7 4 — ♣5 3

SOUTH
♠7
♥A Q J 3
♦A K Q
♣A K Q 6 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
2 C	2 S
3 H	3 S
4 C	4 H
4 NT	5 S
7 H	Pass

In answer to four no-trump, five spades is Horse Sense convention for showing one ace and two kings. From this south could see 12 cold tricks at no-trump; four aces, four kings, three queens, heart jack.

It is all very well to pide south for not going seven no-trump, which is easy to make. But he was not aware of the north jack until after he saw dummy. Nor did he know of the tough heart break.

If a player is going for a grand slam, he usually has a better chance if it is in some trump contract, Then if some suit is not solid, he may still establish it with a ruff.

At a no-trump grand slam the contract is sunk if some opponent has as much as a jack that will make. At a trump grand slam there is a chance to kill off the opponent's winner.

Declarer in this case failed to make the heart grand slam when he drew a round of trumps. It could have been made with four side suit tops and seven crossruffs. Simply by sluffing two diamonds on clubs.

For all general purposes, therefore, the bids were correct. It might be well to discuss each bid in more detail. Guess I will.

BOWLING'S STILL FUN

Vancouver — (CP) — Members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind have bowling every Saturday night for their 12-team loop. Most of the scores are below 200, but there—35 per cent of the group is totally blind. They use hand rails to guide them to the foul line.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, I tried on the most amazing hat downtown today, William. It had real little berds, or at least they looked real, standing on and sitting down and flying all around the crown, she said.

Yes gods, that doesn't sound like any lid for you, pop said, and ma said, That's the point. It was entirely too showy for my modest tastes, and if I hadn't had such a special occasion in mind I would never of bothered to even try it on, but under the peculiar circumstances I told the sales woman to put it aside with a small deposit and I'd let her know.

What, the grate special occasion? pop said, and ma said, Well, it's a well known fact that men are judged by the personal appearance of their wives, so naturelly it has an inspiring psycological effect on a man when he realizes that he is being admired for having a fashionably dressed wife. In other words I'm thinking of when you go away to attend the insurance mens convention next week, she said.

But for Pete's sake you refused to go to the convention with me, pop said. You said it would be a bore, he said, and ma said, And so it would, with all those men full of blazes and their wives full of their own importance. But William, there's such a thing as psycological influence by remote control. When you look at those other men's wives wearing good looking hats and realize that your own wife is home with a hat that puts them all in the shade, you'll hold your head up like a perfect Napoleon, and it will give you such confidence that you'll be the leading figure of the whole convention, she said.

Meaning get the hat.

PICTON

Canadian Legion Holds Children's Christmas Party

Picton—The Canadian Legion hall was the mecca for more than 300 persons, most of them children, Saturday night. The occasion was the annual Christmas party sponsored by Branch 79. A brightly lighted and decorated Christmas tree, evergreens and poinsettis made the hall attractive.

Carols were sung with Mrs. Bert Prior, Jr., at the piano and Frank Sine as presiding. Eddie Hawker, Dale Thompson, George Hudgin, Arlene Buckanan, Richard Slocum and other children gave musical numbers. Mr. Starr gave a humorous recitation. Terry Hedger won a balloon blowing contest conducted by Phil Doddo, who was convener of the party.

Three Clowns Help

Three clowns, Vincent Gentile, Bill Beasley and George Ross thrilled the kiddies with their antics.

The Ladies' Auxiliary served sandwiches, cake, ice cream and orangeade until none could hold more.

To top the big evening, Santa (Ed. Bateson) arrived and after greeting all child handed out bags containing oranges, apples, candy canes and candies.

Branch President Lance Nethercy expressed appreciation to the committee and the ladies who had arranged this very successful party.

$350 From Party

The draw, dance and euchre in aid of Branch 78, Canadian Legion, Picton, proved very successful. About community hall was filled Friday night, all enjoying a gay time. Net proceeds of the draw amounted to about $300 and $50 from the party. Only expenses to be deducted are those for the prizes.

Door prizes went to Ken Boulton, Morley Dunnage, Gladys Hubbs, Mrs. V. Bryan, Miles Cornerey, Mrs. Mark Tuttle, Bobby Wood, Ken Laundry, Ruth Leavitt, Mrs. J. Whiteford.

Euchre prizes went to Ronald Leavitt and Miss Hilda Dulmage; Donald King and Mrs. Clifford Partington, consolations.

Miss Ruth Jones, D. King and Ken Boulton, who provided music for round and square dancing, were presented with gifts. Clifford Partington was caller and Victor Lord led two novelty dances. Miss Jones was heartily applauded for her piano solo "Canadian Capers", which many requested.

Refreshments Served

Refreshments were convened by Mrs. Fred Jay, Miss Mildred Seeley, Mrs. A. C. Seeley, Mrs. Brooks, Diane Wiggins, with others, assisting in serving. Raymond Goodwin, Clifford Partington, Mrs. Morley Dulmage, Clarence Brammell were scorers.

General convener of the draw and party was Frank Seeley. Nearly every veteran sold his quota of tickets, untiring effort making the event an outstanding success.

Music Featured

Christmas music was a feature in several churches on Sunday, and on Sunday next will also play a prominent role in the service.

At Picton United Church, at the morning service, the processional was "Adeste Fidelis." Miss Florence Barber sang the solo in Handel's "O thou That Tellest," was sung by the choir. The junior, intermediate and senior choirs joined in the anthem, "The Holly and the Ivy", with solos by Shirley and Ralph Pickering. Carols were sung and organ selections given by A. A. Bennie.

At the evening service, more than 700 heard an inspiring program. The processional was the carol, "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear," a quartet of Doris Calnan, Aleda Nelson, Ralph Pickering and Earl Holt sang "As I Walked In Bethlehem" (W. Anderson). The junior and intermediate choirs sang "Sweet Christmas bells."

In the anthem "Jesu Bambino," Grant Redden sang the solo with Doris Calnan, Beryl and Aleda Wilson sang Andersson's "Long, Long Ago." The senior choir gave J. Steiner's "The Echo Carol." Miss Shirley Pickering gave the soprano solo "The Holy City." The three choirs combined in present Goldworthy's anthem "Bethlehem." Carols were sung by the congregation and the organist concluded the selections with "The Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel.

Anthems Sung

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church the processional was "Adeste Fidelis." The senior choir gave the anthems "O Holy Night" and "The Holy Bells." The junior choir sang "Away in A Manger" and "Jerusalem Awaken."

The Salvation Army services marked its 65th anniversary here. Captain and Mrs. Malcolm Crair of Toronto assisted Capt. and Mrs. John Hobbs.

A white gift service was held at the United Church Sunday School. Prizes will be distributed through the Mission Church.

NINE ARE INJURED

Winnifred Farquharson, an employee, said the shop became "a mass of furnace" seconds after the explosion. "The flames seemed to start in the middle of the room and spread right through it," she said.

At 11 a.m. Inspector Green, wood notified the Deputy Fire Chief that because the plant was operating so fiercely firemen had not been able to get inside to see if all employees had escaped. Some To Hospital

A 21-year-old girl employee was taken to the operating room immediately after her arrival at hospital, she had been critically burned from head to feet, hospital authorities said.

Bill Ireland said he was in a service station next door to the factory when the explosion occurred. He said he heard a pop and saw a flash of flame.

"I saw a girl blown clear across the street in flames. I rushed over and picked her up and tried to put the flames out with my topcoat," he said. He still had pieces of skin sticking to the coat.

"All I know is that her name was Nancy and that they took her to hospital. It was an awful mess and she was in very bad shape."

The company payroll was said by police to have been burned.

Fire Chief Wood said she lit a cigaret for another woman employee but it slipped from her fingers.

"There was a terrific explosion. I don't know how I escaped. It seemed to whoosh up all around me and I was only slightly burned."

Mrs. Edwards is a daughter of Miss Bracken, most severely injured of all the employees.

"I feel terrible about this. I don't know what to do," she said.

This was the second time within recent weeks plastic has exploded in the Toronto area. John Home, an Oakville, Ont., salesman, was killed when a plastic bomb in suburban Weston factory where he was visiting, exploded Nov. 11.

6TH TYENDINAGA

90 Friends, Relatives Honor Young Couple With Many Gifts

6th Tyendinaga—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McKenzie was filled on a recent Tuesday evening when about 90 relatives, friends and neighbors assembled to honor Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mumby (nee Joy McKenzie), a table was filled with lovely and useful gifts as well as several envelopes with money.

An appropriate address signed on behalf of the community by Mrs. R. Boldrick, Mrs. A. Boldrick and Mrs. C. Goodman was read by Mrs. A. Boldrick, both Joy and Doug. thanked all for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them when they move in their new home.

Friends were present from Moira, Lonsdale, Shannonville, Belleville, Carrifton and Tyendinaga as well as the local community.

After refreshments all departed for their homes wishing Joy and Doug every happiness in their life together.

Mrs. J. Nash Holds Shower for Bride-Elect

Marmora—On Wednesday evening a shower was held at the home of Mrs. Jessie Nash, in honor of Miss Marjorie Wells, bride-elect.

About 15 girl friends joined in sending a bride's book, after which the gifts, which had been artistically arranged on a centred table in the dining room, were unwrapped by Marjorie. She expressed her thanks to her friends for the beautiful gifts.

Delicious refreshments were served.

MARMORA

2nd Fine Santa Claus Parade Sponsored by C of C

The second annual Santa Claus parade to be sponsored by the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, was held on Saturday afternoon, and drew a large concourse of children with their parents.

The children assembled at the Town Hall at 2 p. m. for a spectacular motion picture, after which the parade was formed, and led by Stirling Band, wended its way to the Christmas tree in Forsythe Street, in front of Dr. W. J. Donovan's residence. Here the treats were distributed by Santa Claus and his helpers, Major Percy Gray was in charge of the arrangements.

St. Andrew's United Sunday School Holds Christmas Party

Marmora—The annual Christmas party of St. Andrew's United Sunday School was held in St. Andrew's hall on Friday evening commencing with a supper served by the members of the Women's Association.

When tables had been cleared, carol singing was indulged in followed by two vocal numbers by the Euphonic Group. The primary children were next heard after which a picture "Christopher Moore Santa Claus" (for the first time in Canada) with James Sproul operating the machine, and Mrs. G. Young taking the reading, E. C. Wettlin, superintendent of the Sunday School, who was chairman for the evening, announced the issue of presents from the Christmas tree, to be interrupted by Santa Claus, who commanded a share in the act and who stayed to pass out the others treats to the children.

Sacos Roll Highest Score Of Season

Rolling what is claimed to be the highest score in any league this season, the Sacos of the Major "B" Tuesday League compiled 3647 points at the Recreation Alleys last night to defeat the "Our Gang" team 7-0.

High individual scores featured the Sacos' win. These were, Al. Hitchon, 824 (272-261-291), Verzo, 744 (290); J. Dunlop, 821 (253); J. Campbell, 791 (301, 257) and D. Batchelor, 667 (242).

In the other games, the Ontario Intelligencer Inkspots defeated the Pigeons 5-2 and Hibbard's Hillbillies defeated the Just Us team by 5-2 a score.

Sacos by virtue of their win last night, now hold a commanding lead at the head of the league standing.

The scores:—

Dr. A. Walters Guest Speaker At Legion Banquet

Tweed (Special) —The Tweed branch of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. held a most successful banquet recently in St. Carthagh's Hall. Approximately 150 members and guests were in attendance, President Carlha Cassidy presided.

The guest speaker was Dr. Austin Walters of Belleville, who was introduced by Comrade W. N. Hurst. Dr. Walters spoke on the set up of the R.C.A.M.C. hospital organization. He described vividly the work of No. 5 Canadian General Hospital in England, Sicily and on the Continent, delighting his audience with illustrations of humorous incidents in the campaigns in which the Canadian divisions took part. His address was heard by a most appreciative audience.

Dr. Walters was thanked in a brief speech by Comrade B. C. Dillon. Comrade "Len" Taylor, Past President, led the community singing, assisted by Miss Pauline O'Donnell at the piano. Miss O'Donnell delighted her listeners with two piano solos, and Miss Margaret Marchen and Alex Coyle rendered solos.

A major attraction of the evening was that of Lac. Hockaday and "Willie McGuire." Lac. Hockaday is a ventriloquist of note and his part of the program was received with enthusiastic applause.

Toast to King

The toast to the King was proposed by vice president Terrance Rashotte and that to the Legion was proposed by Dr. W. A. Paul and responded to by Comrade Stephen May of Northbrook Legion. Mr. May said in part: an evening of this nature makes one feel what Legion can do. It is our duty however to see that we put everything we can, heart, soul, and mind into our local legion. No matter how much we try to do things we cannot escape the fact that we are living, still, in very uncertain times. We must do all we can to support our Legion, not just when there's not much doing and the meetings are likely to be dull. In this way, we shall succeed. Legion life, to see that we enjoy real service in this earth.

CLASS CONFINED TO BARRACKS

London, Ont., Dec. 21—(CP)—An entire class of student pilots at Centralia R.C.A.F. station is confined to barracks as a disciplinary action following a display of low flying over this district a week ago Tuesday night, it was reported Tuesday. The pilot has not admitted his action and his identity has not been ascertained, it was said. The entire course is being kept on the station until the matter is settled.

COMMUNISM PAYS

Even the founding fathers of communism were put in the shadow of the adulation poured out for Stalin. Karl Marx never dreamed of such tributes Lenin appeared as a lesser apostle in comparison.

The Supreme Soviet Presidium set up new annual international Stalin peace prizes which seemed aimed at rivaling the Nobel Peace Prize. Each year from five to 10 persons will each receive 100,000 rubles (about $20,000) "for outstanding service in the cause of the struggle against warmongers and for strengthening peace."

Gifts Four In from Satellites

Tons of gifts, worth millions of dollars, were taken to Moscow from all the satellite countries.

Mao - Tse Tung, Chinese communist leader of 450,000,000 red subjects, brought with him to the Soviet capital an almost total victory in China as a birthday present, along with silk scrolls, sculptures and a new portrait of mania's tough-talking woman Foreign Minister, Anna Pauker, came too, to greet the mighty leader.

But Stalin was snubbed in Belgrade. The Yugoslavs were preparing to celebrate the founding of Tito's partisan army, which fought off the Nazis without much help from the Russians. That's tomorrow — the day after Stalin's birthday.

In an order of the day Marshal Tito said "The counter-revolutionary and hostile policy of the leaders of the Soviet Union and those of the cominform countries could not slow down or halt the victorious advance of our country."

Moscow (AP) — The United States sent birthday greetings to Prime Minister Joseph Stalin today.

Ambassador Alan G. Kirk sent the following message to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky:

"I have the honor on behalf of the government of the United States of America to request you to transmit to Generalissimo Stalin, chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R. best wishes on the occasion of his 70th birthday."

London, Dec. 21 — (Reuters)— Prime Minister Attlee today sent birthday greetings to Prime Minister Stalin through the British Ambassador in Moscow.

Attlee's message said: "Permit me to tender to you my greetings and congratulations on the 70th anniversary of your birthday and my best wishes for your continued good health."

$40,822 STOLEN FROM DAIRY BY 3 MASKED BANDITS

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 (AP)— With what police described as "military timing, three armed men held up and robbed the central branch office of Abbott's Dairies, Incorporated, of $40,822. The bandits entered the office Tuesday night and snatched the loot from an unlocked safe.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

"Well he talks as though the loss of your pearls was a personal matter and insists they will be found. I feel he's doing that just to throw us off the track."

Miss Whiting was silent for a moment. Then turning to her niece she said: "He has seemed quite concerned, but you must remember his hobby is the collection of jewels and anything like real estate, perhaps more than any one else, just what this means to me."

"I don't suppose I can realize it altogether." There was a faraway look in Ann's eyes that was beyond the understanding of Miss Whiting. "I've never really owned anything worth calling jewelry. For one thing, we never had a great deal of money for luxuries. Besides, I don't care for jewels, or at least I didn't."

Miss Whiting was watching her niece narrowly.

"Now, Ann, that I realize what it is to associate with people whose lives mean more than just one awful struggle for existence, and who have the means to gratify their every whim, I feel I'd love to have some."

"Well," said Miss Whiting, seeking to probe more deeply what was behind this talk, "I must get you some when we reach Paris. What are your favorite stones?"

"Oh, I love everything."

"Would you like to have some pearls?"

"Oh, pearls mean tears." Ann stopped abruptly and laughed nervously. "Well I never have brought you worry, haven't they? I suppose it's foolish to be superstitious, only I'd rather have something else."

"All right. Make up your mind and let me know. Now I think I'll take a little nap."

"Oh, I forgot! I haven't tired of you, but I felt I must tell you my suspicions about Mr. Harper," and Ann rose hurriedly.

Alone with her thoughts, Miss Whiting confessed that she was as much at sea as ever in the matter of her pearls. Although she had emphatically discredited Ann's suggestion about Mr. Harper, her words haunted her. She might do worse than take the hint.

"I don't believe a word that Mrs. Tracy says." Jim Riddell knocked the ashes off his cigar nervously, "I don't see how she dares say such things about Miss Lambert. Why should she bother about her, anyway?

Harry Harper shrugged his shoulders. "Well, we've got to get the pearls back to Miss Whiting. These fellows have been working pretty slickly, but there's a weak link in the chain. I want to find that."

"Are you quite sure these men are crooks? The older one seems quite a charming old chap I'd say, soon think of suspecting my father as him."

"We're absolutely certain about them. You know, now that this has come out, it appears that there have been quite a number of complaints about losses of jewels, but in most cases the carelessness of the passengers has been to blame. Now, however, there is a spirit of suspicion about and I feel certain that if we can get the suspects, we'll soon land the bunch. Of course there's not one person in a row that they know we are on to them, and, getting so near port, they may disgorge, and thereby get off the track by some clever stunt. I hardly believe they'll try to get ashore with them, because the news of their disappearance has been broadcast."

"Well, I think you've made a jolly good start and if I can help you, be sure and let me know." Jim lit a fresh cigar and went on deck, leaving Harper still the appointed hour to meet Ann.

The idea of any one ever having suspected her was outrageous Riddell was furiously angry with Mrs. Tracy. Even Miss Whiting had seemed to look at her niece from a new angle. And then — but that was rank folly. Who would believe it? Jim Riddell's firm jaw looked more aggressive. What was the use of beating about the bush any longer? Surely Mary would tell him today. Swinging around the deck he came face to face with Mary and Harper. There was an admiring look in her eyes. Swift jealousy awoke in his heart. She had promised to meet him.

Paused before him, Ann said to Harper, "shall we tell him?"

Harper looked at Jim. A moment Jim wondered what he was about to hear. Surely they were not—but Harper said unemotionally: "I guess he knows. We've just been talking about it."

Ann turned to Jim and her eyes were smiling. "Oh, won't it be wonderful if Mr. Harper can find the pearls!" There was a world of meaning in her words, for despite her aunt's refusal to consider Mr. Harper from her point of view, Ann still had decided doubts about his honesty.

I hope he does. It would certainly be a comfort to get your aunt How about that walk we were going to take?"

"I'll see you later," said Harper as he left them. His glance rested on Ann.

His words annoyed Riddell. Why couldn't he leave Ann alone? There was Mrs. Tracy for instance, who would no doubt be delighted with his attentions. Somehow his temper was ruffled. Harper was always in the way. But as they reached a secluded corner Ann laid her hand on his arm imploringly. "I don't think Mr. Harper has to find the pearls. All he has to do is return them." Ann's eyes snapped.

Jim Riddell covered her hand with his, His eyes opened wide. "Oh, is that how the land lies? I thought he was a very particular friend of yours."

"He's no friend of mine," returned Ann spiritedly. "Of course one can't be rude to a person on board ship, and utterly ignore him when you're bound to come across him several times a day, but I'll be glad when we reach Cairo. He's going to leave us there.

"So am I," remarked Jim quietly. "I didn't know that. What's up?"

"I just had a wireless and I've got to meet some men in Central Africa, so I'm afraid I won't get quite around the world on this trip. Don't you want to come with me?"

"How could I do that?"

"The Captain could marry us—unless you insist on a Church wedding."

"But—" Ann tried to withdraw her hand from his firm grasp.

"You're going to marry me, sweetheart, sooner or later. You know you love me. Why not do it now?"

"Oh, no. I never promised. Besides I can't. I really can't."

"Why not? Your aunt will be all right, Jenkins will take care of her."

"Oh, but—" Ann stopped suddenly as she realized she was shutting the door of happiness on herself. She must not let Jim see how much she cared. "Don't look so serious," she said. "Once you get back to work you'll forget all about this interlude." She laughed lightly, although her heart was breaking.

"Then you've only been playing with me?" Jim questioned harshly. "You mean to tell me you don't care for me? Have you forgotten what you told me in Hawaii? Ann's anger was rising. After all, was there some truth in what Mrs. Tracy had whispered about this girl.

Footfalls and girlish laughter heralded some one's approach. Meeting the angry glance of Jim's eyes, Ann murmured, "forget me," and quickly disappeared.

"Jenkins, please call Miss Lambert right away," ordered Miss Whiting one afternoon. For a moment Sir (CP)—Jenkins glanced at her mistress. No, she hadn't another heart attack. She was smiling and she looked once more at the letter that had just been handed to her.

"What is it, aunt Margaret?" questioned Ann excitedly as she entered the stateroom, Then as her aunt unwrapped a carefully done up package, she cried out: "Oh, you've got your pearls. How wonderful."

"Yes, it is, for I really never expected to see them again. See what Mr. Harper says," and she handed Ann his letter.

As Ann handed it back to her aunt, she said "Maybe I have misjudged the man." There was still a shadow of doubt in her voice. "But it seems strange that he should be the man to discover the crooks."

"Come, come," rallied Miss Whiting. "If you talk like that I'm afraid I'll have to give up my trip to his ranch, and miss seeing his collection—Rud precious and semi-precious stones."

"Oh, no, aunt Margaret. Of course we'll go. I can endure him for the short time we'll be there, especially as I might never have the chance of seeing a diamond mine again. Besides, after all your worry over this, you are entitled to some special pleasure and I'm sure his collection must be very interesting."

"Very well, I'll accept his invitation this very evening."

After Ann closed the door of her aunt's stateroom Miss Whiting wrote a note to Jr. Wilmot for she suddenly realized that the girl looked unusually pale. Of course the weather for the past few days had been unsettled, trying and perhaps her niece had even felt a bit upset by her confession toward her. She reproached herself for her doubts, determining that she would more than make up for them. Meanwhile no chance must be taken in the matter of her niece's health.

Flinging herself on the couch in her stateroom, Ann let a hard, little sob escape. Why had fate treated her thus? Her self-assurance came into her life only when the flame was about to be extinguished! Dr. Wilmot had assured her she could get better. For a while she believed him. Indeed she really felt better, but now—well, it didn't matter.

Life was all a muddle, anyhow. There was Mrs. Tracy. One day she had spoken to her as though she knew something about her impersonation, Miss Whiting had acted somewhat strangely of late, but then the loss of her pearls had evidently upset her. Besides Jenkins had told her about her aunt's heart attack. Suddenly Ann buried her face in her hands. What if anything should happen to her supposed aunt? What would she do? Jim had believed in her, but now she had shattered that belief. It had been cruel to hurt her heart to do it. But what else was there to do? If only things had been different. Once more she railed against the fate that was making such a sport of her life. Well, on the morrow Jim would leave the boat and pass out of her life, Ann's lips quivered. Rising, she began to dress for dinner. She was glad that Miss Whiting had decided to go to the dining room tonight.

Seventh Victim Of One Family Claimed by Fire

Emmet, Mich. Dec. 21—(AP)—Death Tuesday took its sixth and seventh victims of farmer Clarence Bellamy's family of 14.

As sorrowing townspeople gave aid in the Christmas week calamity, 80-year-old Grandma Louie, a heroine of Monday's fire, died with a grandchildren, Mary Lou, 13.

Both the elderly woman and the child died of burns in Port Huron General Hospital.

Five other children, ranging in age from 3 to 11, were burned to death when trapped in an upstairs bedroom in a pre-dawn blaze which destroyed the family home.

Grandma Louise Bellway was burned while rescuing one child. There were 11 children in the family.

Mary Lou and a brother, Joe, 8, leaped from a window. But both had been burned badly. Joe was reported in serious condition in hospital.

The tragedy stunned this little village of 2229 population.

Townsfolk concealed there was nothing they could do—nothing—to make this a merry Christmas for the survivors.

But the goal was to keep the remaining members of the family together and provide them a new home by Christmas day.

Patrick McCabe, the village banker, is heading a fund-raising drive.

An overheated stove was the cause of the fire, the sheriff's office said.

The grandmother had built a roaring fire in the stove and then gone back to bed. The fire was her morning chore.

MISSIONARY DIES

Rev. James Davidson, 76, died Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — A missionary in India for 40 years, suddenly Monday at his home here. A native of North Gwillimbury township, he was formerly minister of the Presbyterian Church at Stratford. He retired in 1943.

London Driver Robbed of $80

London, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP)—A London taxi driver was robbed of $80 Tuesday in the third holdup of its kind in the city within a month.

Ernest Minors, 36, said he was sitting in his cab at the Central and Adelaide stand about 2.35 a.m. when he was approached by a man who asked to be driven to Highbury and Oxford Streets.

As they got to that intersection, he felt a hard object pressing against his back. The holdup man then demanded and received Minors' wallet containing $80. He then instructed Minors to "get walking."

He walked about 100 feet and was picked up by a passing motorist who drove him to the Canadian Ordnance Depot on Highbury Avenue where he telephoned police.

Food Mission Chief Given Authority To Buy Cheese

$27,000,000 Allocated to be Spent by the British Govt.

Ottawa, Dec. 22—(CP) — Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British Food Mission, is understood to have received an important edict giving him authority to negotiate for as much as $27,000,000 worth of Canadian cheese in 1950.

This sum, total value of dollars the United Kingdom has set aside for purchase of cheese in North America next year, may all go to Canada if this country and the U.K. can agree on price.

Previously, it was believed that part of the money would be allocated to Canada with the remainder going to the United States.

However, as a result of discussions between Anglo-Canadian negotiators, Sir Andrew was understood to have cabled the British Ministry of Food, requesting authority to proceed on the basis of purchasing this entire $27,000,000 in Canada if Canadian prices could be lightened by about 3 cents a lb.

This sum would be almost twice the amount of money the U.K. spent for cheese in Canada this year. The 1949 contract called for the purchase of 140,000,000 pounds at 30 cents a pound.

With this new authority in his hands, Sir Andrew is negotiating both with the federal agriculture department and with processors in the cheese industry to bring Canadian prices down.

Wants 24 Cent Price

Sir Andrew is understood to be asking that the price be reduced to about 24 cents a pound. The agriculture department and the dairy industry are believed to be holding out for 27 cents.

If Anglo-Canadian agreement can be reached, it may mean that most of the expectable surplus of cheese next year may be shipped to the U.K. Canada is expected to produce some 130,000,000 pounds in 1950 of which more than 80,000,000 goes to the domestic market.

This would remove one of the government's big worry headaches. Currently, by supporting the price of cheese at 30 cents, the government is actually building up huge stock of more than 18,000,000 pounds of cheese in storage.

It hopes to age this cheese and sell it in the U.K. market but realizes it is certainly not that it can do so.

EPIDEMIC CLOSES SCHOOL

St. Catharines, Dec. 22 (CP)—An epidemi, of whooping cough in Niagara Township has forced one public school to close and may affect others. Dr. D. V. Bowlby, Welland-Lincoln Health, said Wednesday. The epidemic is believed to have started in the Rockhill Public School at St. David's and spread to the Virgil School, which will be closed after today.

THAMES RIVER AND TROUT CREEK OVERFLOWING

Merchants at St. Mary's Remove Stocks From Basements

St. Marys, Dec. 22 —(CP) Swollen by continuing rains, the Thames River and Trout Creek, which join in St. Marys, overflowed their banks this morning. Merchants in about every other function of two streams removed stocks from their stores in danger of being flooded if the river should continue to rise.

The Alabaster Park on East bank of Thames was completely flooded, the Thames having risen higher than the embankment which protects park area.

Water has already entered the cellar of the post office building, about 50 yards from the river and there was nothing of value stored in the cellar.

At a bridge on which No. 7 highway crosses the main stream in the East part of St. Marys, the river had risen to within about two feet of bridge floor at 8 a.m. The level of the river was close to bridge early Wednesday evening, winded slightly in early part of the night, and was rising again this morning.

Trucks have been set up in front of St. Marys retail stores during slight danger to move merchandise if the rise should continue. The stores in the danger area are on Queen St. and Water St.

Cellars in houses on Thomas St. had two feet of water in them, and the river water was within few inches of spilling across the street, which runs parallel to the Thames downstream from the main highway bridge.

Blamed For Two Deaths

Toronto—(CP) — Rain which continues to drench southern Ontario is blamed indirectly for two deaths.

Stanley O'Dell, 22, was drowned in a ditch near London early today when his car overturned at a culvert outlet, trapping the man and his bride of four days. His wife, the former Gloria Essig, 21, of London, escaped with cuts. Her screams attracted the passing motorist.

A few hours after being hit by a truck while crossing a rain-swept street in Toronto's west end, Fred Jones, 70, died Wednesday night in hospital.

While heavy weather and snow flurries are forecast for most sections of southern Ontario today, rain-swollen rivers are bringing flood threats to several southwestern Ontario areas, including

Toronto Has Warmest Dec. 22 On Record

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)— The thermometer soared to 53 here today at 10 a.m., the highest temperature ever recorded in Toronto on Dec. 22, the weather bureau reported. Highest previous temperature was 50 degrees on Dec. 22, 1895.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Synopsis—A deep depression moved rapidly from Texas to the Lower Lakes has developed into an intense storm. Gales and snow flurries winds with rain over Southern Ontario today are now or freezing rain over Northern Ontario. As this storm moves northeastward into Quebec today colder air will spread across Ontario accompanied by strong northwest winds and snow. Over Southern Ontario away from the lakes only snowflurries are expected but in the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay regions considerable snow with heavy drifting is likely tonight and Friday.

2 NEW JUSTICES SUPREME COURT NAMED BY P.M.

McNaughton Appointed To Joint Commission

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)—The appointment of two new justices to the Supreme Court of Canada and of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton to the International Joint Commission was announced today by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The announcements were made at a half-hour press conference in his east block offices.

The new justices are Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Montreal division of the Quebec Superior Court and John R. Cartwright, deputy chief justice Tax Appeal Board.

They fill two new posts created by legislation passed at the last session of the Commons to make the Supreme Court of Canada the final court of appeals. Their appointments raise the membership of the court to nine.

The Prime Minister also announced proclamation of the set up Monday of the Canadian tribunal for Canada and establishing appeals to the Privy Council in all future litigation.

Gen. McNaughton, Canada's permanent representative to the United Nations in New York, will take over the chairmanship of the Canada's term as a member of the Security Council of United Nations next year.

Mr. St. Laurent also:

1. Said Canada will not take any action on recognition of the Chinese Communists before the Commonwealth conference in Ceylon Jan. 9.

2. Said the government's trade plans are based on the assumption that 1950 will be as good a year for Canadian exports as 1949.

Expires Dec. 31

Mr. St. Laurent also announced that Gen. McNaughton will retain his posts as chairman of the Canadian United States Joint Defence Board and Canadian member of the Canada-United States Joint Defence Board.

Gen. McNaughton will retain his posts as chairman of the Canada-United States Joint Defence Board and Canadian member of the Canada-United States Joint Defence Board.

The Prime Minister also announced that Gen. McNaughton will retain his posts as chairman of the Canada-United States Joint Defence Board and Canadian member of the Canada-United States Joint Defence Board.

'Injustice' Done Railways By Transport Bd. Decision In Freight-Rate Case

Supreme Court Ruling:

By JOHN LEELAND
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 22 — (CP) — An "injustice" was done the railways in the Sept. 20 freight-rate decision of the Board of Transport Commissioners, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

The high court issued an opinion that the board had failed to perform its duty in awarding the railways only eight per cent or a requested 20-per-cent general rate increase and deferring final settlement of the application until later.

Effect of the court ruling, while it does not upset the board's decision, will be to bring about a review of the award by the transport commissioners, who form the government's regulatory body for the railroads.

The board could rewrite its decision to leave the eight-per-cent increase in effect; it could grant a larger increase; or it might reopen the case for the reception of more evidence by the railways and the provinces opposed to freight-rate boosts.

A five-man panel of the court headed by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret handed down a unanimous 3,600 word decision in the case, which was brought before it by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The Canadian National Railways, which had joined the C.P.R. and other lines in the original application, did not participate in the appeal.

Chief grounds for the C.P.R. contention that the board had failed in its statutory duty were declarations in the commissioners' judgment that final determination of the rate case was being postponed pending the outcome of the current royal commission inquiry into transportation and certain rate studies being made by the board itself.

Meanwhile the railways were awarded the eight per cent as an "interim" increase.

The Supreme Court judgment, written by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, was concurred in by the other four justices, accepted the C.P.R. view that the board's independent studies and the royal commission proceedings were irrevelant to the 20-per-cent rate case.

U.S. Egg Prices Benefit By Govt. Support at 37 Cents

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP) — The United States Government's support program for 1950 will seek to keep the national average farm price of eggs — graded and ungraded — from falling to less than 37 cents a dozen.

By comparison, prices of all eggs — both graded and ungraded — have averaged about 45 cents this year.

Under this year's support program the agriculture department bought next-run, ungraded eggs in the mid-western surplus producing area at 33 cents a dozen. In general, these eggs would meet most grading requirements because of delays in getting them to market.

The department did not buy graded eggs, which, of course, sold much higher on the consumer markets.

The department has not yet decided whether its support program next year will be operated in the same manner as this year. It found that merely by-buying eggs in the form at dried eggs from processors, it removed enough of the surplus supply to keep the average farm price of all eggs at 37 cents.

It may decide to continue to buy mid-western ungraded eggs in dried form, but to support the price for such eggs probably would be between 33 and 28 cents a dozen as compared with 33 cents this year.

It may decide to buy graded shell eggs. In such case, the support price would be higher than for ungraded because graded eggs—being of much better quality—command higher consumer prices.

Egg prices vary sharply from region to region and from season to season.

Even while the government has been buying next-run, ungraded eggs in the mid-west at 33 cents, farm prices in other parts of the country have been more than 50 cents. Only one to be higher in areas where local production is insufficient to meet consumer demands.

SHIP EXPLODES BUT 11-MAN CREW ESCAPES INJURY

Members Adrift 15 hrs. In Small Lifeboat

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 22 — (CP) — The 11-man crew of the small freighter Keltic took it many a 15-hour row in a lifeboat following the loss of their ship.

The 322-ton Keltic caught fire and exploded just before midnight Tuesday after Mrs. No one was injured. The Keltic met her fate off the southern coast of the Avalon Peninsula and no word of her loss reached the world until the crew arrived late Wednesday.

Fire broke out in the Keltic's boiler room while she was on her way to Carbonear, Nfld., from St. Pierre with a cargo of coal. Some 40 minutes after the crew abandoned ship, the Keltic blew up and sank in a hail of debris rendered by heavy black smoke.

Capt. Walter Myatin of North Sydney, N.S., a massive, 287-pound man, said a leaky oil pipe might have caused the fire.

Rowed 35 Miles

The men rowed some 35 miles to Point La Haye and then were taken in tow by fishermen in dories.

Second Engineer Calvin White of Stephenville, Nfld., had to be wrapped in a sail to keep him from freezing.

White held his place at the oars with his companions despite their anxious period. Capt. Myatin said they were "pretty tired." He said there was no panic whatever at the time of the fire or afterwards but that there was some confusion because it was so dark.

The Keltic was owned by Breton Shipping Company of Sydney, N.S., and was built at Collingwood, Ont., in 1943. All crew members are Newfoundland-born.

Labor Party Wins in Jamaica By Small Majority

Kingston Jamaica, Dec. 22 (CP) — William Bustamante's Labor party will form Jamaica's government for the next five years. Returns flooding in from Tuesday's election gave the party 17 of the 32 house of representatives seats.

The rival People's National party gained 13 seats and independents two. One seat remains uncertain—Sir Harold Allan, former finance minister—said he would again support Bustamante.

The P.N.P. gained support in Kingston, capturing five of the six seats, but Bustamante found heavy support in the country areas.

The Labor party has held a commanding majority in the house since the 1944 election.

More than 70 per cent of the 330,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

It appeared that two ministers of Hyman's Labor government, C. and E. R. D. Evans, agriculture, —had lost their seats in Kingston.

The net operating revenue was $5,493,000. In November, 1948, revenues were $44,812,000; expenses $37,945,000 and the net operating revenue $6,887,000.

Three Youths Held By Police Probing Bludgeon Slaying

Trio Unsuccessfully Tried To Enter U.S. at Buffalo

Welland, Dec. 22 (CP)— Provincial Police investigating the bludgeon-slaying of taxi driver Sam Delibaich said today that three district youths are being held for questioning.

The youths were taken into custody at Hamilton and brought here early today. Police released their names as Edward Winter, 21, of Welland; Raymond Thill, 21, of nearby Crowland; and Harry Cherniak, 25 also of Crowland.

Delibaich's frozen and battered body was found in a field a few miles north of here Saturday by rabbit hunters. He had been missing since Dec. 9. His taxicab was recovered later Saturday in downtown Toronto.

Inspector Declines Details

Inspector Charles Wood, in charge of the slaying investigation told reporters that the youths were being held "pending investigation" but he declined to give details.

However, it was learned that the youths tried unsuccessfully to enter the United States but refused to answer questions. Customs officials, suspicious of Fort Erie police, who called investigators here.

The youths boarded a train for Welland but did not get off here. Police took them off the train at Hamilton and charged them with vagrancy.

Take Two Full Hot Water Bottles On Trip to New York

London, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Add British exports to the United States: water.

Mindful of the drought in New York's Catskill Mountains, Ted Malone carried two hot water bottles with him aboard the westbound plane today.

"We're taking it so we can have a shave," he explained Malone. "We arrive there on 'dry Friday'."

New Yorkers were asked to give up bathing and shaving each Friday because a long dry spell had reduced water reserves to a dangerously low level.

FIFTY FIREMEN SICKENED BY SMOKE, FUMES

Fire Occurs in Arsenal and Guards Posted by F.B.I. Agents

Philadelphia, Dec. 22 — (AP)— Fifty firemen were sickened today as they struggled through smoke and acrid fumes to extinguish a fire in an experimental building at the Frankford arsenal.

A cloak of secrecy was thrown around the windowless, three-storey structure by arsenal guards and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Fifty firemen were summoned shortly before midnight to aid the arsenal's own firefighters. Four hours later, authorities said the blaze was extinguished and the building cleared of fumes.

No details of the cause or damage were given, however.

Firemen were hampered in their efforts by the fact the building interior consists of a number of small, tight compartments, at least some of which are lined with heavy sound plating.

Workers using air hammers drilled several holes in the concrete roof of the building to release smoke and fumes.

The Frankford arsenal is a sprawling government establishment in the northeastern section of Philadelphia and consists of a number of buildings used in the manufacture and testing of ammunition.

Flooded Ditch Cause of Death Of Bridegroom

London, Ont., Dec. 22—(CP)— Rains that drenched most of southwestern Ontario Wednesday bringing flood threats to some towns, were indirectly responsible early today for the drowning of a bridegroom whose car when his car overturned in a flooded ditch.

Stanley O'Dell, 23, of nearby Glanworth and his bride, the former Gloria Essig, 21, of London were trapped in the auto but escaped when rescued by a passing motorist heard her screams. She escaped with lacerations.

Motorist tried unsuccessfully to revive O'Dell with an inhalator. Police early today said on Wellington Road two miles south of London, struck the muddy shoulder of the road and ran to a ditch at a culvert outlet.

Meanwhile, at St. Marys, on the north branch of the Thames River were preparing to clear cellars and stores when the rain-swollen river started to subside late last night. The water was about six feet above normal and cellars of some houses were flooded.

Scientists Consider Planting Robot 'Saboteurs' to Guide Missile to Target

Washington, Dec. 22—(AP)—Military scientists are considering the possibility of installing robot electronic "saboteurs" in a hostile city to steer a guided missile to a target.

A hint of this was contained in a pamphlet issued today by the United States defence department's research and development board. It is a new edition of the "Glossary of Guided Missile Terms."

The reference was tucked away in a technical discussion of "semiactive homing guidance" in which a missile seeks out a target that has been illuminated from a source other than the missile".

As untangled from such gobbledygook, this explained that one expert, this means that a missile follows a radar beam from a transmitter, either in the air or pointed at, a city or factory. In the case of pointing, the radar beam is aimed at the target and reflected off at an angle. The missile would "ride" the beam of this reflected radar impulse and then blast the target with an atomic or conventional warhead.

The "saboteur" transmitter to illuminate the target for the electronic eyes of the approaching missiles could be dropped by agents.

However, variations of this plan also are possible, among them the use of a "pathfinder" plane to fly high above and beyond an enemy city with a fleet of missiles could be headed for the target, following a radar beam sent back across the target by the pathfinder plane.

Scientists are making progress toward development of missiles which will cross the oceans and continents, but there has been less progress in developing a missile which could pin-point even a large city at those ranges. In the final phase of flight, a device to "home" the missile in to the exact target will be necessary.

An indication of one line of research toward means of keeping missiles on course over distances of several thousand miles was mentioned in the pamphlet's discussion of "celestial navigation" methods for guiding missiles.

Using this method, the rocket is equipped with instruments which automatically read the stars, much as a sailor navigates a ship. The electronic brain uses the position of a star to control the course of the rocket.

Disappearance Of Patient Causes Concern

St. Thomas, Dec. 22 — (CP)— Officials at the Ontario Hospital here today refused to say they are concerned over the disappearance of a privileged patient, Vivian Bullock, 56, who left the hospital grounds Sunday and was last seen on a road south and east of the hospital.

The patient was believed to be starting for his home in Toronto but relatives there have not seen the man.

Bullock is described as being of medium build with gray hair combed straight back with a slight limp and also an impediment of speech resulting from a paralytic stroke suffered some years ago. He was wearing a gray cap, black overcoat, blue serge trousers and light blue windbreaker, police said this morning.

Officials fear that in his wanderings he may have suffered another paralytic stroke.

Finds Both Rental Cars are Stolen

Miami Beach., Fla., Dec. 22 — (AP) — Jim Kiley rented an automobile and parked it.

His business finished, he entered what he thought was the rented Miami. Two auto theft men had him for driving a car reported stolen.

Kiley convinced police he got into the wrong rental car by mistake. The cars were identical in make and color. Even the ignition keys fitted.

Police said they were "so sorry." Kiley smiled with relief and went back to pick up his original car.

His smile didn't last. That car had been stolen, too.

Trainman Killed Trying to Stop Runaway Cars

Merritt, B.C., Dec. 22 — (CP)— A trainman was killed Wednesday night in an attempt to stop a half-a runaway string of cattle cars on the Canadian Pacific Railway, four miles west of here.

The victim was H. J. Hagerness, 51, of Brookmere, B.C., who was thrown from the engine footboard and crushed under one of the cars.

The cattle cars, which broke loose from a yard engine, rolled for miles on a downgrade and crashed into a freight train. Four of the cattle cars and the engine of the freight were derailed.

The yard engine was pushing the cars when they broke loose. It gave chase and was within 50 feet of the runaway cars when the crash occurred.

Hagerness was standing on the footboard, ready to help couple the cars. He was crushed by a rebounding cattle car. The other trainmen escaped injury.

Merritt is 218 miles northeast of Vancouver.

Old Custom of Personal Gifts In Royal Household is Revived

RELIEF PLANE USED

London, Dec. 22 (CP)— A woman with 200 stockings to settle Christmas is Mrs. J. M. Ferguson, wife of a pilot on the Queen's personal flight.

The stockings are those of every man and woman on the household staffs of the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace and Sandringham. Their Majesties have a gift for each one — and Mrs. Ferguson buys them.

This year, for the first time since pre-war days, the King has decreed that the old custom of personal gifts shall be revived in place of the wartime practice of distributing them.

The gifts are handed personally by the King and Queen to their servants at two distributions. One will be at the palace just before they leave London for their Norfolk estate. The second will be at Sandringham on the afternoon of Christmas Day. Immediately after the King has made his broadcast to the Commonwealth.

Every present contains a personal goodwill message from the King and Queen.

FARRAR'S FURNITURE STORE STAFF HONOR THEIR EMPLOYER

The staff of Farrar's Furniture honored their employer Bert Farrar at their annual Christmas party at Golden Acres Inn on Tuesday evening.

During the evening Bert was presented with a gift from his employees who wished him every success and happiness in the coming year.

Santa Claus and his two helpers were in attendance and presented gifts to everyone.

LOCAL MOTORISTS BETTER STOCK UP

Local motorists who expect to do considerable driving over the Christmas holiday period had better tank up with gasoline before the holiday or they may find themselves unable to purchase the required amount.

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators have decided that they also will observe Christmas and to make this possible gasoline service stations in the city and district will be closed from Saturday evening at nine o'clock until noon on Monday.

AN ERROR

An error occurred in the advertisement of Angus McFee that appeared in last night's paper listing electric shavers. Sunbeam Shavemaster was quoted in the ad as $23.95 whereas the correct price should have read $26.75. .

POLICE BLOTTER

Local youths are believed responsible for a break-in at the Crane and Transit Company office at the rear of Loblaw's store. Entrance was gained through a window but investigation by police revealed that nothing had been taken.

Police picked up a transient, much the worse from intoxicants, who was panhandling at the various restaurants on Front Street.

Reid's Dairy Entertains to Turkey Dinner

The co-owners of Reid's Dairy, Mr. Leonard Reid, Mr. Fred Reid and Mr. Frank Reid, entertained their employees to a delicious turkey dinner on Monday evening at Lattimer's Town Room. There were some 23 present.

Mr. Leonard Reid spoke on behalf of the management, paying tribute to those who have worked so diligently and in co-operation with the management during the past year. At this time, the annual Christmas bonus cheques were presented to each member of the staff.

Mr. Ray Poole replied briefly on behalf of the milk salesmen and Mr. Jack Stewart extended thanks on behalf of the men, who work inside the dairy.

Various other members also expressed their sincere thanks and all members paid fitting tribute by three singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

TRENTON

Councillor Will Be Honored On Retirement

Trenton—(Special)—As suitable recognition for a job well done and three years of untiring service as a member of the Trenton town council Gerald Weaver who retired recently from the board will be honored at a dinner some time within the coming week according to Mayor Kenneth Couch today.

The mayor and the councillors will be present at the farewell banquet, when ex-councillor Weaver will be presented with a token of appreciation from his council friends, on behalf of a grateful municipality.

On Thursday, December 29th, the town council will hold a caucus to select committee and elect committee chairmen for the coming year.

American Optical Holds Enjoyable Christmas Party

One of the most enjoyable Christmas parties held this season took place in the Recreation Hall of the American Optical Company, Canada, Ltd., in its new plant at the corner of Wellington and Bridge St. West.

Upwards of 125 employees of the company and their children were entertained in a typical Christmas atmosphere, with management and employees mingling in holiday camaraderie and Yuletide spirit.

There was a huge Christmas tree, the conventional Santa Claus, and appropriate entertainment.

Mrs. Ida Fraser, member of the plant personnel entertained the children with the Christmas story, assisted by Santa Claus on a flannelboard. The "sweetest story ever told" unfolded in interesting sequence and was greatly enjoyed by not only the kiddies but the parents as well. Melvin Fraser son of Mrs. Fraser, offered a recitation, which was well received.

Then came the great moment. The kiddies thronged about the beautifully-decorated tree to see a jovial Santa distributed gifts to all. Later they were given candies and other holiday goodies.

Refreshments were served at the end of the program ending in another enjoyable "Optical" Christmas party.

Bill Colcough as master of ceremonies led the Christmas sing-song. The 10-15 Club was in charge of the refreshments and did an excellent job as did the Social and Service Club which prepared and "tagged" the many gifts.

Heavy Offering Of Fowl on Local Market

With only two more days until Christmas there was a heavy offering of fowl on local produce market today. Also there seemed to be a fairly large attendance by city purchasers.

Price of Christmas turkey ranged all the way from 53 cents per pound for undrawn to as high as 65 cents for drawn hen turkeys. The general price, however was from 60 to 65 cents per pound.

There was an especially heavy offering of ducks and geese with the general price for geese being 60 cents and ducks selling at 65 cents per pound.

The price for chicken ranged from 40 cents to 45 cents the latter price being asked for spring capons.

Egg prices have levelled off at 40 cents per dozen for firsts with mediums bringing 38 cents and pullets 33 cents.

There was again a fairly large offering of Christmas trees for the late shopper, prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.25.

Delicious apples sold at 40 cents the basket with apys selling at 50 cents per basket. Carrots and parsnips were 30 cents the half peck with cooking onions fetching 30 cents for the same quantity.

COL. REISTAD DIES

Oslo, Dec. 22 — (AP) — Colonel Ole Reistad, 51, commander-in-chief of Norway's Northern Air Command, died today at his home near Oslo. Col. Reistad served as chief of the Norwegian Air Force training camp, "Little Norway," at Toronto, during the war.

Deacons Hold Christmas Party For the Staff

The management and employees of Deacon Brothers Limited held their annual Christmas party at Tuesday night.

Chartered buses conveyed employees and guests to Tobe's County Gardens where 140 people sat down to a most enjoyable turkey dinner.

During the dinner community singing of Christmas carols was led by Mr. John Deacon.

The program opened with a few remarks by the president Mr. Fred H. Deacon and was followed by a violin solo by Freda Daley, a skit called "Elsies and Kisses" and a whistling selection by Mr. Cal Nelson.

Speeches were heard from Mr. E. R. Hinchey, Mr. J. W. Thompson, and Mr. John Deacon who concluded his remarks by singing two numbers accompanied by Mrs. Mary Deacon at the piano.

Several humorous gifts were presented to various employees by Mr. F. H. Deacon.

Entertainment was heralded in by the singing of "Jingle Bells" and he distributed the gifts under the Christmas tree.

A most enjoyable evening was drawn to a close with the singing of "Good Night Ladies".

Turkey House Closely Guarded To Save Birds

Clayton Hermon and hired man, Fred Wilson of Trent Road, have been keeping a 24-hour armed vigil over their turkey coop since last Thursday night. The guard started when Mr. Hermon found that someone had entered through the door on the turkey house, where some 200 choice birds are hanging dressed awaiting delivery to the local markets.

Mr. Hermon said that his coop was entered last year and 16 chickens were killed and carried off to a waiting truck across the field. Footprints in the plowed field between the coop and the roadway were found indicating that the thieves had still a fast getaway when their presence was detected.

"It won't happen again this year," warned Mr. Hermon dropping a shell in the chamber of his 12 gauge shotgun.

The police have been co-operating with the Hermons and patrol the roadways around their farm as many as three different times during the night. Mrs. Hermon carries food and drink while she is guarding the fowl.

A part of the coop has been turned into a guard room and the three watchers relieve each other off in shifts during the day and night. A cot has been set up in the room and a telephone installed phone installed on the wall in case it would be necessary to call police. A small iron stove provides the heat for the long hours of vigilance.

Police Handing Out Special Cards On Safe Driving

In keeping with their campaign for an accident free Christmas holiday, members of the Belleville Police Department this week are handing out special cards to motorists extending season's greetings and also carrying an appeal for safe driving over the holiday.

The greeting card asks drivers to assist in preventing accidents resulting in injury and property damage by watching out for pedestrians, especially children crossing streets; to observe all "stop" signs and traffic signals; to park properly near the curb; to refrain from double parking and to drive carefully at reduced speed.

The cards are being placed under windshield, wipers or cars parked on local streets and other methods will be used to effect as wide a distribution of the cards as possible.

David Hollinger Re-elected Pres. Holstein Breeders

David L. Hollinger, Stirling, was re-elected president of the Hastings County Holstein Breeders' Association at their annual meeting held at Stirling. Vice President of the Association is Max Burnside, Madoc, with A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative, as secretary treasurer. Honorary president is Ronald Longwell, Foxboro.

No decision was made by the members with respect to the location for the annual Black and White day, this being left to a future date when invitations will be considered from the Madoc and Belleville Agricultural Societies. Discussions included a field day, a twilight meeting and the annual bus trip.

Roy Ormiston, Holstein fieldman for the district, led in a discussion on the use of extended registries. This was a considerable discussion on R.O.P. and it was finally decided the club would go on record urging more breeders to enter R.O.P. It was the feeling that the purebred breeders could afford not to be on R.O.P.

Anson Equal Amount

A resolution was also passed urging all clubs who exhibit at the championship show at Peterborough be asked for an equal amount to finance the show. The club felt it was unfair that some clubs be assessed twice as much as others, especially when those clubs were in a position selling a very large number of cattle to the United States during past years.

John Tamblyn, sales agent, was congratulated for his 1949 effort and was re-hired. The auditor's report showed club turnover of $915.

Directors — Howard Finch, Tweed; Frederick Everatt, Stirling; Phil Carr, Stirling; James Hinds, Madoc; Bernard J. Hunt, Tweed; Malicka Cassidy, Tweed; Harry Neal, Marmora; Stewart Mundy, Marmora; Earl Burnside, Madoc; W. Kenneth Lindsay, Madoc; Donald Campbell, Foxboro; James Reynolds, Foxboro; Allan B. McComb, Belleville; Chas. Prentice, Plainfield; Carl Thompson, Corbyville; Joe E. Walas, Shannonville, and H. R. Chadwick, Deseronto Auditor is Hugh Gray, Belleville R. R. 3.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)— Industrials led all groups into higher ground as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Gains ranging from fractions to two points were scattered among market leaders.

Volume for the first three hours was 596,000 shares.

Canada Cement bounded ahead in Industrials for a gain of two points at a new high at 38 3-4. International Paper, new added 1 5-8 at 38 5-8 and Page Hersbey Tubes was 3-4 at 47 1-4. Steels, utilities, paper, liquors and food issues were higher.

A few issues featured a stronger gold list. Malartic Gold fields turned over some 35,000 shares in three hours for a gain of 25 cents at $3.40 and a new high at $3.60. Seniors, leaders in Wednesday's advance, were largely ignored.

Western oils finally overcame profit-taking on recent advance to chalk up moderate gains. Federated Petroleum highlighted the list, adding 14 cents at a new top at $1.94.

Base metals showed the smallest advance. Sherritt Gordon gained 19 cents at $2.40 and Consolidated Smelters and Noranda were up fractions.

Talk on Bakelite Industry Given Cost Accountants

The regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario was held at the Shrine Club in typical Christmas surroundings last Monday.

A special dinner was served to the twenty members and guests present.

The chairman welcomed those present and remarked that, as is usual at the Christmas meeting, he trusted that those present would avail themselves of the social benefits of the club.

Ray Lennox introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. John Buchan, works manager, of the Bakelite Corporation of Canada Limited.

Chemical Resin

Mr. Buchan's subject: The Bakelite Industry was a story of chemical research and development. He explained that Bakelite is a synthetic chemical resin. To commercialize the resin it was necessary to control the reaction. The product developed by Bakelite was a non-colored resin powder produced from coal tar and formaldehyde gas. The resin powder can be hardened to infusible products of infinite uses, of which a few are: plywood sealer; electric light bases, plugs, sockets; rock wool cushioning in insulating batts; spar varnish and distributor caps in motor vehicles.

The Dehaviland Mosquito bomber in the early war years owed much to the Bakelite industry in the use of Bakelite in strengthening the wooden fuselage.

The plant at Gibson Crossing is the result of careful planning both as to location and in the use of modern plant equipment. It is the aim of the company said Mr. Buchan to become a leader and asset to the community.

Bill Cronin formally thanked the speaker and spoke for the Chapter in assuring Mr. Buchan that their company's choice of the Belleville site was a promising milestone in the history of the city.

Chairman Les Leonox thanked the speakers and later further social good fellowship followed before adjourning for the evening.

THAMES RIVER

St. Marys, Strathroy and Wallaceburg.

At London the Thames today stood at eight feet six inches above normal, but still more than 19 feet below the top of a breakwater protecting thousands of west London homes. Officials said the river was at the highest December level ever recorded.

Riverside parks and flatlands in London were under water, but no damage was reported. It was expected a fall in temperature would ease the flood threat.

The Pottersburg River at Strathroy, eight feet higher than normal, flooded Alexander Park. Both ends of a bridge spanning the river were under water.

The rain was halted in the Toronto area as relieving a farm water shortage that had become severe in recent weeks. W. M. Coburn, York County agricultural representative, said the rain would raise the level of wells and creeks.

Many Visitors From Other Lands Guests of Hotel Quinte This Year

Proving conclusively that a good hotel is literally the "crossroad" of the world, travellers and visitors from no less than 21 different countries were registered at the Hotel Quinte within the past year.

Many of the guests at the local hotel were travellers, while others were visitors to Canada.

"We have had visitors from far off lands, from Europe, South America and from many of the European countries" one guest when they are passing through the city," stated hotel manager Emery "Shorty" Ladbery.

Offer Good Accommodation

"We can't compete in size with some hotels in the large cities, but we can compete in the hotel rating, good food and in satisfied customers."

And all this is recognized in the October edition of Carling's "Hospitality" magazine which has devoted a two-page story and pictures regarding Belleville's Hotel Quinte.

The article reads that the accommodation offered at the Hotel Quinte beckons people who prize quiet living, handsome surroundings, and a cuisine of the nicest. It notes that Belleville's Hotel Quinte gives them all, with the addition of excellent food.

Ninety per cent of the patronage at the Hotel Quinte is commercial and it is more likely to include top notch business executives. "Parties are definitely discouraged," says manager La-Barr, "the Quinte is a place where guests can be assured of a quiet night's rest and this sort of thing is important in businessmen."

Long service on the part of employees is the rule rather than the exception at the Quinte, Mr. LaBarr has been with the hotel for 21 years; the chef has been with the hotel for an equal length of time. The housekeeper has 20 years service and 15 is a minimum with many of the employees.

Can Seat 194 Diners

In the spacious and well appointed dining room strict attention is paid to attractive table settings. Seating capacity is 104, and can be raised to 160 for banquet service. The hotel is operated on a Dominion-Provincial plan, meals being included in the daily rates.

Built in 1907, the Hotel Quinte's present owner is G. L. Jenkins, who is the son of the late A. Jenkins, the original proprietor.

Petition Against School Area System Presented by Sidney Taxpayers

Sharply increased township school area taxes are causing dissatisfaction on the part of many Sidney township ratepayers who have presented a petition to council asking for a by-law to revert to the former system of schools.

The petition, signed by over a thousand township ratepayers, was presented at the December session of council. The matter was laid over for consideration by the 1950 council.

9.3 Mills Rate

Area school taxes which this year amounted to 9.3 mills created a debenture charge of another 1.5 mills, are the basis for the dissatisfaction on the part of ratepayers, but there is also a claim that some schools in the school area are not being looked after as well as they were under the former system, each school section had its own school trustees.

Under the school area system which went into effect in 1946, a board of five school trustees looks after all of the 18 public schools in the area.

"Understand, we are not blaming the board of trustees for spending money foolishly," stated one spokesman for the ratepayers. "We feel that the school area system is unwieldy and that the schools would be better looked after by separate boards."

Says Costs Over Double

This spokesman said his school tax in 1945 was $74.00. Today his area tax totals 9.3 mills or nearly three times that figure. The school area rate in 1946 was 5.9 mills.

The school area debenture charge of 1.5 mills is the result of the construction of a new school in S.S. No. 3 just west of Belleville. An addition to another school in the area will be necessary shortly, it was stated.

Besides the cost, a feeling on the part of ratepayers the area tax set up is even higher.

Even in No. 3 school section where the school addition will soon be complete, the petition to revert to the former system was largely signed by the ratepayers, it was stated.

The reason for presenting the petition to council before the end of the year was to allow council time to hold a vote on the question at the annual election, if this was considered necessary.

Present Different Picture

But members of the township school area board present rather a different picture.

They point out that the cost of everything in connection with education has greatly increased. This includes teachers' salaries, school supplies, heating, construction costs and repairs. They point out also that under the former system many of the school sections furnished nothing by way of pupils' supplies.

Prior to the township school area going into effect two years ago the average mill rate for the 18 schools in the area was 4.6 mills. In some cases the individual mill rate was lower than the average figure, while in others it was higher.

School area trustees feel that under the former system the mill rate for individual schools would be as high and possibly higher than it is at present.

And as a concluding argument school area trustees claim that about 60 percent of the province is now under the school area system.

Would be Backward Step

Public School Inspector R. H. Mathews feels it would be a step backward if Sidney township was to revert to the former school section system. He said that a supervising school principal could operate much more efficiently for the entire school area than each school section could individually.

He pointed out also that the 1.5 debenture charge this year did not represent the true annual rate as this included a charge for the year 1948.

In any event the entire matter is expected to be discussed from all angles at the nomination meeting Monday, December 26th.

2 NEW JUSTICES

Date for the next session of parliament has not yet been fixed. He hoped it would be possible to call the session early in the New Year so that the commercial treaties now likely to include top notch business executives. Rainbow Over Toronto

A rainbow appeared over Toronto at 8 A.M. but weather experts said it offered little promise of clearing skies. They said the rain, moving eastward from southwestern Ontario, would drench Toronto, which has had showers and drizzle off and on for three days. The forecast of colder weather and snowflurries held out hope of snow for Christmas in the Toronto area where lawns and streets are bare.

DECORATIONS FOR THE HOMES

Homes are getting ready these past few days for the festival of Christmas with which the evergreen has been for ages associated. Its choice was fitting because it is a lasting green and in the dark and chill of winter the shapeliness and the exquisite coloring of the tree sets it apart as a tree fitting to play an important role in the events associated with Christmastide.

This country possesses a real wealth in its evergreen trees and the annual harvest of the trees for Christmas-time is very large.

In the landscape of a winter's day they speak of life and hope and in the home, the family's sanctuary at Christmastime, these Christmas trees are the centre of the happy event, the high festival which is associated with the midwinter feast. No natural object could be more suitable as the centre of these gatherings which take place about the spruce, and other varieties of evergreen which go under the name of Christmas tree.

Our trees are popular with others besides us. They have found their way year after year in large quantities to the United States farther south into Mexico.

Many thousand trees are cut to serve for decorations at the height of the winter season, when nature herself is about to change and the dead of winter to set in and a new year soon to be observed. They make millions of people happy, and those children are in their earliest years learning to admire the graceful evergreen, symbol of life and beauty. These trees' lives are not as long as the secular monarchs of the forest but they serve mankind richly with their beauty and grace, their color and suggestion of life.

Their perpetual verdure is their main attraction while the rich scent of their gum is known to everyone. They carry the suggestion of life unending, of resurrection and perpetual remembrance. They are that great group of plants which in their association with man remains through out the year. It is not a matter of wonder that they are so favored for the Christmastide celebration.

WORLD BENEFACTOR

Lord Boyd Orr who is this year's winner of the Nobel Prize for Peace is described as a rugged Scotsman who takes a challenge or aggression as the most casual acquaintance as it was pointed out in a talk over the BBC by Ritchie Calder. His gospel is the simple one, the hungry need to be fed and food grown to be eaten. He has done magnificent work in the cause of the World Food Board.

Lord Orr is a Scot, a doctor with experience of the slums, and a scientist who gained his fellowship of the Royal Society by his laboratory researches into malnutrition. He is a practical farmer who farms in the foothills of the Scottish Grampians and is a crusading evangelist. His ancestors were Covenanters and he was brought up to be a minister of this body but he at length decided to become a doctor. Through his experience in the slums where he saw men, women and children suffering from results of malnutrition and malformed by rickets and the dreadful results of bad feeding, he changed his mind again and instead of practising as a doctor he undertook research into the causes of malnutrition.

He was an army doctor in the First World War and won the M.C. and D.S.O. for bravery in the front line. Later he was appointed to pastures and feeding of animals and at the age of thirty he carried out a great survey on food, health and income and the result was a great international movement, leading to an appointment of a commission being set up under the League of Nations. This was the forerunner of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. He called the Famine Conference of 1946 to find food for 76,000,000 people threatened with starvation.

Now the Nobel Prize has gone to this doctor who put two thousand million patients on his register, to the scientist who made the whole world his laboratory and the farmer who "extended his fences to include the whole world." In January he was raised by His Majesty to the peerage.

Now he has stated that he will not spend a penny on himself of the $24,077 of Nobel Prize money. It will be devoted to the work nearest this 69-year-old Scots farmer's heart—peace. The money is not for him "not even for a new hat," he says.

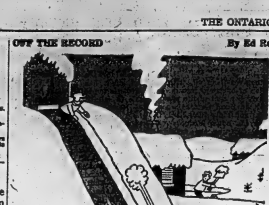
World peace is his passion. And he says "the world needs about double the quantity of food that is available."

PEACE TO EUROPE

On May 8, 1945, the commanders of Germany's fighting forces ratified the unconditional surrender terms, ending the battle for Europe in the Second World War.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1949, Edgar A. Guest)



THE INN AND THE STABLE

The day they went to Bethlehem
There were but few paid heed to Joseph and Mary come to sign the tax roll as of David's line.

Two plain and simple folk were they,
Unrecognized as they trudged
their way;
Two weary travellers, coming
late,
The Inn could not accommodate.

How little of this life we know!
Such people daily come and go,
Are with indifference turned aside
And room within the inn denied.

Who filled the Inn, forgotten lie.
None can today their names supply.
Yet stable, Joseph and the Child
And Mary's son remembered are.

"Oh, yes, living up here has its advantages."

BLUECOATED COWBOY

Waterloo, Ont. — (CP) — Constable Claude Frank didn't take long to catch a runaway steer the other night. But then he did not know what to do with it. He stood outside the police station, his arms around the steer, until he found out where it came from.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TO REMEMBER AT CHRISTMAS

In human history great migrations of people from one section of the world to another has been a phenomenon often noted by scholars. Usually the cause of these migrations is unknown, but probably the greatest single known cause is the threat of war, or the distress following conflict.

The refugee problem in the world today is a thing of such magnitude that it is taxing the ingenuity of international statesmen to cope with it. Displaced persons are usually those who are fleeing from the tyranny of masters at home whose retaliation they fear if they should be compelled to return. Europe is filled with millions of such people, retarding the recovery of that continent and creating immeasurable bitterness on the part of those who have nowhere to go.

The Christian solution to this problem is practised often by all nations, with America taking the lead. All sorts of disadvantages can be enumerated as to why they should not be allowed to come into our country. But in the name of mercy these objections will have to be put aside. We are not acting ourselves what is comfortable for us here in America, but what must America do to keep a quiet conscience.

At this Christmas season let us remember that such a challenge as this has scarcely ever confronted any country.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THESE TALKS

These talks are written to share with others the joys thrills and satisfactions that have meant much to me. They have often been inspirational, to try to give hope where it has closed, to stimulate faith, and to obliterate fear from people's lives. It they have done any good in anything, in a single case, then they have not totally failed.

It would take a very large volumes to enumerate all the things that have been done by others to give me happiness Scores of books are in my library because of the suggestions of others, and I have visited many a place and has remained happily in my memory because others told me not to miss it.

All of us ought to have a sign on the doorstep of our mind, reading thus: "Tell it to Others."

And so it is that these daily talks I take delight in passing along as inspiring quotation, or mention some worthwhile book, or praise the work of someone who ought to be praised or appreciated. None of us ever gets too big or too important not to be cheered by encouragement.

Many of the topics written in these talks have come from readers. That is a great help. I often spend hours in which to write a single talk, one that can be read in ten or fifteen minutes. I have learned that it is easier to think of topics, and to write, when I have some one in mind. The girl where I live, the crowds, add the tastes, which look good and Nature squarely in the face.

Arnold Bennett, in his diary tells how he would write, setting the mood when everything got blank he his mind would be blank, and try to think. He went to an art museum, looked at paintings and statuary, the bronzes, the big old London streets, watched busses, and people, and looked at books at posters along the way. When in Paris he visited bookshops and strolled by the Seine. His unconscious mind at work, he returned to his study, and there out what his conscious mind could not do before.

So, it is by many a means we learn so create and distribute our wares, such as they may be.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A good manager is one who gets the most for the least. To get the most for the least, some managers divert their attention to the most; others on the least. For example, the more enlightened managers put particular emphasis on the most; others on the least. For example, the more enlightened managers put particular emphasis on wages, provided they get, in return, loyalty, a liberal personal interest in their jobs, on the part of the employees. In buying goods and supplies, these enlightened managers are not notably closer bargainers, provided they get the best possible service, and some sense of personal relationship between the supply houses and themselves. Such managers might be said to put the emphasis on the most that they get, rather than on the least they can give.

The other type of manager is less enlightened. He gets less than in what he has to give for it. He frets over the payroll. He examines invoices far more shrewdly than he does his goods they cover. As time goes by, this sort of manager finds himself surrounded by a discontented staff mostly composed of the kind of people who have to haveit, job.

And whenever the supply house salesman calls he says good hold of anything new or interesting. They think of him last of all because they can't be bothered ordering him.

Then, considering himself to be an alert and honest manager, fairly well satisfied with the job he got the most for the least, he fosters the illusion with that injured air characteristic of a good many elderly executives.

Sometimes, however, the manager who believes in getting a lot more out of everybody by paying a little more, develops a incomparable organization, full of pep and energy. In due course, the supply houses set up his best young men in business, for formidable competition. And in the end, the smartest lad he ever hired pinches his job.

Being a manager is a sad business.

A KINGDOM FOR A HORSE

Montreal (CP) — City officials say that even tractors cannot beat horses and scrapers for clearing snow in certain city districts. But horses are hard to come by, Montreal. "There are some sections that haven't been able to get one single horse this season," said an official.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered. Case diagnosis cannot be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

INFECTIOUS MONONUCLEOSIS—GLANDULAR FEVER

The term "cold", covers a multitude of disease. Many a person who diagnoses his own ailment as a "cold," would be greatly surprised if he really knew what he had. There is no doubt that a person may contract a mild case of polio and recover from it, thinking it "just a cold."

A disease, the diagnosis of which is impossible without careful physical tests, known is infectious mononucleosis or glandular fever, often masquerades as a "cold." Although the disease is acute and caused by infection, it follows no particular pattern as to its early manifestations.

It may commence as a sore throat accompanied by soreness or stiffness of the neck. At this stage, most people are willing to settle for a "cold." Soon, the lymph nodes of the neck may become enlarged and slightly painful. The combination of fever, and sore throat, particularly enlarged lymph nodes, ("glands") in the neck, suggests the disease as "glandular fever."

The disease may exist in a very mild form and be discovered accidentally during a routine examination. It sometimes appears as a terrific backache, which a youngster may attribute to "strain." One of the most constant symptoms is fever, which often starts early in the disease and which rises in steep fashion during the day, to subside at night.

Following the acute, or feverish stage of the disease, a prolonged period may follow during which time the victim feels "washed out," listless and lacking in strength and energy. It is during this period that the sufferer may suspect that he has something more than a "cold in the back," and seek medical attention.

Although the symptoms may be very significant to the experienced physician, the diagnosis can be made only by examination of the blood. Even then, the change in the blood picture by which the diagnosis is based, may not appear until the disease is far advanced.

The disease appears to be caused by a virus, as it is often observed in epidemic form in the armed forces. Many instances are on record in which several children in the same family have acquired it.

Very few persons die from it. Complications may develop, and perhaps the most troublesome aspect of the disease is the prolonged convalescence. The changes in the blood may persist for a long time after the patient is apparently recovered.

One development of the disease of which the patient is generally unaware, is enlargement of the spleen, although occasionally pain may result in the left side of the upper abdomen and left side of the lower chest because of the enlargement. A blow to the abdomen, or unusual strain, while the spleen is enlarged may result in a ruptured spleen with grave consequences. A person with an acutely enlarged spleen, properly belongs in bed. A victim of this disease is picking out a very poor occasion in which to demonstrate his suppleness by attempting to carry on his usual duties.

Until quite recently, medical treatment of this disease has been far from satisfactory. Mastery over the disease has not been accomplished even now. The development of the antibiotic drugs led to their use in this disorder on a wide scale. Penicillin seems to have very little effect. Chloromycetin shows promise of effectiveness. Further experience may establish a combination of antibiotic drugs as a far more effective treatment.

Considering all the possibilities it is not wise on the part of a patient who thinks he has "cold," or some other "minor" affliction, to seek medical attention early in the game. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment may be very costly.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Dry Eyes

My eyes are so dry that after sleep they are painful and it is very hard to get them open. I am 68 years old and otherwise well. (J. W. G.)

Answer—Dryness of the eyes from insufficient secretion of tears is a common manifestation of vitamin A deficiency—of course this is but one of many possible causes. It can do no harm to try supplementing your diet with 3 25,000 unit capsules of vitamin A (not carotene) daily for a month or more. Foods that contain the most vitamin A are milk, cream, butter, eggs (yolks), calf livers, sardines, tuna, carp, mullet, Cod or other fish liver oils. Carrots are the natural sources of vitamin A. Carotene, sometimes called "vitamin A" is the substance present in green, yellow and red vegetables (roots or leaves) from which animals and man manufacture natural vitamin A. But "units" or carotene are far from being equivalent to units of real vitamin A. Only a part of the carotene can be metabolized or converted into real vitamin A in the animal or human body.

Commission Report on Navy 'Incidents' Highlights Busy Year in the Canadian Navy

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)— Canada's navy in 1949 launched its largest peacetime shipbuilding program, sailed its warships to the semi-tropics, Far East and the Arctic, trained more than ever with the United States Navy and opened a big school for recruits.

But the year will go down in the Canadian naval story chiefly because of a three-man commission's report on a series of sit-down strike 'incidents' aboard three navy ships.

An historic document, it probed deeply into officer-man relations, found them wanting, found no adequate channels for grievances, found a widespread desire for greater "Canadianization" and a widespread feeling that the navy is stretched too fa; and too thin.

The addition of Newfoundland as a 10th province was an event of historic importance for the navy too. It gave Canada a major naval base at St. John's, one of the vital ports in the winning of the Battle of the Atlantic in the Second World War.

Other Developments

These were other developments over the past 12 months:

The keel of the navy's first icebreaker was laid at Sorel, Que., and orders were placed for three anti-submarine destroyers, four minesweepers and a gate vessel. H.M.C.S. Cornwallis was opened near Annapolis Royal, N.S. as a recruit-training centre.

Navy scientists reported major strides in development of a new and highly economical method of preventing underwater corrosion of the ships hulls, expected to mean a marked saving in ship repair and maintenance.

Its ships figured in two towing operations and the destroyer Haida saved 18 survivors of a U.S.A.F. plane crash from the turbulent Atlantic. The destroyer Crescent, on short notice, sailed to war-torn China to stand by if Canadian Nationals needed aid and was gone four months.

The aircraft carrier Magnificent took up new Firefly V anti-submarine planes in Britain and joined four other Canadian ships for combined exercises with the Royal Navy in the Caribbean sea. The wooden survey vessel Cedarwood cruised 10,000 miles in the northern Pacific and Bering sea in company with U.S. navy craft.

Joint Exercises

Training with U.S. units included several joint exercises and two months of schooling in the U.S. for two squadrons of the fleet air arm.

Both regular and reserve forces increased in strength, the permanent force to around 9,000 men the reserves to about 3,500.

The fleet continued to operate in two sections — Atlantic and Pacific—with a considerable number of ships in reserve. The East Coast force was headed by the Magnificent, the West Coast group by the cruiser Ontario.

Promise Action To Upset Re-election Of Mayor MacLean

Sydney, N. S., Dec. 21 (CP) — Counsel retained by supporters of the defeated mayoralty candidate in Sydney's Dec. 6 civic election said Tuesday night court action will be taken "before the end of the week" to upset the re-election of Mayor Dan Jack MacLean.

Mayor MacLean, returned for his fifth two-year terms, was charged Monday with the murder of Joseph MacKinnon, 65-year-old registrar of voters. Mr. MacKinnon died in hospital Sunday night.

Mr. MacLean defeated Victor Coffin by 191 votes in the Dec. 6 voting.

Following the election the Sydney Post-Record said scores of voters had protested to Mr. MacKinnon that their names had been left off the voters' lists.

Mackenzie's Column: Religious Side Of Communism Plainly in View

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

A new and startling viewpoint of Prime Minister Stalin's amazing birthday is being discussed editorially by newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic — an angle which is summed up by the New York Herald Tribune under the heading of "The Soviet Deification."

This theme is developed in general along the line that man-kind needs a spiritual anchor, and that atheistic communism therefore is defying Stalin.

We also are reminded that one frequently hears communism referred to as "a religion," meaning that it is a way of life which is calculated to take the place of religion. But let the editorials tell their story. The Herald Tribune puts it this way:

"Karl Marx would be more than astonished, he would be stupified if he could witness the scenes today being enacted around one half the globe of tolerous adulation of a creed supposed to be his and of its principal present representative on earth by the iconoclast scholar who gruffly announced that 'religion is the opium of the people' could not have conceived the unpredictable and unfathomable human spirit would have constructed out of his own writings, a bare hundred years later, an amazing parody of all the great religious ideas, appointing Marx himself as a kind of remote god, with the child of a humble cobbler as his son on earth and even with a Lenin to complete the materialistic trinity.

"The celebration of dizgashvili Stalin's 70th birthday is surely one of the most amazing phenomena of our time. 'Glory to Stalin' arises in a Hosannah from the brazen throats of the loudspeakers and the propaganda machines such as no living man has ever been accorded.

"Why? It is a fascinating and baffling event, in part, perhaps, reflecting the inability of any human society to exist on a plane of pure materialism, without some kind of faith and adoration but in part it must also reflect the weakness of any political structure balanced on its apex forced to shout or bang its ablest men because it has no place for them in the slavish conformity which it demands, forced to find mystic or emotional sanctions to impose an obedience which it can no longer be sure of otherwise from the proconuls of its sprawling empire.

"The Kremlin has impressively deified Stalin; but the impression may not be exactly what was intended."

The Times of London also speaks of "the communist cult of Stalin worship having come near to deification at this stage." The Manchester Guardian, another outstanding English newspaper, refers to the "devotional note" and says that never before has this religious side of communism been so plainly in view.

TWEED

3,000 Welcome Arrival of Santa Claus

Tweed (Special) — Santa Claus arrived in Tweed on the eastbound C.P.R. train at 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon and he was met by the largest crowd of children and their parents ever in Tweed and surrounding district ever to welcome Santa since this event was started a few years ago.

It was estimated that over 3,000 people thronged the station platform and both sides of front street to the B.A. service station corner. The children moved out from the station lead by the high school bugle-band. Numerous floats prepared by the merchants, garages, Canadian Legion, Girl Guides, Kinsmen, Tweed Radio and Electric panel truck playing Christmas music.

Prizes were offered for best dressed comic, best dressed clown, best floats and best high school students in costume sponsored by the Tweed and Chamber of Commerce.

The Santa Claus parade has been growing larger every year and it is always good shopping day for merchants. The judges were Ken Bostwick, Reeve A. McCarey, and Walter Johnston.

There was over 1,700 bags of candy, nuts and apples, and a bag of the new delicious W. T. Hawkins Ltd., caramel popcorn given to the children.

There were free movies for the town children in the forenoon and a similar show for the out-of-town children in the afternoon.

It was a big day in Tweed.

SUCCESSFUL SLEUTH

RAWDON

Mr., Mrs. B. Jeffs Honored by Friends On Eve of Departure

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jeffs and Robert were tendered a farewell party on Saturday evening last in Mount Pleasant Church Hall with about 90 friends and neighbors in attendance. The Jeffs family are leaving soon to take up residence near Cannington, along the Beaverton River.

The pastor, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, was chairman and all sang "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".

Miss Doris Sine read a selection entitled "Friends".

Miss Ruth Linn sang "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas".

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Summers delighted with two vocal duets with guitar accompaniment.

Mrs. Merle Sprague read a selection "A Woman and her Work."

Miss Betty McConnell contributed two piano solos.

Mrs. Norman Linn spoke briefly all wishing Bert, Edith and Robert every success in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffs and Robert were given seats of honor and Miss Ruth Sharp read an address of appreciation to Mrs. Jeffs on behalf of the girls' Sunday School class, and Miss Doreen Bailey presented her with a gift.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver read an address of appreciation to the Jeffs family, which paid tribute to Bert's help in all church and community activities as he was born at Mount Pleasant, and has always resided there. Bert has been assistant Sunday School superintendent for several years as well as filling other offices in the church.

Mrs. Jeffs came here as a bride almost seven years ago, and Robert had begun his school career. Their departure to their new home leaves a vacancy at Mount Pleasant, but all wish for them God's richest blessings in their new home. The address was signed by Doug Campbell, Robert Heard, Allan Reid, Herbert Smith, Merle Spencer and Burton Sharp.

Mr. Douglas Campbell made the presentation of a gift of money.

Bert and Edith graciously replied, thanking their friends for all their kindness to them and inviting the folks at Mount Pleasant to visit them in their new home.

The ladies served refreshments and all enjoyed a social time together.

ROSLIN

Santa Distributes Candy, Fruit at Christmas Tree

Roslin — The Roslin public school Christmas tree was held on Monday evening in the Church Hall.

The varied program put on by the children was well received by those in attendance.

Rev. C. Wright acted as chairman for the evening. Pianist for the evening was Mrs. Moody.

Opening chorus: "Hark the Herald Angles Sing" and "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen;" welcome recitation — Dick Empson; vocal solo—Hazel Slingerland.

Rev. Mr. Wright gave a short address and his remarks spoke of the value derived by the children from the Christmas tree and also the enjoyment it gave them, in the musical " training, and a pleasant break from their regular studies.

Dialogue—"A cat at School"; a piano solo by Dick Empson; duet by Yvonne Skinner and Valentine Wright; a recitation by Donnie Lee Vance; a piano solo by Margaret Baier; Parade of the Wooden Soldier, song and drill; vocal solo by Catharine Wright; "Once in Royal Davida City; audience joining in singing "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear" and "O Come All Ye Faithful"; dialogue "Marie Misses Marriage"; a vocal solo by Valentine Wright; a chorus, "Bells of Christmas" (whole school); a piano solo by Margaret Howes; a dialogue (religious) "Tell Me What is Christmas"; God Save the King.

Santa arrived as the children were singing "Here come Santa Claus" and distributed presents and candy from the gaily decorated tree.

The teacher, Mrs. A. Clare, and the music teacher, Mrs. Moody, were asked to come forward and take a bow in tribute for their work in preparing the splendid program.

HALLOWAY

Holloway — Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Reid and family of Foxboro, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Faulkner of Belleville, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Faulkner.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ross and girls spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ross.

A successful Christmas concert was held in the Baptist Church under the auspices of Turner's school and Mrs. Laidlaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Reid spent a day recently with Mrs. Florence Johnson and family at Tweed.

Little Miss Marilyn Demille, is visiting with her parents over the holiday.

Mrs. Ada Ward has returned home from Kingston Hospital and is progressing favorably.

PICTON

Picton—Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Orser left by motor on Monday to spend the winter in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cahoon, of Conneaut, Ohio, arrived Monday to spend Christmas and the holidays with the latter's aunt, Mrs. D. J. Wood, Main St. West.

Farmers' wives are very resourceful these days and bring much baking, fancy work, and sewing to the farmers' market. Your correspondent wonders why they never think to make large evergreen wreaths at this time of year, centred with a red satin bow. As a teacher, and pupils these are made to decorate the school house windows for the Christmas concert and they were lovely. All needed to produce them are evergreen, picture wire, scissors and ribbon. They should sell well.

6TH SIDNEY

6th Sidney — Mrs. J. A. Lois was hostess to the W.A. and W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon of last week.

Mrs. Vere Sine accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Richardson to Brighton on Sunday where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe were Thursday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Frost.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Faul and Mr. and Mrs. C. Frost returned home on Tuesday evening having spent over the past five weeks at the coast and in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sine were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Westlake, of Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frost spent the supper hour Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bush, 4th Sidney.

Women's Institute

BEDNERSVILLE W.I.

The December meeting of the Bednersville Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Spencer, Trinity evening, last, with 20 members and seven visitors in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Allan Weese, presided. Several Christmas carols were sung. The roll call was answered by "What I'd like for Christmas". The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. It was decided to send $5 to the Tuberculosis Fund. A letter is to be written to the County Council asking them to continue the grant to the Health Unit, as the Institute considers its work of great benefit.

Mrs. Kenneth Green presented Mrs. Roy Brooks, a recent bride, with a silver relish dish from the Institute.

A report on the evening session of the Area Convention was given by Mrs. Clifford Peck, and a report on the second day by Mrs. Warner Brown. Mrs. Voe favored with a fine solo. A splendid reading "Keeping Christmas", was given by Mrs. Sydney Fox. A piano solo "Canadian Capers" was given by Mrs. Earl McKay. There was a happy exchange of Christmas gifts from a beautifully decorated tree. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and assistants.

QUINTE W.I.

The December meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Wesley Gray, 2nd Thurlow. The president opened the meeting in the usual way, and welcomed members and visitors.

Minutes were read by the secretary and letters read and business discussed. It was decided to send Christmas treats to the inmates of the County Home.

An appropriate reading based on the month's motto, "Christmas is the Time for the Open Hand, the Open House and the Open Heart", was given by Mrs. James Garbutt. The program committee, Mrs. Atkins and Mrs. A. Mitchell, then gave a full report of the annual convention.

Following the singing of Christmas carols, Mrs. Frank Boxtator, then entertained the gathering with her reading, entitled "Charity Perry's Silk Dress". Mrs. Sulman, of Belleville, gave a short talk.

The exchange of Christmas gifts lent its own charm to the occasion. After the meeting closed a social time was enjoyed, The hostess and her committee served delicious refreshments.

Ladies Auxiliary Can. Legion, 99 Elects 1950 Officers

The Ladies' Auxiliary Canadian Legion, Branch 99, held their regular and last meeting for 1949 on Tuesday. After the regular routine of business was finished, the officers handed their chairs for the election of officers for 1950. Mrs. Neffa, the retiring president, presided.

Officers are as follows:

Cannifton W.A. Elects Officers for Ensuing Year

The December dinner meeting was held in the Sunday School rooms and was in charge of Mrs. Ralph Stewart and Mrs. Blake Bedell, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Bird.

The two long white tables looked nice centred with holly and poinsettias in keeping with the festive season. Christmas menu was served at 2.30 p.m.

The meeting was opened with quiet music played by Mrs. H. Empson. The president, Mrs. H. Farnham, then read "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day" Mrs. D. Brenton read the Christmas story from the Scripture. After the secretary and treasurer's reports the president thanked all who had in anyway helped to make the bazaar a success and for the help from all the members in the past year.

There were eighteen paid members.

It was decided to make a donation to the following departments of the Sunday School, Church Board, Missionary Maintenance and another donation towards the new robes and gowns. Each member will bring a piece of new material to the January meeting for the sewing committee, these are the members who do not quilt.

Mrs. Furnidge sang a solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Farnham, "No Room for Jesus", after which Mrs. Madden gave a reading "Let's Keep Christ in Christmas". The Rev. F. W. Madden then took charge. He spoke a few words of appreciation to the ladies for their help in all parts of the church with special mention of the president, whom he said has given so many faithful years to her Master and His Service in the capacity of organist and choir leader.

He presided over the election of officers for the coming year, and are as follows:

Past President, Mrs. H. Empson; president, Mrs. H. Farnham; 1st vice president, Mrs. D. Brenton; 2nd vice president, Mrs. P. Furnidge; treasurer, Mrs. A. Holgate; secretary, Mrs. A. Boyd; parsonage committee, Mrs. C. Mills, Mrs. C. Bird; flower committee, Mrs. Bedell, Mrs. Robinson and visiting committee, Mrs. Putman, Mrs. Furnidge; Mrs. Madden, assistant. Mrs. H. Empson; press, Mrs. F. Furnidge; devotional, Mrs. J. Williams; Mrs. W. Brenton; sewing and quilting committee, Mrs. Cole Mrs. D. Brenton and Mrs. R. Peacock, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Bedell.

Mrs. H. Empson moved a vote of thanks on behalf of the ladies to Mrs. Farnham for her faithfulness. Quilting was the order of the day.

Fixins for the Festive Meal

The homemaker should feel that she is hostess at every family meal, just as much as when there are guests at the table. The way food is served and the attractiveness of the garnish adds much to the simple meal but when the spirit of festivity is in the air, the finishing touches are doubly important.

The simplest basic dress is often given distinction and variety by a bit of costume jewelry or a gay handkerchief — so the food is much more tempting to the appetite if dainty garnishes. Garnishes for foods are usually made from other foods and are to be eaten with the food.

The turkey, goose or chicken served for Christmas dinner is enhanced by a necklace of cranberries. If the leg meat has drawn away from the thigh bone in turn, a bunch of parsley may be tucked in to conceal the defect. Food garnishes should be a way of expressing individuality and should enhance but not hide the food.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, say that the dressed bird, the festive bird, the appetizer served at the beginning of the meal, the crisp green salad and even the gravy served may all be considered as garnishes as well as the spirit of holly on the pudding. Each should be as nearly perfect as possible.

Christmas Wreath Croutons

Cut circles from ½ inch slices of bread with a doughnut cutter and saute or toast to a crisp golden brown. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley and paprika and float one wreath on each serving of soup.

Cranberry and Apple Juice Mould

2 cups raw cranberries
2 1-3 cups apple juice (1 20-ounce tin)
3 tablespoons gelatine
3-4 cup sugar
Dash of salt

Heat cranberries with 1 cup of apple juice. Bring to boil and cook 5 minutes or until soft. Press through sieve. Soak gelatine 5 minutes in 1-3 cup of apple juice. Add remaining apple juice (1 cup), sugar and salt to berry mixture and heat to boiling point. Add soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved. Pour into one large ring mould or 6 to 8 individual moulds, rinsed with cold water or brushed with oil. Chill until firm. Unmould and serve.

NOTE: This may be used as a salad with mayonnaise or as a dessert with sweetened whipped cream.

Apple and Raisin Dressing

3 cups medium dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
½ cup diced celery
½ cup raisins
3 cups coarsely grated apples

Mix all ingredients well together. Add additional seasoning, if desired. Yield: about 6 cups dressing — sufficient to stuff a 5 pound bird. Double or triple ingredients for a turkey.

FAST NOBLE GRANDS' CLUB Sibling

The Fast Noble Grands' Club held their Christmas meeting on Friday night at the home of Sis. Ethel Duffin, with Sis. E. Duffin and Sis. E. Bradshaw, acting as co-hostesses.

The president, Sis. Gladys Elliott, opened the meeting with the singing of carols. After the business part of the meeting a program consisting of carols, readings and contests, was presented. Following the program all members drew a gift from the Christmas basket.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were then served by the hostesses, to 18 members.

Sis. Ezzie Bailey thanked them for their hospitality.

Queen Dances With Footman At Palace Party

London, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Queen danced with the footman and the princess danced with the clock-winder Tuesday night in Buckingham Palace's annual household Christmas party.

The palace staff gave the traditional party.

Queen Elizabeth, in diamond tiara and flowing green gown, waltzed with the liveried footman. Princess Margaret, sleek in rose and pink, swirled over the glassy floor with the man in charge of the palace's famous collection of French gilt clocks.

Until the wee hours of the morning they danced with other members of the household staff.

King George, still recuperating slowly from a long-suffered leg ailment, sat on the sidelines and watched until shortly before midnight. Then he retired.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Syria was a land of meat and honey.

In the dim 1500's before forks were used, Syrians would delicately dip their fingers in honey before lifting a piece of meat to their mouths.

Even today sugar or some sweet syrup is often used with meat to highlight its natural flavor. The winner of the chicken cooking contest in Virginia last summer was a woman who treated her broilers with sugar before putting them under the flame.

Baked ham with brown sugar or honey is the commonest way of cooking this standby. Corned beef is often smeared with a small amount of sugar in the water. Both veal tongue and spare ribs are commonly served with a sweet and sour sauce.

Use Canadian bacon glazed with honey for a small family roast. This cut of pork is, as most people know, not the usual breakfast bacon but the smoked boneless loin. It can be sliced as easily as a loaf of bread, and has almost no waste. It can be baked dry in an open roasting pan, or can be simmered in water until tender and then placed in the oven to form a sweet brown crust. The latter way of cooking retains the naturally moist flavor of the meat.

GLAZED CANADIAN BACON
Serves 6

Order a two pound piece of Canadian bacon. Wipe with a damp cloth. Cover with cold water, bring water to a boil. Reduce flame so that liquid simmers. Cook for 1-2 hours or until tender. Do not discard liquid.

Preheat oven to 450 degrees.

Place meat in a small open roasting pan. Cover with 1-4 cup honey mixed with 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard and 1-4 teaspoon ground cloves.

Place six canned peach halves alongside meat. Sprinkle peaches with brown sugar and cinnamon. Put pan in oven and bake until surface of meat is browned and shiny. If surface does not glaze sufficiently, spread several more tablespoons honey on meat and continue baking 5-10 minutes more.

If desired, a brown sauce can be made from stock in which bacon was cooked. Bring 1 cup of stock to a boil and thicken with 1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed to a paste with 2 tablespoons cold water. Season to taste with salt, pepper and sugar. Add a bouillon cube if necessary.

Remove meat and cut into slices about 1-4 inch thick. Garnish with hot peach halves.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply. —Ed.

BARMORA

Catholic Women's League Holds Fine Christmas Party

Marmora—On Friday evening last an enjoyable Christmas party was held in Sacred Heart School by the members of the Catholic Women's League. This is the first party of this nature that has been undertaken, but judging by the very favourable comments of those present, it promises to become an annual event.

Mrs. C. Cook, president of the subdivision, welcomed the director, the Rev. J. A. O'Neill, and about 50 ladies, expressing his pleasure at the splendid response to her invitation. She then called upon Mrs. J. Black, who had arranged the program, to act as mistress of ceremonies.

The opening number "White Christmas" followed by "Jingle Bells", sung with great gusto by the entire gathering, set the party off to a good start. Miss Mary Hughes, in her inimitable manner, read Joyce Kilmer's beautiful "Ballad of Christmas". She then gave the ladies an unique recipe for a Christmas pudding.

The Legend of the Chinese gods proved a real icebreaker and judging by the gales of laughter which filled the room, any stiffness remaining in the company was completely dispelled by the time the last contestant Mrs. H. Brady, "Saw the Light".

Then followed two well loved Christmas carols, "Silent Night" and "The First Noel".

A beautiful and appropriate recitation, "The Christmas Story" recited by Mrs. J. Black was much enjoyed. The next number, a contest entitled "How Do You Feel?" carried the program from the sublime to the ridiculous, and proved a real memory test. Father O'Neill's clever list was the prize winner, and was received with much applause.

Two Christmas carols "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear", and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," were sung by all.

Mrs. Donald Shannon read effectively, Edgar A. Guest's touching poem, "The Christmas Gift For Mother".

Santa Arrives

The highlight of the evening was the arrival of that beloved personage jolly old Santa Claus himself. He was in fine form and delighted the audience with his renditions. Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer. The special gifts he had in his sack for the ladies as well as his lively chatter caused much merriment.

Christmas turkey contest was held with Mrs. B. Hughes and Mrs. H. Brady tieing for the prize.

" A prayer to Santa for Grown Folk", Luke Train's pathetic plea to the sweet saint by those who were girls and boys, was read by Mrs. C. Cook in a pleasing manner.

Marshmallow Gobble

The next number, a marshmallow gobble in which 12 ladies took part, proved most amusing. Mrs. F. Brawley, and Mrs. G. Mantle were the winners and received suitable prizes. An impromptu step dance by Mrs. Brawley with Santa as her partner provided much amusement.

Santa then distributed the gifts from the tree which was beautifully decorated by Mrs. C. Crawford and Mrs. B. Hughes.

The program closed with the singing of "O Holy Night", "Auld Lang Syne" and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Miss Florence Auger moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Black for arranging this interesting program. Much credit is due Mrs. Hugh Brady for the capable manner in which she took the part of Santa Claus.

The accompanist for the evening was Mrs. K. McCoy, whose music is always much enjoyed.

Sumptuous refreshments were enjoyed and the first Christmas party of the C.W.L. came to a happy close.

STIRLING

Laurel Rebekah Lodge Holds Christmas Party

Stirling—On Tuesday evening Laurel Rebekah Lodge held a Christmas party for about 60 children. A large Christmas tree, gaily decked with colored lights, and decorations and laden with attractive parcels was a beautiful sight to see.

Mrs. Walter Elliott presided over the fine program which consisted of the following numbers, vocal duets by Barbara Green and Ruth Mumby; Shirley and Marion Broadworth; Jimmie Crouse and Jean Noble; recitation, by Robert Vandervoort, Caroline Belcour, Patricia Thompson, Linda Anne Morrow, Donalda Heath, Kenneth Post, Muriel Mumby, Jeanne Ann Mayhew, Allan Thompson, Rose Anne Vandervoort, Allyn Warren, Tommy Wells, vocal solo Eileen Cook; guitar duet, Shirley and Marilyn Bateman. These numbers interspersed with Carol singing, with Mrs. Carl Clancy at the piano, were well given, and greatly enjoyed by everyone. Mrs. J. L. Good and Mrs. H. A. Morrow conducted two games for the children after which the appearance of Santa brought rounds of delight when each child received a gift and a bag of candy followed by tasty refreshments.

MOIRA

Moira — Moira Sunday School combined with the church to observe a white gift service on Sunday afternoon. The Reverend M. Clarke assisted by Donald Melroy, Sunday School Superintendent, conducted the service. Miss Lola Emerson was pianist and music was provided by the junior choir, with the tiny tots singing "Jesus Loves Me."

The service was composed of prayer, Bible readings and carols with Mr. Clarke telling the story of "The Discontented Candle." The children then brought forward the white gifts which were placed around "The Babe in the Manger" and dedicated by Mr. Clarke. At the close of the service, Santa paid a brief visit to the delight of both young and old.

Personals

Mrs. Blake Ketcheson entertained the South W.A. group on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott spent Monday in Peterborough.

Moira Young People were entertained by Thomasburg Young People on Tuesday evening. The pastor showed lantern slides on Christmas and an enjoyable time was spent and refreshments served.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McIlroy and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McIlroy attended the miscellaneous shower on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Haggerty, West Huntingdon, in honor of their daughter's marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott attended the reception Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Elvile Wannamaker (nee Ella Sutherland) at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Broadworth, Stirling.

Mrs. Dafoe, of Madoc, has come to spend the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Joe Kellar and Mr. Kellar.

THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D

The Boy Jesus in the Temple

Each year Joseph and Mary went to Jerusalem for the Feast of the Passover, and when Jesus was 12 years old they took him along.

"As they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it." (Luke 2:43.) They supposed he was following, but he was in the Temple.

His parents found him three days later, sitting among the learned doctors in the Temple, asking and answering questions. "And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding." (Luke 2: 46, 47.)

The Years of Growth

When Joseph and Mary found Jesus in the Temple, Mary said, "Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us?" Jesus answered, "How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" Jesus knew what his mission on earth was, but they did not understand his meaning. (Luke 2: 48-50.)

The youth grew and "waxed strong in spirit . . . and increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men" (Luke 2: 40, 52.)

He attended the synagogue regularly. "As his custom was, he went into the Synagogue on the Sabbath Day." (Luke 4:16.)

The Preparing of the Way

John was telling great crowds that he was preparing the way for the Savior. His was "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." Mark (1:3.)

He baptized them in the River Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. (Mark 1:4.)

John told his listeners, "There cometh one mightier than I (Jesus), of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose." Mark (1:7.)

Walker was chairman for the following program: Carol by school, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing"; Welcome, Jean Benson; Exercise, "Christmas Story", pupils of Ivanhoe public school; Duet, "Dear Santa Claus", Billy Harvey and Jack Wood; Recitation, James Wallace; Recitation, "Long, Long Ago", Fern Vardy; Solo, "Merry Christmas", Margaret Haggerty; Recitation, "The Moo Cow," David Fleming; Solo, "The Little Old Man in the Bright Red Coat," John Haggerty; Solo, "Santa Claus is Coming," James Wallace; Recitation, "Christmas Fun," Jack Wood; Choruses by school, "Merry Christmas and "Good Night" and "If it Doesn't Snow on Christmas," and a "Good Night" recitation by Joe Wickens, brought the program to a close.

A vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered Miss Margaret Wright, Mrs. John Wallace and Miss Margaret Haggerty.

Santa Claus distributed gifts from the brightly decorated Christmas tree and each child was given candy and fruit.

TWEED

St. John's Church Christmas Service, Appealing Lovely

Tweed — St. John's United Church held their Christmas services of message and song on Sunday last, when large congregations filled the church to capacity. At the evening service extra seating had to be arranged. At the morning service Rev. A. L. Siscoe chose for his topic "The Angel Song." The junior and senior choirs under the leadership of Mr. H. S. Connor with Mr. Fred Porter at the consol of the organ delighted their listeners with their fine renditions.

The senior choir sang the anthem "Christmas Awake" (Malmder) with solos by Mr. Vernon Ardron, and Mrs. Constance Sharp.

Junior choir "Away in a Manger" two part. "Long Ago There Was Born" (Rathbun) two part.

Evening anthem "Anthem Celestial" with solo by Mrs. C. Sharp.

Ladies two part—Slumber song The Infant Jesus.

Junior choir— While Angels, two part; Little Lambs — unison.

The Harmony Club sponsored the pageant "The Adoration", which was presented at the evening service. The first scene represented the Nazareth Chamber where the Angel Gabriel appeared to Mary, and spoke to her in the following words "Thou shalt bring forth a son, and shalt call His name Jesus."

The second scene is on a mountain side in Judea. The shepherds are trying to solve this mystery of this strange sight.

The third scene takes place in the inn yard, Joseph seeks shelter for Mary his wife. Finally Tobias, the inn keeper, gives instruction to his boy to show the wanderers to the grotto. A captain of Herod comes in seeking for the king, who is but a babe. He looks upon all the guests except Joseph and Mary in the stable, He overlooks this family as they are not rich.

The final setting is the manger scene, with the shepherds and magi coming to do homage to the baby Jesus, while the three angels hover about.

Cast.

Mary, Mrs. Bill Barnett.

Angels, Mrs. Emerson Hodgins, Mrs. Ed Way, Mrs. Harold Emerson.

Three shepherds (David) Emerson Hodgins; (Peter) Clarence Graham; (Rene!) Carl House.

IVANHOE
Honored Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Ivanhoe.— Fifty years ago on Dec. 20, a pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. J. A. Clarion, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKnight, of Cooper, when their daughter, Ida, became the bride of Albert Duggan. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel McKnight, and the bridegroom by his brother, Mr. George Duggan. Last Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Duggan, surrounded by friends and relatives, relived again, the happy day, by commemorating it with a golden anniversary.

The home was beautifully decorated in a white and gold color scheme with baskets of golden-colored chrysanthemums, golden bells, and white and gold streamers. A three-tiered wedding cake, richly embellished in white and gold, centred the dining room table, while the living room was gay with a brilliantly lighted Christmas tree; and a little Swiss church with steeple and bell, with lighted windows, added to the lovely appearance of the room.

The many guests were received by Mrs. Duggan, who wore a becoming gown of black with corsage of fern and yellow 'mums. "Open House" was kept both afternoon and evening, when tea, and cakes were served to a score of friends and neighbors.

Among the many relatives who were present, those from Seagrave included: Mr. Lacar Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Scott and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Clarke. Sisters present were Mrs. Joseph Stockdale, Mrs. M. J. Fitzpatrick, and Miss Mabel McKnight, all of Toronto. The bridesmaid was present, but the groomsman owing to illness was unavoidably absent.

Many lovely gifts were received, a table lamp from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, where Mr. and Mrs. Duggan have served faithfully through the years, Mr. Duggan as an elder, and Mrs. Duggan in the Women's Missionary Society, having efficiently served as treasurer for 18 years. A purse containing 50 new, crisp, one dollar bills was presented by the relatives.

At noon a bountiful chicken dinner was served to eighteen members of the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Duggan had four children, two daughters, Mrs. John Craig, (Jessie), of Belleville, and Mrs. Stephen Mahaffy, (Grace) of Madoc. Two sons, Fred, who died in infancy, and Wilfred Francis, an outstanding newspaper man, who a few weeks prior to his death, after the age of 36 years, was made night editor of the Windsor Daily Star.

Six grandchildren were present, and also a granddaughter, Allan Mahaffy, of Toronto, who, since birth, has made her home with her grandparents.

Both Mr. Duggan, who is 78, and Mrs. Duggan, one year his senior, are enjoying good health. Mr. Duggan was born in Madoc township; started his life's work at the age of fourteen as an apprentice to a blacksmith. After his marriage in 1899, he established a blacksmith shop at Cooper in his native township. In 1906 they moved to New Liskeard where he was engaged in the prospecting business, later operating a blacksmith shop in Crookston. They moved to Ivanhoe in 1911, where he was the village blacksmith until his retirement, last year.

Mr. Duggan was an expert horseshoer and also a craftsman in wood and iron work. He was Past Master of the Loyal Orange Lodge No. 635, of Ivanhoe, and a staunch Conservative.

Mr. and Mrs. Duggan have been good neighbors and loyal friends and all extend to them sincere congratulations on celebrating their golden wedding anniversary and wish for them many more years of health and happiness.

Handsome Youth Gets Prison Term

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 22 — (AP) —A high school couple's adolescent romance, punctuated with sex orgies and nude photographs, ended Wednesday with a life prison term for the boy. Handsome 18-year-old Ronnie Pitts was sentenced for the murder of Perry Henderson, vacuum cleaner company executive. Henderson was the father of Ann Henderson, 17-year-old high school sophomore with whom Pitts claimed numerous intimacies.

PICTON

Picton — Mr. H. S. Colliver and Robert Jamieson are opening an egg grading station in part of the market building. Mr. Jamieson has had a great deal of experience in this business as he was manager of the cold storage plant here for a number of years.

Friends here regret the very serious illness of Mr. Elmer Leavitt at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla. Before retiring to live in Florida, Mr. Leavitt was a director in the Waupoos Canning Co.

Mrs. Chauncey Mullins; Mrs. Garfield Mayne; Mrs. Elwood Munroe and Mr. Kenneth Ryatt of West Lake have the sympathy of many friends in the passing this week of Mrs. Clayton Hyatt, at her home near the Sandbanks. Mrs. Hyatt has been in failing health for some time. She was very well known as the family have operated a fine tourist home for a number of years.

6TH TYENDINAGA

6th Tyendinaga — The Rev. W. A. Campbell gave a fine Christmas sermon taking as his text "Lee us go down to Bethlehem." Christmas carols were used for hymns making a very inspiring service at Mount Pleasant Sunday morning.

Mrs. C. Goodman, Alton and Lee were Sunday evening guests of Mr. Miller Parks, Wallbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Boldrick and family, spent Saturday in Tweed.

Miss Bessie Boldrick spent the weekend at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Goodman, and Marilyn, of Frankford, were recent callers at Mr. Percy Lancaster's and Mrs. C. Goodman's.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mumby spent Sunday at Mr. Lorne McKenzie's.

Mr. and Mrs. Orley Parks and boys spent an evening recently at Mr. J. Goodman's, Frankford.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Senior "B" Group standing published elsewhere in this edition, sees those potent Legionnaires out of Peterborough sliding comfortably in the driver's seat with five wins, a loss and a tie. Our Diesel-Electrics are in second slot with three wins and a couple of setbacks with the Peterborough Petes in third spot with one win and four losses. Kingston and Gananoque trail the pack with one and two.

* * *

The powerful Legion team handed their inter-city mates an 8-3 setback after a right merry till the other night in their home town, and the veterans flashed their offensive and defensive power in all three periods. 'Tis claimed the Petes are not up to their playing peak as yet, but they did not look bad against our prides. 'Tis also reported that the Legion Hatfields and the Petes McMatts are steadin' again, same as last year, and the good folk of Peterborough may yet see some hectic battles on their home ice before the Salutes bloom again.

Sez Marse Perdue of the Kawartha sheet:

"Legion definitely earned the win on their play, but we think the Petes will play better hockey. They're just being moulded into a team now, with a lot of changes made in recent games, and they're by no means at their peak." Tompkins, for instance, is not in top condition yet—and any puck fan as well as the Legion players) knows he will be plenty dangerous the last part of the season and playoff time. Fife only showed flashes of his real form last p.m. and some of the others didn't look their best to us. Yeah, the Petes will be pretty potent later and we rather expect a final playoff in this group between these local clubs. Lots of private fistiffs in evidence this game, though it didn't break out into a free-for-all. Yet.

Mebbe the Marse is doing some wishful thinking when he suggests the two home-town puckchasing crews may be in at the death when the final playoffs roll around. Let he forget there are other teams in this group from Kingston, Gananoque and the banks of the Moira. What holds good for the Petes about not being at top form also holds good for these rank outsiders. True our Diesels did not look too hot against either of the Peterborough teams at their last set-to, but there's another day coming, m'lad and you might absorb this fact—as yet the Diesel-Electrics have not cast their full power at either the Legionnaires or the Petes. And for that matter neither have the Kingston Frontenacs any event they should be a bushel of high jinks come the bend of the New Year, and blood-tingling bouts should greet the faithful.

Gananoque is here on Friday night as guests of the Dee-Lers and they should gi ve our laddies quite a battle. They have a smart hard-slatting team that can travel both ways at top speed and are dangerous around the nets. It is expected that Doug. Free and Keith MacDonald will be back in action with the Dee-Lers but Milan Mihilli will be among the missing. Otherwise the team will throw its full strength at the visitors.

* * *

Tonight the roaring CNR Diesels and the Rockets Juniors clash in what should be a "dooser" of a match. The die is cast as this is the third and deciding game of their semi-finals series and the winner will meet Northern Electric for the district league title and the Ontario Intelligencer Trophy. Both teams are confident they can take the measure of the other and the result should be a game worthy also of that which featured the Northern - Flyers clash here on Tuesday night.

CUFF NOTES

The Rockets - Lindsay junior tilt scheduled for last night was postponed because of the fact a senior "B" game was scheduled for the same evening and the boardmen consented to the postponement . . . Ted Lindsay, Detroit's left-wing wizard not only leads the point parade with 33 points but also the 60-in-bit sentence league with 63 minutes . . . Andy Christie, fleetfooted forward of the Sixadee boosting squad is a brother of Jack Christie, genial secretary of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. Whatever became of "Pop" Middleton, former Flyer defence and brother of Gagnon, Trenton Flyers' wing ace is a nephew of the famous "Black Cat of Chicoutimi" former Canadiens' star . . . This Paul is a canny manager as well as a fine coaching . . . The other night Bill McLeod, Flyer coach, was giving the kid a few instructions, sprinkled with a bit of criticism, but the good-looking kid's face assumed a blank stare and he murmured something about not understanding English . . . Gagnon sent in . . . The Whalen and Boland Hockey Trophies and miniatures will likely be presented at the end of the loop activities when the league cup will be handed over to the winners . . . The Ontario Minor Hockey Association seems headed for a banner season . . . Already 165 teams have been entered as against 110 last season . . . Gus Mortson, dynamite Leaf's defenceman felt a sudden draft the other night when he split his panties from stem to gudgeon . . . Gus grabbed a piece of string and with the aid of some muttered prayers kept the shorts at half-staff until the period finished . . . New York Rangers have lost only one of the Christmas Night games played at home since their inception in Lexington Ave., Since 1927, with Old Saint Nick in extra forward, the Blues have registered 15 victories on the Yule evening the last three being shutouts . . .

Rangers Ride in Contention In N.H.L. as Canadiens And Maple Leafs Both Beaten

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The National Hockey League spotlight today is on the New York Rangers, barging right into contention on the strength of six victories in their last eight starts.

Both Canadian teams were beaten last night, and the Rangers now are breathing right down the necks of the Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The powerful Detroit Red Wings lengthened their lead by walloping the Maple Leafs 7-1 at Detroit. Rangers defeated Canadiens 4-1, and Boston Bruins beat the Chicago Black Hawks 4-1.

That leaves Detroit 10 points in front of the pack. Montreal in second place is two points ahead of Toronto, and the Rangers are just another point behind in fourth place. Boston is fifth and Chicago now tails the procession.

Alex Kaleta scored two goals for the Canadiens at New York. Dunc Fisher and rookie Jack McLeod getting the others. Floyd Curry scored the only Montreal goal.

Big Bill Durnan in the Canadien nets played his usual solid game but his defence was weak and lapses by Montreal rearguards on close-in plays were directly responsible for two of the Ranger goals. Durnan had 31 saves during the night, compared to 25 by Chuck Rayner in the Ranger nets.

At Detroit the Wings gave the Leafs the biggest beating in any game between the two this season. Detroit goal-getters were Pete Babando, Joe Carveth, Gord Howe, Sid Abel, Jimmy McFadden, Jack Stewart and Jimmy Peters. Harry Lumley in the Detroit nets lost a shut-out when Joe Klukay scored on an angle shot early in the second period.

At Chicago, Paul Ronty scored twice for the Bruins, veteran Milt Schmidt and Sylvio Bettio getting the others. Bert Olmstead saved the Hawks from a whitewash when he took a pass from Metro Prystai and scored with only half a minute to go in the second period.

Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bustling Ted Lindsay of Detroit added another assist to his point-total last night to keep him ahead of the pack in the tight race for National Hockey League scoring honors.

With 15 goals and 18 assists for 34 points, Lindsay is three up on Chicago's Doug Bentley and four ahead of the league's top marksgetter, Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens.

John Peirson, Boston, moved up a step to share fourth place with Detroit's Ted Kennedy, each with 29 points, while Gordie Howe, Detroit, holds down fifth position in point standings.

Deadlocked another step down—each with 26 points — are Paul Ronty, Boston and Chicago's Roy Conacher and Bill Mosienko.

The Leaders:	G	A	Pts.
Lindsay, Detroit	15	19	34
D. Bentley, Chicago	7	24	31
Richard, Montreal	22	8	30
Peirson, Boston	14	15	29

Taxation Threat To Horse Racing Says Commission

(By The Canadian Press)

New York racing had a good year in 1949, the State Racing Commission said Wednesday, but warned that "excessive taxation is a threat to that present healthy position."

The principal item under attack by the Commission, in issuing its annual report, was the five-per-cent tax levied by the city of New York and several counties. This tax, inaugurated in 1946, boosted to 15 per cent the tax on pari-mutuel pools at the state's tracks.

The Commission, which has urged repeal of the five-per-cent tax in recent years, said revenue to the State — exclusive of harness racing — would be approximately $20,319,000. This is nine per cent less than last year.

As reported previously, New York attendance for the 196-day season was 4,152,122, with total wagering of $303,332,958. The attendance was off less than six per cent, but wagering less than nine per cent as compared with 1948.

Connie Mack reaches his 87th milestone today, confident his 50th year as manager will find Philadelphia Athletics in the thick of the American League pennant race.

The veteran baseball leader has picked 1930 as the year he will "not one more" pennant before stepping out as manager.

"I know I'm well up in years," declared Mack, "but I don't feel them. And I'm looking for real competition from all of the teams next season."

He believes Boston Red Sox will furnish the toughest opposition because of their pitching. And Chicago White Sox will be the surprise team, in his opinion.

At Miami Beach two Ottawa girls Wednesday were seeded second and third in the junior girls foreign division of the Orange Bowl junior tennis tournament opening Monday. Patricia Lowe was seeded second and Miriam Rabbinoff third. Heading the division is Heather Nicholls of Bermuda.

Three other Ottawa high-school girls, Joan Patterson, Diana Lowe and Joyce Wilson, are entered in the tournament.

Maine trappers will get a crack at the elusive fisher, or "black cat," next month for the first time in 34 years. Kenneth W. Hodgdon, Maine wildlife research director, said at Augusta, Me., Wednesday his division will ask trappers to save fisher carcasses so the experts can learn more about the habits and habitat of the little-known fur-bearer.

At Salt Lake City, Joe Louis' manager said Wednesday that the former world heavyweight boxing champion has no plans for a fight in Canada. Manager Marshall Miles noted that Chairman Alex Fisher of the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Commission had said Louis would be barred from an exhibition bout in Vancouver.

Outfielder Dick Wakefield, who was traded to New York Yankees Saturday by Detroit Tigers, Wednesday at Detroit issued a letter to the press in which he blamed himself for failure to live up to expectations during his career with the Tigers.

Wakefield, in "6 severe, self-analysis, said he made many mistakes, the first of which was acceptance of a $15,000 bonus to sign with the Tigers in 1941.

Rough stuff around second base is outlawed in the new official baseball rules adopted at New York Wednesday for the 1950 season after nine months of work.

Windsor Spits Start Long Climb Up Loop Ladder

(By the Canadian Press)

Windsor Spitfires showed last night they are taking an 18-point setback in their stride.

By belting their second-place successors, St. Catharines Teepees, 8-5, they started the long return trip up the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A ladder.

Last week, an O.H.A. executive ruling that nine games won by the Spitfires while using two ineligible players were "no contest" pushed the Windsor Club down to seventh place.

In other Junior games last night, Guelph became the third team in five days to occupy the second position when they bested the last-place Stratford Kroehlers 6-4, and Oshawa Generals displayed their best ways to defeat Galt Black Hawks 4-1. In the Senior circuit, Hamilton Tiger's "never-say-die" failed to function sufficiently and they were downed 3-1 by Toronto's league-leading Marlboros. Kitchener-Waterloo took a firmer grip on the place position by defeating Owen Sound Mercurys 3-1.

Windsor had their big guns firing in every period, counting a trio of markers in the opening frame, two in the middle session and three in the closing period. St. Catharines were held scoreless in the first, clicked for a single in the second and showed their best with four in the third.

Earl Reibel paced the Spitfire attack with two markers while singletons were collected by Glen Skov, Eddie Stankievic, Erwin Grosse, Vic Howe and Jack Bailey.

O'Brien Shows Well

Ohie O'Brien made his usual good showing for St. Catharines, dropping in a pair of tallies. Singles were collected by Con Switzer, Norm Cameron and Robertson.

Stratford held a 4-2 lead over Guelph until 12:36 of the final frame, but four markers by the Biltmores settled the issue.

Herb Dickenson was the big gun for the visiting Guelph crew, pumping home three markers. Singletons were notched by Don Bellringer, Bob Palmer and Andy Bathgate. Doug Armstrong, Danny Flanagan, Bibber O'Hearn and Doug French divided scoring honors for the homesters.

Oshawa kept pace with their new running mates, Windsor Spitfires, by pasting Galt Black Hawks 4-1 before a home crowd.

Nicoll and Moe Galand gave the Generals a 2-0 first-session lead which was increased to 3-0 in the second, Nicoll again doing the honors. Galt broke into the scoring column with the opening score of the final frame, but Oshawa came back a little more than a minute later with their fourth goal, the final of the game.

Hamilton Tigers kept pace with Marlboros for one period, each club notching a single in the opener. Red Johnson clicked for the league leaders and Johnny Conick turned the trick for Hamilton.

Scotty Mair rapped in the second Marlboro counter in the middle session and Bobby Hassard added the final in the third.

No Games Carded

Kitchener-Waterloo and Owen Sound played on even terms until the final frame, Don Bauer counted a single for the homesters in the opening session and Buck Forslund supplied a goal for the Mercurys.

The clubs battled through a scoreless second frame before Billy Flick notched the tie-breaker for Kitchener-Waterloo at 12:40 of the final period.

No games are carded for tonight but four contests are scheduled for Friday. In the only senior game, Kitchener-Waterloo battle Marlboros at Maple Leaf Gardens. In the junior loop, Windsor play St. Catharines at the Garden City, Oshawa travel to Barrie and Guelph play hosts to Stratford.

Buffalo Bisons Retain Slim Lead at Top

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons retained their slim one point lead atop the eastern division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night by coming from behind to tie the runner-up Providence Reds 2-2.

The Reds opening goal at the 17-minute mark of the first period was credited to Pete Kapusta although it was actually slapped into the Bisons cage by Buffalo's Doug Lewis during a scramble in front of the net.

Eddie Kullman made it 2-0 early in the middle period, but the Bisons rallied and counted twice in the next four minutes to tie the score. Les Hickey and Lloyd Finkbeiner were the marksmen.

Both teams then settled back and played cautiously waiting for the break that never came.

Meanwhile at Pittsburgh, a freak goal in the third period gave the Hornets a 2-1 upset victory over the western division leading Cleveland Barons.

With the score tied 1-1, a pass from Church Russel to Billy Benson parked in front of the Cleveland cage struck the latter on the leg and bounced into the net, Benson was credited with the tally.

Pittsburgh scored first at the 12-minute mark of the second period when Ray Hannigan flashed the light. Cleveland tied the score early in the final period with Tom Williams getting the goal.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York — George Kaplan, 187½, Brooklyn, outpointed Duilio Spagnolo, 185½, Italy (8).

Phoenix, Ariz.—Charles Salas, 146, Phoenix, outpointed Bebe Herman, 150, Los Angeles (10).

RECOVER TWO CARS

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)—Police recovered two stolen automobiles Wednesday night and arrested one man after following a road block across bridges leading into the capital from suburban Eastview.

Arrested was Simon Allard, 24, of Eastview. Police said he was found in possession of one of the vehicles recovered. He will appear in Magistrate's Court today in connection with a charge of automobile theft. The second stolen auto was recovered after being abandoned in a ditch near Arnprior, Ont.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By KEN KELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Dec. 22 (CP) — Those old pre-tournament blues are coloring the picture for Canada's representatives to the world hockey championships in London next March. This time it's player trouble for coach Jimmy Ingram of Edmonton Mercurys.

Johnny (Edmonton Journal) Hopkins quotes a few succinct stanza from Graham's song:

"We're going overseas to do a job, and the whole of Canada will have their eyes on us. Yet some of the players don't even come out for practices.

"As soon as they start thinking they're married to this trip and some of them apparently do, they can start looking for another hockey team. They aren't wanted on this one.

"Unless there's a little more interest shown in practices, an entirely different team will be going overseas than the one originally planned. Can you imagine them guys not even turning out for practices?"

High-Paid Mayhem

In mulling over the financial statements of Edmonton's Western Canada Hockey League players and Western Interprovincial Rugby Football Union Eskimos, Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini comes up with this poser:

"Should a young athlete lose his teeth to a hockey stick or have 'em kicked out on the gridiron?

Bob notes Flyers paid 18 or 20 players $50,832 last season while 30 Eskimos cut into a $42,234 salary pie.

The problem stacks up this way to Bob: It's easier to skate 200 feet through six players than gallop 110 yards through 12 hefty footballers.

Tom Manastersky Has High Hopes Of More Titles

Montreal, Dec. 22 (CP)— Two down and one to go.

That's the cry of 30-year-old Manastersky as he guards the blue line for Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League and holds high hopes of playing on his third dominion championship team within the space of one year.

In that time he's been a member of the third cup-winning junior hockey squad — Montreal Royals — and of the Dominion football champs, Montreal Alouettes.

The 185-pound Manastersky at present is on the negotiation list of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League but is uncertain just what he'll do in the sports line after the current hockey season ends.

"For one thing he says he really prefers football to hockey too, he wants to go to university and to do that next fall.

Tommy thinks the biggest thrill of his sports career to date came last spring when the junior Royals knocked off Brandon Wheat Kings in an unprecedented eight-game series to bring Montreal its Memorial Cup in history.

"Those Wheat Kings were really tough, the Montreal-born Manastersky said, "but I guess our fellows just had a little bit extra to and we all felt pretty good after beating them in that final game at Winnipeg."

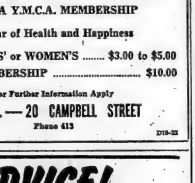
Top Hatters Hold Big Lead In Bowling Loop



Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League swung into action again Thursday night, in the Bowledrome, Trenton. Top Hatters increased their already sizable lead over the second place Aristocrats, taking them for five points, and snapping a three week undefeated run by the Aristocrats. The Uniques climbed to within one point of the second place team, by taking seven from the Happy Gang. Greenhorns took five from the Merry Macs, while the Skyliners rolled very well all three games, to drop the Head Pins deeper in the cellar. The Head Pins are a much improved team, and should go places during the second half of the schedule.

Team	W.	L.	P.
Top Hatters	29	10	70
Aristocrats	22	17	52
Uniques	21	18	51
Merry Macs	20	19	48
Greenhorns	18	21	42
Happy Gang	18	21	36
Skyliners	13	26	35
Head Pins	14	25	28

A meeting of the executive and team captains of the Frankford Bowling League was held in the office of E. G. Lohnes, Sunday afternoon, to discuss plans for future operation of the league, playoffs, etc. It is hoped to have a sleigh riding party in January for the league if plans can be completed.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Little Margaret O'Brien finds herself cast by some people in the unwanted role as the villain in her mother's marital troubles.

"It's not true," says the child star. "All I wanted was to see my mother happy."

That's right," agrees her mother, Mrs. Gladys O'Brien. "Margaret had nothing to do with the divorce."

Margaret has been censured from all sides for supposedly breaking up her mother's marriage to bandleader Don Sylvio.

While Mrs. O'Brien and daughter were shopping recently in Chicago, a wild-eyed woman rushed up and shook her finger at Margaret, shouting, "what do you mean by interfering with your mother's marriage, you selfish child!"

Saved Heartbreak

"In the first place," Mrs. O'Brien explained to me, "Margaret is my daughter; she does not advise me what to do. If he (the other way around."

She added that Margaret did want her to avoid rushing into the marriage.

"She saw that I was unhappy about going ahead with the wedding and urged me not to. But Mr. Sylvio had handed out the publicity to the papers already. He said he would look foolish if we didn't carry through with it. So I did.

"I then found out that he was just after the publicity. So I called the whole thing off. I would have saved all that heartbreak if I had listened to Margaret."

Margaret intends to pursue her career through her teens. (She'll be 13 in January). I asked her mother if she thought there was a danger of an "in-between" age for a child star.

"I don't think so—if you can find the right stories."

Capsule Review

"Cinderella" (R.K.O.) is Walt Disney at his best. That means delight for the kids of the world and their worried parents, too. The cartoon wizard has let his newfangled tricks to return to a good old fairy tale, told as only he and his artists can. It ranks with "Snow White." Best performers: a group of wonderfully wacky mice.

OBSTETRICAL RECORD

Montreal — (CP) — It's an old joke in the obstetrical profession that births always interrupt any gathering of doctors. But the other night 43 members of the Montreal Obstetrical and Gynaecological Society got together and only one doctor was called out all evening.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An opening bid of two in a suit is a honey of a bridge signal. First of all it insists that the bidding must not stop short of a game contract. This permits leisure showing of values by the pair.

Another point in its favor is the advice to partner that not much help is needed for a slam. Even one ace in the hand of partner may be enough for a slam in the pair, it admits.

Therefore, partner must warn at once if he has no ace or its equivalent in the form of KQ in one suit. To give such a warning the partner makes a first response of two-no-trumps.

Take a look at this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠7
♥A Q 7 3
♦A K 10 4
♣A K Q 8 2

NORTH
♠A K 3 4 3 2
♥K 10 8
♦J 8 5 3
♣None

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
2 C	2 S
3 H	3 S
4 C

In answer to an opening of two in a suit, any immediate reply other than two no-trump is a special signal. It admits having a sure trick of some kind that will make a slam.

So, when north replied with two spades, south had his sights set for a slam. But before going further he must know what will be trump, if any. Then he will find out about aces and kings.

His three heart bid shows his other biddable suit. North then shows his spade suit is rebiddable. And south shows his clubs rebiddable.

When one suit is rebiddable and the other not, bid them in alternate order. Unless the rebiddable suit is two cards longer. In that case, bid it twice before bidding the other.

Four clubs is not a game. The bidding must not stop there. The opening of two in a suit says so. That's a beauty.

NO NEGOTIATIONS

Calgary, Dec. 22 (CP)—An official of P. Burns Ranches Ltd., said Wednesday no negotiations were under way for the sale to Manitoba Mennonites of the Burns' Bar U Ranch, one of Canada's oldest and biggest ranches.

He was commenting on a report from Winnipeg that more than 100 Manitoba's landless at an 100 of Manitoba's landless listing for the ranch near High River, 65 miles southwest of here.

Little Benny's Note Book

One of the window shades in the living room hasn't been working rite, going down all rite, but not up, and after supper I was in the living room with pop, and he said, it's a shame to leave your mother to finish up those dishes all by hreself, I think I'll surprise her and brighten up her whole evening by fixing that shade before she has a chance to remind me again.

And he fixed it by taking it off and winding the spring in the roller, and ma came in and sat down a diffrant, so pop gave her a hint, saying, Well my dear, the shades of nite are falling fast.

What? ma said, and pop said, A little shade is a relief after a day in the sun.

What are you talking about for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, The window shade, my dear. Thanks to my unaided efforts it werks like a charm, he said.

Well my goodness a person mite think you had performed one of the 7 wonders, ma said. Since when is it such a grate achievement for a man to fix a window shade in his own home? she said, and pop said, It's a grate achievement any time I do it, and I will now proceed to pull it down and let it flip up and dislocate itself again so I can perform another grate achievement by fixing it once more the next time I get the urge, if ever.

And he started over to the shade again and ma said, William stop. You're the greatest clever-est noblest man in the world and I don't know how I've ever lived with you so long for land sakes, she said, and pop said, That's better, my dear.

And he sat down again and ma said, You're the most aggervating creature that ever lived.

Being the end of the subject.

Mr. George Wood, on behalf of the Sunday School expressed thanks to Miss Margaret Wright, who trained the children, and to Miss Helen Green, who also was at the piano throughout the program.

Proceeds, amounted to $28.60.

Ivanhoe—On Sunday evening a candle light and white gift service was held at Beulah United Church. The church, which was tastefully decorated by having a nativity scene on the communion table in front of the pulpit. On either side of the scene were two white candles in silver holders, which during the service were lighted in acceptance of the many gifts. Small Christmas trees, one on either side of the pulpit, were gaily decorated with tinsel and slightly lighted with coloured lights.

At the back of the church, on a table which was covered with a white cloth, were two large white baskets with streamers of silver tinsel hanging from the handle, in which on entering the church, each one placed their gifts of fruit or candy.

The service was conducted by Rev. H. G. Steers and assisted by Mrs. Harry Lovibond, who read the Christmas story and announced the Christmas carols, and Miss Doris V. Twiddy, who gave the introduction to the candle light service, and concluded it by a Christmas reading and a poem.

Candles were lighted by Miss Doris V. Twiddy, and Mrs. Harry Lovibond, for the white gifts service. Joyce Reid and Ellen Mitz dressed in white floor length dresses, and a bit of tinsel sparkling in their hair, carried the baskets up the aisle, and those lighting the candles received the gifts and placed them under the Christmas trees.

Owing to the amount of gifts, two trips had to be made in order to bring all the gifts to the front. Mr. Steers led in a prayer of dedication and pronounced the benediction. Christmas carols which were used during the service were, "The First Noel," "As With Gladness Men of Old," "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," "Joy to the World," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Away in a Manger" and "Silent Night."

The choir rendered "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly." The music for the entire service was played by Miss Phyllis Twiddy, church pianist.

After the service, a number of boxes were packed and sent to bring good cheer to the aged, and the sick, of the community.

MARMORA

Officers of A.F. And A.M. 222 Elected at Meeting

Marmora—Election of principal officers of Marmora A.F. and A.M. 222 took place at the regular meeting of the lodge held on Monday evening. The newly elected are:-

W.M., C. R. Whittemore; I.P.M., C. C. Watson; S.W., S. Sandham; J.W., Rev. J. M. Brownlie; Chaplain, H. O. Loveless; secretary, C. B. Bunkell; treasurer, F. R. Wells; Tyler, G. Kerr.

Adjournment was made to St. Paul's Parish Hall for the fourth degree which took the form of an oyster supper. The brethren were further entertained by a talk on Mexico by Bro. B. McKenzie, which was illustrated by slides of scenes visited by him, while on his trip there.

RAWDON

Stockdale Hunt Club Holds Annual Banquet

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, and Miss Vera Brown, of Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Wrightsell, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, attended the regular annual banquet of Stockdale Hunt Club at Dunbar Lodge, Trenton, on Wednesday evening last.

The tables were beautifully decorated for the occasion and a sumptuous meal was served to 25 guests.

The Cobourg trio presented a two-hour program of solos, duets, and trios, with Miss Verna Brown as accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Orr, Stockdale, looked after all the arrangements and the other club members appreciated their efforts in making the evening such a success.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg— Quite a number of the children from the vicinity were in Tweed on Saturday afternoon to see Santa Claus.

Christ Church

The Rev. Clarence Wright conducted a carol festival evening in Christ Church, on Sunday morning. Christmas scripture readings were given by Burton Sherry, Lorne Carleton Jr., Helen Carleton, Marilyn Carleton, Merle Carleton, Margaret Grills and Donald Geen. Among the carols sung were "O Come All Ye Faithful", "When He Cometh", "Good Christian Men Rejoice", "Good King Wenceslas Looked Out", "We, Three Kings of Orient Are", "While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks by Night", "The First Noel" and "Silent Night, Holy Night". Rev. Mr. Wright presided at the organ.

Christmas Day service will be observed in Christ Church on Christmas morning at 9:15 a.m.

Thomasburg United Church

Christmas Carol and White Gift Christmas service was observed in Thomasburg United Church on Sunday evening with the Rev. Morley Clarke in charge, assisted by Mr. Donald Richardson, the Sunday School superintendent, and Mrs. Clarke presided at the piano. Carols used during the service were "O Come All Ye Faithful", "In Bethlehem's City Rise, Thou Better Seen", "The First Noel", "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear", "Joy to the World, The Lord Is Come", while the junior choir sang "Away in a Manger". Rev. Mr. Clarke and Mr. Richardson took the Bible readings and the choir gave two numbers.

The younger pupils of the Sunday School presented the White Gifts which are to be forwarded to needy people in England, while Rev. Mr. Clarke read a very fitting poem and gave the dedicatory prayer.

The Church was suitably arranged for the Christmas season with the manger and lighted Christmas trees.

The Rev. Mr. Clarke, Mrs. Clarke, Mr. Richardson and the teachers entertained the Sunday School pupils at a Christmas party on Saturday evening in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church, which had been suitably decorated for the occasion. Old Santa Claus came at the conclusion and distributed the gifts from the tree.

Friends of Miss Emma Porter will regret to learn that she will be a patient in the Toronto General Hospital for some weeks, having undergone an operation there on Thursday last.

Friends of Mrs. Cecil Geen will be sorry to learn that she is confined to her home with a fractured bone in her ankle, the result of a fall on the ice, a short time ago.

Mrs. Earle Morton and baby, Neil, arrived home from Belleville Hospital, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ernest Hall left on Thursday to spend some time with her son, John, and Mrs. Clarke and family, at "The Pas", Manitoba.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Geen, Kenneth and Carl Geen of Carmel, were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Murney Geen.

Mrs. Will Yateman is staying for a short time with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morton.

Mr. Laird English, of Queen's University, Kingston, is spending the Christmas season with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. English.

Friends from here attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Hamilton at St. Paul's Church, Roslin, on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter Nobbs, and Mrs. Prentice, of Havelock, spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mouck.

The many friends of Mr. Archie Jones will regret to learn that he has been a patient in the Kingston General Hospital for the past two weeks.

Quite a few wet pavements on Sunday forenoon, a car driven by a young man from Tweed, with two other young companions skidded into the east ditch in the village, hitting a culvert. Considerable damage was done to the engine of the car. All occupants were unhurt.

The three act comedy drama "Grandpa's Twin Sister", which was to have been presented under the auspices of Crescent Rebekah Lodge by Queensboro United Church Sunday School talent on Thursday evening, had to be withdrawn for a time.

The Women's Association of Thomasburg United Church were entertained for their Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Lawrison Kennedy, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Arthur Brough, local post master, has recently taken over his brother Frank's share in the general store here, which was known as the J. H. Blakely Store, for many years. The general public wish Arthur every success in his new undertaking as general storekeeper as well as post master.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brough and children, have moved into the part of Mr. Raymond French's house, the home of the late Mrs. Walter Harrison.

WOOLER

Wooler — Miss Annie Richards of Queensboro, is spending several weeks with her cousin, Mrs. E. McMaster.

Mrs. Easterly was in Belleville for a few days last week where she visited her grandaughter, Mrs. Rutledge.

Mrs. Orvis has gone to Newmarket to spend Christmas with her sister, Mrs. Arthur Boyd.

Mr. W. Stacey has sold his butcher business to Mr. Colling, of Napanee.

Evening Auxiliary

The Christmas meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Karl Austin on Tuesday evening.

Following the opening worship service and roll call, the business was taken up. Some items were the treasurer's report, the report of the nominating committee by Mrs. Neil Nelson and the sending of $25.00 directly to Rev. Floyd Honey, in China. Mrs. Everett Ellis and Mrs. Angus Lester were appointed to audit the treasurer's books.

Mrs. Lorne Cole and Mrs. Everett Ellis conducted the candlelight service found in the Missionary Monthly. Soft music was played by Mrs. Wes. Down while Mrs. Charlie Nelson read a beautiful Christmas story. A selection by a quartet composed of Mrs. Charlie Nelson, Mrs. Lorne Cole, Mrs. Wes. Down and Mrs. Jack Cameron was enjoyed by all.

After singing several Christmas carols refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

W.I.

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. W. Ashby on Wednesday afternoon with 23 members in attendance.

Herman Morrow, vice president, presided in the absence of Mrs. B. Wilson, the president.

Following the usual opening exercises, the secretary presented the minutes and financial statement. During the business period it was decided to send $5.00 to Dr. Barnardo Home in Toronto and $10.00 to the Hospital for Sick Children.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill arranged the Christmas program. Several Christmas carols were sung throughout the program. Readings were given by Mrs. Homer Leavitt and Mrs. C. D. Cole and a piano solo by Mrs. K. H. Rowe. Mrs. F. Gooding auctioned the wrapped parcels. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. R. E. McMaster, Mrs. Lorne Cole, Mrs. G. D. Fox and the hostess.

RATE CHANGES

Changes in Ontario automobile insurance rates will become effective January 1, 1950. Insurance costs for some territories and classes will be reduced; others will be increased. For many motorists there will be no change in insurance cost.

Private Passenger Automobiles: Fire and Theft rates are reduced an average of 11.7%; liability rates for many motorists will not change; for others there will be an increase, the average over-all increase being 4.7%; some Collision rates are reduced, most are increased for an average increase of 14.7%; average increase for all coverages and territories is 6%.

Commercial Automobiles: Fire and Theft rates are reduced an average of 9.7%, Liability rates are reduced an average of 6.2%; Collision rates are increased an average of 3%; average decrease for all coverages and territories is 4.8%.

What Makes Insurance Rates GO UP? GO DOWN?

It is or simple as this: the fewer the accidents, the lower the rates; the more accidents, the higher the rates. Accidents don't just happen—they are committed—and prevention is the only cure.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

Suddenly there was a knock at the door. A letter was handed to her. Tearing it open, she found it was from Jim. As she read the closely written pages a little smile flickered in her eyes. If she were the green frock he would know that she was willing to walk with him after dinner. Should she? Once more she picked up his letter. He felt that there must be some mistake. Perhaps he had been too impetuous in his demands. He still loved her, had always loved her. Yet if he had misunderstood her he wanted to put things right. He was taking all the blame in spite of the fact that it was she who had insisted that he put aside all but their friendship.

Going to the wardrobe, Ann looked at her frocks. She had intended wearing a lace gown. The green frock, with its shimmering folds and vivid flowers, intrigued her. She slipped it off its hanger. Why not wear it? Perhaps that stern look about Jim's firm jaw would give place to a friendly smile. And yet, should she heal the breach again.

Half an hour later Ann joined her aunt as they went to the dinning room. Her eyes were shining. She was wearing the green dress.

The band was playing softly as the passengers aboard ship enjoyed their sumptuous evening meal. Raising her eyes, Ann met Jim's adoring gaze. Once more life looked rosy to him, for she was wearing her green dress.

Meanwhile strange events were happening in New York and in her quiet home in New Jersey, Mary Kelly, Miss Whiting's real niece was pacing the hall with growing nervousness. Terry had not come home. It was long past midnight. She opened the front door and listened. Nothing but the sound of the wind in the trees disturbed the silence of the summer night. What had happened to Terry?

About six o'clock he had telephoned that he might be a little late in getting home. Gerald's trial was to take place on the morrow. As Mary realized what it might mean she wrung her hands in despair. Not wishing to burden his wife with the thought that the morrow might bring ruin to her brother, Terry had told her that there was always the chance of something turning up at the eleventh hour that would change the situation completely.

When Mary got his call—and she knew he was in a hurry—she felt perhaps the longed-for something had arrived. Surely, Terry must be home before long now. It would be folly to stay up all night, especially as when he would have to be in court tomorrow as assistant prosecutor. He would need all the rest he could get, so that his judgment would be calm and his thoughts collected.

As Mary turned to enter the house once more she heard the throbbing of a car. A minute later a head swung beneath the widespreading trees and stopped abruptly. The light from the porch gleamed on Terry's face. All the ruby color had left his cheeks. His eyes seemed to have sunk in his head.

"Oh, Terry, darling, what's the matter?" Mary drew him towards her.

"Are you still up!" he asked, as though he were awaking from a frightful dream. He took her in his arms and his cold lips met hers.

"What is it Terry? Was there an accident?" Some of the drivers were careless." "Are you hurt?"

"No, no, I'm all right, Mary." Terry turned and fastened the door.

"You don't look it. Can I get you something to drink or eat?" It would be just like Terry to forget all about eating. Sometimes Mary thought she would have to telephone and remind him to get his lunch.

"I'd like a cup of coffee—good and strong."

"Oh, but, Terry, you know it keeps you from sleeping. I'll give you something else."

"No, I want the coffee. It won't keep me awake tonight," and Terry sank exhausted in a big easy chair while Mary hastened to the kitchen.

How could he ever tell her? Would he ever forget what he had seen? He closed his eyes.

"Now, Terry you can come through to the dining room," she called softly.

"All right," he answered, as he rose somewhat stiffly. Perhaps after he had a good cup of coffee he'd feel better. It might steady him for the ordeal. Poor little girl! She'd likely blame herself. Well, perhaps it might save her a lot of tears later, but it was terrible.

As Terry drank his coffee and ate some of the dainty sandwiches which she had prepared, the color came back into his cheeks. "You feel better now, don't you?" asked Mary as she put her hand on his shoulder. It thought you promised me that you would always take time to have some lunch, and not get so involved with the business that you'd forget to eat. And now I suppose you'd better be thinking of going to bed," Mary sighed. "I wonder if Gerald—"

Terry rose from the table and slipping his arm about Mary went into the living room. A wave of apprehension went through her. A sudden foreboding about her brother filled her mind. Why didn't Terry speak? Seating himself in his favorite chair, Terry pulled her down on his lap. "I won't have to go to court tomorrow, sweetheart. I'm going to stay home with you."

"Oh, then Gerald's to get off!" Mary put her arms about his neck.

"Well, there won't be a trial."

What was wrong with Terry? What did it mean? Surely Gerald hadn't skipped. "Tell me quickly, Terry. What is it, what is it?"

"You must be brave, little girl." Terry held Mary closely to his heart. "Gerald will never be tried. He died this morning."

"Oh, Terry!" Mary's voice was choky with her sobs, "but . . . he was all right yesterday."

"Yes, Mary, only sometime between last night and this morning." The clock struck two . . . "I guess I should say yesterday morning, he got in a mixup with some of the gang that he'd been working with. There was some argument. No one seems to know exactly what it was about, but a gun was fired and Gerald fell! At first they thought he was just stunned. Then when police arrived they discovered he'd been shot in several places. They took him to the hospital. He was still breathing but he died as they put him on the operating table."

"Oh, Gerald, poor, poor boy." Mary was sobbing piteously. "And I promised Mother to look after him."

Unaware of Gerald Lamberty's tragic end, Ann Whiting assented to Miss Whiting's suggestion that she should write and see if her brother would come over and meet them in London in the fall. That would be different. But you see, he's just working himself up, and if he slips out and leaves his footbold it just means that he has to begin at the beginning and start all over again."

"Well, there's something to that Of course I'm getting on, and sometimes I think it would be rather nice to have some one on whom I could be the burden of my estate. Your brother's experience would be quite useful in such a case. By the way, he's not contemplating matrimony, is he?"

"No, he's not very interested in girls. Sports are more in his line" answered Ann, trying to remember if she had ever heard Mary had told her about Gerald. She had no time then when she was at school with Mary, but she had not cared much for him. Indeed, she rather disliked him. Well, she would write to Mary and she could use her discretion in this matter for situation.

As dinner proceeded Ann caught another approving glance from Jim Riddell, whose seat was at a nearby table. He looked strikingly handsome in evening dress, and when she returned his smile she felt he must surely hear the beating of her heart. She loved him madly. Yet as the thought of his letter she almost cursed her folly in putting on the green gown. If only she had ignored his request, that would have been an end to everything. Now she hardly knew what to say. It was quite out of the question to think of marrying him Yet how could she tell him her reasons for not acceding to his desire.

"Never Felt Better Than Since Taking Syntona"

Now Free from Indigestion, Heartburn and Headaches —Also Rid of Stiffness and Pain in Hips and Limbs— Praises it Highly.

"It is a real pleasure to tell you how much Syntona has meant to me and I hope other sufferers who read this will profit as I did," said Mr. William Miller, 228 Barton Street East, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report telling of his experience with this well known herbal compound.

"For a good many years I was troubled with indigestion, at times of such heartburn after my meals, that I could hardly stand it. I got so discouraged that no real appetite. Many days I just forced myself to eat. Then I developed stiffness with constipation, having to take pills and purgatives daily. I suffered from rheumatic pains and aches in my arms, hips and limbs too, and my back pains gave me a lot of pain, especially at night. As a result, I often resolved to get my proper rest, and then I would be tired and have no energy in the morning.

"I had tried everything I knew or and nothing seemed to do me any good. Finally I decided I would try Syntona and after taking the first bottle I felt so much better that I kept on. I noticed the indigestion and heartburn left me entirely, as it did, and my bowels were acting more regularly. As I continued taking it there was a steady improvement. Now I have hardly any trouble at all and most of all, most of the soreness has gone out of my hips and legs. I am getting stronger, I feel better and I seem to have more energy. Since I've been taking this medicine, I've gained 10 pounds in weight.

"If you who read this, suffer as Mr. Miller did, why not let Syntona help you as it has so many others. Get a bottle today. You, too, may find this pure herb and root medicine to be just what you need to put you on the road to better health again.

Defiant Ex-convict Shouts At Kingston Magistrate

Kingston, Dec. 23 — (CP) — Shouting defiance at magistrate James B. Garvin and officials of the court, Harry Hancox, 21-year-old ex-convict and deliverer of two convict pals from outside the Kingston General Hospital earlier this week, was ordered committed for trial on the charge of armed robbery.

Hancox refused to plead one way or the other and would not even say if he heard before the presiding magistrate.

His actions, released from the penitentiary less than three weeks ago was committed for trial on the evidence of Mrs. Erma Martin, whose car the convicts stole to make their escape.

When arraigned on the first count, armed robbery from Mrs. Martin, Hancox demanded to hear all charges before pleading or electing. "I'll not plead to anything until I know all the things you are going to put up against me," he shouted.

Hancox was called upon to stand while a charge of shooting with intent to main and disfigure Victor Hancox, prison manager. Hancox refused to rise to

Senator Sinclair Dies Day Before 70th Birthday

Charlottetown, Dec. 23 — (CP) —Senator John E. Sinclair of Summerside, P.E.I., died in hospital here early today following a short illness. He would have been 70 tomorrow.

A liberal, he was summoned to the senate June 7, 1930, after 22 years in politics.

John Ewen Sinclair was a son of the late Peter Sinclair and Margaret McMurdo, both Scotch.

In 1906 he married Rebecca Harding of Graham's Road, P.E.I. Three children were born to them.

A farmer, Mr. Sinclair was a member of the swine commission which visited different parts of Europe in 1909.

He first entered the political field in 1908 when he unsuccessfully contested Queen's first in a provincial election. In 1911 he was elected to the house of commons as representative of Queen's and was re-elected in 1921. On Dec. 30, 1927, he was sworn in as a privy councillor and became a member of the Liberal government without portfolio.

2 Asphyxiated, Home Later Burns, 3rd Person Saved

Calgary, Dec. 23 (CP)— Two persons died early today of asphyxiation in a gas-filled home here while later their home burned in flames and was almost completely destroyed. A third person was saved, by firemen.

Dead are: W. A. Laraway, 72, and Mrs. Laraway, 71.

Rescued was Darrill's sister, Delcre, 7.

Firemen pulled the children from the smoking gas-filled home but after nearly two hours of artificial respiration they were unable to revive Laraway and Darrell.

Police and a neighbor took the grandchildren through a window in the six-room house. The only other occupant, Mrs. Violet Cull, mother of the two children and daughter of Laraway was absent from home.

Scotland Yard Probes Double Life of Suicide

Stolen Jewels Valued At $315,000 Found

London, Dec. 23 — (AP) — Scotland Yard pieced together today the bizarre double life of a suicide who they believe may have master-minded some of Europe's biggest gem thefts in the last decade.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, robbed of £20,000 ($63,000) worth of jewels in 1949, are believed to have been among his victims, Yard sources said today.

Already detectives have turned up stolen jewels worth £100,000 ($315,000) in their searching for more.

The dead man was known as Barry Holliday 51-year-old man-about-town, famed among London's underworld as "Society Bertie" or "Johnny the Gent." He was found shot dead in a hotel room in suburban Virginia Water Wednesday. A wailing stick hollowed out to contain a concealed gun was by his side.

Holliday had friends in high society. He frequented country house parties. But the great return to the one true church, swalled over the centuries, the many ways though believing in Jesus Christ, are for various reasons separated from you," he said.

"With unspeakable groanings, the spirit, who is the bond of good people, today cries out imploringly for the prayer of our Lord: that they may be one.

"With good reason, men are anxious about unity. Many with which the United front of militant atheism threatens us. But the real question is now voiced aloud: why are there still schisms? When will all the forces of the spirit and of love be tumultuously united?

Urged by Prayers

"If, on other occasions, an invitation to unity has been sent forth from this apostolic see, on this occasion we repeat it more urgently. We implore you, we beg that we are urged by the pleadings and prayers of numerous believers scattered over the whole earth, who, after suffering tragic and painful events, look to this same sacred throne as to the source of salvation for the whole world.

"For all those who sincerely but vainly await His coming, who adore Him as the one promised by the prophets and the 'Orient' and we open the holy door and at the same time we extend a welcome from the heart of a Father whose fatherhood in the inscrutable design of God has come to us from Jesus the redeemer."

The Pope also expressed hope that those who have been members of the Roman Catholic Church and have strayed away would return to the fold like the prodigal son.

Referred to Both

Apparently the Pope in referring to militant atheism, meant communism but apparently he referred both to communism and to the extremes of capitalism when he said:

"In the social field, the counterfeiting of God's plan has gone to its very roots by deforming the divine image of man. Instead of his real, created nature with origin and destiny in God, there has been substituted the false notion of man whose conscience is a law unto himself...

"An outgrowth of this, which came to wield increasing power over a long period of years because of its varied applications in public and private life, was that narrowly individualistic order which today is in serious crisis almost everywhere.

"But the more recent innovations have wrought more revolutis. Starting from the same mistaken premises and taking the diametrically opposite direction, they have led to no less disastrous consequences, including the complete overthrow of the divine order, contempt for the dignity of the human person, the denial of the most sacred and inalienable rights, and the domination of a single class over the others, (and) the enslavement of all persons of any class in a totalitarian state to the legalization of violence and to militant atheism."

Return to Christianity

Then the Pope invited communists to return to Christianity. "We do not wish to support one or the other of these social systems as such, since their errors are opposed to the divine plan," he said, "may there be a presumptive good in the desire for freedom, to natural and Christian principles on which basis effective principles on which is based effective justice with respect for legitimate freedoms May the recognition of the fact that all men are equal as regards the foundation of a personal rights put an end to the futile struggle which provokes hatred and is a hindrance to peace and to brotherly love for mankind."

The Pope then expressed hope for a universal embracing of the faith.

Prospects Not Good for White Christmas in S. Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

There's plenty of snow in the far north, on the Prairies, in Northwestern and Northern Ontario and in northern regions of Quebec but for southern Ontario and along Quebec's southern fringe and in the Maritimes, whether It will be a white Christmas is touch-and-go.

Only in the Arctic wastes and in the area stretching east from the foothills of the Rockies into North Bay can holidaying Canadians really count on a traditional sky snowy celebration.

Toronto, London, Windsor, Hamilton and some other centres in Southern and Southwestern Ontario will probably have to get along without snow unless a storm moving southeastward from Montana strikes north. Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax have just about an even chance. Cities on the Prairies will probably have a green Christmas anyway.

Could Upset Predictions

Weather men told The Canadian Press they would rather not go too far out on a limb, but while Christmas predictions. Conditions not yet appearing on their weather maps could upset the situation by Sunday.

But forecasters gave this general picture:

Rain is falling on the Pacific coast. The weather is cold in the west — it was 42 below Thursday night at Yellowknife, N.W.T., and cold air from the Prairies is moving eastward into Southern and Eastern Ontario, with its temperature moderating as it travels. By tonight, the cold air will cover the Maritimes. Then it will likely be moderately cold almost everywhere except the Pacific coast.

There is a good prospect of a white Christmas everywhere in Ontario along the Lake Huron shore and southeast of Georgian Bay to the Ottawa valley. Kingston and Haliburton districts will likely get a white day, as will the rest of Ontario west of a line drawn from North Bay to Windsor. But elsewhere in Ontario, the best the weather experts can promise is occasional snowflurries.

Some snow fell in London, Ont., today and Hamilton got a dusting overnight. Sudbury reports an outlook for a Christmas "just overnight" white, unless more snow comes, while the pre-holiday landscape in North Bay today is "speckled."

Montreal expects some snow but the weather men expect it will melt almost as soon as it falls. Forecasters in Ottawa are calling for a light snowfall by Saturday afternoon. Quebec city residents can expect occasional flurries, are keeping their fingers crossed.

Have Plenty in Park

A family visiting Peterborough Thursday for Christmas shopping was able to have a snowball fight in a city park.

A light overnight snowfall raised white Christmas hopes in Stratford, as did a flurry this forenoon at Woodstock.

But St. Maria and Timmins reported heavy snowfalls last night.

Man Sentenced to Death Freed For Risking Life to Help Girl

Ossining, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP) — The gates of Sing Sing prison swung outward today for a man who once was sentenced to death but lived to risk his life for a little girl doomed by leukemia.

Ralph Brown Louis Boy's dramatic vein-to-vein exchange of blood last summer did not cure the child. But it helped gain freedom for the 50-year-old convicted murderer, after 15 years behind the walls.

In a traditional Christmas-time gesture, Governor Thomas E. Dewey Thursday commuted Boy's life sentence to time already served.

Boy, a former machinist in New York City, will be on parole for the rest of his life.

He was expected to go to his mother's home in New York City. His son and daughter, both in their early 30s, plan to visit him there. Their mother has remarried.

Boy was the first person who ever knowingly took into his veins the taint of leukemia, a cancerous blood disease.

The transfusion experiment to help the eight-year-old girl, whose name has not been disclosed was not Boy's first participation in life - endangering medical tests at Sing Sing.

Boy was freed because of his "exemplary conduct" during his several experiments. Dewey said.

Boy included wartime experiments involving Atabrine, used later by the armed forces in treatment of malaria, and cobra venom vaccine.

Boy was convicted of first degree murder in Manhattan in 1921, for a robbery-slaying in which he did not participate directly. He was accused of furnishing the gun with which a taxi company cashier, John T. Dunn, was shot by gangsters.

Boy was sentenced to die in the electric chair, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Leukemia is an excess of white blood cells. The doctors hoped to kill the excess in the child's blood.

A total of 36 quarts of blood was traded between the child and the convict in four-hour sessions on each of four days. The girl died two weeks later.

Pope in Christmas Message Pleads for Union in Opposing Advance of Militant Atheism

By FRANK BRUTTO

Vatican City, Dec. 23—(AP)—Pope Pius appealed today to all who believe in Jesus Christ to unite under the Roman Catholic Church in a solid front against militant advances of Atheism.

The Pope's speech, his annual Christmas message, was addressed to the whole world on the eve of the 1950 holy year. There seemingly little doubt that the address was an invitation to all those professing Protestant faiths to join with the Church of Rome.

Talks coming holy year, the pontiff said, "must be decisive, especially for the longed-for religious renewal of the modern world."

"Oh this Holy Year could well mark the great return to the one true church, swalled over the centuries, the many ways though believing in Jesus Christ, are for various reasons separated

"With unspeakable groanings, the spirit, who is the bond of good people, today cries out imploringly for the prayer of our Lord: that they may be one.

Eleven Airmen Killed in Crash of U.S. Bomber

Burns After Crashing In Marsh in Georgia

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 23 (AP)—Eleven airmen from Chatham Air Force field year here died when a big United States bomber crashed and burned Thursday night in a Savannah River marsh seven miles northwest of this city.

Col. Frederick E. Glantzberg, commanding officer at Chatham Field, identified the plane as a B-50. Rescue teams said the wreckage lay buried deep in the spongy marsh mud.

The four-engined bomber took off at 8:27 P.M. on a routine training flight to El Paso, Tex.

The B-50 has a wingspread of 141 feet, is 99 feet long, and weighs 125,000 pounds. The airforce described it as a more powerful version of the B-29 Superfortress which was used to bomb Japan.

Passed Over House

J. A. Lyles said the plane passed directly over his riverside house as it headed into the marsh. He said he thought from the sound that it would land on the house.

When the crash came, "it looked like the whole world was on fire," he added.

Another witness, A. Y. Britt, said "the plane seemed to go upward, then the motor sounded as came irregular and it nosed downward. Flames began streaking out behind it, then sprang outward from it."

Sheriff Bill Harris sloshed in with the first rescue party.

"Only two bodies were recognizable," he said. "The rest were just hunks of meat all over the place."

Harris was covered with mud up to his neck when he came out.

"We used life preservers to keep us from going all the way under," he said. "The plane was in pieces when located. It was just so much scrap."

Special Christmas Story Featured

"Christmas in Denmark" an article by Mrs. Mary Agnes Stockelbach of Verona, N.J., is a special feature for today. The author, who her husband a native of Denmark, made annual visits to the home of the family celebration. The war ended visits but Mrs. Stockelbach's descriptive story gives a glimpse into the Christmas customs of another country. The feature will be found on page 14.

Sure, Science Made Atomic Bomb But it Also Made Millions Happy

New York, Dec. 23 (AP) — We switched on the lights of the 46 foot Christmas tree.

Then we looked around to see how the work, mopped his face:

"Whew! Whatta job. But that tree'll make a lot of people happy."

"Scientifically correct," I said.

He whirled and spat — "scientific! Nuts! What has science done for us lately? Nothing except make atomic bombs. Science can't even prevent Santa Claus. Just incorrect stuff."

Wait, Joe," I said, "while I tell you what science does for Christmas."

Thousands of grandpas and grandmas who are going to see Christmas trees this year wouldn't even be living for science.

They are going to know they have look forward to celebrating Christmas, instead of being sure they would not live another year. It's only a few years ago that these grandparents would have known that one in 10 persons of their age was certain to die of pneumonia in January and February. Penicillin changed that.

Grandpa and grandma, who suffer most of the ailments of arthritis won't hurt so much this Christmas. They still can't get the new 1949 hormones that miraculously stop pain, but they can look forward to relief — and for the first time.

There are 60,000 American babies who will see Christmas this year that would have died or needed long enough to see Santa a few years ago. This year's death rate among the newborn dropped to a new low, and that is part of the saving. The others were cured of infant diseases.

Mother died in childbirth dropped to a new low in the United States this year. It's about one-quarter better than last year.

This year's death rate in the United States dropped two percent under last year.

Science helped do this.

"Bah," said Joe, "what's the use of saving all these people when they look forward to dying to kill more than it can save?"

That's where you are wrong, Joe. Take the hateful atomic bomb. The energy that makes it was used this year for thousands of experiments in agriculture, to produce better and more food, with less labor. And for tens of thousands of other good workers.

Body And Head Badly Battered When Discovered

Missing Since Answering Call Early Thursday Night

Welland, Dec. 23 — (CP) — Cab driver Arthur Gough, 38, of St. Catharines, was found dead today in a ditch on a lonely road in suburban Crowland township. His body, head badly battered, lay a few feet from his abandoned taxicab.

Police at St. Catharines said that Gough, a driver for the five-O Taxi Company of St. Catharines was last seen at 8 P. M. Thursday when he answered a call to a St. Catharines hotel. When he did not return to the taxi stand, a broadcast over the provincial police radio system asked police to watch for his black sedan.

The spot at which Gough's body was found in Crowland near Welland's southeastern outskirts is about six miles south of the point on the northern limit where rabbit hunters discovered the bludgeoned body of Sam Delibaich, 47-year-old Welland cabbie, last Saturday. Delibaich disappeared Dec. 9.

Third Slaying in Week

The slaying was the third to come to light in this district within a week. Prior to the discovery of the Delibaich body, Frank Mahaffy, 73, was clubbed with murder in the cement-block slaying of George Morrison with whom he had shared a board shack near Colborne.

The latest slaying was reported to provincial police as they started their investigation in the Delibaich case. A taxicab stolen from Delibaich was found late Saturday in downtown Toronto.

Gough's body was found at 7:30 a. m. today by Fred Sherry, a trucker, who lives on Pumphouse Road in Crowland. Sherry told police that while going to work, he spotted the partly-submerged body in a shallow ditch.

Shoes Off Body

Both of Gough's shoes and his jacket were 10 feet away from his battered body.

Shevy told police that he drove past the spot early Thursday night and saw no sign of the taxicab.

Inspector Leonard Nell of Toronto, veteran investigator from the Criminal Investigation branch of the Provincial police, took charge of the case. He had been in Welland for some time with the cement-block slaying investigation.

'FANCY VARIETY' MARKET SOUGHT BY FOOD INDUSTRY

Hope to Offset Declines of Markets in the United Kingdom

Ottawa, Dec. 23 — (CP)—Canada's food industry, faced with declining United Kingdom markets, may launch a determined drive for the rich "fancy variety" market in its own country.

Such markets exported almost $300,000 for "foreign" varieties of cheese, meat, bacon, eggs and a wide variety of canned fruits and vegetables in the first ten months of this year.

The agriculture and animal products imports represented an increase of some $21,000,000 over 1948, despite the fact the country was spending further millions building up huge stocks of butter, cheese and other commodities in government warehouses.

Trade experts explained the oddity of Canadians importing large quantities of food while hoping food producers were building up by the fact that the Canadian food industry has largely geared itself to sell one specific market — the United Kingdom.

Canadian cheese producers have concentrated on producing fresh cheddar wanted by the U.K. and the producers in this country lively lean to provide high-quality suitable alfalfa—the breakfast with white aldings—the breakfast fare of Britishers.

Seek Variety in Meals

Canadian housewives, meanwhile, sought variety in their meals by alternating Canadian cheese with imported Dutch or Danish cheese, which is aged into a rich variety. They also bought some $500,000 worth of imported fat pork as a change from the familiar Canada sidebacks.

The big cattle ranches in Alberta reported a plenty of beef in 1949, but little of it was in cans. So Canadians spent $2,000,000 for canned beef from the Argentine.

While Canadian egg producers were exporting $40,000,000 dozen tract, about $85,000 worth of eggs were imported, mainly for hatching purposes.

Now that the U.K. market appears to be declining, many government food experts believe the country generally will start concentrating more and more in 1950 on that $200,000,000 domestic market that dropped through its fingers this year.

MAY REDUCE BAR SIZE

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP) Chocolate bar manufacturers are considering reducing the size of bars and selling them at five cents, it was learned today. Bars which sold at five cents before the war sell for 10 cents.

POSTAL CARRIERS TO HAVE HOLIDAY ON MONDAY

Postal letter carriers, rural mail couriers and operators of stage services will take a holiday from their duties on Monday, Dec. 26th, which is being observed as the official Christmas holiday. There will be no delivery of mail by the above and the post office lobby and wickets will be closed all day.

There will be no street letter box collections but mails will be received and despatched at the local office and special delivery service will be given as usual.

LINDSAY MAN WINS KINSMEN BASKET

Mr. Leslie Neil, 75 Sussex Street South, Lindsay, was the winner of the Kinsmen Club Christmas basket which was drawn for on Thursday evening at the McCrae-sky Theatre. The draw was made by Frank S. Follwell, M.P., for Hastings South.

The draw staged by the local service club was said to be a success, the proceeds to be added to the Kinsmen Community Swimming pool fund.

PRICE SHOULD HAVE READ $162.50

In the advertisement of T. A. Tucker Co., Ltd., appearing in last night's edition of the Intelligencer the last item, Oil Burner Space Heaters listed as $16.50 should have appeared as $162.50. We regret the error.

Pair Plead Guilty To Timber Theft Off Crown Land

Charged with stealing timber off crown lands in Carlow township, two Dungannon men pleaded guilty before Magistrate Lloyd at Bancroft, Wednesday.

Woodrow Reber and Robert Small admitted cutting some 5,875 feet, board measure, of standing timber, most of which had been sawn at a local mill and was under seizure by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Both men were charged under Section 366 of the Criminal Code of Canada and were given five years suspended sentence by the magistrate, with costs.

The court ordered the material under seizure, valued at $700, to be turned over to the Department of Lands and Forests for disposal as it saw fit.

Although most of the logs had been moved when trespass was discovered, rangers from the Department's Bancroft headquarters matched stump sections to slabs piled at the sawmill. This was of great assistance to Provincial Police officers at Bancroft in completing the investigation leading to the arrests.

Christmas Party By Bateman's Much Enjoyed

Employees of Bateman Motors Ltd., together with their wives, attended an enjoyable Christmas party at Tobe's County Gardens Thursday evening. The event was the annual Christmas party given by Bateman Motors Ltd. to the employees and was attended by approximately 100 persons.

The guests enjoyed a turkey dinner with all the trimmings and employees and their wives were presented with gifts by Mr. Arthur Bateman, assisted by Mr. Morley Ward, sales manager.

Members of the staff presented Mr. and Mrs. Bateman with a beautiful silver tray and tea service.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Branch Manager Of Assurance Co. Sponsors Party

Members of the staff of the Mutual Life Assurance Company were the guests of branch manager Percy McGuire and Mrs. McGuire at a Christmas party held at the Maple Inn, Bloomfield, this week.

In the afternoon, the party gathered at the Bowl-O-Drome for some bowling, where Don Williams, member of the winning team on two occasions and through the medium of a few side bets, walked away with the winnings.

Full justice was meted out to the very delicious turkey dinner which was served at Maple Inn, where everyone gathered at 6.30. Christmas carols were sung between courses with Mrs. H. Reber playing the accompaniment on the piano.

Prior to the dinner Mr. McGuire thanked the men for the wonderful showing they had made in this year, to accomplishment which was, he said, in no small measure due to the efforts of Mr. D. G. Williams, acting as chairman for the occasion, called on Mr. Williams to make a presentation to the girls on the staff on behalf of the agents. Followed by Mr. J. Gordon Jeffery with a presentation to the branch manager. Percy Reverts then called upon to say a few words and after singing "Auld Lang Syne" on the occasion, presented him with a beautiful matched set of studs and cuff links in appreciation of his leadership and guidance. Not to be outdone, Don Williams then presented Mrs. McGuire with a lovely bouquet of red roses.

The remainder of the evening was then spent playing bingo, bridge and watching the performance on the television set.

Gordon Leggat Will Have His Play Presented

Climaxing six years of untiring effort writing and rewriting, Gordon Leggat of this city has had one of his adaptions accepted and in the coming year will be in the audience when the Community Players of Toronto present "Sunshine Sketches" by Stephen Leacock. His play will be combined with the music of Gordon Kelly of Toronto to provide Canada's first native musical comedy.

Young Leggat, 70 Bridge St. W., has been a resident of Belleville for five years, moving here from Sault Ste. Marie. Although "Sunshine Sketches" is his first full length play, his feature articles have appeared in national publications. He gathered considerable practical writing knowledge as a script writer for the local radio station CJBQ and was employed by the local daily newspaper as a proof-reader during the summer of 1947.

The Community Players who are presenting Leggat's latest works is one of Toronto's largest amateur drama groups and is affiliated with the Central Ontario Drama League. With Robert Kemp, "Young and Willing", "Rope", "The Torchbearers", to their credit they pay particular attention to experimental theatre and to new plays and technique.

Motorists Warned Not to Drink While Driving

On the eve of the Christmas holiday when drinks may be more opportunities than usual for the motorist to take a few drinks, Police Chief Walter Probert today repeated his warning of previous years that alcohol and driving do not mix.

Co-operation of the motorist is being asked in driving safely over the holiday and the police chief warned that this is not possible when the motorist's mind is befogged with alcohol.

And to make certain that motorists under the influence of liquor do not endanger the lives of others using the streets and highways, the police chief stated extra constables will be on patrol during the festive season. On the first suspicion of a driver is afflicted with the Central Ontario Drama League, with Robert Kemp, ("Young and Willing", "Rope", "The Torchbearers"), he will be stopped and tested.

As a further reminder to motorists the police chief has put into a poetic mood. He says:

"To stay alive—don't drink and drive

If you drink—don't drive.
If you drive—don't drink
A drinking driver needs a cop for a chaser."

30 Film-Lectures On Conservation Given in District

The extension education program of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests came to Belleville and vicinity during December. School children and adults both viewed the department's splendid conservation, animal appreciation, fire prevention and reforestation films and heard Mr. Charles Dill, public relations officer for north-eastern Ontario, elaborate on the subject in preliminary talks.

Altogether Mr. Dill presented thirty film-lectures during the month for some five thousand people most of whom were pupils at high and public schools. During January, Mr. Dill will visit the Haliburton district and in February the Trent district, returning in March when he will again visit schools and other organizations desiring to participate in this educational project in the Quinte district.

Has 9 Regional Men

The Department of Lands and Forests now has nine regional conservation men, said Mr. Dill today each of whom travel with complete 16-mm projection outfit and a library of films on biological, pollution, wildlife conservation, woodlot management, hunting, fishing, reforestation and forest fire prevention subjects. No charge is made by the department for the services of these men who lecture and show films to any interested club, association, or town, city or village on invitation.

Generally At Fort Arthur

Until recently Mr. Dill, now a resident of Belleville, represented the Department of Lands and Forests educationally in the 33,000-square mile Thunder Bay region with headquarters at Port Arthur. In this northern region his work not only carried him into urban and rural, and sometimes very out-of-the-beaten-track and public meetings but into remote lumber camps and lodges where a protable generator had to be carried to provide power for the projector and the only road in was by air or water.

No Live Poultry Accepted After One PM Saturday

Since the local packing plant has not the feeding facilities to provide for live birds during the holidays the plant will close at one p.m. on Saturday and fowl will not be accepted until Tuesday at eight a.m.

Apparently there is an abundance of fowl in the local retail stores brought about by the recent drop in the price of eggs.

The recent falling off in the egg prices was due to the cancellation of the Canadian egg contract by the United Kingdom which handled the bulk of this country's surplus egg production.

The first reaction of the cancellation of the contract was noticed here immediately with the wholesale quotes dropping from 45 cents a dozen for grade "A" large to 33 cents in 24 hours. Subsequently the buyers predicted that farmers would rid themselves of extra fowl in order to reduce the production of eggs.

Just that is happening and the butcher shops in the city are displaying a large number of fowl on sale. Current price for fowl is around 48 cents a pound.

On the other hand some farmers have decided against raising turkeys. One farmer will not raise any next year. He is a farmer who ordinarily markets between 300 and 500 turkeys in a season. His chief complaint is the rising cost of feed and the reduced market prices.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Winnipeg, Dec. 23 (CP)— A coroner's jury Thursday night termed as accidental the death of John McPherson, 28, of North Bay.

McPherson died in hospital here eight days after plunging 30 feet down a stair well at Minto Street Armories Dec. 11. Cause of death was given as numerous head injuries.

The jury recommended that guard rails down the stairs be heightened.

PETERBOROUGH WANTS COAT OF ARMS

Peterborough, Dec. 23 — (CP) City clerk A. James Putnam said Thursday that on instructions from city council he has written the College of Heralds in London, Eng., asking for a Petarborough coat of arms. In the letter, he stated Peterborough's needs, characteristics and history and that new armorial bearings would be heraldically correct.

IN MEMORIAM

FARNSWORTH — In fond loving memory of Rev. Jos. Farnsworth who departed this life December 23rd, 1944.
"Promoted to higher service."
Sadly missed by wife and family.

THOMPSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Thomas G. Thompson, who passed away December 24, 1948.
Your memory is a keepsake
With which we can part never
And the ones who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
Remembered by wife and family.
1223

BURLEY — In loving memory of a dear father, Wesley Burley, who entered into rest December 23rd, 1945.
A tribute of love and remembrance
For a father dear to me
The days that he missed on life's journey
May be kind in God's system of rest.
Sadly missed by Marion and Gordon.

BURLEY — In loving memory of a dear father, Wesley Burley, who passed away December 23rd, 1948.
Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
Notes on earth can take your place.
Sadly missed by daughter and son-in-law (Ethel and Harold Bennett).
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill
Ever remembered by his son, Kenneth, Laura and granddaughter Jean Lee.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

"A Friendly Message"

I should like to take this opportunity of extending sincere wishes at this particular season. The year now begins to draw to a close, to me personally, it will leave many happy memories of friendly visits, of renewing old acquaintances, which keep alive the golden links of memories that only shine the brighter as each year passes.

So to each and all, may this coming season be a joyous one, and may Belleville long enjoy the title, "The Friendly City."

E. C. Kelly,
Montreal.

Price Support For Eggs, Cheese, Bacon is Urged

Toronto, Dec. 23—(CP) — Immediate establishment of a price-support program for eggs, cheese and bacon was urged today by United Co-operatives of Ontario in messages to Prime Minister St. Laurent and members of his cabinet.

Hugh Bailey, U.C.O. general manager said cancellation or reduction of United Kingdom contracts for Canadian eggs, bacon and cheese have caused "serious uncertainties and threats to farm income and the national welfare."

The co-operative organization which claims 50,000 membership in 140 local co-ops endorsed the proposal of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture for a "Canadian Marshall Plan" to supply Britain's needs on a "half-loan" basis.

Agricultural Groups Present Brief to Member

A petition requesting their federal member of parliament to do all in his power with the government of Canada to have agricultural prices stabilized, was made Friday morning by a number of representatives of the various agricultural commodity groups in Hastings county.

Six men representing the cheese, bacon, butter and poultry and other phases of the industry presented the petition to Frank S. Follwell, member for Hastings South.

The petition asked for stabilization of prices at levels at least as high as those in this year and asked for the announcement to this effect to be made by the government as soon as possible to stave off panic such as has been demonstrated in the poultry industry.

The personal representation on the part of the various commodity groups affected was accompanied by covering letters from each of the commodity groups. The commodity group representatives met with Mr. Follwell at his Front Street office.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP)—Industrials climbed upwards for the second successive session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Gains were generally held to fractions and scattered over a handful of market leaders. Volume was 533,000 shares.

Activity slowed considerably in the short pre-holiday session as traders prepared for a long holiday weekend. The market closed at 12:30 P.M.

Floor traders took time out to listen to Christmas carols as the Salvation Army visited the market.

Papers, utilities and foods were higher in industrials as the group continued climbing into new high ground. Average price level of industrials is at the highest point in more than three years.

A block of 100 shares of Tuckett Tobacco Pfd., changed hands at $114, up from the last sale some time ago.

Base metals showed a brighter tone as gains doubled losses. Golden Manitou, Sherritt Gordon and Steep Rock were active and higher.

A few senior golds brightened and Juniors were stirred. Western oils backed down slightly from Thursday's strong advance. Federated Petroleum continued brisk but moved in a narrow range.

HOG MARKET

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP)—Hogs at Ball, Gne., this morning were 327.1k., all dressed grade A delivered. Hogs off trucks were unquoted.

Other markets were unreported.

Some Christmas Records Have Exceptional Sales

Music shops in the city are doing a land office business this Christmas while recording companies have provided some of the best selections in years. A unanimous opinion places "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" at the top of the list as the song by cowboy movie star Gene Autry establishes a new record in the sale of grammophone discs. A recent continental poll of recording sales showed that the Rudolph effort made history with unparalleled numbers of copies being purchased as Christmas gifts.

Runner-up Number

Close on the heels of the Autry rendition follows "Jingle Bells" by Yogi Yorgesson whose take-off on the original "Jingle Bells" offers humorous musical entertainment. On the other side of this platter Yorgesson sums up again with another funny one appropriate to the season, "I Yust Go Nuts at Christmas" also in great demand.

Gene Autry's "Here Comes Santa Claus" has been rated among the leading recordings and this impression appears to be a must on the Jukebox hit list.

In the serious mood Phil Spitalny and his all girl orchestra have made a popular disc of the tuneful "Hour of Charm" featuring Christmas carols, by the same token actor Ronald Colman tells Charles Dickens' Christmas story a choice selection among the adults and particularly the children at this time of year.

Organ Music Featured

Organ music seems to be featured this season. Ken Griffin's Merry Christmas album offers an outstanding piece in "Upon the House Top", "Winter Wonderland" and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear". Elmer Ithe's chimes and organ adds to the musical spirit of the Yule period.

McFarlane Co. Entertains Staff

The annual Christmas party for the employees of McFarlane Woodenware Company, and their families, was held Tuesday evening in the Orange Hall.

The program was under the direction of Thomas Smith, with fine co-operation on the part of talented employees.

Hostesses of the evening were Mrs. N. Kolsinki, Mrs. O. Graham, Mrs. C. Hamilton and Mrs. G. Akey.

The program consisted of a banjo arrangement by Johnny Lloyd, accompanied by Mrs. Evelyn Warren, piano duet by Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Stewart, top dance by "Little" Scarz and a solo by Miss A. Tummon. Little Miss Mary Lemon accompanied by her mother sang several selections. Accordian solos were given by Bob Wessels and Gerald Johnson. Mr. Ken Stapley sang and played his guitar, followed by Mr. Ted Reynolds who also sang several numbers. Mrs. Smith accompanied "Danny Boy" in a traditional vaudeville act after which "Danny Boy" did a ventriloquist act with "Joe Mccarthy", his assistant.

Highlight of the evening was the presence of Santa who gave each of the boys and girls lovely gifts, candy and oranges.

To top off an ejoyable evening refreshments were served by the hostesses.

POPCORN IN STYLE

Regina— (CP) —It's probably the Christmas influence, but a downtown Regina store is featuring technicolor popcorn. It comes in red and green shades.

Royal Bank Assets At New Record

Montreal, Dec. 23 (CP)—The Royal Bank of Canada in its annual report today announced that its total assets had increased $112,497,000 in the last year to a new high level of $2,334,985,554 and that deposits now total $2,-192,140,000 to set a Canadian record.

Net profit for the year ended Nov. 30 was $4,307,521 compared with $5,550,545 in 1948. Out of net profit, $3,500,000 was paid in dividends and $3,327,521 carried forward, resulting in a balance of $3,880,313 in profit and loss account.

The report said the bank's total assets are the highest in Canadian banking history. It recorded an increase in deposits during the year of $124,000,000.

The bank's interest-bearing deposits rose to $1,063,152,000, the highest level in its history of the bank.

Resident Walks Into Side of Passing Truck

Said to have walked into the side of a Modern Cleaners delivery truck near the entrance to the lower bridge, Thomas Kelly, 79, of 190 James Street, last evening suffered cuts about the face and hand, as well as shock.

He was rushed to hospital by Bush's Ambulance where his injuries were described as not being critical.

Police reported that William Sheppard, a "quiet fellow," has been living at the home of his mother, Mrs. Charles Gough, on Bridge Street in Cobourg.

Leaves Young Daughter

His death leaves his daughter, Donna, 5, an orphan. Gough's wife died during the child's infancy and since then Donna has lived with an aunt. This was to have been her "very best" Christmas with her father.

Police at St. Catharines were concerned Thursday when another cab driver, Les Edwards, was unreported for several hours. Edwards finally turned up in Toronto after taking a passenger from St. Catharines to Hamilton, then to Malton in the Toronto area and on to Ottawa.

BODY AND HEAD

The body was removed to a funeral parlor where a post mortem examination will be made later today. Preliminary examination indicated he was struck behind the right ear during a fierce struggle.

The desk clerk at the hotel told police Gough was called and no call was made on the hotel telephone and he saw no one board the bus. Police believed the call was made from a nearby public telephone, but that the passenger waited for the taxi in the street.

Victoria Termed Inside Out

When the body was found, the victim's pockets had been turned inside out and a few pieces of silver were strewn on the blood-stained grass. Taxi company officials said they doubted that Gough carried more than $7.

St. Catharines police expressed belief that Gough's whole head appeared to have been shattered by several heavy blows, was also for the money he is said to have carried when he left to pick up a passenger at Niagara at a midnight St. Catharines beverage room.

There were signs that Gough put up a struggle when attacked. His body, pitched into the water, landed on its back. When found it was hatless but clothed in dark trousers and a blue work shirt.

Welland and Crowland township police joined forces with Provincial Police in the investigation. Inspector Charles Wood of the Provincial Police, in the area with Inspector Neil for the Deibaseh investigation, also received the assistance of Inspector Wilford Brooks. Inspector Franks came here in connection with the slaying of Sanford bank robbery case after a stolen taxi believed used in the holdup was found here.

Gough, described by acquaintances as a "quiet fellow," has been living at the home of his mother, Mrs. Charles Gough, on Bridge Street in St. Catharines.

his feet. He slouched to his seat and shouted his defiance at the court.

Crown Attorney T. J. Rigney ordered detective Glen Brennan and other police officers in the court to "drag the little rat to his feet. We will not tolerate that sort of thing here," he said.

Hancox was jerked to his feet still yelling his defiance. "I have already refused to plead in this court."

Hancox, after hearing Mrs. Martin's evidence, told the court in a surly tone that he was the only man in the car who had handled the gun. Mrs. Martin had testified that one of the convicts pointed the gun at her after they were in her car.

CHRISTMAS

Christmas is at hand, the greatest of festivals and a joy to mankind. Each succeeding age for two thousand years has enriched the most appealing of all stories, that of the Birth of Christ, with a wealth of lore and music on Christmas Day which is an inspiration to the world. Every year Christmas appears to gain in its drawing power on the world of men, women and children, so universal and profound is its appeal to the human heart. Millions of men and women have poured their richest tributes and the treasures of their hearts and lives into the celebration of the festival.

For Christmas means the greatest single fact in the history of the world. It means everything to human beings. Its appeal therefore lasts out the ages.

Every child born in Christendom takes up the message of good will and joins the untold millions of earth's population, in the praise of His coming to earth, which is the great theme of the Christmas celebration.

While Christianity has enriched the story and drawn symbols and forms from many ages, so deeply does the theme touch human life, this celebration is in spirit essentially religious.

Christmas promises and brings joys and happiness. It is rightly referred to as "merry" for that is its significance to man and such is the meaning of that good old English word.

The Nativity has profoundly influenced the course of history and in its light can be solved the problems of the world. The spirit of the great Teacher was to add to the richness of man's life, to make his life "merry" in the best sense of the word.

Christmas spirit is the spirit of joy. To have joy in the heart means to be happy and in this spirit the Christmas spirit is merry. Earth's millions feel its kindly spirit and benediction in their hearts.

What Christmas has meant can be felt in the spirit which for centuries has been spreading cheer and hope as the festival signifies. It means goodwill and it means a brotherhood across the world in the true spirit of the Master of Life.

The Birth of the Holy Child in Bethlehem was the event of all history which has most stirred and influenced mankind.

So as the time to celebrate comes, merriment will be characteristic of the festival in which so many millions join. The season focuses the attention upon all that is true, beautiful and good. It is not the time for revelry as R. M. Harrison points out in the Windsor Star for "its joys should be deeper."

SANDS OF TIME

As a builder of empire Mussolini lacked something vital. He knew how to strut in his numerous uniforms; he could sit a horse well, and his speeches packed quite an emotional wallop before his star began to wane. But as a modern Caesar he beat too many ploughshares into bayonets, instead of reversing the formula, and that is where his dreams of restoring the glory that once was Rome was pricked bubble-wise.

Today in Cyrenaica, North Africa, there remain only seventeen Italians of the forty thousand men, women and children who flocked there some ten years ago to make the region blossom under the Fascist leader's grandiose scheme of agriculture. The Arabs, who were driven from these lands and took refuge in the Sahara country, have come back. The tables are again turned and history's shuttle still moves.

All that is changed now. The houses still stand, but inside they have been wrecked and looted of everything movable. The doors sag on their hinges and the windows are boarded up. Like as not their only accupants are goats, cows and chickens. For Arab families still prefer to live in a pitched tent in the yard.

Mussolini wasn't afforded the time to erect gates of triumph of stone pillars and arches to stand as aging sentinels of his decay. But the burning sands and the Arabs are doing their own work of obliteration. Give time and the desert their chance, say observers, and there will not be a sign to show that a late Caesar and his legions ever passed this way. — Hamilton Spectator.

The use of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, Japan, in 1945, left an estimated 78,150 dead and 13,983 missing.

SHEPHERD FAITH

Had I been a shepherd then,
When the angels overhead
Sang of peace, good will to men,
I am wondering what I'd said.

Had I watched the flock with them,
Now, I wonder, had I gone,
As did they, to Bethlehem,
Mary's child to look upon?

Had I been with them, afraid,
When the good news they received,
Oft I wonder; had I stayed,
Doubting all that they believed?

When they said: "Let's go and see
What the Lord hath just made known
Unto us!" this troubles me:
If such faith I could have shown?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

In entering upon the Christmas season I think it highly important that we do not forget that we are looking forward to the celebration of the birth of Christ, and not to the task of what we can buy as gifts for our friends, no matter how much we may love them.

It is wonderful that there can be at least one day in the year when we will be thinking of others, and of a way to bring a ray of light and happiness into their lives. Every kind act of thoughtfulness is a tribute to the spirit of Christmas, and to the One whose birthday we celebrate.

The shepherds and wisemen brought simple gifts to the manger where Christ was born. It was to express their joy over the event and to pay their debt of reverence and to worship. They were simple people with simple, but crude environment, and there was no grand display of their gifts, nor to their presence at so great a moment.

We ought to make our gifts at Christmas time simple, wrapped in love and sincerity, applying the spirit of those shepherds who came to present themselves, even as we present our gifts. The significance of the birth literally must come into our hearts, cleansing them and directing them anew to the service and worship of Christ.

It isn't what we give, but how we give it that makes gifts at Christmas time so significant. It's Christ that we are honoring and to whom we are expressing our love and devotion; celebrating the birth of the Saviour of mankind, and the ideals of living that he left for our emulation, and daily practice.

No other event in history has ever matched the birth of the Christ child at Bethlehem. No other figure has so influenced mankind, or brought such beauty and comfort into the lives of so many. His was a mission of peace and good will for all the world to enjoy. But how few of us have the world received that message!

Royal Family Leaves London For Sandringham

London, Dec. 23—(AP) — The Royal Family left London Thursday to celebrate Christmas in the country.

The King and Queen, Queen Mother Mary, Princess Margaret and young Prince Charles went by train to Sandringham, the King's country house in Norfolk, about 90 miles away. They will spend Christmas and the New Year there before going overseas.

Thirteen - month - old Prince Charles, dressed in a pale-blue knitted coat over his white rompers, was the darling of the crowd of Londoners that crowded grimy King's Cross station to wave the The Royal Family is expected to remain at Sandringham until late in January, returning for the reopening of parliament Jan. 24. Princess Elizabeth is spending Christmas with Prince Philip in Malta and is expected to fly back to London Dec. 26.

A LOT OF CARPET

Llanoro, Australia — (CP) — When his wife took him to court and complained that he neglected his farm to catch snakes, a husband told the court, "I caught them in my spare time and sold them. I got £5 for one carpet snake." Replied the judge: "It must have been wall to wall."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

DOGSENSE

On my desk, as I pack out this piece, are several books on the subject of educated dogs.

The authors are: Prof. H. E. Ziegler of Stuttgart, Dr. William MacKenzie of Genoa, Professor of Hoodlum and Turf Craft, Plate of Jena. There is also a monograph entitled "Forgotten Mysteries" by R. Dewitt Miller, another called "Lolo" by Hendrik Hinderman which has been translated into English by Miss Agnes Blake, and, for good measure, an article in the American Kennel Club Gazette of March, 1938.

According to these poochtacticians, there are many committed instances of dogs with a vocabulary of more than 50 words. And, as if that weren't enough the Rover boys have that these talking dogs also have ready brainy bowsers. The real ones are those which by-pass the verbal stuff and do their conversing via alphabet blocks, or a system resembling the Morse code where the number of barks stand for certain letters.

To beat Ziegler of Stuttgart to tell it, he once tested a gabby German shepherd in scientific conditions in his laboratory, and after the pup had set up a simple problem in addition and multiplication a large toy bug with a dial, labeled Hands was brought into the room. After a few exploratory sniffs, the dog knew what the object was, and, if Ziegler is to be believed, the pooch barked "Let's play ball with Something to Eat."

The doctor from Genoa devotes an entire chapter to a dashhound which, with its trainer out of the building, spelled out the names of various articles and a bit too tricky, the pup, with some asperity, barked out, "Stop Trying to Fool me".

MacKenzie goes on to say that the IQ of this understang kiyoodle was at least equal to that of a 10-year-old child, and judging by the 10-year-olds I've met lately, that's really something to ponder.

Once, says the professor, he asked the dachahund if it knew what day it was, and when it flopped its ears affirmatively, he said, "What do you think of it?" With quiet dignity, the dog answered, "I am not afraid."

The general impression agree that the toughest thing to teach a dog is the meaning of abstract words like "love" and "hate", but they even cite instances of where that has been accomplished. They do break down, however, and confess that there's one word which has never been grasped by any of the four-footed intelligences they have investigated. That word is "war. . . .

Personally, I'm not much in doubt releasing this column is not its incredibility, but the fact that it will be read by Mrs. Franklin Lewis, Jr., who recently accused the Hon. Harry Hopkins' two-o show off, I suppose—defined a group of six-letter words. Hopkins, when she was through, scoped the fear that her legs would fall to support her and that she would "pass out." This situation went on for a month, during which time she consulted, and her husband with a tremble-by-tremble, running account of her symptoms. In general, it should be noted that despite her fears, Mrs. Lewis did not "pass out." Her husband finally prevailed upon her, after much pleading, to see a physician.

The physician "heard her out," in the best medical detail, and then conducted a thorough and painstaking examination. Seemingly puzzled, he ordered certain laboratory tests and upon their completion, he told Mrs. Lewis and the lady, questioning her at length. At this point, the husband broke in with, "Doctor there must be something radically wrong!" "I agree with you," said the doctor, there is something wrong—with your wife's thinking, nothing more."

The Doctor went on to explain that the lady was the victim of a deep-seated false conviction, based upon unreasonable fear, "Our tests mean in effect that I am just putting this on," demanded the lady, angrily! We will eliminate the rest of the discussion which followed, suffice it to say that the lady checked in at the Glutz Clinic, where she had to stay. Why did she have to? She didn't. She merely decided she would, and that was how her decision upon? A whim, nothing more. As a lay person, she had no means of judging the comparative merit of the Doctors involved, other than her emotional reactions.

Mackenzie's Column: Stalin is Shrewd Leader Say Party Members

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

They tell us that Generalissimo Stalin lives during which he appears to have been exceedingly busy. Apparently he has to. Rewards.

Stalin's were the good old days. Since then, with the speeding up of life, a new limit has been set on mankind's activities. Now the folks reach three score and 10 they get to think about easing up on work and doing a spot of fishing, or whatever pleases their fancy.

Thus it isn't strange that Russia and the world should be talking and speculating on what Marshal Stalin has in mind for his 70th birthday amidst the adulation of his followers, has in mind for the future. Will he be the Generalissimo of Communism, or will he merely be Stalin?

If he withdraws, who takes his place?

Something on the Ball

In order to answer that we must know what qualities have made Stalin dictator. How does he keep the people of the Soviet powerful and lieutenants, any one of whom would love his right arm for Stalin's job?

Some years ago I asked an informed Russian exactly what kept Stalin in command. He replied that it was because of his judgment. My informant was right. By "right" my informant meant that Stalin's judgment was correct in his decisions or what was best to further Soviet Russia.

Probably there's a lot in that. Stalin is the shrewd, hard-boiled political and military. To this quality must be added that he is a supreme opportunist, and that he is ruthless in carrying out his ideas. Ruthless is one of the powerful leaders of history.

Three in Line

Nevertheless, observers figure Stalin's successor will be chosen from among three men—all members of the powerful politburo, the policy making committee.

They are Georgi Malenkov, vice-premier V. M. Molotov, aged 49; Lavrenti P. Beria, who is head of dread secret police; Georgi M. Malenkov, 47, who is virtual ruler of the Communist party political machine in Russia. The three are rated the three most powerful politburo members.

Molotov is a puzzle, but knows the outside world in his previous role of Foreign Minister. In that capacity he had a long and serious assignment which is supposed to have been written off the Red offensive to communize the Orient.

Beria's rise to power was based on his work as head of the secret police. He is reported to have ordered thousand secret agents, and administered concentration camps and prisons. He is ruthless in carrying out duties.

Last and theoretically least—although powerful—comes Malenkov, a ruthless politician who early became a member of Stalin's personal secretariat and moulded himself after Stalin, even to clothing and mannerisms.

Council Accepts Resignation of Mayor MacLean

Sydney, N. S., Dec. 23 (CP) City council has accepted the resignation of Mayor Dan Jack MacLean, charged with murder.

The mayor tendered his resignation in a letter read at the council of this Cape Breton steel city. There was no immediate indication when an election would be held.

Mayor MacLean stands charged with the murder of 63-year-old Joseph MacKinnon, the city's caretaker at voters. His battered body was found in a south-end boarding house Dec. 5. Police quoted two youngsters as saying they had seen a car drive away from the scene of the crime. A bloodspattered crutch was found near the body of the murder victim.

Mr. MacLean said in his 100-word letter of resignation that he had left all civil where his sweetie preliminary hearing next Thursday, was reported dying "in view of the unfortunate circumstances surrounding the death of my life-long friend, Joseph MacKinnon."

Mayor MacKinnon was registrar of voters in this Cape Breton steel city of 30,000 when Mayor MacLean was reelected for his fifth two-year term, defeating Alex Beaton, accountant, Victor Coffin, by 131 votes.

Scores Left Off

Voters' lists for the new electoral district were made up on Dec. 6 contert. Council decided to ask those persons who had been left off the list to subscribed in the Dec. 6 election to produce evidence that they were entitled to the list. If they could, action would be taken to see that their names appeared on the lists in the next election.

Council also decided to ask the provincial municipal affairs department to loan the city a clerk for several months to help run its business.

The city now is without a mayor, registrar, city clerk, city treasurer and deputy assessor clerk Clerk James MacDonald entered hospital last weekend suffering from a heart condition. Dr. J. O'Connell is convalescing from a heart attack suffered by deputy police chief, died a month ago and no successor has been named.

COX TO RUN AGAIN

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP)— A two-way mayoralty fight appeared likely here Thursday night as two members of the Ontario Legislature threw their hats into the ring for the city's top contest.

C. W. Cox, Liberal member for Port William and formerly mayor for 15 consecutive years, announced he would oppose Mayor Fred Robinson, C. C. F. member for Port Arthur, who seeks re-election.

Twenty-five aldermanic candidates will be elected on Thursday night's nominating convention. Eight members of the school board contest and seven will run for the Separate School Board.

A WORD TO THE WISEACRES

The travelling salesman was sounding off in the smoker to a group of interested travellers. No, he wasn't telling a funny story. He was talking about a disease—and what could be more interesting?

"So after I had this rash for a month, I had to go to the Glutz Clinic. The local doc's didn't know the score." He had to go to the Glutz Clinic. Why did he think he had to? Well, he didn't have to go—he merely decided he would. What decided him? Nothing but a vague impatience for a quick cure, he decided that a Doctor in a "clinic" was the surest. What did he base his decision upon? How could he estimate the competence of a physician he'd never consulted? That word is "war. . . .

Personally, I'm not much in doubt about releasing this column is not its incredibility, but the fact that it will be read by Mrs. Franklin Lewis, Jr., who recently accused the Hon. THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In a restaurant the other evening I was taken aback to see a gentleman, on seating himself at a table, remove from his pocket a fold his hands before him, and move his lips in saying grace.

More surprising, since the plate in front of him was empty, was the fact that he was not in a hospital eating asked privately in a public place. But for me it was a unique experience—and one that left me on the gentleman with considerable respect.

He was a stout dark man, well dressed and a little florid. He had full lips, and his pouched eyes studied the menu the waitress handed him. He started with half a grapefruit, which he ate with deliberation, chewing each spoonful of fruit with great care, whereas I would have swallowed it, direct.

With alert eye, he watched the waitress set down the next item of his choice, which happened to be the same as mine: an omelette

TRUE RICHES

God's greatest gift to man is love.

Many deny this by the way they live. Day by day they prove as if love were the greatest gift of God, or power, or the opportunity to indulge one's self. Many with more elevated standards assume that the greatest gifts which can be endowed are health and engaging personality.

But as God's arm reaches down into the midst of human affairs, surely the greatest gift He leaves us is the gift of love. Animals do not have it (at least not in the sense we do); and any man who lacks love must accept that classification. Love, indeed, makes A mother's love for a child, a husband and a wife for each other, a friend for a friend—when we behold these realities we behold God's greatest gift in human hearts. He who has love and nothing else has all. He who has not love has very probably the world can confer on a favorite son, is poverty stricken and clothed in tatters.

So let us count our riches not in what we have or in what we are; not by the money we have in the bank, but by the love we have in our hearts.

Wick, Caithness, Scotland — (CP) — Fire destroyed a freighter five 30 miles from Thurso Bay. The ship was abandoned by his crew of four.

Sidney School Area News

Two meetings were necessary to clear up the Board's business for the year. The Board had its first meeting at Wallbridge school on Dec. 12. It was decided to hold the second meeting the following Monday, Dec. 19, to clear up last minute business and accounts and arrange for the financial statements for year. Mr. Campbell invited the members to the next meeting at his home.

As the film projector agent scheduled for the November meeting had not shown up, the Board had confirmed its investigations into the possibility of procuring a projector for the schools. When it was received from the Dept. of Education that films could be gotten from the Audio-visual branch for a period of a month, if necessary. This would allow an organized showing of educational pictures based on the courses of study being taken up at the time.

Decide on Purchase

An R.C.A. projector, similar in design to those used in the Trenton schools was demonstrated and tested for operation in the classroom. It was decided to purchase it for $475. This machine is suitable for larger audiences as well as school showings. It is the intention of the Board to have it available for limited use by public organizations in the township.

The resignation of Mrs. Iona Laidlaw as teacher of Turner's School (S.S. 16), was accepted. The Board was fortunate in securing Mrs. Frank Tummon, Foxboro, to fill the vacancy at the prevailing salary rate of $1,800 per annum.

The chairman gave an outline of the damage and loss occasioned by the break-in at the Marsh Hill school on the previous Thursday night. Sets of reference books and a softball trophy were taken from the school, while practically all of the Women's Institute's equipment kept in the school was taken. Provincial police had been informed but as yet no trace had been found.

Inspector's Report Studied

The Inspector's report of his Fall visit to the schools was received and the main items noted for the present. A more detailed study of it was to be made at the next meeting. He pointed out that the Board received a bid legislative grant of $23,097.45 plus $135 agriculture grant. This grant included the regular special area grant which this year amounted to $2,472 over and above the 45 per cent grant set up by the department on the regular cost of running the schools.

He congratulated the Sidney Schools on their high percentage of attendance for November. The average percent for Sidney was 96.02 per cent for Thurlow, 94.55; and Tyendinaga, 93.89 per cent. This was especially pleasing in view of the attendance competition in the Area Schools Riverside School won the attendance banner for November with 96.77 per cent. Only one day was missed by the pupils during the month. This is the closest to perfect attendance reported so far. Mrs. Arbuckle's pupils are to be complimented for their fine effort. The standing of the next closest is as follows: Marsh Hill, 90.18 per cent; River Valley 88.45 per cent; Eggleton's 88.41 per cent.

Petition Discussed

The second meeting dealt with the business of clearing up the year's work and arranging for holiday repairs. There was also a discussion of the petition concerning the School Area, which had been presented to the council in the township. From the reports the Board felt that many had not had an opportunity to consider all the facts, or to take the record of this year's work into consideration.

The Board also thought the area had done and can do a great deal for the welfare of the children of Sidney. Arrangements were made to get the financial statements ready and prepare a detailed account of the year's work for the nomination meeting. A letter will be issued that all ratepayers would be on hand to get first hand information and discuss the problems confronting the various schools.

TWEED

Two Seamen Natives of Tweed, Meet in Puerto Rico

Tweed (Special) — Two Tweed boys met in faraway places recently. While the aircraft carrier "Magnificent and destroyer "Haida" were docked in Puerto Rico, in the South Atlantic, Don Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hughes, Stoco, and "Bud" Gehan son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Gehan, Tweed, got together for a reunion.

The boys are aboard their ships which were in the Royal Canadian Navy manoeuvres. Don Hughes is an R.C.A.F. member for the "Magnificent" crew and "Bud" Gehan is a cook aboard the "Haida".

It will be remembered that the "Haida" picked up survivors of the U.S. B-29 aircraft, which was forced down over the Atlantic, about two weeks ago.

JESUIT REPRESENTATIVE

One of the delegates to the last U.N. session was an Indian Jesuit, Fr. Jerome D'Souza.

MADOC

St. Peter's S.S. Holds Fine Christmas Concert

Madoc — The annual concert of St. Peter's Sunday School, Madoc, came up to the fine standard set in previous years. Every class took part. The primary and beginners presented "A Living Christmas Tree", "Christmas Dollies" and "Hanging up the Stockings" under the direction of Mrs. Robert Miller.

Mrs. Cecil Wood's class gave "The Shining Star" and "The Newsboy's Sister". Mrs. Wannamaker's class gave a dialogue "Good-bye" and a tableau "Away in a Manger". The older boys had a "Manners' Class" of colored folk conducted by Don Bellinger, and the senior girls put on a very attractive "Parasol Drill."

Recitations were given by Masters Tommy Deline, David Love, John Atkinson and the Misses Lamoine Love, Mary Atkinson, Leona Woods, Jean Jamieson, Ann Gaebel, Gayle Pitts and Shiela Gaebel.

Near the close of the program, was "The Television Set" where families and stories were presented in pageant form under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Hawthorne.

Santa Claus arrived at the close of the program; resplendent in a fine red suit. He delighted all the children with gifts and treats.

FRANKFORD

New Local Assoc. Holds Outstanding Christmas Party

Frankford—Members of the newly-formed Local Association had reason to be proud of their first attempt a' a Christmas party in the Bateau Recreation Hall on Monday. The Four X Club added their full support in donating generously to the fund. The Boy Scouts donated candy canes for the children. The party included the Cubs, Scouts, Guides and Brownies. About 90 children enjoyed a hearty supper led by Mrs. Storey. Games were played, followed by refreshments.

Following this each one present received a gift from the Christmas tree. Thanks were extended to Mr. Victor Babey, Scout leaders, Mrs. Babey, Cub leader, Mrs. C. Heldmar, Brownie leader, and her assistant, Mrs. Ponech, Mrs. Magnus, assistant Cub and Girl Guides in the absence of captain, Mrs. Machala, members of the association, and every person who in some way assisted making the party an overwhelming success.

"Incubator" Baby Dies at Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 23—(CP)—An "incubator" baby, weighing little more than a pound at its birth here eight days ago, died Wednesday.

The infant boy was born 3½ months prematurely to a 20-year-old Mrs. John O'Neil. Dr. Paul Berkman, who delivered the child, called the birth of such a small child "rare and almost unbelievable."

Nurses and attendants at Doctor's Hospital, where the child was born, bought an incubator in an attempt to keep the tiny infant alive.

ROSLIN

Carter's School Enjoys, Fine Christmas Concert

Roslin—On Tuesday evening Carter's School, eighth line, of Tyendinaga, presented their annual Christmas concert in the school before a packed house.

Rev. C. Wright was chairman for the program.

Rebekah-Oddfellows Hold Annual Christmas Party

Last Tuesday evening the Oddfellows' Hall presented a gala appearance when the annual party, held under the auspices of the Rebekah and Oddfellows' Lodges, was attended by over 100 children, with an exceptionally fine program being provided by local talent and many of the lodges' own children.

In spite of the lack of snow, Santa arrived safely, and on time, guided, as he said, by Rudolph, who unerringly led him straight to the hall. After getting acquainted with the children, Santa quickly unloaded the heavy, up-laden Christmas tree, and distributed the many gifts to the eager recipients.

Much commendation is due the conveners, Sister Helen Shorey, and Brother Wes. Hinds, and their staff, for their faithful and untiring efforts in making this year's party such a success.

WEDDINGS

Doctor—CONLEY—WEESE

On Friday, Dec. 16, at 3 p.m., in the Christian and Missionary Alliance parsonage, a quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Robert Gray, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle, Belleville, when Ethel Weese, Belleville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith, became the bride of Ernest Leslie Conley, son of Mrs. Georgs Gay, of Belleville.

The bride wore a becoming gown of grey silk taffeta, grey accessories, and corsage of red carnations. She was attended by Miss Robert (Mary) Bassett, and Mrs. John (Mildred) Mechan, both daughters of the bride. The former wore a grey taffeta dress with black accessories, rose-colored topcoat and corsage of yellow carnations, and the latter, blue taffeta with grey accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Robert Bassett, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the bridegroom's home, 74 Bridge Street, where a large number of friends gathered to wish the bride and bridegroom every happiness.

Out-of-town guests were present from Trenton, Picton and Belleville.

They will reside at the bridegroom's home, North Park St.

DAUBNEY—CROSS

Picton.—At two o'clock on the afternoon of Dec. 10, a very pretty pre-Christmas marriage ceremony was solemnized in the parsonage of the Free Methodist Church in Picton, when Rev. B. J. Daubney united Kathleen Marie Cross, daughter of Mr. Clayton Cross, Bloomfield, and James Alan Daubney, son of Mr and Mrs. John Daubney, R.R. 9, Picton.

Gowned in a floor length model of white satin, with lace yoke by a wreath of orange blossoms, and her corsage was of pink roses. She was attended by Mrs. Carl Ackerman, Picton R. 3, wearing a floor length gown of taffeta in a turquoise blue shade, a matching shoulder length veil, and corsage was white roses.

Mr. Carl Ackerman performed the duties of groomsman.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Mary Dawson.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ackerman, when Miss Daubney's sister received with the bridal party. Her afternoon dress was of black moire taffeta.

The servitieurs were Miss Ruby McGillin, in a floor length gown of blue satin with lace overskirt, and Miss Eunice Sleeper.

For a short honeymoon trip the bride chose a travelling suit of dark red with black accessories. Following their return Mr. and Mrs. Daubney will take up residence in Greenbush.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Daubney, Mr. and Mrs. L. Robinson, Mr. Carl McConnell and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Dawson.

DECIDES AGAINST MID-WINTER SWIMMING

Woodstock, Dec. 23 — (CP)—After being scratched on the chest by a piece of ice while plunging in Southside Park pool for a dip, Frank Smith has decided against mid-winter swimming. Smith, a member of the Woodstock Sentinel Review editorial staff, took the swim after hearing talk of mid-winter and good swimming conditions.

50th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Picton.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith, Philip Street, were pleasantly surprised, Tuesday evening when 35 members of the family gathered at their home. The occasion was their golden wedding anniversary. During the evening the honored couple were presented with a chest of silver and a linen table cloth also a plant from Mr. and Mrs. Ken Foster and one from Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Church. An address was read by a son, Henry Tripp, while another son, Gordon, and a son-in-law, Malcolm Tripp presented the gifts.

Refreshments were served during the social hour, and featured a three-tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith enjoy good health and are active. They were married at the Methodist church parsonage in Picton by Rev. J. Reel, with Mrs. Reel and his mother as witnesses. They have since resided in the same house, in fact Mrs. Smith has lived there all her life.

Mr. Smith recalls that fifty years ago on December 20, there was no power or steel and he particularly remembers the bright clear, cool night. He was born in Hallowell Township, son of Cornelius and Annie Smith, but came to Picton as a boy. He was engaged in butchering for local shops most of his life, also engaged in carpentry and other work.

Mrs. Smith was formerly Martha Elizabeth Clapp, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Clapp of South Bay and later of Picton.

Eggs Were Cheap

They recalled that fifty years ago eggs were nine cents a dozen, milk five cents a quart, hind quarter of beef, 5c lb., and the front quarter from 3 to 3 1-2 cents pound. They have noted great changes in the town, as well as in other ways.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have a family of eleven living, also thirty grandchildren and five great grandchildren. The children are Clarence, Lillian, (Mrs. Jack Carter), Genevieve, (Mrs. Bernard Maynard), Violet, (Mrs. Douglas Church), in Syracuse, Verdun, (Mrs. William Robinson), in Belleville; Reginald, Norman, (Mrs. Leonard Tripp), Martha, (Mrs. William Mather), in Ottawa; Lenora, (Mrs. Leonard Courneyea), of West Lake Road; Gordon and Henry, two sons, George and Arthur, are deceased.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith enjoy the esteem of a wide circle of friends who join in extending congratulations and good wishes.

For luncheon, spread grated cheese on thin crackers, season with a little paprika, and heat in a quick oven until the cheese is melted. Serve them with soup or salad. Thin slices of toasted bread may be used instead of crackers.

Women's Institute

Eldorado-Bannockburn W.I.

Eldorado—The December meeting of the Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Chambers, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Carman, opened the meeting.

Business was dealt with and it was decided to give Orangetree a donation of $10 to help pay for electricity in the hall. Mrs. Geo. Palmer, convener, opened that part of the meeting with the singing of Christmas carols and a reading, "There is a Santa Claus" by Mrs. Ken Batchelor.

Mrs. Hugh Empey gave the motto "Do as You Would be Done By."

Mrs. Cecil Robinson gave current events. Mrs. Gerry Lorman gave a reading "Christmas Eve"; Mrs. Lorne Denby conducted two interesting Christmas contests. The usual Christmas exchange of gifts was enjoyed with the gifts being distributed from a well decorated Christmas tree, to each member.

The meeting was then closed and refreshments served by the hostess and her assistants, with a social half hour being enjoyed.

Some Hints For Decorators

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 23—(CP)—Decorating? It's the natural person's problem in the holiday season when every man becomes an occasional interior decorator.

Another look at "Desserts You'll Like," a booklet published by the consumer section of the Dominion agriculture department, brings to light several tasty dishes that are both a treat to look at and a delight to eat.

Fruit Floating Island

Ingredients: One cup drained canned fruit (diced); 1¼ cups milk; three egg yolks; three tablespoons sugar; dash of salt; one half teaspoon vanilla. Meringue ingredients: three egg whites; dash of salt; one-third cup sugar.

Arrange fruit in the individual serving dishes. Scald milk in double-boiler. Beat egg yolks slightly with sugar and salt, blending thoroughly. Add a little of the hot milk to the egg mixture, then combine with the remaining milk in double-boiler. Cook stirring constantly, until the custard coats the spoon (about five minutes). Remove from heat, add the vanilla and pour mixture over fruit.

For the meringue, add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add the sugar. Half-fill a baking-dish with boiling water. Put in the meringue in six mounds on the hot water, cover closely and let stand for ten minutes. Remove 30 minutes (or bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit until slightly browned—about 8 to 10 minutes). Lift meringues from water and place one on each custard. Yield: six servings.

Fruit Whip

Ingredients: two egg whites; one-quarter to one-half cup sugar; one cup drained fruit pulp; two teaspoons lemon juice.

Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gradually beat in sugar. Fold in fruit pulp and lemon juice (Isobel Bush, Martha; Mrs. Myrtle usual dishes. Serve cold with custard sauce. Yield: six servings.

Custard Sauce

Ingredients: two tablespoons sugar; one teaspoon cornstarch or two teaspoons flour; dash of salt; one cup milk; two egg yolks or one whole egg; one-half teaspoon vanilla.

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, and one cup of the milk. Scald in double-boiler. Beat egg yolks with remaining milk. Add slowly to the hot milk, stirring constantly. Cook until mixture coats spoon, about five minutes. Remove from heat, add vanilla. Yield: six servings.

(If desired, one-third cup chopped maraschino cherries or raisins may be added to the sauce).

Helpful Hints

Badly discolored aluminum pans may be brightened by boiling apple parings in them for a short time.

When glue thickens in the bottle, moisten it with vinegar instead of water. Glue spots may also be dissolved in this way.

To remove marks on woodwork made by scratching matches, rub with a cut lemon.

FOUR COATS STOLEN

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Four women's fur coats, valued at $2,500 were stolen Wednesday night from the midtown apartment of Mrs. B. Stewart. A number of rings and pieces of costume jewelry also were stolen.

V.O.N. NEWS

The regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held at the Y.M.C.A., Monday, with Mr. T. D. Ruston presiding.

There was a good number of board members present and the meeting was opened by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting.

Various business items were discussed and dealt with. Plans are being made for the annual meeting of the V.O.N., which will take place in February. Detailed plans will be announced later, as this meeting will have a special interest for the general public who are cordially invited to attend.

Miss McGeary, nurse-in-charge, gave the nurse's report which was received with a great deal of interest. Miss McGeary described among other items in her report, an experience of one of the V.O.N. nurses in Belleville. This true life experience was interlaced of the wonderful service being given to Belleville citizens and district for a small charge and in many cases because of the wonderful service finances for no charge at all.

The board feels that progress is being continually made towards the goal which is, that each and every home in Belleville and district will be aware of the services offered by the V.O.N., and does a call to the V.O.N. headquarters will bring a highly skilled nursing service unequalled anywhere.

The president and the board members are grateful to Belleville and surrounding district for their fine support in the past year, and together with the staff, express and wishes everyone a very Merry Christmas and all happiness and good health for the coming New Year.

Women's Activities

ST. MICHAEL'S PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

The monthly meeting of St. Michael's Parent-Teacher Association was held in the auditorium of the Academy, Mrs. Frank Cushing, president, read a letter received from Mr. Arthur Beaubien of the Chamber of Commerce asking an opinion on the establishment of a Recreational Commission in the city of Belleville, The approval of the association was unanimous.

Election of "Class Mother" for each grade in the Academy then took place.

A very enjoyable film of Christmas carols was presented by Miss Mary Verda in which the members joined.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of Grade 1.

Phiat Snow-Ball

The gaily decorated auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. was the scene, Tuesday night, of the first annual Phiat Snow-Ball.

Against a backdrop of green and red cellophane stood the traditional glittering Christmas tree. This green and red color scheme was carried out again in window curtains and garlands, highlighted by sparkling white bells and snowmen.

The games room and cokes bar completed with the holiday mood, tranquility, but the inviting music of the Balledeers' Orchestra inevitably drew the dancers back.

The musicians' vocal chorus proved attractive and gay novelty dances.

A delicious buffet lunch was served by Mrs. W. B. May, Mrs. C. Gibson, Mrs. H. C. Mills and Mrs. R. Kane.

The door prize was won by Lennie Clarke and Gordon Williams. Spot dances and the mistletoe dance were won by Marjorie Hines and George Ward, Marlene Cook and Ray Scott, Betty Gibson, and Charles Doran and Barbara Button and Bob Stebbings.

After the dance the club members presented their mentor, Miss Marion Brennan, with a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums in appreciation of her friendship and guidance.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

A capon is the answer to a cook's prayer at Christmas.

Housewives with but few small families, staggered by the size of big-breasted turkeys weighing twice or three times as much as they need, can turn to a capon for economy and delicious eating. A capon is the eunuch of the chicken tribe, an unsexed rooster that grows heavy and tender without being fat and greasy.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, knowing of the wide demand for small turkeys, has worked out, at Beltsville, Maryland, experiment station, a light breed of turkey suitable for small families. Commercially, however, they are as scarce as turkeys' teeth, while the market is glutted with birds that are too big for the roasting pan and for the average budget.

A capon weighs between six and eight pounds; the flavor is less dry than turkey and more rich then chicken. Generally they cost about the same price as a small turkey. Be sure you buy your capon from a reliable dealer so that you do not get an overgrown fowl.

Instead of the inevitable bread stuffing, serve Harlequin rice which takes the place of both stuffing and potatoes.

Roast Capon, Harlequin Rice
Serves 6.

Have your butcher clean and draw a 6 to 8 pound fresh capon. Wipe with a damp cloth. Brush with salad oil or melted butter. Sprinkle with salt. Place on a rack in an uncovered roasting pan, in an oven preheated at 325 degrees. Roast without turning until tender, about 2 1-2 to 3 hours.

Bird is done when drumstick is tender or separates easily from second joint.

If giblets is desired, add 1 large chopped onion, 1 large sprig celery, 1 medium size carrot and 1 sliced stalk of celery to pan after the first hour's cooking. When birds is removed, take rack out of pan. Throw off fat, but not vegetables. Add 1 1-2 cups chicken broth or stock to pan. Scrape sides of pan. Bring to a boil on top of stove flame. When liquid simmers, add 3 tablespoons cornstarch mixed to a smooth paste with 2 tablespoons cold water. Simmer a few more minutes. Strain. Add 3 tablespoons dry white wine.

To make the Harlequin rice, cook cooked rice with 1 cup cooked diced mushrooms, the capon liver sauted until brown and cut into dice and 1-4 cup diced canned pimientos.

Do you want a particular recipe, have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply—Ed.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

God Takes a Hand in Man's Affairs

By ROY L. SMITH

It was one of the basic beliefs of the ancient Hebrews that God was sometime to take a hand in man's affairs.

In the earlier centuries of the nation's history this belief did not have much influence upon the life of the people, for under such kings as Saul, David, and Solomon, the kingdom enjoyed independence and a reasonable degree of prosperity.

When the kingdom fell upon bad days, however, and when its political fortunes began to wane, the belief in a coming Messiah began to take on much greater significance. Farsighted leaders like Isaiah and Jeremiah became convinced that desperately hard days lay ahead for the people because they had sinned. But they also believed that God would somehow preserve the nation for a divinely appointed task. Such a preservation, they believed, could only come about if some leader chosen by God were to appear and take over the nation's affairs.

The Doctrine of the Messiah

The worse conditions became the stronger the hope appeared. In the last days of the little kingdom of Judah, Jeremiah became loud in his declarations of God's determination to take affairs into his own hands.

During the period of the exile, when the people were in bondage, this hope of the coming Messiah burst into flower, and in the years that followed when the people had returned to build the new commonwealth it came into full bloom.

In Jesus' day the doctrine of the coming Messiah was the great distinguishing characteristic of Jewish belief throughout the world. Jews everywhere looked forward to the great day of deliverance.

A Political Messiah

Quite naturally the Jewish hope of the Messiah was a political hope. They were a subjugated people, without a king, and completely under the heel of the Roman Empire.

Not only so, but in many areas of the world the Jews were a persecuted people suffering pogroms as they have within our own generation. Anti-semitism was rife everywhere. Their only refuge, then, lay in their great religious confidence in the coming of a deliverer.

Because they had never seen deliverance come by any other means than by force of arms and political organization, they believed their enfranchisement was to come that way. Their Messiah was to be a master in the field of politics, diplomacy, and military might.

A Generous Messiah

A distinguishing characteristic of the Jewish hope of a Messiah, however, was the nation's expectation that the rule they should impose upon the world was to be kindly, generous, and merciful. It was to establish justice, mercy, peace, and goodwill among men.

The Sunday School Lesson for December 25: "God's Messiah," Isaiah 2:2-4; 9:1-7; 11:1-9; Jeremiah 23:14-16; Luke 2.

In this they were vastly different from any of the other nations of antiquity. They did not dream of ruling the world for the sake of power, but in order that they might become a blessing to all the people or the earth. Their Messianic leader was to have the wisdom and the gentleness of God in dealing with mankind.

God's Greatest Act

It is important to note that Jesus did not fulfill the Jewish expectations in the political sense. He did not come to establish a kingdom, with a political organization back of it. It was for this reason that the Jews of His time could not understand Him.

It is equally important to note, however, that the Christians believed that the appointment of Jesus among men meant that God had at long last taken a hand in the affairs of men.

It is fundamental belief of Christians today, as then, that in Jesus of Nazareth we have God in human form. As a young college girl once put it: "All of God that could be crowded down into one man's life was in Jesus."

Spiritual forces were let loose among men by His life and through His teachings which have produced a new era in human history. All the promises are not yet fulfilled, but it remains as the unfinished task of Christianity that it has been appointed as the world's redeemer.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — The Frankford District Hockey League will open their season, weather permitting, on Tuesday night, December 27, with Wallbridge and Frankford tangling and Bethel-Zion Combines, last year's champions, meeting their runner-up Foxboro team.

Mrs. John Casement has returned to her home after spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. George Patrick.

Mrs. Harry Lohnes called on Mrs. Frank Wrightman on Saturday night in Trenton. Mrs. Wrightman has been ill lately.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmott Carter were Mrs. Carter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. McCoy from Campbellford.

Sorry to hear that Mr. Sidney Martin has been confined to his bed with the flu.

Dr. McMullen is a patient in the Belleville hospital. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

The Frankford Public Library is again open, following the illness of the librarian, Miss Florence Glover. The hours are 7 till 9 Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, and 3 to 5 Saturday afternoons. Everyone is invited to visit the Frankford Library and look over the fine collection of books. Membership rates are very low.

The Frankford Lions Club is sponsoring a Christmas tree, free movies, etc., for the kiddies of the village on Thursday night in the Community-Memorial Hall.

Nominations will be held in the council chambers of the Community-Memorial Hall on Monday evening, December 26, from 8.00 to 9.00 p.m. Nominations will be for reeve, four councillors, 3 school trustees and 2 members of the public utilities commission for the year 1950. If a poll is demanded, an election will be held at the council chambers Monday, January 2, 1950, from 9.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes on Sunday evening.

Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Currie were Mr. and Mrs. Orval Cooney and children of Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Watson and son, and Mrs. V. Cooney.

Glen Rose has officially sought admission to the Frankford District Hockey League. A meeting of the league executive is expected shortly to decide upon this item.

Presentation

A surprise party was held Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Christopher, prior to their moving to Centenary during the first week. Friends and neighbors gathered as a farewell to the popular couple, and presented them with a coffee table and an electric kitchen clock. Mrs. Bert Bush read an address.

W.M.S.

The Frankford United Church W.M.S. held their December meeting at home of Mrs. Clayton Powell with an excellent attendance. The meeting opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Fred Charlesworth. The president, Mrs. Powell, gave a message entitled "Christian Love."

Business was then discussed. Mrs. Gerald Dickson conducted an illustrated worship service. Those taking part were Mrs. Holton Madill, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Percy Bonisteel and Mrs. Cecil Reid. Mrs. J. M. Dafoe presented an inspiring Christmas message.

The Batawa Girl Guides, Brownies and Cubs held a Christmas party on Tuesday night last week. The party, sponsored by the local association, was greatly enjoyed. A donation of $20 was given by the Four X Club toward the party.

Candlelight Service

A candlelight service was held in the Recreation Hall Sunday evening. It was an impressive service and a good attendance was present. The superintendent of the Sunday School, missionary convener of the Young Peoples' Union, session chairman, president of the W.A. took part in the service, which was made up of the Christmas Message from the Scriptures and a number of carols. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duncan sang a duet and Mrs. Harry Pearce a solo.

The Batawa United church Sunday School Christmas Concert will take place Friday evening, December 23rd in the Recreation Hall.

Frankford United Church Sunday School concert will take place on Friday evening, December 23rd in the Community-Memorial Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wannamaker and family were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McLeod.

Miss Lois Farrell of Campbellford was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Patrick.

Mrs. Ronald Patrick spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Harold McLeod.

The December meeting of the Batawa United Church W.A. took place Tuesday evening in the Recreation Hall with the president, Mrs. Tom Tillie, presiding. Scripture reading of the Christmas Story was read and carols were sung. Roll call was followed by the secretary's and treasurer's reports. A report on the "Travelling Basket" was given by Mrs. Ralph Armstrong.

Mrs. Tillie thanked everyone for the fine support they gave in helping with the bazaar. It was voted to give money to the "Building Fund" to finish the church pews. A letter of thanks from Mr. Frank Rabel was read. Mrs. Harry Pearce gave a reading on bazaar work.

Mrs. J. Finnigan, president of Batawa Unit was in charge of the election of officers. She gave a talk on W.A. work as a big wheel, with the ladies, members, as cogs. When one cog is missing, the wheel is out of order. She then read a poem on leadership. Officers Elected

Election of officers for 1950: President, Mrs. Clare Wallace; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Jack Moore; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Robert Grieve; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Gordon Ireland; Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. Earl Stewart; Pianist, Mrs. F. THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR

Then Jesus left his home and mother in Galilee and went to the Jordan valley to be baptized by John, who felt that he was not worthy to be baptized by Jesus. But Jesus persisted. (Matthew 3:13, 14, 15)

The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus

"And Jesus went up straightway out of the water and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and lighting upon him: and lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased." (Matthew 3: 16, 17)

Then came Jesus' great ordeal of temptation. He went into the wilderness and fasted 40 days, and while in this weakened state he resisted the devil, saying, "Get thee hence, Satan." (Matthew 4:1-11)

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D

The Ministry of Jesus

"The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." (Matthew 20:28.)

Jesus showed his love for children. He told his disciples, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." (Matthew 19:14.)

And Jesus healed the sick: "At even ere the sun was set, The sick, O Lord, around thee lay; O, with what divers pains they met; O, with what joy they went away."

To save mankind, He died on the cross.

Christmas Through the Ages

God's gift to man is "eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23.) "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believed in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3:16.)

Man responds in worship: "We love him because he first loved us." (1 John 4:19.)

The Christmas spirit and joy of giving are best expressed in the words of Jesus: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35.)

And the best gift of man to one another comes from Jesus also: "This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you." (John 15:12.)

"As with gladness men of old Did the guiding star behold, As with joy they hailed its light, Leading onward, beaming bright, So, most gracious Lord, may we Evermore be led to Thee." —Anon.

Metropolitan Had To Make Use of Substitution Rule

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera had to use football's free substitution rule Wednesday night to plug the gaps in its first string line.

The scheduled performance was the heavyweight Wagnerian opera "Die Walkure," which calls for extra-high-powered sopranos in the parts of Sieglinde and Brunnhilde.

Shortly before noon the regular Sieglinde, Polyna Stoska, called in and said she was too ill to go on.

So the Met hustled about and promoted Regina Resnik from the ranks of the slight warrior-maiden Valkries to sing the big role. That left a vacant spot in the girls' squad, which the Met filled with Maxine Stellman.

Everything went fine for three hours until Helen Traubel's doctor called and said the soprano was in bed with laryngitis and couldn't sing "Farewell to the Dell" at alone Brunnhilde, the opera's leading role.

Wagnerian sopranos are born, not made, and there never are many of them around at one time or place. Worse, the usual helperout, Astrid Varnay, was busy rehearsing a Philharmonic concert and couldn't take the job.

So they had a cold chill at the Met until someone remembered Helena Braun, wife of Metropolitan baritone Ferdinand Frantz. Mrs. Braun has sung Brunnhilde in Vienna and Munich, but never in the United States.

She agreed to take the part, was cleared by the union, looked over the opera house, tried on the costumes — including armor —and did a quick run-through of the music with conductor Fritz Stiedry to a piano accompaniment.

By 8 p.m. she was "ho-ro-to-ho-ing with the rest of them.

54 War Criminals Released in 2 Days For Good Behavior

Landsberg, Germany, Dec. 23. (AP)—The United States army freed 27 more Nazi war criminals from Landsberg prison today, bringing to 54 the number released in two days for good behavior during imprisonment.

"Things will change," growled one of the released men as the prison's massive wooden gate swung open to free him.

Added another:

"And then those who are out at the moment will be in."

They gave no explanation of their cryptic remarks, which they addressed to one another.

The 27 released today included concentration camp murderers and guards and former policemen.

ACCUSED OF SPONGING

Salem, N. H., Dec. 23 (AP) — A Los Angeles trainer was held in $6,000 bail today on a charge of being an accomplice before the fact in the "sponging" of horses at Rockingham Park race track.

Forest C. (Chub) Wilson pleaded innocent Thursday and the case was continued to Dec. 30.

Wilson is accused of instructing by letter William H. Weaver, 31, of Nogales, Ariz., in the insertion of sponges in the nostrils of Shining Deed, owned by Henry J. Aprill of Danvers, Mass.

The insertion of sponges is designed to slow up a horse.

Weaver now is in jail in lieu of $2,000 bail, pending the April session of the Grand Jury.

1230 ON YOUR DIAL

FOR CHRISTMAS EVE

7:00-8:00 PM—MERRY CHRISTMAS EVERYBODY

With many wonderful Christmas Eve programs to be heard, this hour will serve as a forerunner for a grand evening of radio entertainment. It will utilize Christmas music, including some of the best of yuletide carols, interspersed with greetings from various Trenton merchants.

8:00-8:30 PM—A CHRISTMAS CAROL

This is the story of "Scrooge" as originally told by Charles Dickens. On the air, it is brilliantly portrayed by Lionel Barrymore and a top flight supporting cast. If you've heard it before you'll enjoy it as much as the first time, and for those who will hear it for the first time, it's a real radio treat.

8:30-9:00 PM—THE STORY OF JESUS

Here is the greatest story ever told! The Story of Jesus, adapted from the New Testament by Charles Vale Barr. It is especially produced for the children. Claude Rains, brilliant dramatic actor of stage and screen paints vivid word pictures of the Nativity, Baptism, Miracles, Plot against Him, Crucifixion, and Ascension of Christ. Be sure the children hear this inspiring half hour program specially prepared for them and starring Mr. Claude Rains.

9:00-10:00 PM—SEASON'S GREETINGS TO YOU

This hour of Christmas music and song will again serve as a prelude for many of the grand Christmas Eve programs yet to be heard. Along with your favorite carols, you'll hear messages with season's greetings from several Trenton merchants.

10:00-10:30 PM—ON THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

For this half hour you're asked to visit that popular home of Tibber McGee and Molly at 79 Wistful Vista on this Christmas Eve of 1949. Along with this radio-famous couple you'll hear songs by the Old Timers, music by the Billy Mill Mill grist orchestra and starring Teeny, the little girl. It's a half hour crammed full of the good things you like to hear on the radio.

10:30-10:45 PM—THE KEY TO THE KING OF HEAVEN

Following the visit with the McGees, CJBQ presents a documentary story, in biblical language, relative to the Christmas season. Along with this story are more of your favorite carols and Christmas music.

10:45-11:00 PM—MR. PICKWICK'S CHRISTMAS

A Christmas Eve wouldn't be complete without a story by the world famous screen and stage star, Charles Laughton. During this period Mr. Laughton will narrate Dickens' immortal Christmas Dickens' classic, "Mr. Pickwick's Christmas." With Mr. Laughton playing the role, this should prove a highlight in Christmas Eve listening.

11:00-12:00 PM—OUR CHRISTMAS STOCKING

Here is a program to top all programs for Christmas Eve! This hour is filled to overflowing with musical and dramatic entertainment under the capable direction of Dick Haymes. You'll hear such musical stars as Helen Forrest, Bob Eberly, Page Cavanaugh Trio, Three Suns, Eddie Howard and others. You'll also hear from a large cast of radio and listener stars who will provide tops in dramatic entertainment. Keep your dial tuned to 1230 Christmas Eve for "Our Christmas Stocking" . . . filled to the brim with good holiday fun.

12:00—CONCLUSION—MIDNIGHT MASS

This religious celebration originating from St. Michael's Church in Belleville will commence its broadcast portion at Midnight, Christmas Eve and will be carried over CJBQ to the end of its conclusion. This colorful event will be described in detail by one of CJBQ's announcers.

FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

7:05-7:45 AM—CHRISTMAS PREVIEW

The purpose of this program is to acquaint early morning listeners with programs to be heard over CJBQ during Christmas Day. Combining this previewing with Christmas music, the "Voice of the Bay of Quinte" will provide listeners with a comprehensive account of what they can expect to enjoy by dialling 1230 on their radio dial.

7:45-8:00 AM—ECHOES OF GOOD NEWS

There will be a special Christmas Day greeting on this regular Sunday program. Rev. Makin of Bethel Temple in Trenton, will conduct this fifteen minute period.

8:00-9:00 AM—CHRISTMAS AT THE CHURCHES

Radio Station CJBQ is proud to bring you this hour of local Belleville talent. Prior to Christmas Day, the various radio facilities of CJBQ were used to the utmost in transcribing choirs from various churches in the city. During the hour on Christmas morning they will be woven together to make an hour of highly enjoyable listening.

9:00-10:00 AM—EMPIRE BROADCAST FROM LONDON

For those listeners whose hearts beat faster with the mention of the Commonwealth of Nations, here is a program specially tailored for their listening. Christmas morning CJBQ will join the National Broadcasting Unions, from London and all parts of the Commonwealth. . . . greetings in many tongues and in many different ways, on this birthday anniversary of our Lord.

10:00-10:15 AM—HIS MAJESTY'S CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

This annual event is looked forward to in many lands around the world. Greetings on Christmas Day from His Majesty, King George VI, direct from London. In Canada this is a yearly family listening and CJBQ is happy to be able to bring this message to you from Overseas.

10:15-10:30 AM—CHRISTMAS AT RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL

Dick Leibert, world renowned organist, will entertain for this fifteen minute portion of Christmas morning with songs of holiday cheer from the mighty Radio City Mill organ. Some of your Christmas favorites are sure to be played.

10:30-11:00 AM—A CHRISTMAS VISIT WITH TED MALONE

One of America's favorite story tellers will spin yarns for the whole family. Background music will be supplied by Dick Leibert at the organ, with Christmas Carols sung by the Church in the Wildwood Choir.

11:00-12:00 AM—CHRISTMAS CLASSICS

Classical music connoisseur at CJBQ, Eugene Lang, will bring to the Bay of Quinte listeners, the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" as recorded by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London, England under the direction of Sir Thomas Beecham. Included in this work are two specially selected choirs with featured soloists.

12:00-12:15 PM—CZECHOSLOVAKIA CHRISTMAS CHOIR

Here is another program which contains local interest. From Batawa, Ontario, the Choir will offer native Czechoslovak Christmas music. Something a bit different on CJBQ's Christmas Day programming.

12:15-12:30 PM—TRENT VALLEY NEWSCAST

While preparation are under way for that huge dinner, here is where you can keep abreast of the latest happenings, locally, nationally, and internationally from the wires of Canadian Press and the CJBQ Newsroom. It's your first fifteen minute newscast on Christmas Day with news of the festive holiday from around the world.

12:30-12:40 PM—WEEKLY SPORTS PARADE

This regular Sunday feature will be heard at the usual time with Jack Devine reviewing the sports events from the past week.

12:40-1:00 PM—CHRISTMAS WITH SAMMY KAYE

For twenty minutes it will be the "swing and sway" music of Sammy Kaye and his Orchestra with featured vocalists, all packaged up in a big Christmas musical present to you. Special yuletide songs will be the order of the day on this regular Sunday feature.

1:00-2:00 PM—CHRISTMAS EDITION OF CJBQ SYMPHONIC HOUR

Here is Christmas music in the more serious vein. During this hour of Christmas classical entertainment, Mr. Eugene Lang will introduce: "Dream" and "Pantomime", music from Hansel and Gretel. Also to be heard will be two Christmas choral preludes by Bach. This hour will see the finest in recorded Christmas classical music.

2:00-2:30 PM—GOSPEL BELLS

This religious half hour, heard each Sunday at this time will feature a special Christmas message for the entire family plus the usual Christmas gospel hymns. A half hour which will be dedicated to every member of the family on Christmas Day . . . 1949.

2:30-3:00 PM—THE LITTLEST ANGEL

With music directed by Victor Young, Miss Loretta Young, famous screen star portrays an ever popular Christmas story to the best of her ability. She has the assistance of the Ken Darby Choir. This half hour should hold many Bay of Quinte listeners close to their radios Christmas afternoon.

3:00-3:30 PM—SPECIAL CHRISTMAS DAY PROGRAM

A half hour program to be heard Christmas afternoon and brought to you by the Christian Science Publishing. It will provide thirty minutes of big Capitol radio listening for all.

3:30-3:45 PM—CHRISTMAS WITH FRED WARING AND HIS PENNSYLVANIANS

With music by the orchestra and vocal ensemble led by the Glee Club and featured soloists, this portion of the schedule should be highly entertaining. With all your favorite carols and songs, Fred Waring has a real treat for you this Sunday.

3:45-4:00 PM—WORDS AND MUSIC

This regular Sunday afternoon program will be specially prepared for Christmas Day listening. Among readings to be heard will be the answer to the question put to a New York newspaper by a little girl . . . "Is there a Santa Claus?". This slow will guarantee good listening for the entire family. Miss Dorothy Kirsten will provide musical selections as a perfect background for the program.

4:00-4:15 PM—YORK MOTORS NEWSCAST

This is the last half hour program scheduled for holiday listening. Quiet and relaxing, it will serve as the perfect finish to Christmas . . . 1949.

12:00-12:05 AM—NEWS AND WEATHER

As a conclusion to its broadcasting schedule, CJBQ signs off the air at Midnight Sunday with a five minute news roundup plus the weather report.

New Composition by Norwegian Will be Presented N.Y.'s Night

By ALAN DONNELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada has received a musical dividend from her part as host to the British Commonwealth Air Force during its wartime stay at Toronto's "Little Norway."

The dividend is the work of 41-year-old Norwegian - born Andreas Lundi — composer, mechanic, ex-sailor, pianist — whose New Year's night Lundi will hear his composition in his first major composition over CBC's Dominion network from Montreal.

The composition is named "Symphonie Concertante," a title chosen because he wrote it while sitting on the porch of a Grand Mere, Que., house. Lundi has had other compositions broadcast, but this is the first major work.

He was employed for several years at Little Norway for the R.N.A.F. and decided to remain in Canada when he was discharged. He's now an instrument mechanic and works at the Shawinigan Falls, Que., plant of Canadian Industries Limited, where he lives with his wife, a son and a stepdaughter, Berit.

A variety of interest lies behind this composer. Following the footsteps of his doctor-father, he studied medicine for years at Oslo and Trondheim universities. Then he became a boy in his godfather's shipping business to gain experience. By the time the Germans overran Norway he was a third engineer, and on this side of the Atlantic he joined the Norwegian Air Force in Canada, and began continuing his interests in his foster homeland. He expects to become a Canadian citizen by 1951.

Canadian radio plays an extralarge part in the observance of Christmas Day in this country, and this year will be no exception.

Local stations have planned special broadcasts and the two CBC networks will also be full of special Christmas music, plays and stories in the week before Dec. 25.

Friday night on the national networks will be brimming with the Yule spirit, starting with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra's Pops concert, and Theatre will follow that up with a modern Christmas drama and later Vancouver Theatre will present "The Journey or the Star."

Christmas morning will be ushered in in most Canadian radio homes by the BBC's hour-long world tour — which gives one a real picture all fields. The King's Christmas message will follow.

Those two programs are made available to all Canadian stations, but are heard in Canada outside the CBC network range.

Carols and other music, special plays and discussion services make up the rest of the day's listening on the CBC national network. Some of the highlights are a carillion concert from Ottawa's Peace Tower, Christmas Eve church music, two church services from Ontario's Bethlehem Chapel in Niagara Falls, Ont., and the Anglican cathedral in St. John's Newfoundland, and a variety program full of fun and fantasies. These include "Christmas Story" by one of the Nativity, "The Oracles Are Dumb" by CBC's International Service, and a feature "The Tale of the Lonesome Pine."

MADOC Candlelight Service At St. Peter's Church

Madoc — Never before has the Presbyterian Church of St. Peter's in Madoc looked more beautiful than it did last Sunday for the annual "Candlelight Service". Evergreens, lightened with red, white and green candles filled the windows and the massive Christmas trees, shining with colored lights, stood in the front, while the dark gowns of the choir and choir, surrounded by the new white surplices of the junior choir composed of 40 children in their red and white caps, added a pleasing effect. These were all trained by the talented church organist, Mr. Stanley Hawthorne.

The congregation, which more than filled the church, was deeply impressed by the beauty of the service, the organ prelude of Christmas carols by Mr. Hawthorne, Burris, was followed by a trumpet solo "Silent Night" by Mr. Donald Crawford, and, during the processional hymn, "O Come All Ye Faithful", there was a trumpet trio by Douglas Murray, David Crawford and William Aylesworth.

St. Peter's choir sang "Star of Love Divine" and this was followed by "Safely Home", a duet, beautifully unaccompanied, by a choir of seven boys. The impressive and anthem sung by St. Peter's choir, boy.

"In His Lowly Manger Bed", was composed by Mr. Hawthorne, the organist of Knox Presbyterian Church, St. Thomas.

The Rev. Mr. Beck, the Rev. W. Heslip chose "And the Angels Sang" for his Christmas message, reminding men that though the world seems battle and confusion at the return of time are under the direct supervision and direction of God. The coming of the Christ Child was the fulfillment of the Eternal plan.

The service was closed by Mr. A. A. Martin's solo, "O Holy Night" and the Sunday School Service Christmas Eve.

Sweetly Carol, Christmas Story, "A Star in A Manger" and Silent Night," with Mr. Raymond Smith at the piano.

The children trained under Mr. Hawthorne, were accepted by Mrs. W. Regan of Marmora.

A fitting climax for this impressive service was the solo, "A Star Was His Candle", sung by Miss Verna Gay of Belleville. Everyone felt that the recessional hymn, "Joy to the World" came far too soon.

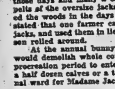
CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor



According to a report from Picton, a Sophiasburg township hunter is nursing a sore knee as a result of missing a large jackrabbit with an automatic shotgun. The report states that the overstuffed bunny nimbly stepped aside as the shotgun charge whizzed past him, and the hunter, delivered a pair of solid drophicks to the hunter's knees, dodged between his legs and disappeared. It was not stated if the hare Jack learned an bowed its nose at the hunter or not.

If you talk to oldtimers of Prince Edward County especially around the Wellington area, they will tell you that man-calling jacks were more or less common around the time the British and Canadian troops were chasing Boers around South African veldts and kopjes.

They'll tell you that around the turn of the century when the winters were tough and natural food scarce these kingsize bunnies would nibble at trees two and three feet in circumference, fell them and thus help solve the farmer's wood cutting labor problems.

Rabbit steaks were familiar dishes with the hunters of those days and many a cabin was carpeted with the furry pelts of the oversize jacks. In fact one veteran who prowled the woods in the days of the early sixties and nineties stated that one farmer caught and trained a pair of the jacks, and used them in lieu of horses when the plowing season rolled around.

At the annual bunny banquet held in the fall, they would demolish whole cornfields. They were known at the procession period to enter barns, open box stalls, kick out a half dozen calves or a team of horses to provide a material ward for Madame Jack.

The origin of these bull-size bunnies is said to be from a cross between a kangaroo and grey - hound (that's as good as the turkey-cock fable). An Itinerant Australian was travelling the district when the first giant kangaroo went native and went back to the wild. It teamed up with a farmer's greyhound while cavorting in the wooded slopes, and the result was the grandpappies of the present strain of fence-jumping jacks.

They're practically the fastest animals afoot and it is strange that some promoter has not taken up the idea and originated the Jackrabbit Stakes. An idea of their speed can be had from the story of the Wellington farmer who figured a few years ago spotted a pair of the jacks lake lunching in his wheat field. The pair were grazing like cows on the wheat which was well over a foot in height. He raced to the house, grabbed his trusty forty-four and let go. The jacks, startled, shot two-foot ears straight in the air and with two leaps were in full stride. Shooting at least twenty yards in front of the speeding bunn in an effort to score a hit, the farmer's eyes bulged when he saw the bullets striking at least twenty yards to the rear of the fleeing animals.

"We used to fetch one, once in a while" said an oldtimer from Sophiasburg, "but the fact when I was a boy I remember my old dad caught one when it was three days old. It was about the size of the family collie and the two became fast friends. We called him Mercury Mike for he developed speed like a streak and was amazing. When he could start him off the Noble shee - repair shop in Wellington, after rarging two stiff beakers of old cider spiked with VVO, pick up the mail and be in Consecon in three minutes. He made, it was said, about five two-point landings during the entire journey of 11 miles."

"Jack rabbit steaks, sirloins, rib roasts and tenderloins were considered a delicacy in those days," he went on. "And these Jacks were tough as leather. So we trained Mike to run alongside his wild brothers, munnie their ribs to see how fat they were, and if they were in the necessary condition, he'd hrvite 'em home for a snort, and we had a dinner that night.

After the sorry showing made by Canadian trackmen in the last Olympics, it wouldn't be a bad idea to capture and train some of these fleet-footed Garguntuas in the art of track and field. We'd be sure of the sprints, hurdles and short distances, to say nothing of the pole-vault, without a pole.

Tonight the Galloping Gans from down east take on our Diesels Electrics in their second meeting of the group schedule. The first time the squads met, our buckaroos came home with a 6-3 victory but they earned every bit of it. This Gan. crew is a never-say-die gang and they never give up until the last dog is hung and the last shoe shrills. A win for the Dec-Eee's will consolidate their second place slot for the time being, anyway, and by the way the league group is wacking, every win counts. The Dec-Eee's cannot afford to toss away any games, as the going will get tougher as the teams travel down the trail while each improves with every performance.

C.N.R. Diesels Meet Electrics In Final of District Loop By Downing Rockets 6-5

The Canadian National Railway Diesels will meet the Electrics in the finals for the championship of the Belleville District Hockey League and the Ontario Intelligencer Trophy.

This was decided in Memorial Arena last night when the Rockets Juniors were edged in their third game of the semi-final series by the CNR. Diesels. Both teams had settled the issue with one game each, and last night was the payoff. The score was 6-5.

It was a battle royal from start to finish, and the issue was at stake especially in the third period when the Diesels scored three goals down. started a spirited comeback that put them within striking distance, and with the large crowd rooting them on, they fought desperately but the Diesels defence with the backchecking of their front lines held them in check.

Diesels, paced by the prolific Timmy Williams who scored three goals and got an assist, piled up a 3-0 advantage in Goyer, provided the scoring punch for the winners, Vern Goyer got the first Doug Bastedo shoved home the rest of the Diesels goals.

Diesels took over in the first period by a margin edge of 2-1. Timmy Williams and Wm. Schmidt took care of those two tallies, but the Rockets, Jim Gilmour, Brown and Strahan went into action and gave the Rockets their first goal.

Rockets fought back desperately especially in the last period when led by captain Don Hogan, they staged a spirited offensive that nearly brought them within striking distance of the score.

It was a thrilling go, as these kids of the Rockets gave all they had to try and pull victory out of the jaws of defeat.

Much Travelled Poile Traded To Boston Bruins

By EDGAR SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nots to coach Buck Boucher: If the latest recruit on your Boston Bruins is a little off on his passing, don't be too hard on him.

Norman 'Bud' Poile has worn five differently-colored jerseys in his National Hockey League career—four in the last two seasons —and he may have a little trouble remembering who's playing on his side.

Bud was a Chicago Black Hawk until he was swapped to Detroit in mid-season last winter. The Red Wings sold him to New York Rangers before the start of the current season and the Rangers peddled him off to the Bruins Thursday.

The six-foot forward with the blistering shot broke in with Toronto Maple Leafs in 1942, but departed for Chicago with four of his team-mates in the Max Bentley deal three years ago.

If Montreal Canadiens ever sell Toronto Leaf William boy from the Bruins, he'll tie the globe-trotting record for NHL players, currently held by Leroy Goldsworthy, a smooth-skating forward who ended his big time career 11 years ago and now coaches the Boston Bruins of the American Hockey League.

Leroy did brief hitches with New York Black Hawks, Chicago, Canadians and Boston before finishing with the defunct New York Americans.

Has Not Gone Well

Goldsworthy was primarily a defensive forward, who only hit the 20-goal mark twice in his N.-H.L. career. But Poile isn't the type of player who goes in for trading-bait.

He hasn't gone well with the Rangers this season, scoring only three goals in 28 games. But those goals brought him nine-tenths of the 100 mark.

But Bentley the light 221 timer for Chicago and Detroit last year. The year before, he punked home 26 goals for Black Hawks and he hit 19 for the Leafs in 1946-47. Some goalies consider his shot the hardest in the league.

Poile will make his first start in the Bruins against the slumping Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday. The third-place Leafs need a victory to stay ahead of the Rangers who trail them by a single point. Leafs, still without injured centremen Ted Kennedy and Cal Gardner, will have amateur George Armstrong doing pivot duty on a try-out basis.

Travel To Montreal

The Rangers will travel to Montreal to meet the patched-up Canadiens. The habitants will be without ex centre Elmer Lach, who has a foot injury, and defencemen Ken Laycoe, out for another three weeks with a broken wrist. Three other cripples—Doug Harvey and Gerry and Doug Harvey and winger Rip Riopelle—are doubtful with Reardon a possible starter despite a broken nose.

Canadiens got no action on a hurry-call to Western Canada for reinforcements. Lacking official word, they heard that Saskatoon Quakers might coach Chuck Rayner through next month, but that Edmonton Flyers were reluctant to part with Doug Anderson, who rank, second in Western Canada Hockey League scoring.

Sports Roundup

New York, Dec. 25 (AP) — Frank Boucher resigned in a huff as chairman of the National Hockey League's Rules Committee the other day, thereby confirming the impression that Frank is one of the finer guys in the sports business . . . It seems Boucher had discussed possible rules changes with hockey writers and league president Clarence Campbell objected . . . It's a harmless subject and this department is inclined to view with considerable alarm that tendency to clamp gag rules on sports . . . As we see it, a manager, coach or player has a right to shoot off to say heels about rules, officiating or administration and is especially bad to require him to 'clear' them through the same guys he may be criticizing . . . The fans are interested in those debatable subjects as much as in the reasons why the right fielder isn't hitting . . . And a guy who squawks unnecessarily is not going to be quickly recognized as a hatchet man or a publicity-seeker and is ignored.

Observation Post

Several Brooklyn Dodgers, including Rex Barney, Ralph Branca and Don Newcombe, will head to appear in a Christmas Day television show in which they propose to show how they'll "force" Santa Claus to give them what they want next year . . . the kiddie performance might have some real meaning if they could get Branch Rickey to play the role of St. Nick, with or without a white beard.

One-Minute Sports Page

Jack Bloit, Michigan's 230-lb. line coach, still can move fast for his size . . . Jim Dick Wakefield in a recent paddle ball match... P.S.: Paddle ball is the game like handball and there's no connection with Wakefield's batting average . . . Jersey Jones, tricked because his fighter, Maynard Jones, was offered only a semi-final spot at the New York St. Nick, argues that main bouts at the Garden have become "consolation matches." A guy can't get in focused until he has been beaten somewhere else, Jersey claims . . .

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP)—All Toronto Argonauts want for Christmas is the most-publicized football player in the United States.

That's the story as Harry (London Free Press) Eiven has it from a friend on the executive of the Big Four club. Harry's friend whispers that the Scullers are after Don Walker, the triple-threat back with Southern Methodist University.

Eisen feels "the fleet fullback from Dallas...can probably write his own ticket with any number of teams south of the border, why then should he don an Argonaut uniform and play for comparative peanuts?"

But Harry doesn't entirely despair of Argos' chances of, picking up the S.M.U. ace for Eisen might be interested if the Double Blues offer him: "1. A section of Toronto in the immediate vicinity of the city hall; tax free 2. Thirty thousand dollars in cold cash. American. 3. A country estate. 4. A fleet of brand new Cadillacs."

Player Registration

Still on football, Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller lends support to a bid by Calgary President Tom Brook to have the Canadian Rugby Football Union issue player registration cards earlier in the year. Under the present system cards are not issued until August, which means a player cannot be signed until that time.

"It seems like a good move," Miller writes, "for clubs can easily be wrecked by losing one or two outstanding players at a time when such stars have been figured into the club's calculations...Anything that will eliminate player raiding will be a boon."

New Import Plan

From Miller also comes the suggestion that it might be a good idea to delay finally signing of United States imports until the Yanks have been tried out in action. "Under the existing setup, if a American doesn't come through as expected, the club is stuck with him," Ivan says.

Miller feels a team should be able to replace an import after a trial, "imports are too big a proposition, financially, for the straight gamble the clubs must take at present," Ivan writes.

Manuel Ortiz Again in News

London, Dec. 23 —(AP)—Two London fight promoters were fighting over a fighter Thursday.

The man in demand is Manuel Ortiz, the world's bantamweight champion from El Centro, Calif.

Promoter Jack Solomons announced recently that Ortiz had agreed to defend his title here against Danny O'Sullivan of London Feb. 28.

But Jack Cappell of London, acting for Spanish promoter Jose Penalo of Barcelona, says Ortiz has called him twice from California about a match title fight in Spain against European champion Luis Romero. Cappell says he offered Ortiz $30,000.

At El Centro, Calif., Ortiz said Thursday night he was puzzled why two foreign promoters would be arguing over his services.

"I'm fighting both their fighters," said Ortiz.

"If I lose to O'Sullivan, I guess I won't fight Romero, but I wouldn't sign for both if I didn't think I could whip both."

Kell of Detroit First Third Baseman Ever to Win Batting Crown of American League

Chicago, Dec. 23 — (AP) — George Kell of Detroit was certified today as the first third baseman ever to win the American League batting crown —and he did it with the closest finish on record.

The 170-pound Tiger, collecting two hits on the final day of the 1949 season, thanked Boston's Ted Williams who was held hitless in his last game, .3429 to .3427, Williams missed becoming a five-time winner of the crown by two ten-thousands of a point.

There have been one-point margins before, but never has the edge had such a decimal decision as this one. Goose Goslin of Washington grabbed the 1928 title by one point, Buddy Myer of Washington had the same close shave in 1935 and George Stirnweiss of New York in 1945 beat out Tony Cuccinello of Chicago .309 to .308.

The 27-year-old Kell gathered 179 hits last season in 522 times at bat in 134 games.

Williams, appearing in 155 games, had 194 hits in 566 trips. He has led the league since the first week in August until the last day when Kell sacker caught and passed him on the last day.

Kell came to Detroit from Philadelphia Athletics in a trade for Barney McCosky in 1941. He notched a 322, .320 and .304 for the Tigers before climbing to the 1949 mark.

Williams Player of Year

Although shaded for the diadem, Williams finished the season in home runs with 43; runs scored; 150; total bases, 368; and in two base hits, 39. He's always a specialized hitting helped give Williams "player of the year" honors.

Third in official batting averages was third sacker Bob Dillinger of St. Louis Browns, who was crowned in Philadelphia last week, with .324. Trailing him were Dale Mitchell of Cleveland with .317; Bobby Doerr, Boston, .309; Cass Michaels, Chicago, .308; Dom DiMaggio, Boston, .307; and Johnny Pesky of Boston and Roy Sievers of St. Louis with .306 apiece.

Joe DiMaggio, the New York Yankees veteran outfielder who was out until midseason with a Heel injury, slammed 346 in 372 times at bat—128 appearances short of the 400 as required for championship consideration.

Boston took the team batting laurels with a collective .282— 13 points more than the champion New York Yankees.

Athletes Leave For New Zealand To Attend Games

Vancouver, Dec. 23 — (CP) — A trim little band of athletes sail today from New Zealand as the first contingent of Canada's Empire Games squad.

The motorship Aorangi sails at 8 P. M. PST (11 P. M. EST) with the band of 35 athletes and competitors, bound for Auckland and the British Empire Games Feb. 4-11 — the first since 1938 before the Second World War.

All day Wednesday the Aorangi took on baggage, equipment, food and the countless other necessities for a 28-day voyage and the competitions following.

A second party completing the 73-person assembly leaves by air Jan. 17. There are 64 athletes in all.

Two major goals apparently lie ahead for the team. One is to make as solid a showing as possible in the competitions and the other is to act as ambassadors for the country they represent.

Before leaving return most of them will have touched at Australia, South Africa, England and New York in a round-the-world voyage. To return directly would have involved a seven-week layover in New Zealand, a costly step in a venture financed on barely enough funds, officials figured.

For those sailing today, it means spending Christmas and New Years on the high seas. But the numerous and sundry provisions taken aboard Tuesday were ample proof that holiday meals would not be missed.

There are: four Christmas trees, 2,500 pounds of turkey, 200 pounds of Christmas cake, 300 chickens, 150 ducklings and 300 pounds of suckling pig.

Players Widely Distributed to Other Clubs

Seattle, Dec. 23 (AP)—Players or Eddie Sutton disbanded Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League have been widely distributed to other clubs.

Most of the players stayed in the coast league, but five have been posted to Shore's American League team, the Springfield Indians.

The Vancouver Canucks got Eric Pogue, centre, and other moves included:

To San Diego—Bill Jones, left wing; Stan Jones, right wing and Lawrence May, defence.

San Francisco took Danny Nixon, defence, while Paul Goyhan centre was sold to Louisville of the United States Hockey League.

Goalie Jim O'Learn and centre Mike Narduzzi were transferred to Springfield and Shore has similar plans for wing Eric Prentice, defenceman Red Kane and centre Joe Iannerelli.

The Oaks disbanded Monday, Shore finding it impossible to operate in Oakland because of poor attendance and lack of interest in the game there.

28 Schoolboys To Have Fling At Winter Sports

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP) — A party of 28 overseas schoolboys, students at Hildley College at St. Catharines, Ont., passed through here Wednesday on their way to Bobcaygeon Ont., for three weeks of winter sports. The boys come from Central and South America, the British West Indies and England, and many of them will be seeing winter sports for the first time.

One of two masters accompanying the boys, Terence Cronin, said there would be little of the old school routine "but there may be a few bawlings-out."

Two of the youngest lads are William Olyslager and Hilary Lewis, each 12. Hilary comes from Wales but he and Olyslager have lived in Guatemala City practically since they were born.

Two other lads from Ashbury College, Ottawa, joined the party here.

Canadian Open Title Takes on Added Stature

(By the Canadian Press)

The Canadian Open Golf Championship, slated for Montreal in 1950, took on added stature Thursday.

Dr. A. W. Matthews, member of the board of governors and a past president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, returned from the annual meeting of the professional Golfers' Association of America with news of a three-way recognition which is expected to attract more top-flight United States players to the Canadian event.

Dr. Matthews, R.C.G.A. delegate to the meeting at Mid-Pines, N.C., reported that in future the Canadian open would be listed among the events for which U.S. Ryder Cup points will be given.

He also received assurance that prize winnings in the $10,000 event will be included in the compilation of the top-money winners of the year among U.S. pros.

Moreover, the P.G.A. scores posted in the Canadian open will be regarded as official scores for the Vardon Trophy, presented annually to the U.S. professional with the best scoring record for the year. It was won this year by Sam Snead, a former Canadian open champion.

Canada's "first division" of athletes sailed from Vancouver Thursday aboard the motorship Aorangi, bound for Auckland, N.Z., and the first post-war edition of the British Empire Games opening Feb. 4.

The trip has some similarities with the departure of a troop ship. Flamingo blazers replaced khaki; bell in the band music, frantic waving from the ship's rail, shouting friends and relatives on the dock.

A security contingent of ST Canadians leaves by air Jan. 17. Of the 73 making the New Zealand trip, 64 are athletes, the rest officials.

Three British soccer references came home to Southampton Thursday after Eddie Cheyne's disbanded Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League have been widely distributed to other clubs.

Most of the players stayed in the coast league, but five have been posted to Shore's American League team, the Springfield Indians.

The Vancouver Canucks got Eric Pogue, centre, and other moves included:

To San Diego—Bill Jones, left wing; Stan Jones, right wing and Lawrence May, defence.

San Francisco took Danny Nixon, defence, while Paul Goyhan centre was sold to Louisville of the United States Hockey League.

Goalie Jim O'Learn and centre Mike Narduzzi were transferred to Springfield and Shore has similar plans for wing Eric Prentice, defenceman Red Kane and centre Joe Iannerelli.

The Oaks disbanded Monday, Shore finding it impossible to operate in Oakland because of poor attendance and lack of interest in the game there.

Renfrew Lions Outskate Ottawa R.C.A.F. Flyers

Ottawa, Dec. 23 (CP)—Renfrew Lions outskated and outscored the league-leading Ottawa RCAF Flyers 8-5 Thursd... night in the rugged nightcap of an Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League game here.

Ottawa Army took the measure of Hull Volants 2-1 in the opener played before 2,500 fans.

The victories for Renfrew and Army left the league standings unchanged. Lions ... Flyers ... Hull Volants third place behind the first Cornwall Calumets, while Army is in fourth position, a single point behind Renfrew.

A third league contest scheduled Thursday night between North Bay Black Hawks and Pembroke Lumber Kings was postponed due to the recent mild weather which ruined the ice at Pembroke's natural ice arena.

Kenny Kilrea and Jack Reardon scored the goals that gave Army their 2-1 decision over Hull Volants, recently returned from a European tour. Digger was the lone Hull player to hit the scoring column.

Another scoring points were well distributed in the nightcap with Stewart, Andy Milne, Sevigny, Casaubon and Rumbolt each chalking getting one goal apiece. Tallying for the Ottawa army were Tony Licari with two and Billy Watson.

Hogan Confident He Will Return To Golf Circuit

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 22 (AP) — Wee Ben Hogan is pretty confident he will return next spring to the professional golf tournament circuit.

But the great linksman, whose glittering career was halted almost a year ago in a horrible auto crash, said today he didn't think he was ready to be able to play in a tournament that had 36 holes in a single day.

"I don't think I'll ever be able to go two rounds in one day in championship competition," Hogan as he relaxed at Colonial Country Club here. "But there aren't many tournaments that have 36 holes in one day anyway."

Hogan was pleased that he now is able to walk 18 holes a day. He did his first 18-hole rounds Dec. 10 and 11 but traveled the course in a cart. Hogan registered 71 and 72 over the tough par 70 Colonial course.

Tuesday he walked around 18 holes and again shot under 80.

"I get awfully tired and some times my legs swell on me," he said. "But, you know" — and he grinned at him — "I have to get my weight down."

Hogan always was known as the little man of sport — the little giant of the fairways they called him. If he had weighed 140 pounds he would have figured he was busting at the seams.

Today he weighs over 155 pounds and admitted he looked something like a "fat boy."

"Me trying to take off weight is something to joke about," he said.

SWEDEN BEATS POLIO

Stockholm (CP) —The death rate from infantile paralysis in Sweden has dropped from 15 to four per cent during the last 10 years. Of an average 1,000 cases reported annually, about half are fully restored to health.

Junior Canadiens To Play Four Exhibition Games

Montreal, Dec. 23. (CP)— When Montreal Canadiens Juniors play four exhibition games in Ontario during Christmas week, western fans will see a club that figures to have a lot to say before the final junior honors are decided this season.

Currently leading, made up largely of home-brew talent, has won 17 games and lost two. They are leading the parade in Quebec's Junior Amateur Hockey Association.

The team will leave Montreal Christmas Eve; reach Port Arthur Christmas night. They play Port Arthur Juniors Monday afternoon. Then they move on for games with Winnipeg Canadiens Tuesday and Winnipeg Monarchs Thursday. They wind up the trip with a game against Brandon Wheat Kings in Brandon Friday, Dec. 30.

Spectators will remember that Montreal Royals went into Brandon last season and came away with the Memorial Cup for gowns ing the Wheat Kings in a rugged series.

One of Canadiens' best forwards is Art Rose, from Port Arthur, where he played last season with the West End Bruins. This is the first line with Billy Goold and Kevin Rochford, both holdovers. Rose is leading the club in goal scoring with 26 in 19 games.

The second line has little Dickie Moore, with Royals last year, and Don Marshall and Jacques Fadon, both of whom played Junior for "B" hockey in Montreal last season.

Dave McCready, a holdover, Herb English, who played school hockey last season, and Bill Sinnett, a graduate from Junior "B" in Collingwood, Ont., make up the third line. An extra forward is Butch McKay, up from the Canadiens Junior "B" team.

Ernie Roche is the only holdover on defence. The others are Kevin Conway, who played with Ross Lowden, and Bob Dawson and Gord Hollingsworth, both with Junior "B" teams in Montreal last year.

In goal Canadiens may have a great young performer in Roger Morrissette who was obtained from the Valleyfield Juniors two weeks ago.

THREE ASPHYXIATED IN FRONT SEAT OF CAR

Klamath Falls, Ore., Dec. 23 — (AP)—An attempt to keep warm in an automobile during a snowbank was blamed for the death of a man and a woman. The three were asphyxiated by Carbon monoxide fumes some time Tuesday night as they sat in the front seat of the car. They apparently were waiting for someone to pull them out of the snowbank.

SCREEN WRITER DIES

Hollywood, Dec. 23 — (AP)— Screen writer Ralph Spence, 50, who began his career writing sub-titles for silent pictures, died Wednesday. He also was the author of New York stage productions, including the first "Ziegfeld Follies" and "The Gorilla."

Novelist Makes Large Bequest To Sask. College

Wilcox, Sask., Dec. 23 (CP)— A novelist's bequest will add new buildings to one of the most unorthodox college campuses in the world.

Notre Dame college of Saskatchewan a conglomerate collection of shacks, old cook cars, garages and abandoned huts, has been remembered by Rex Beach to the tune of "more than $100,000."

Beach visited the campus in 1936 to write a magazine feature on overcoming adversity. He stayed a week and became an ardent Notre Dame enthusiast.

The college, situated 28 miles south of Regina, is a feature-writer's dream. Between its fire escape, its founder and head, and the calibre of its athletes it has probably received more publicity than any other institution its size in North America.

The ramshackle and mis-mated buildings house 200 to 250 students in the winter months, ... ance work, pay $30 a month if they can find it and eat if they can't. It is described as the only co - educational, non-sectarian college between Regina and the ... rapids in existence.

The founder, Father Athol Murray, is an unconventional clergyman who combines showmanship and a driving enthusiasm for sports with the attributes of an educator and leader. A non-drinker himself, he has been known to become so excited while watching his boys play hockey that he would lose his key rink that his language sounds just like that of any other coach.

The college began in 1926 and was created for the isolated youth of the Notre Dame Hills district area. A group of some 10 benefactors keeps the institution out of the red.

First call on the money bequeathed by Beach will be new ... buildings.

"This fall we took over some former air force buildings from the government...the ones we got in the form of huts. Never beginning to fall apart.

"But there is one little cook car nicknamed "Fechee." Tex Beach asked us to leave it. To him it typified Notre Dame."

TEST SOVIET PROMISE

Oslo, (CP)—For the fifth year since the war, Norwegian sealers have asked Soviet authorities to honor their prewar contract permitting Norwegian sealing in the White Sea. Each year, Soviet officials have refused the request on one excuse or another. This year, however, negotiations are under way and prospects appear favorable for resumption of seal-hunting.

NO JAIL BREAK

Lewes, Sussex, England (CP) —A woman living near Lewes prison saw two men jump down from the prison wall. She gave the alarm but they were found to be all convicts locked in their cells. Search parties, with "keep-a-pees" were civilian workers who had been repairing the prison wall.

Worst Winter Flood Threat Appears Over

London, Ont., Dec. 23 — (CP) —Western Ontario's worst winter flood threat in many years appeared over today as colder weather chased heavy rains that had saturated many areas with falls up to three inches and sent rivers and streams over their banks.

At the Thames River embankment in London on the border of the main business area, waters swirled nearly 11 feet above normal, but still were 12 feet from the top of the breakwater. Some 2.9 inches of rain fell here in 48 hours.

During the night the river receded all along the line, with such key centres as Ingersoll and St. Marys reporting that flood dangers seemed over.

Hundreds of acres of lowlands close to towns and villages were flooded in the week's heavy rains, but little property damage resulted.

For a time the Osaugeen River threatened the provincial highway bridge at Durham.

The Maitland River at Wingham overflowed onto low lands, flooding basements in the south end of the town. South traffic on the highway was being detoured, but conditions were expected to improve today.

Flood threats in the Grand Valley also eased. Brantford itself was not affected. The town of Paris was uneasy Thursday when river waters reached within five feet of some workmen bordering the stream before levels started to drop.

At the peak, the River Nith flooded some business place basements in the village of Ayr, but damage was not great.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

My recent lecture in a west coast city reminded me of the only time a half trick was taken. Despite the millions of players who beat their brains out trying to count half tricks.

Years ago my series there was held in the city hall over the fire house. Two firemen joined us in an exhibition match after class. Most of the audience usually remains for this.

It was my lead and I led a king from a combination that also had the ace. Dummy followed suit. Just then the fire gong rang and both firemen leaped from the table and jumped on their engine.

They would be gone too long. So, I gathered in the two cards that had been played so far. Thus was half a trick taken. So far as I have been able to learn it was the only time.

Horse Sensers do not count half tricks. They do not have to. The secret? Any time you have a short card you must have a long. Instead of half for each, count one for the short. It takes care of both.

Count the tricks in this hand:

♥A Q J 3
♦A K Q
♣A K Q 6 2

How do you know the number of tricks it is expected to produce? Count one for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card (each card short of your average of three.)

This is the simplest method by which any player can determine the tricks his hand can probably take. Not only is it the simplest. It is also the most accurate and efficient.

Why are only the three highest cards counted and not the jacks? Because there are 12 aces and kings and queens, the most likely cards to take tricks. Include the jacks and you will count up to 16.

The hand here has eight high cards. Add two for the two short cards in the spade suit. Total ten tricks. No halves. No pluses. No quarrels. No fusses.

AT THE CAPITOL — Cowboy hero, Monte Hale, may currently be seen in the newest of his western series for Republic, "Law of the Golden West," at the Capitol, today and Saturday. On the same program The Royal Canadian Navy Show, "Meet the Navy," with scenes in Technicolor. Matinee daily at 2.00 p.m. until after the school holidays.

AT THE BELLE — Gregory Peck and glamorous Ava Gardner form the new romantic team being presented for the last times at the Belle Theatre, in MGM's "The Great Sinner," powerful drama of a man whose passion for gambling makes him reckless of life and love. Also seen in one of the year's top casts are Melvyn Douglas, Walter Huston, Ethel Barrymore, Frank Morgan and Agnes Moorehead.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 23 (AP) — What Christmas do you remember most.

This is a sentimental question. Being sentimentalists, movie stars were quick to respond to it.

"Quebec-born Glenn Ford—"It was in 1938, and I had just opened and closed on Broadway in a flop called 'Soliquoy.' I was broke, but too proud to write home for money. I walked down Fifth Avenue on Christmas Eve, listened to the carols and looked at the windows. I walked into an automat and treated myself to coffee and pie a la mode with the last 15 cents to my name. That was my Christmas feast."

Ginger Rogers—"I was six years old. My grandmother tagged me and put me on the train for New York where I spent my first Christmas with my mother in several years. I remember I got a tea set and made everybody have tea with me."

Montgomery Clift—"I remember the year the tree burned down. My mother wanted white candles on the tree and my father wanted electric lights. Mother cited and instance when a tree had burned because of a short circuit, so she won out. The tree burned down, and all our presents with it."

Jack Carson (formerly of Carman, Man.)—"I was eight years old and wanted an electric train. Four days before Christmas, I found it. So on Christmas day I gave perhaps the greatest performance of my career—trying to act surprised."

John Wayne—"The Christmas I got my bicycle. That was the year I found out about Santa Claus—but my folks didn't know about it. I wrote a letter to Santa Claus that if I didn't get a bicycle, I didn't want anything. My folks had to take back all the things they bought and get me the bike."

Irene Dunne—"I remember when I was nine and had the mumps. The whole Christmas was held around my bed and I got a doll and doll buggy. Believe it or not, I still believed in Santa Claus."

RUSSIAN TRADE TWO THIRDS WITH HER SATELLITES

London, Dec. 23 — (Reuters)—Russia's trade with her satellite countries this year amounted to two-thirds of her total foreign trade, Deputy-Premier Anastas Mikoyan said in an article in the communist party paper Pravda, broadcast by the Moscow radio today. The volume of the foreign trade turnover of the Soviet Union in 1949 was double that of pre-war, he said. Trade with the capitalist countries had decreased.

We had lemmon merrang pie for dizzert, being pop's favorite kind and mine too, and I only ate 3 slices on account of me claiming that's all that was good for my health, and pop only ate one slice on account of me saying that was all that was good for his figure, and I woke up in the middle of the nite on account of having a nervise dream about berglers being in the house, and I thawt, Oh boy, if berglers did bwrke in, the first thing they'd notice would be the rest of that lemmon merrang pie on the buffay in dining room.

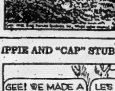
And I tried to go back to sleep and couldn't, thinking, Heck, suppose I find out that pie has been stolen when I go downstairs tomorrow morning.

Being such a sad thawt I couldn't hardly stand it, and I thawt, Jiminy roostalem, maybe I better eat one more slice to be perfectly safe.

And I got up and started to sneek downstairs, and I looked over the bannisters and there was a lite in the dining room, and I thawt, Good nite, I wonder if they forgot to put the lite out or whether we've really got berglers?

And I made my voice sound tuff and called down, Hay down there, you and somebody else, stop that racket, do you know what time it is?

Being pop coming out of the dining room in his pidjammas, and I went all a ways down, saying, That's you doing, pop? I'm eating a piece of pie, if you must know, pop said, and I said, Holey smoke! I was almost ris. I came down to get a slice myself just in case berglers mite brake in and steel it all, I said.



Yoo gods, get a fork, pop said.

Christmas in Denmark

By Lavonia Stockelbach

THE VERY GOOD CHILDREN OF DENMARK

The kingdom of Denmark is filled,
Filled completely with good little children,
From the first of December to the eve of Christ's birthday
The kingdom of Denmark is filled
Filled only with children, unbelievably good.
They clip and they paste the chains of bright tissues,
Cornucopias and hearts for the Christmas-tide tree.
They gild the spruce cones and the good English walnuts,
And mend the pink angel dear grandmamma had
When she was a child, a very good child!
'Tis a battered and soiled but adorable angel
That looks down once more from the top of the tree.
Then at last comes the day, the eve before Christmas,
With candles aleigh to add to the glory.
And all through the house re-echoes the singing,
The gay, joyous noise of the starry-eyed children,
Of those very, very good children of Denmark.

Lines suggested by Knud Poulsen's letter to a Mdme Gerard—Lavonia Stockelbach.

Every year we faced the Atlantic in November in order to have Christmas in Denmark and to be in time to help with the preparations.

The tree had been chosen and a red streamer attached so that the forester could find it; a supply of branches brought in to make the evergreen rings hung under the chandeliers,—troublesome sticky spruces, that had to be tied just so, thick and even to hide the wire form around which, year after year, the rings were made. Seven little candles were attached to the tops. The continuance of ancient pagan customs adapted and adopted by the early Christian fathers gave a new-old meaning to the Yule-tide customs.

The place of a single Santa Claus is taken by little creatures, a sort, of pixie, and many of them, which saves something in the way of explaining to small folk how one saint can be in so many places at one time. They are dear little fellows, and only a little bit malicious if you have been a little bit naughty and they lend themselves delightfully to pen, pencil and paint. Nuissmen they are called and to see one pictured eating his porridge is the song of the purring of the cat is certainly homey, and very airy they are in their long crimson tuque and bunny with plenty of white hair and whiskers to do justice to the Danish National colors, red and white.

Some days before, baskets of food containing a meier length all of them having been brought up in the same religion and singing the same songs from early childhood, knowing every one by heart, there was considerable visiting, especially when Martin Luther's great and noble "A Mighty Fortress Is Our Lord." But to this listener all the songs seemed a little sad as compared with the English, with nothing to compare with our Adeste Fidelis. That night after the children had gather up his tall and retire to outer darkness,—for the time being.

Then home with only a short time to wait for the early evening meal, a very simple one that had been the same for generations in this family: goose stuffed with apples and prunes (O sacrilege!) potatoes, boiled and some caramelized, red cabbage, and for dessert, an apple cake. Nothing else but jelly and choice wines.

Our geese are inclined to be fat but when geese have been walked a mile to their meadow in the morning and the same back at night their fat is kept down without them becoming tough. And whoever heard of a goose-girl or a goose-boy walking quickly? The others ate the apple and prune stuffing with relish but one can do nicely with potatoes of both kinds and red cabbage. Their delicious way of potatoes serve a very special vegetable, and when shaped into small balls and browned in caramelled sugar and butter, are almost too good to be true.

The apple cake is of two kinds; the first is made with apple sauce and rolled zwelback mixed with plenty of butter are placed in the form and baked in the oven until set so that it can be turned out into a deep dessert with whipped cream and dotted on top with jelly; the other is almost the same but instead of apples and zwelback with loads of butter all heaped into a pyramid and baked in the oven and served hot with rich cream. The first is the more usual one.

The long table down the centre of which would be a simple parrow design of holly and spruce with candles, and many little Nissemen to join in the fun. One must liked tablecloth had a design of sea-gulls, flying, wading, standing on rocks by the shore, where again the Danish artistic ability was shown in their remarkable talent for conventionalizing. Technical difficulties are overcome and the very soul of the bird or flower was captured and retained in the snowy damask.

It was the custom always to have the servants sit at table for this one meal and they all had the good table manners that one associates with Danes. Those who liked wine drank it; those who did not were not expected to, precisely as some people like dark meat and some white. It was entirely a matter of choice and no comments.

The seating arrangement was well directed: father at the head of the table, Father at her left, then daughter-in-law with the son at Mother's right, and Cook, a very important Person, at his right, while my sister-in-law sat at my left. The maids were arranged in the strictest order according to their status, which quite happily, brought the scullery-maid down to the foot of the table and thus placed her at the chauffeur's right.

The daughter of the house, who could put life into a dead horse, soon had the situation well in hand, and no one ever seemed to suffer from shyness, except perhaps the chauffeur, who sometimes seemed a little overcome. Two maids carried two huge platters of goose that Cook had carved in the kitchen and the vegetables were passed around at the table.

It seemed to me a very special achievement when family and help can be all happy and get so formal together. All were happy and chattery though Cook could not relax until everything had been tasted and proved satisfactory.

It is the habit in such gatherings for the host and hostess to toast each guest. First there is the toast to the absent and that was a trying moment to be got over, then to each in their order, and then each guest toasted each other whenever you could catch the other's eye and with the appropriate good wishes. As each toast amounted to about a quarter of a sip no harm was done. I remember soon after my marriage a welcome-dinner was given by about a score of university young men and we managed to drink all of the toasts from one glass of sherry each.

The first course was usually cleared, the apple cake and Madeira served with a slumber and big adoring daughter-in-law had private little toasts to a variety of things which ended by being named Isaac and Bacchus to the memory of Hardicanute who had lived near by.

Then with the usual bowing and thanking the whole family retired to another room for coffee and the dining room trees was set. No one could go there until the Head-of-the-House returned to light the candles on the Christmas tree and place the blue-light basket to deal with any blaze. After the table was cleared and the dishes washed, all came into the room, and after hymns as directed by the Mother (every family has one) and the kind scullery maid, always remembered of my affection for a dancing little child's grace and method allowing herself to be soured by the disapproval of the Head-of-the-Highness the Cook, started it with great gusto. It would have been fun to see them dancing it in clogs, which are really quite comfortable foot-gear when made by a skilful hand with a tender regard for the shape of your foot.

Then came the distribution of the presents, the children each getting their packet or bones from the floor under the tree — they knew just where to look rather to smell, and who were then banished in the hinterland. It was a jolly hour where years and cares dropped away and where our Lord Himself could enter with joy in the midst of welcoming hearts.

Finally each one left after shaking hands with each member of the family and another Christmas was over.

It must be confessed that the next day was a bit trying for no boulder ever came, so visits were made and only the usual walks to pass the time. But all days can be lived through and there were the birds. It is the custom in every home to fasten to the gate posts a sheaf of grain for the birds to feed on and when the housemen heard that I was a bird painter he fastened one to my window ledge, and in time the many birds that stay over in Denmark, and came in such number that one could scarcely see sparrows. There were what we call the English robins, the linnets, the chaffinches, tufted larks, blackbirds, winter wrens and green finches. Along the coast-road farmers attached sheaves of grain to the wayside poles for the Little Christmas of God's little creatures could in no wise be neglected.

All this was before the invasion of the barbarians from the South. How well one remembers that last Christmas walk! It was unusually clear, icy-cold weather; the moon shone in the saffron yellow or the early but slowly setting sun and there was to be the last walk in the Castle park where any one might roam at will excepting only a small place close to the Castle itself, with only one restriction, that your dogs must be on leash. Woods and paths that had been tended for centuries offered many miles of shelter-ed walking that finally led us to God's Acre where all the graves are so beautifully decorated, and at this season full of lovely plants frozen stiffly upright in the positions they had been placed. Here a huge bouquet of Black Hawk chrysanthemums, there red and pink carnations, next white lilies and purple 'mums, white tulips and holly, jonquils and maiden-hair fern, and among wreaths of cone-decorated evergreens, all showing a dull glimmer of colour in the cold moonlight.

Later the father passed on then one frightful day the invading horde came tramping into the quiet, court-yard where the officers in charge were received by the mother with the quiet dignity she had as a little girl seen her own mother meet a similar invasion. She ordered at once that the soldiers fed and then, by the time of God, death came with a swift and silent stroke and she was saved the bitter years of occupation.

Flood Waters Of Saugeen River Surround Homes

Walkerton, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP) — Flood waters of the Saugeen River surrounded 15 homes in this Bruce County town during the night and flooded basements of stores on the main street, putting out the furnaces.

Clerks wore their overcoats at their counters as customers pushed their way past cartons of stock which were brought upstairs to prevent damage.

At Durham some store basements were flooded to the ceiling but did not rise sufficiently to put the furnaces out.

At Paisley, where the Teeswater joins the Saugeen, the water level has risen to six feet above normal at midnight and this morning was still another two feet higher bringing it level with the dam.

Weather Turns Colder

Throughout the area the weather has turned much colder during the early morning and snow flurries have started. It was predicted that the water levels would drop.

Long-time residents declared they had not seen the water so high at this time of year.

At Walkerton the Saugeen had been rising at the rate of one inch an hour. Trains were delayed day night the rate increased to two inches an hour until 2 a.m. when the rise dropped back to the one-inch rate.

At six o'clock officials said the peak had been reached.

Several plants in Walkerton did not open for work today because of the flooding, including the twin plants of the Canada Spool and Bobbin Co.; employing 136, and the Truax wood products plant with 78 employees and a foundry operated by A. L. Hansen.

SURE, SCIENCE

"I know, I know," Joe interrupted. "The list of things science can't explain to Christmas is almost endless. But they are all material things, and none spiritual. Science made so many material advances that society has lost spiritual and moral values."

Quite Joe, but that's not permanent. Remember back in the Dark Ages when the Church injudiciously might be belittled by saying earth was not the center of the entire universe.

But science proved earth is not the center of no doing science revealed a universe so vast and unbelievable and a creation so marvelous, that the faith of true believers was strengthened.

POPE

"May this jubilee mark the return of all humanity to God," he said.

The Pope made a strong plea for social justice, asking both social systems of capitalism and communism — though he did not mention them by name — to return to Christianity and Legislatures of right. He criticized the negation of fundamental rights and the enslavement of men to totalitarian states.

The Pope hoped that the 1950 Holy Year will be a year of peace and not of war, a year of justice and not of national egoism. He encouraged workers to defend their "just aspirations" but said the possession of material wealth without faith in God is of little use.

Repeats Plea for Unity

"If on other occasions," the Pope said, "an invitation to unity has been sent for from this apostolic See, we cannot refrain to repeat it more warmly and paternally . . . for all those who adore Christ."

"Beginning today," the Pope said, "our direct to the whole world, then, our plea that all men and each one in particular, from every land and every climate, may accomplish the desired great reform which all the urgency demanded by these extraordinary times.

"Our invitation," he said, "is meant to be above all that of a father who loves, toils, suffers, prays and hopes for the good and happiness of all his children. And all men are called to this invitation at least by right and divine purpose, even those who have abandoned the faith or injured so who have made and still make us suffer."

The Pontiff expressed hope that during Holy Year many conversions will be made.

Since the 1925 jubilee, he said, the number of Catholics in the mission lands has more than doubled.

"But," he added, "with the greatest grief of soul we cannot help thinking of the many dangers threatening or already affecting religion and its institutions in other countries of Europe and Asia, like limitless China, where unfortunately many signs and conditions that were already unfolding have converted fields flourishing with life into cemeteries of death."

Pope Pius expressed the hope that when he inaugurates the Holy Year tomorrow by striking open the Holy door of St. Peter's basilica, the door will open "for all humanity."

The Christmas message, the 111th the Pope has given, was in reply to the Christmas greetings of the College of Cardinals. He spoke in Italian from the Vatican's Consistorial Hall. The speech was rebroadcast around the world in 33 languages.

The Pontiff said the church had made advances in some parts of the world, particularly in Africa.

But he said Christians cannot ignore the grave dangers which religion faces in some countries of Europe and Central China.

Tomorrow the Pope will mount the steps of St. Peter's before an anticipated crowd of between 300,000 and 500,000 gathered to witness the opening of the 25th Holy Year in the church's 20 centuries of existence.

Before the Holy Year is ended more than 6,000,000 pilgrims are expected to visit Rome to confess their sins, receive communion, visit the four patriarchal basilicas and recite the required prayers, thus winning a full indulgence. That, in Catholic teaching, is a pardon of temporal punishment due to sin which otherwise would have to be expiated in purgatory before the soul might enter heaven.

Opposed by Threat

The Pope's Christmas message today, devoted almost entirely to the Holy Year jubilee, voiced more hope than did his 1949 address when he said that "souls were oppressed by the nightmare of a new war."

The Pope today pleaded that the Holy Year —"this encounter of love"—might be one in which "men would pardon men."

"Let blame be destroyed," said the Pope. "May joy smile again."

Speaking to men all over the world, but especially to pilgrims coming here for the Holy Year, the Pontiff said Rome, "this blessed land of the first martyrs and of the Prince of Apostles," was the fatherland of all.

This was the only reference the Pope made to Red Russia, who the Pontiff earlier this year had announced was laid to rest under St. Peter's basilica. Then had been some speculation th Pope might announce today the discovery of the Apostles bones. There had been unconfirmed reports earlier this year that the bones had been found during excavations under the basilica.

Spoke 40 Minutes

The Pope spoke for 40 minutes ending his message with an apostolic benediction to the world.

At the climax tomorrow of the ceremonies opening the Holy Year, the Pope will ascend the steps of St. Peter's, carrying a silver hammer presented to him by Italian workers, and will strike the centre of the brick-screened Holy door three times. At the third stroke, as the previously-loosened bricks fall away, he will intone in Latin, "open the gates, because the Lord is with us."

The threshold will be swept and washed with Holy water. The Pope, after a brief prayer, will enter the basilica alone as St. Peter's bells ring out, to be joined by the bells in Rome's nearly 300 churches announcing that the jubilee has begun.

At the same time three cardinals will similarly open Holy doors at Rome's other three basilicas, those of St. Mary Major, St. John Lateran and St. Paul's outside the walls.

WALKED 28,000 MILES

New Delhi — (CP) — Indian globe trotter D. K. Rajagopal has completed a walking tour of Tibet, Burma, Ceylon and Pacts of China and Japan that began in February 1935. In that time he has covered more than 28,000 mile but he hasn't stopped yet—he's planning tours of Europe, Africa and America.

BY-LAW NUMBER 2

A By-Law of the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate School for the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings to raise by way of debentures the sum of $40,000 for the purposes hereinafter mentioned and to provide for the issue of debentures.

WHEREAS the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings deems it necessary to borrow the sum of $40,000.00 for the purpose of a Separate School on the site chosen and to purchase the equipment therefor and to purchase the said site and to erect and equip a school building on the said site and to carry into effect the said recited objects in the manner provided by the said sum in the manner hereinafter mentioned;

AND WHEREAS the whole taxable property in the Roman Catholic Separate School for the City of Belleville in the Township of Thurlow and the Township of Sidney according to the last revised assessment roll is $18,750,000.00 and there is no existing debenture debt of the Roman Catholic Separate School for the City of Belleville in the Township of Thurlow and the Township of Sidney;

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $6191.78 to be raised annually for the term of twenty (20) years for the payment of the principal and interest of the said loan and interest thereon at the rate of five per centum per annum hereinafter mentioned;

AND WHEREAS there is no existing debenture debt of the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate School for the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings;

AND WHEREAS the Board of Roman Catholic Separate School Board estimates that the amount required for the Township of Thurlow and the Township of Sidney is $6191.78 to be raised annually for the term of twenty (20) years to be prepared to take the steps provided under Section 47 of the Separate Schools Act for the borrowing of money on the credit of the Separate Schools;

Now, therefore, the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings enacts as follows:—

(1) That for the purposes aforesaid the Board do borrow the sum of $40,000.00 and the debentures of the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings to the amount of $40,000.00 in the sum of $1,000 each shall be issued therefor and therein for the payment of interest hereinafter mentioned.

(2) The debentures shall be subject to redemption before maturity at the option of the Ontario Department of Education and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum which interest shall be payable at Belleville, Ontario.

(3) The debentures shall be signed by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate School Board of Belleville in the County of Hastings, either in whole or in part, and the interest payment date prior to maturity shall be on the 1st day of July in each of the years during the currency of the debentures and the principal amounts are expressed to be made payable during the currency of the debentures, amount thereof together with interest thereon to the Treasurer of Ontario and upon giving previous notice of at least three months by publication in the Ontario Gazette and also once in a daily newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Belleville, such notice to be afterwards published in the Ontario Gazette before the date fixed for redemption. Notice of intention so to redeem shall be given to the holder at least thirty days prior to the date set for such redemption. The debentures in whose name the debenture so to be redeemed shall be registered in the books of the Treasurer of Ontario at Toronto. Provided that if a portion only of the debentures issued for the purposes aforesaid such portion shall comprise only the debentures which shall be the last in number of those issued which shall not be called for such redemption before any of the debentures issued in that has a later maturity date.

(4) The Treasurer of the Province, Secretary-Treasurer of the said Board shall sign and issue the said debentures and the interest coupons to be attached thereto with the Corporate Seal of the said Board. The said debentures and the said coupons attached shall be signed by the said Secretary-Treasurer of the said Board and their signature thereon may be engraved, lithographed or printed thereon.

(5) During the twenty (20) years, the currency of the debentures, the respective sums set forth in the Schedule hereto annexed to be raised annually for the said term of twenty by a special rate sufficient therefor over and above all other rates in the same manner and from the like percentage of the taxable property of the said Board to be hereinafter imposed and levied and collected in each and every of them together with the interest thereon which has been first paid out of the general funds of the said Board.

(6) The said debentures may contain any clause providing for registration thereof authorized by any statute relating to municipal debentures in force at the time of the issue thereof.

Washington Spotlight:
Compulsory Health Insurance No. 1 Political Question in 1950

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Washington, Dec. 22 — (CP)—Compulsory health insurance is looming as the No. 1 political question for the United States voter in the 1950 congressional elections.

The Truman administration has been quietly preparing the ground for its Congressional session opening this January, although even the White House spokesmen concede that it will be defeated.

Observers say the government's aim is to make health insurance the major issue in next November's elections, in which the full House of Representatives and one-third of the Senate will go before the voters. With a democratic victory, they say, the measure still should win adoption in 1951.

The powerful American Medical Association already has launched its fight against what it calls "socialized" medicine.

Medical War Chest

Opening here recently in annual session, the Association announced its intention to draw contributions of $25 from each of its more than 100,000 physician-members to build a $2,500,000 "war chest" to campaign against the legislation.

Under the government's plant, an ailing American would call his personal physician, just as he does now. The doctor would be free to use X-ray and any kind of laboratory tests or to call in specialists. The cost would be paid out of the insurance fund.

For those who are employed, the employers would pay into the fund an amount equal to 1½ per cent of the salary paid. Another 1½ per cent would be taken from the employee's pay cheque. The deduction would then be taken only from earnings up to $4,800 a year. The maximum deduction would be $140 a week.

Self-employed persons would work out their premiums on the basis of their income.

What Program Covers

The payments would cover home and office calls by the doctor, specialists, hospitals, hospital and nursing care for at least 60 days, eye glasses, hearing aids, cost of expensive medicines, X-ray, laboratory tests and dental services for the contributor and his family.

Fut LaBarge, Department of Highways employee, was drowned on the scene shortly after and said Mr. Rollins was dead on the car but in a dared condition. He was brought 23 miles to Bancroft Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. O. W. Anderson and then pronounced to return to his home at Coe Hill.

The accident occurred on McGregor's hill, ten miles east of Maynooth and was investigated by OPP constables J. Jenkins and W. Fitzsimmons of Bancroft. The new license plates Dewey was in almost complete wreck.

NOT SAFE ANYWHERE

Ashford, Kent, England (CP) —A notebook containing Judge Arthur Clement's views on evidence disappeared from his chambers while the court was adjourned for lunch.

BANCROFT
Large Elm Tree Falls on Car, Driver Dazed

Bancroft, (Special)—Clarke T Rollins, resident of Bancroft township, was involved in a freak accident Thursday evening when the car he was driving on the highway east of Maynooth was struck by a falling 18-inch elm tree.

The falling tree which was broken off during a heavy wind smashed the windshield of the car severely cutting Mr. Rollins' hands and put the car out of control. The car went into the ditch among some large boulders.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

Well, she might as well enjoy her dinner, despite the questioning looks of some of the regular guests who had watched with avidity the progress of the romance, and had marvelled at its apparent sudden termination. Ann felt somewhat solicitous about her supposed aunt. The travel seemed to be telling on her, and Jenkins in a confidential moment had informed her that she'd be glad to get home again and be within call of Miss Whiting's own physician if she had another heart attack. Yet tonight when she looked at her she decided perhaps her maid was making a mountain out of a molehill, for Miss Whiting was quite vivacious and talking animatedly to the others at the table.

As they rose she said: "I'm going to rest a little in my cabin before I go up on deck."

"All right, I'll go with you." Ann raised her voice slightly, so that Jim might hear her decision. She was half-glad of this way of escape.

But Miss Whiting, noting the look of dejection on Jim's face, and not knowing how things stood between them, remarked, "Indeed you won't. I'm all right, and I'm sure Mr. Riddell will be glad to entertain you for a little while."

"Certainly I shall, but first let us escort you to your room," said Jim offered Miss Whiting his arm.

"Thank you," she added as she slipped her other arm in Ann's. The roughness of the sea during the last few days had not agreed with her particularly well.

"So you wore the green dress," remarked Jim as leaving Miss Whiting at the entrance to her domain he steered Ann beyond the groups of chattering men and women.

"Yes," said Ann softly, "it's one of my favorites."

"Then we're going to forget our last meeting entirely. I felt sure there was a mistake somewhere. Sweetheart don't you think you'd like to be married at sea? I'm sure your aunt wouldn't mind if you ran away with me for a little while. My business at sea was very long and we could meet Miss Whiting in London and finish the trip with her."

As Jim talked Ann saw things clearer than ever before. "I cannot marry you, Jim. Goodbye."

But Jim put out a staying hand. "Then it's true you don't care for me, after all!" His eyes burned into hers.

Ann was silent. The sound of the little waves sweeping against the liner and the patches of moonlight on the water would always remain in her memory. "Oh Jim," the words seemed wrung from her, "don't ask me," and she was gone.

Late at night Jim paced the deck in solitary silence, and had it seemed so wistful, yet she would give him no satisfaction. Tomorrow morning he would leave the ship. He might not even see her again in all the excitement of disembarking. Could Mrs. Tracy veiled hints be true? What if they were? He loved Ann. It was not her aunt's fortune that he was interested in. How could he keep in touch with her?

On the arrival at Cairo there was great excitement. Parties of sightseers started off, eager to mingle with the gay throngs in that colorful city. Harry Harper and Jim Riddell bade farewell to their erstwhile companions. Miss Whiting and her niece were going on shore with the former for he had invited them to see some of the famous narrow streets which hold so much mystery.

Since the mysterious recovery of her pearls Miss Whiting's appreciation of Mr. Harper had increased by leaps and bounds. Even her niece seemed to be more friendly disposed towards him, and expressed her pleasure that she would see him again on his ranch.

Once more aboard the liner, Miss Whiting declared: "I'm afraid we'll miss Mr. Harper and Mr. Riddell. I didn't realize that Mr. Riddell was going to desert us, too." Her keen brown eyes were levelled at her niece.

Ann loyed with the jade necklace that her aunt had presented to her in the afternoon.

"I wonder if Mr. Riddell is going anywhere near Mr. Harper's ranch? He spoke of meeting some engineers."

"I don't imagine so," replied Ann quietly.

As her aunt looked at Ann she wondered if her niece had cared for this attractive man who had always seemed so attentive to her. Somehow this evening she seemed very quiet. Once she had thought she would surely tell her she was engaged to him. Perhaps her observations were wrong.

"Im afraid you'll find it rather dull now, Mr. Riddell was quite a likeable young man."

"Oh, yes," answered Ann, and the color mounted in her cheeks although she still sat with downcast eyes.

"I thought perhaps you were interested in him." Miss Whiting took Ann's hand in here. "You know, although I've just found you I quite realize that I may be called upon to give you up some day," and she smiled encouragingly.

But Ann replied: "Oh, I don't believe you'll lose me so easily."

"Then you don't care for Mr. Riddell?"

Ann was silent as she tried to still the tumult of her heart. If only she might unburden herself and tell Miss Whiting who she was, but the remembrance of Mary's plight rose before her. She had stirred out on this adventure and she must finish it. Well, Miss Whiting had certainly been charming to her, and now that the incident of the lost pearls and their mysterious return was forgotten, her aunt's spirits seemed to have revived.

DIVORCED WIFE WOUNDS HUSBAND, EX-SECRETARY

Five Bullets Fired but Police Say Both Will Recover

Athens, Ga., Dec. 24 (AP)— Five bullets fired Friday night by a middle-aged divorced wife felled her former husband, Dean John E. Drewry of the Journalism School at the University of Georgia, and critically wounded his pretty former secretary.

Police said Clarence Roberts said Mrs. Kathleen Drewry was taken into custody at her home as she telephoned friends of shooting her 49-year-old former husband and Miss Miriam Thurmond, a tall attractive brunette.

Harry Talmadge reported that the dark-haired former secretary was in a more critical condition than Drewry, but that both were "doing all right and are expected to pull through."

Just before Drewry, author and university administrator of the George Peabody award— radios Pulitzer prize— was wheeled into the operating room he told police this story:

He and Miss Thurmond were talking quietly in the living room of her home when Mrs. Drewry entered gun in hand.

Before anyone could enter a word, Mrs. Drewry raised the pistol aimed and fired. She put the gun, a pearl-handled .32 calibre revolver, in her handbag and left.

Roberts said that Mrs. Drewry calmly motored home and telephoned friends. One managed to keep her talking while the wife notified police.

Mrs. Drewry was taken to hospital where she was treated for shock. She is being held on an open charge, under armed guard, the police chief said.

The Drewrys were married in 1925, were divorced last summer.

Drewry, a 1920 graduate of the university, worked for the Associated Press in Atlanta briefly in 1926 as a state mail editor.

Drewry served as president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism in 1930.

ALD. MAKES CHARGE

Gananoque, Dec. 24 (CP)— A charge that the board of education failed to carry out recommendations by fire chief Potter for Wreanock Breckenridge Friday. He said Chief Potter's suggestions included up-to-date fire-fighting equipment in accordance with standards set by the Canadian Underwriter's Association and the Ontario fire marshal's office.

WOMAN CLAIMS MONEY FROM FUND NOT RECEIVED

Probably Last Christmas for Her as She is Suffering from Cancer

East Grinstead, Sussex, Dec. 24 —(CP) — Mrs. Jean Irving, 34, for whom Hamilton residents raised a fund to send her and her three children back to England, said today that she has received no money from the fund since reaching here.

Mrs. Irving, incurably ill with cancer, said she is facing what may be her last Christmas and lacks money to provide a memorable holiday celebration for the children.

"Since arriving in England, I've not received a penny from this fund," Mrs. Irving told The Canadian Press. "It was to have been transferred to Barclays Bank, East Grinstead, but the bank says it has not received it yet."

She said her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harrison, are looking after her and the children and providing for a traditional Christmas dinner — "but I have no money left even to buy the children toys."

Adrift on Raft Swept Ashore After 12 Hours

Wolfville, N. S., Dec. 24 (CP) — David Stirling, 20, adrift on a raft on the rough waters of Minas Basin for more than 12 hours, drifted ashore safely at nearby Avonport early today.

R. C. M. P. here said Stirling suffered no apparent ill effects but was "wet and chilly" from rain which fell most of the time he was on the raft. The tide had carried him about 20 miles.

Stirling was duck-hunting with two companions Friday when a raft of logs he was standing on was suddenly carried out into the basin by the tide. Minas Basin is 20 miles at the Bay of Fundy and is about 0 miles across at the widest point.

Boats with searchlights probed through rain and darkness on the basin Friday night. Searches also closed in before aid could reach Stirling.

FRENCH GOVT. STILL FACING SHAKY TIMES

Wins Narrow Vote On National Budget

Paris, Dec. 24 — (AP) — Premier Georges Bidault's coalition French government still faced shaky times today even though it had won a narrow vote of confidence on the national budget.

The Lower House of the National Parliament early today backed by a slim margin of 45 votes Bidault's demands that it discuss his proposed 2,257,600,000,000 francs ($7,000,000,000) budget instead of a lower opposition one.

But his government still could stand or fall on the key-item discussion — and vote — to come. In today's balloting the vote was 303 to 297 in favor of Bidault's coalition of his own Mouvement Republicain Populaire, Radical Socialist (Conservative) and Socialist parties.

The principal argument is over increased taxes the cabinet says are needed to balance the budget. The opposition had presented a slightly smaller budget outlined by the nationalist Finance Committee without increased taxes.

The chief attack on the government before the vote of confidence was by Communist Premier Paul Reynaud, who asked:

Bidault's refusal of accepting the principle of new taxes, when we know we still require them when we get down to a discussion of the articles?"

In calling for the vote of confidence, Bidault had threatened the deputies with taking their jobs if they defeated him. France's constitution provides that if two cabinets fall on a formal confidence vote within 18 months, new elections can be ordered. And Bidault had been reported ready to prevent his M. R. P. party gaining a coalition if he was defeated.

This possibly would have meant defeat of his successor and a call for elections.

The new taxes Bidault proposed would be imposed on undistributed profits, production and trucks.

Three Questioned Over Youths Release

Welland, Dec. 24 (CP) —Three Welland and Crowland youths held for questioning in the police investigation into the murder of Alma French, 47-year-old Welland taximan, were released Friday night.

The youths, Roy Tull, 19, Henry Chernish, 22, and Edward Winter, 24, appeared Friday night before justice of the peace Hugh J. Reilly at the Welland county court house and were released when Crown Attorney T. F. Foresell, K.C., offered no evidence. They had been held on the technical charge of vagrancy.

Mrs. French was taken at Hamilton after being refused admittance into the United States at Niagara Falls, Ont., by police.

It is understood that alibis given by the youths were checked and found valid. The three youths were out of work and were trying to get jobs in Hamilton and Toronto.

Hamilton's frozen body, beat bashed in, was found in a field in suburban Crowland.

Police meantime are pressing their investigation of the slaying under similar circumstances of Arthur Gough, also a cab driver, of St. Catharines. Gough's body was found Friday in a ditch six miles south of the place Delibasch's body was found.

Pope Pius Opens Holy Year Before Hundreds of Thousands In the Square of St. Peter

Vatican City, Dec. 24. (CP)— Pope Pius today inaugurated the 25th Holy Year of the Roman Catholic Church with three strokes of a silver hammer, opening the Holy doors of St. Peter's basilica.

A crowd of 50,000 persons inside the basilica cheered as the Pontiff strode along the church through the door into the vast church, seat of the religion of 400 million persons of which the Pope is the temporal head. Outside, 300,000 more in St. Peter's Square heard the great bronze bells of the basilica ring the tidings that the jubilee year had begun.

Throughout the 90-minute ceremony, the Papal physician, Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi, watched anxiously over the frail, frail figure of the Pope, burdened by gold-embroidered vestments and a 22-foot train, and wearing the triple gold crown studded with diamonds, emeralds and rubies. Vatican sources said it was the first time the Pope had given evidence of being a gravely sick man.

The struggle in which the church now is locked with communism was symbolized at the hour of the holy ceremonial by a call from the communist-led Chamber of Labor for a general strike in Rome.

The labor group called the strike to protest police measures against a peasants' meeting the same day. It coincide with the church ceremonies. The labor leaders cancelled the strike 90 minutes after calling it when Interior Minister Mario Scelba promised to release peasants who had been arrested and remove police guards from the Chamber of Labor headquarters.

As the Pope opened the Holy door at St. Peter's, similar ceremonies were held in Rome by heads of the Catholic faith at patriarchal basilicas—St. Paul's outside the walls, St. John and Lat side the walls, St. John Lateran and St. Mary Major.

Rain, Mud and Grim Reminders Of War Mar Christmas Eve Pilgrimage

Bethlehem, Dec. 24 — (AP) — Rain, mud and grim reminders of a recent war today marred the traditional Christmas Eve pilgrimage to Bethlehem, birthplace of the Prince of Peace.

There were two parades this time — and two processions.

Only a few would make the trip, in accordance with the thousands who used to go in other years.

Clergymen and pilgrims living in the Arab-held half of Jerusalem were forced to follow the mired northern route to the ancient city. Soldiers of the United States, diplomats and a few other pilgrims travelled from the new part of Jerusalem, held by the Jews, over the southern Roman road.

The dull sound of explosions could be heard at Jewish Residiers cleared wartime mines from their route. The road travels for a few miles through Jewish-held territory to the Arab-Jewish demarkation line set up by the armistice which stopped the Israeli-Arab war. Heavily armed soldiers of both sides face each other there, and pilgrims will be permitted to pass only at certain hours.

But inside Bethlehem the spirit of Christmas-time worship will prevail. Mass will be celebrated in St. Catherine's Church adjoining the Church of the Nativity, which is said to stand on the spot where Christ was born. Msgr. Gustave Testa, head of the Catholic patriarch, will conduct the services.

In the courtyard of the Church of the Nativity the Anglicans (Episcopalians) will sing carols before midnight tonight. Other religious sects are also planning observances.

Mark C. Senn, Wife Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Caledonia, Dec. 4 — (CP) — Mark C. Senn, for 8 years undefeated Conservative member of Parliament for Haldimand, Friday celebrated his Golden Wedding anniversary with his wife, the former Etta May Moore.

This year also marked the end of his active political career that began in 1925. Never defeated in an election, he declined this year because of ill health. He is 71.

The couple celebrated the occasion at the home of their son, Dr. John Senn, Superintendent of the Ontario Hospital School at Hamilton. There are two other children and one daughter, Edith, Toronto; Allan, Hamilton; Mrs. Francis Goodson, Hamilton; Mrs. Ted Van Tillenburg, and Mrs. Florence Nellis, Caledonia.

Mr. Senn was best known for his active interest in agriculture. He was a school teacher for 4½ years. He is a past District Deputy Grand Master of the Free Masons and a member of the Brantford Shriners Club.

MULTIPLE INJURIES FATAL

Cornwall, Dec. 24 (CP)—Alcide Beaudette, Cornwall, died in hospital today of multiple injuries suffered when the automobile he was driving failed to make a curve on highway two east of the city. Police said the car travelled 475 feet from the highway, crashing into several trees and overturning before coming to rest upright in the St. Lawrence River.

White Christmas Will Prevail In Many Centres

By The Canadian Press

Christmas preparations moved into full swing today. But many Canadians will have an eye on the weatherman as well as Santa Claus.

In many centres the familiar white Christmas will prevail but in others residents complained the weatherman—held little hope to see snow-covered roof-tops.

For most cities and towns points it was clear and cold and likely to stay that way with the ground covered with snow. Light snow fell in Toronto Friday and temperatures dipped to zero but heavy snow falls were not forecast. Moncton reported four inches of snow. Christmas Otawa was in for the same.

Christmas "spirits" were being bought up at near record-breaking pace. Merchants reported, revolved their annual dictum: "If you drive, don't drink."

Hedley S. Hiowell, president of the British Columbia Automobile Association, said: "Don't be responsible for a vacant chair this Christmas. It may be yours."

Gray, bare streets in eastern Canada didn't dampen the last-minute rush by frantic shoppers. A brisk business was reported throughout the Dominion.

In Edmonton, where lighted strings of colored lights decorated the main streets, teen-agers planned mid-night dances, mocasin and snowshoe "first sleigh rides." In Winnipeg two big Christmas trees were standing at the corner of Portage and Main and another one at the city hall.

FIRE DESTROYS AYR WAREHOUSE. $200,000 LOSS

Many Departments Rush to Assistance

Ayr, Ont., Dec. 24 — (CP)— Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed the store and warehouse of the Ayr district co-operative in Ayr, nine miles west of Galt. Loss was estimated at more than $200,000. It was intimated that the fire marshal's department will be called upon for investigation.

The fire originated in the centre of the receiving wood and galvanized iron building, behind the office and store.

Galt, Paris and Platteville firemen assisted the Ayr volunteer brigade in fighting the flames.

The loss is a heavy one to the 312 district farmer members of the Co-Op. More than eight railway carloads of stock feed in addition to farm machinery and hardware were stored in the warehouse.

Frequent explosions were heard during the fire and neighboring houses were vacated.

At 8 a.m. the fire was still burning.

Firemen Handicapped

When the fire started there was heavy snowfall. Other factors which may prompt an investigation are that, recently, it was found the Ayr fire truck had been drained of anti-freeze, and, twice within recent months, attempts have been made to break into the Co-op warehouse. On one of these occasions entry was gained to the office and the handle smashed off the door of the safe, which, however, was not forced.

The firemen were handicapped by lack of water and the fact hose couplings were not uniform. Only two of the trucks could be played on the fire, with the water supplied from the C.P.R. freight yard service. The firemen devoted their attention to saving nearby buildings.

Dan Stauffer, vice president of the Co-op, commenting on the loss, said "the farmers depended on this Co-op to buy their feed and farm supplies. They own it. This fire is going to hit them hard."

Judge Playing Santa, Embarrassed By His Attire

Detroit, Dec. 24 — (AP)—Five-year-old Marjorie Jones went along with her grandfather this year to watch him in his annual performance as Santa Claus at the Methodist Children's Home in Detroit.

The grandfather, Judge Robert M. Toms, prides himself on the act. He takes part in amateur theatricals.

Imagine His Honor's surprise when the youngsters howled with laughter in the middle of his act.

Little Marjorie had a front row seat. She got up on her chair and shouted:

"Hey, Grandpa, your pants have fallen down!"

Grandpa quickly reached over his bulk and pulled up his Santa Claus pants.

Consumers to Find Price of Bacon Easier on Budget

Gardiner Announces 10 P.C. Cut in 1950 Floor Price

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 24 (CP)—Consumers of bacon likely will find the price a lot easier on the family budget in 1950.

A reduction in bacon prices was forecast after Friday's announcement by Agriculture Minister Gardiner of a 10-per-cent cut in the 1950 floor price.

Agricultural experts said the reduced floor price may mean a cut of at'e. seven cents a pound in the retail price of bacon.

Eggs already have fallen between 10 and 20 "cents a dozen in some parts of Canada and the experts believe cheese may dip a few cents a pound next year, depending on the outcome of Anglo-Canadian cheese negotiations.

Mr. Gardiner cut the bacon floor price as a prelude to completion of a new bacon contract with the U.K.

He announced that effective Jan. 2, 1950, the mean board will pay $32.50 for 100 pounds of grade "A" Wiltshire sides delivered at Canadian seaboard for shipment to the U.K.

This compares with $36 a hundredweight paid during 1949 when Canada had a contract to ship 160,000,000 pounds to the U.K. because of a domestic shortage, only about 70,000,000 have been shipped.

The 1950 bacon contract likely will cover the same amount as shipped during 1949, but as Mr. Gardiner indicated the quota could may be a lot lower.

In fact, it may be lower than the floor price of $32.50. Terms of the agreement are expected to be shortly in a statement issued simultaneously in London and Ottawa.

Featherless Rooster, Sad Sam, Gets Real Tweed Suit

A handsome tweed suit, especially sewn by a kind-hearted California matron, arrived as a Christmas gift from the featherless fowl.

Sam's custom-made suit has several fancy touches. The collar can be turned down for informal wear.

His name is embroidered on the side in large letters.

Sam has been in a fix that shouldn't happen to a jaybird since he was hatched nine months ago. He doesn't have a feather to call his own—he naked as the day he was born.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—Synopsis—Southern Ontario may yet enjoy a white Christmas. Temperatures will remain below freezing today and range up to 28 to 35 Sunday. There will be a light fall of snow today reaching as far north as Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie and a storm presently over Montana may bring more snow Sunday. However, it appears that for the most part the snow on Christmas Day will fall over central and northern areas since the centre is moving toward Lake Superior.

First Serious Accident Proves Fatal to Boy Running Before Car

East Longmeadow, Mass., Dec 24 — (AP) — A six-year-old boy died today of injuries sustained when he was struck by a bus operated by a driver who had just completed 1,000,000 miles without a serious accident. Operator Warren Smith told police the boy ran in front of the vehicle while trying to catch a school bus.

Fire Rages in Blod At Niagara Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 24 - (CP) — Fire raged today in a Victoria Avenue business block.

The blaze started in a glass store and at 8:30 a.m. was threatening to spread to a barber shop, a hair-dressing shop and a flower shop.

A telephone operator gave the alarm after the blaze had ignited telephone wires in the block and showed on her switchboard.

Police aroused four persons living at the block and led them to safety.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Aurora, Dec. 24. (CP) — When Robert Williams, 24, of Chicoutimi, Que., gave a cab driver a pair of trousers instead of cash for his $2.50 fare, he got himself 14 days in jail. Williams was found guilty of stealing the trousers from a fellow worker at the Aurora Inn in Holland Landing. The cabbie turned them over to police who then arrested Williams.

FIVE FURNITURE STORES CLOSED UNTIL THURSDAY

In order to give members of their staffs a well deserved rest following what has been a rather strenuous pre-Christmas' shopping period, five of the local furniture sales stores have decided to remain closed all day next Wednesday.

This will mean the stores will be closed from Saturday night until Thursday morning.

Furniture stores which have decided to give members of their staffs the extra holiday include Farrar's Home Furnishings; Lipsett's Furniture House; Model Home Furniture Company; Percival Furniture Company, and Wray's Home Furnishings.

LARGE GARTER SNAKE SEEN NEAR HOME

The Christmas season seemed a long way off for Mrs. Gordon Wellard, 141-A Ann Street, yesterday when a wiggly garter snake well over yard in length was seen outside the house.

Mrs. Wellard opened her bedroom window and looking out she saw the big snake moving just outside the window. Being allergic to snakes she called a neighbor who despatched the reptile.

Although it is unusual for snakes to be out of their winter quarters at this time of year, it is understood there have been several seen in recent weeks. The unseasonably mild weather is given as the reason.

RAY WEST OF BRIDGE FROZEN SECOND TIME

The fickle weather plays funny tricks with the Bay of Quinte. Yesterday, west of the bridge the bay was clear of ice, and this morning a glistening sheet was apparent. The sudden turn in the weather also brought a light snow with the lowering temperatures.

MEMBERS OF STAFF ENJOY PARTY

Members of the Belleville Burial Company Limited's home staff were entertained at the home of John R. Bush, 102 Dufferin Avenue on Wednesday evening. After enjoying a full course turkey dinner, a social time was enjoyed after which the members of the staff presented to their employer a beautiful gift and in turn Mr. Bush presented each member of the staff with a suitable present. It was a most delightful evening with good wishes extended to all.

Wishing you a Christmas bright with holly leaves, candle light, friendliness, pleasant cheer and joys that last through the year!

Careless Driving, Speeding Charges Laid After Crash

Raymond Carr, 267 Ridout St., Port Hope, driver for a Toronto transport company, has been charged with speeding and with careless driving as result of a 60-mile per hour chase from Dundas Street, Friday afternoon, which ended disastrously for four vehicles.

After skidding 110 feet the transport struck a standing truck owned by the Fred Eigic Company and driven by Geo. Seames, then the large truck jack-knifed and came to rest on the south boulevard. The truck driven by Seames was driven 30 feet up against a tree, causing damage accounted to approximately $250.

Seames suffered a cut on his nose and lip requiring four stitches.

Constable Chas. Lockwood and County Constable Thomas Thorne were patrolling on Dundas St. E. when they observed the transport approaching at a high rate of speed. They wheeled their cruiser at Foster Ave., and clocked the transport at 62 miles an hour.

Employees of the city public works were engaged in flushing a sewer and had a hose laid across the street. Seames was waiting for another car to proceed over the hose when his vehicle was struck by the skidding transport.

Phone Company Prepares for Holiday Calls

In Belleville as in every other centre in Canada and the United States where telephone communication serves the people, telephone company workers have been prepared for the Christmas season—their peak traffic period of the whole year.

Exchange of Christmas greetings by telephone with distant relatives and friends has become increasingly popular. But the custom has developed a peak in long distance calling which far exceeds the normal capacity of the toll networks and presents telephone companies with one of their most challenging problems.

First the tremendous increase in long distance calls necessitates a re-arrangement of toll circuits to meet the flow of traffic and to relieve large switching centres where switchboard positions are inadequate to handle the load under Christmas conditions.

Circuits Patched

This includes "patching" of circuits to provide additional toll channels where traffic is expected. Then again additional operating personnel is required to handle the calls.

For instance in Belleville it is expected there will average approximately 2,200 long distance calls on Christmas Eve alone, in addition to about 1,800 calls on Christmas Day The normal number of long distance calls out of Belleville is about 1,700 daily.

Last year there were 1,900 long distance calls on Christmas Eve and 1,875 calls on Christmas Day.

With operating requirements at a peak most of the toll operators' work on Christmas will do so cheerfully, realizing they are making a full contribution to the holiday happiness of the Canadian public.

Appreciate Value of Calls

The long distance operators appreciate that a Christmas message from a distant loved one is one of the most important of the year; and if the calls cannot be completed the operators are just as disappointed as the customer.

Yes, the "hello" girls are loyal to their jobs and to their public and Christmas Day is consistently lower than on any other day, one's thoughts turn to the home.

It is a tribute to their spirit of service that many volunteer even to work beyond their normal assignment when the need is indicated.

But in addition to the normal complement of toll operators, many times it is necessary that additional operators be trained for the holiday rush. Estimates of the Christmas traffic and force requirements must be made sufficiently in advance to leave time to carry out plans for the completion of training of the additional personnel.

May be Delays

Adding to the load of long distance circuits on the holidays is the increased number of calls to overseas points at Christmas time.

Just a tip to persons expecting to exchange Christmas greetings by long distance. Remember on Christmas Eve and on Christmas Day calls are at a peak and there are more liable to be delays.

CIRCUS TRAINER KILLED BY LION

J.J. Cash Employees Enjoy Christmas Banquet and Dance

Thursday evening the employees of Cash's held their annual Christmas banquet in their plant on Grier Street. The event commenced at 4.30 p.m. and presents were exchanged. At 5.30 p.m. all sat down to a turkey dinner. After dinner the general manager of the company, Mr. Max Perrit, expressed his sincere thanks to the Social Club Committee for the splendid idea they had in organizing this annual banquet in the plant itself, as, during the Christmas season, one's thoughts turn to the home.

Since a very large part of the employee's time was spent in the plant it was only fitting that this annual banquet be held where they were most of each working day in the year. He also thanked the committee for their efforts in organizing all recreation for the employees, and the beautiful decorations that adorned the serving and waiting tables for this banquet.

After the dinner, the table was cleared, and bingo was the order of the day. The first two games were to be for the employees only, to whom two special prizes were donated. The first prize was won by Mrs. Pauline Wesley, and the second by Mrs. C. Ironsides. Cash's had a 27 length line of "Truck's crescendo" in copper and brass shades.

Guests of the employees began to arrive at the close of these two "specials" and were immediately engaged in the games. Prize winners at these games were Mrs. C. Lloyd,special prize donated by the committee, followed by Miss G. Roberts, Mrs. E. Vibert, Mr. H. Lemon, Miss H. Lummiss, Mrs. Hoyle, Mrs. M. Shorey, Miss K. Wright, Mr. T. Hood, (Special), Mrs. C. Ironsides, Albert James, Mrs. G. Lott, Mrs. J. Allerby, Miss J. Thompson, Mr. R. Bashall and Mrs. V Orrell.

Dancing commenced about 8.30 p.m. and at 11 p.m. refreshments in the form of sandwiches, cake, and coffee were served under the direction of Mrs. D. Johnson, after which dancing was resumed until 11.45 p.m.

The employees wish to thank their committee for their splendid evening, including the decorations that were very much in the Christmas spirit, with all kinds of Santa Claus' and Christmas trees and snow all over the front part of the building, besides, all pipes completely covered with streamers in the Christmas colors of red, green and white.

Capitol Theatre Plays Host to RCMS "Quinte"

The Cadets of R.C.S.C. "Quinte" paraded from their barracks to the Capitol Theatre where they attended the first showing of the movie "Meet the Navy."

Mr. Marcaro, the manager of the theatre, welcomed the cadets as they marched in to the seats reserved for them. The movie of the famous stage show, put on by the Royal Canadian Navy proved as colorful and entertaining as they expected it would be, and they heartily enjoyed such an appropriate movie.

The commanding officer, thanked Mr. Marcaro for his generous gesture on behalf of the cadets who were deeply appreciative of the interest shown in them.

USED TO BE NEWSBOY

Salt Lake City, Dec. 24. (AP) — Joe Dupler, Salt Lake City furrier, used to be a newsboy himself.

He recalls selling papers on several cold Christmases in Denver, Colo., about 40 years ago.

So today, for the seventh straight year, Joe gave a crisp $5 bill, candy, Christmas stockings and assorted other goodies to more than 100 street newspaper salesmen of the Salt Lake Tribune-Telegram.

IN MEMORIAM

SCOTT — In loving memory of Mrs Irene Scott who passed away five years ago December 26.

Quiet thoughts of a earthly love
Gentle memories we cherish
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away to die.
We shall meet her some bright morning
Resting by waters fair
Where the flowers are ever coming
In the garden of God up there.
Safe in the arms of Jesus.
Ever remembered by son Freddie Mother, Dad and sister. 1264

HADCOCK — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Adam Hadcock, who passed away December 26th, 1942.

In Belleville Cemetery softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave
Those who loved us deeply
Though it could not save.
Those who kept a fond picture
More precious than silver or gold
It is a picture of you dear Bill
Which memory will never grow old.
It is lonesome for me without you
dear Bill
And every day I miss you
For life is not the same to me
Since you were called away.
Lovingly remembered by wife Frances and sons. 1264

BEANY — In loving memory of our dear son Beany Hadcock who passed away December 25, 1947.

The vacant chair shines on the grave
Of one we loved but could not save.
Call he did one sudden, the shock severe
To free the one we loved so dear.
God took our boy to rest again
Where sorrow and pain are not
And the one we loved so well
Is never forgot.
Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Reta and Pete.

BURLEY — In loving memory of a dear father Frederick Burley who passed away December 25, 1948.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
For the loss of one we loved so well.
And while he sleeps beneath the sod
His memory we shall always keep.
Lovingly remembered by son, Harry, Goldie and Shirley.

THOMPSON — In loving memory of a dear father, Wm. Thompson, who passed away December 26th, 1948.

Sleep in the silent graveyard
Deep in the heart
His remembrance
Will wait and start
In memory's chain
Linking us to him
Distance and death
Can never dim.
Evelyn. 1264

HASTINGS IN ERIN

BY LAVONIA SOCKELBACH

The six northeastern townships of the county of Hastings, Limerick, Cashel, Dungannon, Mayo, Monteagle, Carlow, Wicklow and Bangor, have their name-places, as you can see on the map of Ireland, in a quite different order. To visit them all and avoid a too back-and-forth tour it was found best to fly from London to Dublin, or to use the present Irish name, Baile-Atha-Cliath, and then to Wicklow, Carlow, Cashel, Limerick, Monteagle, Mayo and then out of Eire back into the Empire, (to which we and Ulster belong), and by way of Enniskillen visit Moira, Dungannon and Bangor.

The unclean train from Limerick on the River Shannon wriggles slowly through countries Clare and Galway to Athenry, to the town of Westport on Clew Bay to be headquarters while the wilds of Ireland were explored.

* * *

In New York, a few days before sailing, I was driven by a young Irishman to the English-speaking Union in 54th St. "English-speaking!" he asked. From there we went on, became interested in each other's accents and, much as I dislike talking to the man in the wheel of an automobile in a city, found myself confiding to him that I was going to Ireland next week. The well-trained taxi was let go almost by itself when he found that Mayo was one of the places to be visited. Mayo! Why that's where our Mayor comes from, Lady, you go to him and get letters of introduction. He will say you are a friend of his and any attention shown to you will be appreciated by me, etc. You will see sights and meet people you would not otherwise know. And he will give you a police escort down to the boat when you sail."

"But how could he? I am not even acquainted with the man, or so."

"Well, mavourneen, and what is that to an Irishman?" he turned around to query and with skillfully jerked the car out of the way of a Fifth Ave. bus.

It is a typical Irish attitude. Little like like big laws can be tossed about with the greatest delight.

"Do you speak Irish?" I asked.

"Oh, I learned it at school but I have forgotten it by now."

"But isn't there beautiful poetry written in Irish, and lovely old legends?"

"And what would I be doing with poetry and legends in America I would be liking to know?" he asked indignantly.

By 1pm — about fifteen minutes, we were quite chummy and as we drew up at the Union he settled himself for a wait as one fab as I waited for him to open the door.

"Please tell me why don't you Canadians join with this country? There are only so many people up there as in this town and around."

I asked: "Why doesn't Ulster join with Eire? Denmark with Germany? Europe with Russia? The man with the little field sell to the rich neighbour? "Besides" as a parting shot, "each Canadian is equal to ten Americans, so that evens up the numbers."

"God bless my soul, Acuala, I'm thinking you'll like it Ireland. Good-bye and may all the Saints protect you." And so far, all the thousands of them have, without benefit of the Mayor of New York.

So here I was in Mayo at a comfortable hotel with a capable Scotch woman as hostess, and from Westport one goes by car or bus to the poorest section of Ireland where Irish is still spoken and where they were longest able to stand up against the British's schemes of education with teaching in English language. The next day to Achill Island.

A loveller or more interesting drive around Clew Bay It would be difficult to find. The buses are in good condition and the people coming and going, chiefly country folk. There were two men (or each bus, a policeman and a ticket collector, the latter of whom got off and at each stop and both got off occasionally at the wayside taverns.

There was a high step from the bus down and as I watched old women with the usual black shawl over head and shoulders, with one corner trailing on the ground and laden with bundles I supposed that the young man did not help them because of the definitely shabby dress. That was not so. It was the custom of the country. In America where there was only one man to a bus, that was to be expected but a young man calmly lighting another cigarette while rheumatic old women painfully let themselves down or climbed up, was not exactly chivalrous.

When my turn came I remember actually that it was a high step and simply waited. He grudgingly gave me a hand but if was I who had to help the ancient one behind me. Yet, though so old and haggard, she could not have been fifty to judge by the age of the child who called her mother. Her teeth were the pointed kind one so often sees over here and both children were much soiled, one with a deformed leg and the other with large beautiful eyes, bleary, but without the appeal that is so distressingly common.

Whenever a church or a wayside cross was passed, passengers crossed themselves, the men taking off their caps, then settled themselves to study me again, the only uncrossed person in the bus. Perhaps, they prayed to St. Christopher — he is the one who looks after travellers — to protect them from harm that a heretic might bring, or, perhaps, they just wished to study New York fashions. Those who did not wear shawls wore clothes of the most indescribable cut, but the great variety of design a never ending joy. The red skirts of Donegal were not in evidence at all, but the red coats were, and made a welcome bit of color against the bog background. Hats were not worn and, combed or uncombed, the glorious hair of Ireland needed no hiding. I was not long enough in Eire to get to know the young men with long locks and the old men with baldness, but a Bedlington terrier on the loose. Six to nine inches long with hair of the very silkiest kind of coppery brown to palest amber. They were the constant attention and I found them horribly fascinating.
